Kolson Sees Future Bright

City Council President Peter Kolson said he is looking forward to two more prosperous years for the city during Monday's inauguration ceremonies at Quincy High School.

Kolson, the Ward 1 councillor, was sworn-in by City Clerk Joseph Shea to the first year of his second two-year term as council president following the inaugural address of Mayor James Sheets.

Kolson, after introducing several family members, said he considers it "an honor and a privilege" to serve as council president. He thanked his constituents in Ward 1 and also his fellow councillors for whom, he said, constant cooperation is necessary if they are to properly perform their duties.

"Although elected individually, we work cooperatively," he said. "We may not always see eye to eye, but we always look in the same direction."

He added, "If you like what you've seen before--well, hold on, we're going to be at it again."

Kolson touched briefly upon recent improvements in Ward 1--including the purchase of Hurley's Boat Rental that created waterway access and renovations

•Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond: For work in expanding the city's community policing program, helping to make the reopening of the Fore River shipyard a reality and bringing other development to his ward.

•Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott: For work on neighborhood issues in Ward 3 and efforts as chairman of the council's Downtown Development Committee.

•Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico: For efforts on a number of issues related to Crown Colony and the neighborhoods he represents.

•Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin: For diligence in addressing the Strand cleanup, a new Eastern Nazarene College project, the revitalization of Wollaston Beach and other Ward 5 issues.

•Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers: For overseeing the arrival of Boston Scientific at the old Jordan Marsh warehouse and a number of other development projects in his ward.

•Councillor Timothy Cahill: For his efforts on behalf of the entire city and as Norfolk County treasurer. Kolson noted he has chosen Cahill to oversee the council's Finance Committee because of his fiscal leadership abilities.

•Councillor Paul Harold: For working on matters that affect all of Quincy--both as a councillor and, formerly, as a state senator--and donating chandeliers in memory of his late parents to the newly-renovated City Council Chambers.

•Councillor Francis McCauley: For 25 years of public service as mayor, Sheets: 'We Must Both Act And Dream'

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Quincy has achieved success because it has dared to dream, and the city will continue to do both in the future, Mayor James Sheets said during his fifth inaugural address Monday at Quincy High School.

The mayor's speech and swearing-in were followed by organizational meetings of the City Council and School Committee. All council members were sworn-in--including former Mayor Francis McCauley, now a councillor-at-large--as well as new School Committeeman Michael McFarland and the two committee members re-elected in November: JoAnn Bragg and Ronald Mariano. Speeches were given by Council President Peter Kolson and new Committee Vice Chairwoman Linda Stice.

City Clerk Joseph Shea administered the oath to all elected officials.

Sheets' address was inspired, in part, by the recent experience of being presented with a "dream catcher" by a group of preschool children. According to Native American legend, a dream catcher captures good dreams until they come true.

"As I looked at my very own dream catcher, I began to realize that for each of us to accomplish great things we must not only act but

'Absolutely A Perfect Night'

Estimated 30,000 Attend Sixth First Night Quincy

By MICHAEL WHALEN

About 30,000 people attended the city's sixth annual First Night Quincy celebration on New Year's Eve despite frigid temperatures that likely kept many would-be attendees indoors.

First Night Chairman Michael Cheney, who made the crowd estimate, said attendance was "up significantly" from last year's total of 21,000-plus because although it was chillier than expected, it was not as cold as First Night Quincy '97. An official tally from button sales was not available at press time.

"It was a pleasant surprise," said Cheney. "When the weather turned cold, I thought it might be like last year. It actually worked out well because our indoor attractions were crowded, but not overfilled. It was absolutely a perfect night, a fantastic event, and everyone's raving about it."

New attractions at First Night Quincy '98 included a giant gingerbread house at Presidents Place created by Montilio's Bakery ("the kids loved it," Cheney said), 14 "pretty spectacular floats" and two wood sculptors. Returning favorites included a laser light show, truck-decorating contest and parade, a concluding fireworks display and others.

Cheney said plans are already underway for next year's event. He was scheduled to meet with the First Night Committee this week to discuss new ideas for First Night '99, while design work for the floats for the Dec. 31 celebration will begin next month.

"It's a year-long event for us," he said. Cheney added that he is also looking forward to the second annual Presidents Day Celebration run by First Night Quincy scheduled for Feb. 16. The event will include a colonial encampment, hayrides, live music, ice sculptures and more.

Children Are City's 'Greatest Riches'

Stice: Committee's Focus Is 'First-Class Education'

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Linda Stice, after being sworn-in as vice chairwoman of the Quincy School Committee on Monday, said the committee must continue to focus on providing a "first-class education" for all of the city's students.

City Clerk Joseph Shea administered the oath to Stice after doing the same for Mayor James Sheets, re-elected in November to a sixth term and Ward 1 City Councillor Peter Kolson, who was re-elected council president during Monday's ceremonies.

Stice praised Sheets, School Supt. Eugene Creedon, and members of the City Council and School Committee for working together to make the best interests of the Quincy Public Schools a priority. She cited a recently-unveiled construction/renovations plan as a prime example of that collaboration.

"I'm grateful that no matter what perspective we each bring to the table, we seem to have agreed in the past month that our children and our staff deserve to learn and work in buildings that reflect their worth," she said. "Nineteen ninety-eight marks the beginning of a 12-year program in which the city will invest more than $70 million to not only make long-overdue repairs and renovations to our existing school buildings but also to build a new high school."

She also applauded the city's principals, teachers and guidance counselors for their part in making the Quincy Public Schools a top-quality educational system.

But Stice, who is also executive director of the Quincy Commission on the Family, stressed that the schools are about more than everyday education.

"Schools represents more than places of instruction," she said. "They are places of refuge for young children who were left alone at 6 o'clock this morning by parents who had to go to work; they are places where today some children will find interests they didn't know they have because a teacher will grab their imagination and make them want to learn; they are places where today children from over 30 countries will sit down in our classrooms to learn English and learn how to be Americans."

"I am profoundly grateful for the trust put in us by our city. The School Committee is entrusted with the community's greatest riches: its children. What is important is that we live up to the trust by making sure that every child, without exception, is offered a first-class education. It just may be the most important work that any of us will ever do."

Cahill, Durkin, Harold Get Top Committee Posts

Councillor Timothy Cahill, Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin and Councillor Paul Harold have received the top City Council committee posts from Council President Peter Kolson.

Kolson, re-elected president on Monday, has named Cahill chairman of the Finance Committee, Durkin chairman of the Ordinance Committee, and Harold chairman of the Oversight Committee.

Those are the most prominent of the council's 14 committees because all nine council members serve on them.

Vice chairmen of those committees are: Councillor

Francis McCauley, Finance; Harold, Ordinance; and Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott, Oversight.

Chairmen and vice chairmen of other council committees are listed below.

Five-man committees: Public Works, Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers and

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond; Hospital, McCauley and Harold; Park and Recreation, McDermott and Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico; Public Safety, Raymond and Durkin; Rules, D'Amico and McDermott; Senior Citizens, Raymond and Ayers; Education, D'Amico and Durkin.

Three-man committees: Downtown, McDermott and Cahill; Disabilities, Ayers and McCauley; Veterans, Harold and McCauley; Library, Harold and Cahill.

Reardon Re-Appointed Council Committee Clerk

The City Council unanimously re-appointed Jeanne Reardon to serve as clerk of council committees following Monday's mayoral inaugural address at Quincy High School.

Reardon has held the post since 1980.

A 1958 graduate of Quincy High, she said she was pleased to be back in her alma mater.

"It was a fine school then, and it's a fine school now," said Reardon.

TAKE A LOAD OFF - ASAP

If we're honest with ourselves, we all know that it's better to be fit than fat, that too many extra pounds are simply not good for you. Now research is showing that the longer you carry around the excess weight, the greater your chances of developing painful osteoarthritis, or grinding of bone against bone. The problem is the wear and tear that extra pounds cause to the spongy cartilage that normally cushions hip and knee joints. Undue pressure can result in tearing or thinning of the tissue. In one study of more than 1,000 physicians, those who were even just 20 pounds overweight as young adults developed more severe joint damage than their normal-weight peers. The doctors who were the heaviest, the earliest in their lives, more than tripled their rate of osteoarthritis in their weight-bearing joints.

P.S. More than one-third of all Americans over age 65 suffer from osteoarthritis, which can be made worse by obesity.

Taking care of yourself, especially when it comes to exercise, can seem like an extra chore. But even a small investment, such as taking a short walk each day, will pay off in dividends of increased health, energy, and well-being. ATAFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy, we specialize in treating heart problems, hypertension, and cholesterol. Peter And Alicia Corea

It was September, 1947 and 23-year-old Peter Corea arrived at Houghs Neck Congregational Church as guest preacher—just for that one Sunday.

But, the congregational liked him and invited him back the next week. They liked him even more. In fact, they liked him so much that the very next month—Oct. 16 to be exact—they called him to be their minister.

And, he was ordained Sunday, Dec. 8 in the sanctuary.

Fifty years later, they still like him. Make that love him.

And, they feel that way too about Alicia, his wife and co-pastor.

During their first two years at Houghs Neck Congregational, Alicia was studying at Andover Newton. She was ordained May 5, 1949—the first woman not only in Quincy but in Massachusetts to be ordained.

Their team ministry is both unique and historic. They have served one church longer than any other pastors in Quincy.

Recently over 150 church members and friends celebrated a double 50th anniversary: Rev. Dr. Peter V. Corea's ordination and his and Rev. M. Alicia Corea's ministry.

But to those present and to those who know them, it's always been just plain Peter and Alicia. That's the way they like it.

The solemn anniversary service was modeled after Peter Corea's original ordination service and conducted by Alicia and their son, Bill, a geologist for the Chevron Oil Company in Los Angeles.

The event was sprinkled with humor, too.

Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, retired Quincy assistant school superintendent and long-time friend and church member, recalled a bet she had with Peter.

Carol Lee is a Red Sox fan. And Peter a Damn Yankee fan. The bet, over a 10-year period was on which team would win the pennant. (Pretty safe bet, Peter.) Carol Lee, who was in junior high school when the wager started, couldn't remember winning any year. Not even the year when Peter was so confident of his Yankees he said if the Red Sox won, he would eat a pair of old shoes.

By losing, Carol Lee had to wash the windows in the parsonage each year.

"I washed a lot of windows," she said. "Back then I think the parsonage had about 300 windows."

But Peter was a benevolent winner.

"He's always paid me when I got through washing," she laughs.

There were letters of congratulations read. Among them, one from Peter's former student at Emerson College, Jay Leno.

Leno attended Emerson in the 1960s and took six psychology courses taught by Peter. They became good friends and still keep in touch today.

Hard to believe now but back then some of the teachers told Leno they didn't think he would ever make it as a stand-up comic. Peter, though, thought he would and encouraged him.

In his letter, Leno told Peter: "I still owe you a term paper. I'll get it to you the first of the year."

There was a touching moment when Rev. Robert

Johnston, headmaster of the Woodward School, who has Lou Gehrig's Disease, came down the aisle in a wheelchair to thank Peter for being "my mentor."

PETER AND ALICIA COREA

Others offering tributes that day were Rev. Dr. Richard Anderson, minister of the First Christian Congregational Church in Swansea; Rev. Malcolm Brummitt, retired Army chaplain and interim minister; Dr. Roger Comeau, Associate Dean for Admissions and Student Affairs at Mercer University School of Medicine in Georgia, and Beth Little, education teacher at the Massachusetts Hospital School.

All of them grew up as members of the church with their lives influenced by Peter Corea.

"He instilled in us all the importance of an education," says Carol Lee Griffin. "Back in those days not many people were going to college but Peter wanted us to go and made sure we did by helping us with church scholarships. We are all grateful to him."

Under Peter's and Alicia's guidance, Houghs Neck Congregational has grown from a summer mission to an active, year-round church.

During their half-century co-ministry, they have conducted over 5,000 worship services, thousands of weddings, baptisms and funerals.

And while doing all that, they have given thousands of hours of personal service and attention to people in the congregation and in the community.

They have reached outside Houghs Neck and far into the community.

They are active participants in peninsula ecumenical worship services. Lead worship often on Sundays at the Eventide Home. Both have served on the Woodward School Board of Supervisors. Both have been actively involved with the Protestant Social Service Bureau of which Peter is a past president.

Peter was a founder of Quincy College. He has served on the Quincy Hospital Board of Managers. A strong advocate of good housing—especially for senior citizens—he has served on the Quincy Housing Authority Commission and was chairman 10 years. During that time he pushed for and obtained large sized federal grants for the construction of senior citizen housing complexes.

It was a lucky day for Houghs Neck and for Quincy that Sunday a half century ago when that young fellow came by to preach—for that one Sunday. And stayed for a half-century of Sundays and all the days between.

Peter and Alicia are a rare, team ministry.

But they are more than that.

They are also a rare community treasure.

Scenes From Yesterday

The Granite Railway Quarries,
W. QUINCY, Mass.

THIS IS A 1924 POSTCARD showing the Granite Railway Quarries in West Quincy. Originally known as Pine Hill Quarry, its name changed when the Granite Railway Company bought it. Today they call it Granite Rail and it is probably Quincy's best known quarry. At one time this was two separate quarry holes, and the company also had a third quarry known as Little Granite Rail that was just to the west of this one. Although this hole is now filled with water, you can appreciate the depth of the quarry by looking beyond the ledge on which the men in the foreground are standing. The granite from this quarry was used to build many buildings that remain as landmarks today. For example, the granite in the bottom portion of Boston's Customs House, including the fluted columns, is from Rockport granite. Other landmarks include the Minot Ledge Lighthouse off Cohasset and the Parker House Hotel and the old United Shoe Machinery building in Boston.

Says Nagel Book Shows Conflicts Between Abigail And John Q. Adams

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I wish to reply to Ms. Agnes J. Smith's response of Nov. 20, 1997 ("John Quincy Adams Admired And Loved Both His Parents") to my letter of Nov. 6, 1997 ("Statue, History Paint Different Pictures").

Based on my reading of Paul Nagel's book entitled, "John Quincy Adams: A Public Life, A Private Life" I believe that Ms. Smith has overlooked the complex relationship between mother and son, which resulted in lifelong conflicts between the two.

"As the life of John Quincy Adams discloses, Abigail Adams was a calamity as a mother. She could not be restrained by love or judgment from seeking to instill in her children her own ambitions and apprehensions." (Paul Nagel, page 31.)

Abigail broke up her son's relationship with his first fiancée, Mary Frazer (Nagel, page 66) and tried to do the same thing with Louisa Catherine Johnson, her son's future wife (Nagel, pages 95-96, 99-100), and would have done so had he not been so far away from home at the time.

Paul Nagel discusses the differences between the two women in the following passage on page 110. "From some vantage point, Louisa would appear much like Abigail Adams. Both were gifted letter writers. They were astute critics of literature. They were shrewd judges of political behavior. But there were also significant differences...She [Louisa] was a compassionate, gentle person, rather shy...She assuredly did not share Abigail's aggressiveness, or need to dominate males, particularly sons...Abigail could often be terrifying; Louisa was always lovable."

And again, further on in the book (Nagel, page 257): "John had not returned to his mother's bedside, nor did he attend her funeral...It became Louisa's task to explain to astonished relatives that her husband had been detained by his many official burdens. She could hardly have added—if indeed, it was accurate—that his absence was the ultimate testimony to a lifelong resentment of his mother's domineering ways."

So indeed, there is much evidence to support the idea that John Quincy Adams and his mother, Abigail Adams did not get along, perhaps due to her overbearing nature.

Flynn Takes Offense To Cartoon

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The Boston Globe's anti-Irish, anti-Catholic obsession showed its ugly hand again today (Dec. 30) in an outrageous and racist cartoon.

New Area Codes Topic For Chamber Jan. 15

The new Massachusetts area codes will be the topic for the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Thursday, Jan. 15 from 8 to 9:30 p.m. in the Chamber Board Room, 36 Miller Stile Rd., Quincy.

Speakers will include Bob Noble, regional director of public affairs for Bell Atlantic, and Bill Kenneway of CTC Communications Corp.

Beginning Feb. 1, no telephone call, fax or page will be completed without the right area code.

Cost is $10 per person. For reservations, call 479-1111.

The Globe's lack of knowledge and history regarding foreign policy is second only to its ignorance of the enormous cultural, social, and educational contributions made by the Irish both in this country, and throughout the world.

To state, as The Globe did, that the Irish way of life is "killing and hate" and that the Irish "hate to work" is yet another cheap shot by a newspaper that has a long reputation of anti-Irish, anti-Catholic bigotry. The Globe obviously feels it can continue to get away with it, because nobody with power will stand up to them.

$3 Million Capital Improvement Plan

By PAUL HAROLD

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa filed a record $3 million capital improvements package to build a trash incinerator, an x-ray building at the hospital, a new branch library and a new NQHS gymnasium.

The incinerator project was made a priority this week when state officials ordered the closing of the Hitchcock Quarry landfill by 1963.

The mayor said that "with the bonded debt reduced considerably, we are in a better position to undertake such improvements than we have been for some time."

The Quincy Taxpayers' Association was opposed to the construction of the incinerator, and wanted a referendum on the other projects in the mayor's package.

SQUANTUM RE-ZONING CONSIDERED

Under the proposed re-zoning of Squantum, almost all of the peninsula would be residence A. Two hundred residents petitioned for the change that would re-zone three large tracks of land from residence B to residence A.

The first area was bounded by Dorchester St., Standish, and Bellevue Rds. and Parke Ave. The second ran from E. Squantum St. to Essex and Heath Sts., with the third including the area off Lansdowne St. to the marsh.

City Council President William Ellis and Joseph Brett were among those supporting the re-zoning effort.

BIDS SOUGHT ON QUARRY ST. WIDENING

The city advertised for bids for the widening on Quarry St. from Furnace Brook Parkway to School St. A spring construction was planned with completion before the cold weather set in.

Costs of the $307,000 highway project were to be shared by the city, county and state.

DPW Commissioner Charles Herbert, in conference with Henry Nielson, superintendent of engineering, added an additional $65,000 to the project for land takings.

A Wollaston man was arraigned in Quincy District Court for painting a 1960 auto registration plate green to match the 1961 plates. . . Jim Kelley, chairman of the Montclair Men's Club's civic committee, was critical of the city's snow removal efforts in North Quincy, saying that for the second snow storm in a row, it appeared that the city had abandoned Montclair. . . The "fish fry," all you could eat, at Howard Johnson's on the Southeast Expressway, cost $1.00. . . Former State Rep. Thomas Cogan of Atlantic St. died this week. . . Frank Remick was re-elected to the board of directors at the Quincy Trust Co. Among those re-elected were Perley Barbour, Frank Foy and Chester Weeden. . . Arthur Senter the president of the Mass. Fields School P.T.A. . . Purchasing Agent Thomas Morrissey was authorized to spend $5,000 to repair storm damage at the city cemeteries. . . QHS hockey was tied for second place with Don Bosco and Malden in the Metropolitan Hockey League, after a 4-3 defeat at the Boston Arena by Christopher Columbus. Bill Hutchinson was coach. . . Building Inspector Alrick Weidman reported one of the biggest upswings in construction with a total of $1.5 million in projects for 1960, including 68 new single family homes.

Art Assn. Classes Begin Jan. 12

gin Monday, Jan. 12.

The courses feature adult education with Copley artist Edwina Caci offering a class on portrait painting and instructor Michael Domina teaching watercolor. Also offered are the basics and fundamentals of Oriental brush painting with Jo-An Thomas and basic drawing with Maryann Carlson.

Children's classes will begin Thursday, Jan. 15 with Maryann Carlson. All other children's classes are offered on Saturdays. Morning and afternoon classes include handbuilding and clay and "Let's Do Art."

Also included in the winter schedule are a series of special workshops including floral painting, life drawing and paper sculpture.

Classes are weekly and continue through February. Registration is on a first-come, first-serve basis. Registration and payment must be received no later than five days prior to the course.

"Open Studio" is a new feature being offered to area artists beginning Jan. 24. The studio will be available Saturdays from 2 to 4 p.m. at a cost of $10 per session. Interested artists should call and reserve their date at least two weeks in advance.

The Association is located at 26 High School Ave., Quincy. For more information and registration forms, call 770-2482 and leave a message.

Children's Theatre Workshop Winter Plays

The schedule includes: "King Me," Jan. 10 at 7 p.m.; "Citrus City Calamity," Jan. 11 at 7 p.m.; "The Vanishing of Vistel," Jan. 17 at 7 p.m.; and "The Rescue of Rudolph" and "By Any Other Name," Jan. 18 beginning at 1 p.m. Cast members range in age from 4 to 18 and older.

Tickets are $6 at the door, $4 in advance and for children under 6 and senior citizens. For more information, call 472-9233.

Registration for the spring semester will take place Saturday, Jan. 31 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

DAILY DO'S AND DON'TS

The human foot tends to be a go-along sort, often taking years of hard use before throwing out a complaint. When those complaints come, however, they can be doozies.

The good news is that some regular maintenance can help keep your feet happy, as well as relieve many common problems. Start with a daily inspection of redness, cracks in the skin, or other signs of irritation. Petroleum jelly or thick, lanolin-containing lotions can keep skin soft when applied after bathing. Wearing shoes that "breathe" (such as those made of leather, fabric, or perforated materials) can discourage growth of bacteria and fungi. If you do notice any trouble signs, get professional help before they turn into serious problems.

P.S. Daily foot care is especially important for the elderly and people with circulation problems.

If you are suffering from these or any other foot related complaints call us at (617) 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Pkwy., Suite #18, Quincy and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

McDermott Won't Seek State Representative Seat

Ward 3 Councilor Patrick McDermott will not seek the First Norfolk District state representative seat.

McDermott said his decision not to run was based on his commitment to residents of Ward 3 and to his pursuit of a law degree at Suffolk University.

The state representative seat is being vacated by Michael Bellotti to run for Norfolk County sheriff.

"This was a difficult decision to make," said McDermott. "An opportunity like this (an open seat) does not arrive at your doorstep every day."

"But I need to concen-

PATRICK McDERMOTT

trate on the job at hand right now. I was elected to the City Council for a second term and I think it would be unfair to the Ward 3 community if I began another campaign right now."

McDermott cited several matters he wants to see to conclusion before making plans for higher office.

Among them, he said, are ongoing developments such as Stop & Shop on Newport Ave., a proposed office building and garage at the North Quincy MBTA station, a Planned Unit Development project on Quarry St. and economic revitalization efforts for downtown Quincy.

"I am proud of the many accomplishments I have participated in during my first term as a city councilor," McDermott said.

"I look forward to many more."

Delahunt To Be Honored By Old Colony Boy Scouts Council

Old Colony Council Boy Scouts will honor Congressman William Delahunt at its Patriots' Award Dinner Friday, Jan. 9 at the Sheraton Tara in Braintree.

Delahunt will receive the Massachusetts Patriots' Award for "exemplary service to the people of the Commonwealth."

Quincy realtor Daniel Flynn, president of Daniel J. Flynn & Co. Inc., is chairing the award's executive committee, as honorary chairman, will present the award to Delahunt. The dinner will benefit Old Colony Council Boy Scout programs.

WILLIAM DELAHUNT

A reception will start at 6:15 p.m. followed by dinner at 7:15 p.m. The award program will begin during dessert. In addition to remarks by the chair people and recipient, an Eagle Scout will relate what scouting has meant to him. Scouts also will act as honor and color guards for the ceremonies.

Those interested in attending the dinner can contact the Old Colony Council Boy Scouts at (781) 828-8360 for a reservation form. Individual tickets are $150. Two tickets for a couple are $250. The schedule of costs for program book ads is available upon request. A $115 portion of every ticket purchased is a non-refundable gift to the council's general fund and is tax deductible.

Parents' Council To Meet Jan. 12

The Quincy Citywide Parents' Council will meet Monday, Jan. 12 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Broad Meadows

CRANK CALL

Once an auto technician has conducted all the necessary inspections and tests before concluding that your car needs a new battery, consumers should keep the CCA designation in mind when making a selection. The cold-cranking amps (CCA) number refers to the current the battery can deliver to the starter motor to turn the engine over. With winter in mind, industry standards specify that a battery be able to deliver its claimed CCA for at least 30 seconds at 0 degrees F. (At 0 degrees F., batteries produce less than half the power they produce at 80 degrees F.) In some cases, car owners may decide that they wish to purchase a replacement battery with a higher CCA than the original.

HINT: A battery's "reserve capacity," measured in minutes, indicates how long the car might keep going if its charging system suddenly failed. Reserve capacity and CCA are not linked. Cold weather is here and for peak performance, it makes good sense to keep every system in your new or older car properly maintained. Rely on your professional service technician. To help you do this, the ASE Certified professional service team at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is available at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree, 843-1550. We use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. We're "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

Saturday Deadline For Tree Mulching Program

The Quincy Evergreen Program is accepting Christmas trees in need of mulching through Saturday.

Trees may be dropped off at the Recycling Center in the rear of the Quincy Department of Public Works Building, 55 Sea St.

The program, which is in its ninth year, is sponsored by Jay Cashman Inc. of Boston, formerly of 77 Federal Ave., Quincy. Mayor James Sheets' office also assists with the effort. Over 13,000 trees have been collected and mulched since it started.

The program prevents clutter in landfills through the recycling of trees and contributes to the environment by way of the evergreen plants participants receive.

Everyone who brings in a tree will receive a coupon for a live 10-inch evergreen plant which will be available in April. Used gift wrapping paper may also be exchanged for an evergreen coupon.

Trees and wrapping paper may be brought to the DPW building through Saturday daily from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The program is open to Quincy residents only.

For more information, call 376-1252.

Introducing Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates

Prescribed by doctors. Preferred by patients.

Something new is happening in health care. And it's happening right here in Massachusetts.

A group of doctors and other clinicians has committed to providing the kind of care people really want. The kind that views each patient as a whole person—and gives you a voice in your treatment options.

The doctors providing this care are among the most highly qualified in the country. The health center doctors of Harvard Pilgrim have been nationally recognized for their pioneering work in disease management and preventive medicine.

Today, they have organized themselves into a clinician-run, multi-specialty group practice called Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates. Here, they treat people with an emphasis on their overall health.

So before your next checkup, check out the new Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates. And see why it's just what the doctors ordered.

Ordination, Ministry Celebration

Dr. Peter, Rev. Alicia Corea Honored For 50 Years Service At Houghs Neck Congregational

Rev. Dr. Peter V. Corea and Rev. M. Alicia Corea recently celebrated the 50th anniversary of Dr. Corea's ordination and of their ministry to Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

More than 150 members and friends attended the celebration at the church, located at 310 Manet Ave.

The service, patterned after Dr. Corea's original ordination service, was conducted by Rev. Corea and their son Dr. William Corea, a geologist for the Chevron Oil Co. in Los Angeles.

Tributes were offered by Rev. Dr. Richard Anderson, minister of First Congregational Church in Swansea; Rev. Robert Johnson, headmaster of the Woodward School for Girls; Rev. Malcolm Brummitt, retired Army chaplain and interim minister; Dr. Roger Comeau, associate dean for admissions and student affairs at Mercer University School of Medicine in Georgia; Beth Little, special education teacher at the Massachusetts Hospital School; and Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, retired Quincy assistant school superintendent. All grew up as members of Houghs Neck Congregational.

Rev. Corea and Dr. Trudi Feinstein, professor of psychology at Emerson College, shared selected letters of congratulations and thanks to Dr. Corea received from friends and associates. Among those who wrote were Jay Leno of NBC's "Tonight Show" and Rev. Bedros Baharian, retired Quincy Point Congregational Church minister, a close friend.

Dr. Corea was called to be the Houghs Neck Congregational minister on Oct. 16, 1947, shortly after being ordained. Rev. Corea eventually joined him after becoming the first woman ordained to the Christian ministry on May 5, 1949.

The Coreas have overseen the church's growth from a summer mission to a year-round church as well as structural and aesthetic changes to the church building, established a scholarship fund for young people, helped develop Church School and youth groups and activities, encouraged an ecumenical

Will Seek Re-election Instead Tobin Won't Run For Norfolk County D.A.

By MICHAEL WHALEN
State Rep. Stephen Tobin has made it official: he will not run for Norfolk County district attorney this year.

Tobin, 41, told The Quincy Sun on Tuesday that he pondered the possibility of running for the office but will instead seek re-election to his seat in the Second Norfolk District in November.

"I gave it consideration," he said of the run for district attorney. "But I think I really want to continue to serve my constituency, and the way to do that is to run for re-election to my state representative seat.

"I love serving as a legislator because I have daily connection to the people. I like that because you feel as though you can be of service to people, someone who helps others. I don't know if I would feel the same as district attorney."

Tobin said he also wants to focus on a number of issues on the Legislature's agenda, including a sex offender registry.

"I need to be focused on the job," he said.

Tobin added he has no plans to endorse anyone running for district attorney.

"No one's asked for my support," he said. "And the people of Quincy don't need me to tell them who to vote for."

Applications Available For Citizen Police Academy

The Quincy Police Department is accepting applications for its eighth "Citizen Police Academy," announces Chief Thomas Frane.

The 10-week program will meet Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 10 p.m. beginning Jan. 22 and ending March 26. Successful applicants will have an opportunity to learn about what their police department does and meet many of the officers.

Academy topics include:

Criminal law, search and seizure, arrest procedures, patrol procedures, domestic violence, community policing, crime prevention, car stops, radar, drug investigations, D.A.R.E., K-9 Unit, SOU Motorcycle Unit and more.

A Friday night ride-along with an officer and a Saturday morning trip to the gun range are popular programs in the academy.

Applications are available at the front desk of Quincy Police Headquarters, 1 Sea St. All applications must be submitted no later than Monday, Jan. 19. Successful candidates will be notified by telephone Jan. 19.

Two hundred and six Quincy residents have graduated from this program.

Applicants must be at least 21 years of age and current residents of Quincy.

PERSPECTIVES...

PATRICK CONROY

WHY THE DEATH PENALTY DOESN'T MATTER!

I support the death penalty. I believe that our society has a legitimate right to extinguish the lives of those individuals who repeatedly commit violent crimes, and those that premeditate and commit murder. However, I recognize that the death penalty, as proposed in Massachusetts, is unlikely to reduce the viciousness of the sociopaths that live among us, or to decrease the crime rate.

All crimes are committed by criminals! Criminals fall into one of two groups. The first group can not control their behavior. So society must step forward and apply whatever controls are needed to eliminate the threat to law-abiding citizens. The reasons that cause the lack of control, be it addiction, mental illness, being abused as a child or any other reason, may be the most effective measures to protect the public, but should never excuse criminal behavior.

The second group of criminals can control their behavior, and choose to commit crimes. Why? Because they expect to benefit from crime! And they believe the costs, if any, will be less than the benefits! They are sometimes naive, believing they won't be caught or convicted or incarcerated for longer than they can tolerate. Too often they are right! The right punishment for this group is whatever it takes to cause these criminals to make better choices.

For some strange reason, we have developed a system of maximum penalties that are inadequate to extinguish criminal behavior. We are told, "This is our system." "We have to plea bargain." "We have to let criminals out early." Whatever amount of crime our system gives us, we have to tolerate!

Is there a solution? Yes! (1) Define "cruel and unusual punishment" as torture, not as sharing a room or any of the other foolishness we've seen from the courts. (2) Create a system, where the first felony conviction fundamentally changes a criminal's relationship with society. (3) Elect legislators, who will sanction judges who blatantly act against the interests of the public.

dream, not only plan but risk," he said. "Our dream catcher is full of good dreams, for which we should be thankful."

Sheets said the city's ability to dream has led to the following success stories over the last two years that either have been achieved or are underway:

•The soon-to-be-opened Clifford H. Marshall Elementary School--named after the late Norfolk County sheriff from Quincy--and a proposed complete overhaul of the city's school system that has been backed by both the City Council and the School Committee. The latter project will include various renovations and construction, including the building of a new Quincy High School.

•The beginning of preliminary work that ultimately will result in a golf course/recreational facility at the former West Quincy landfill.

•An increase in efforts to help the homeless, including a new shelter for veterans, an addition to Father Bill's Place currently under construction and transitional housing at Squantum Gardens operated by the Quincy Commission on the Family.

•"And yes, I had a dream that a (Fore River) shipyard that once produced the world's greatest ships would once again rise up and take its place among world leader," said Sheets. The U.S. Maritime Administration announced last month it had approved $55 million in federal loan guarantees for the revitalization of the yard.

Sheets also touched upon other successes the city enjoyed, including the work of Quincy 2000 in attracting new businesses; the opening of three supermarkets and several new stores and restaurants; the dedication of a new swimming pool at the South Shore YMCA; completion of Phase One of the revitalization of the North Quincy Commercial District; a state Commercial Area Revitalization District designation for part of Washington Street in Quincy Point; plans for a hotel at Crown Colony in West Quincy; and others.

"TO ACCOMPLISH great things we must not only act but dream, not only plan but risk," Mayor James Sheets said during his fifth inaugural address Monday.

The mayor added that plans for the Quincy Center Concourse also will continue to move forward and the city will keep working toward building a hotel in Quincy Center.

In lighter moments, Sheets thanked the City Council, School Committee, Quincy's State House delegation, and state and federal officials for their continued support; welcomed new faces to the city government and extended warm wishes to several outgoing ones, including longtime City Councillor Michael Cheney and Police Chief Francis Mullen; and cited a number of special events that have made the city an enjoyable place to live over the last two years, including a visit by First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton, the unveiling of an Abigail Adams statue and a Korean War Memorial; and several annual events such as First Night Quincy, Summerfest concerts and more.

The mayor also praised students at Broad Meadows

Middle School for raising $150,000 to build a school in Pakistan in memory of Iqbal Masih, a 12-year-old human rights activist murdered in his native country.

On a more serious note, he mentioned the need for improvements at Quincy Hospital, saying he looks forward to working with new CEO/Director Jeffrey Doran, and warned that economic growth does not last forever.

"It is more difficult to manage budgets in times of prosperity than it is in times of hardship," said Sheets. "Economic growth and decline are cyclical, and we must prepare for both."

Still, the tone of the mayor's address was generally positive, and he looked to the future with optimism.

"Let me conclude by saying that if our dream catcher is to remain full of dreams, we must have faith," he said. "Franklin Roosevelt said it best in one of our nation's darkest hours: 'The only limit to our realization of tomorrow will be our doubts of today. Let us move forward with strong and active faith.'"

Harold, McCauley Named To Hospital Board

City Councillors Paul Harold and Francis McCauley have been appointed to serve on the Quincy Hospital Board of Managers.

The two were unanimously named to the board by their council colleagues following Mayor James Sheets' fifth inaugural address Monday at City Hall.

Harold will be serving his third term on the board.

McCauley, the former mayor, councillor and School Committee member who was re-elected to the council in November, also has been named chairman of the council's Hospital Committee by Council President Peter Kolson. The hospital's McCauley Building is named in his honor.

Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott previously served with Harold on the board.

WARD 1 COUNCILLOR Peter Kolson is sworn-in as City Council president by City Clerk Joseph Shea during Monday's ceremonies at Quincy High. Kolson is beginning the first year of his second two-year term as president.

CITY COUNCILLORS sworn-in during Monday's ceremonies include, from left, Councillor Francis McCauley, Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond, Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott and City Council President Peter Kolson, the Ward 1 councillor. McCauley, a former Quincy mayor and councillor, is returning to the council after being elected in November and the others, all incumbents, were re-elected.

City Council member and School Committee member. McCauley, re-elected to the council in November, will oversee the council's Hospital Committee, Kolson noted.

Kolson, reflecting on the recent experience of becoming a first-time grandfather, cited the importance of all of Quincy's residents, from senior citizens who have made the city what it is today to young families who will continue to build it up in the future.

He added that there are a number of matters that affect all of those people-- including school, police and hospital issues--that the City Council must, and will, continue to address in the future.

"It matters to who we represent," he said, "and it matters to the quality of life."

Creedon, Burrelli Re-Appointed Committee Secretary, Clerk

The School Committee unanimously re-appointed School Supt. Eugene Creedon as committee secretary and Tefta Burrelli as committee clerk during Monday's inauguration ceremony.

Creedon has served as school superintendent and committee secretary since 1992.

Burrelli, Creedon's secretary, has served as clerk of the School Committee since 1986.

FRANCIS MCCAULEY listens intently during Monday's inaugural ceremonies at Quincy High School. McCauley, who has served Quincy as mayor and a member of the City Council and School Committee, won the open councillor-at-large seat vacated by Michael Cheney in November's citywide election.

JEANNE REARDON is sworn-in as the City Council's clerk of committees by City Clerk Joseph Shea during Monday's ceremonies at Quincy High School. Reardon has held the post since 1980.

CADET LT. COL. Deming Guan, Quincy High School cadet commander, leads the salute to the flag during Monday's inaugural ceremonies at the school.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE members Jo-An Bragg and Ronald Mariano are sworn-in during Monday's ceremonies. Both were re-elected in November.

JOANN SHEETS, wife of Mayor James Sheets, receives a bouquet of flowers from City Council President Peter Kolson during Monday's inaugural ceremonies.

JUDY KOLSON, wife of City Council President Peter Kolson, receives flowers and a kiss from Councillor Timothy Cahill. The presentation was made by Cahill because he is the longest-serving City Council member.

MEMBERS OF the combined concert choirs of North Quincy High School and Quincy High School perform during Monday's ceremonies at Quincy High. The choirs sang "America, The Beautiful" and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Cheney Zoning Proposals Business Council Topic

The Quincy Business Council of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce will discuss zoning proposals by former City Council Michael Cheney Tuesday, Jan. 13 from 8 to 9 a.m. at the Chamber Board Room, 36

Miller Stile Rd., Quincy. Cheney, who has been invited to speak, has proposed:
•Making the City Council the permit granting authority under the Site Plan Review process instead of the Planning Board, and reducing the square footage for new structures subjected to Site Plan Review from 15,000 to 10,000.

•Rezoning Hancock Street in Quincy Center from School to Granite streets, currently zoned Business "C," to Business Revitalization Zone.

The City Council will vote on both at its Jan. 20 meeting.

Also to be discussed is the recent increase in height limitations on buildings zoned Industrial "B" from four to eight stories.

Franceschini Pleased With Quincy's Effort

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Mired in an early-season shooting slump, the Quincy High School boys' basketball team has impressed its coach with its positive attitude and commitment to improving with every game.

"The main thing is the effort is there," said Quincy head coach John Franceschini. "They've been challenged to keep working hard and they've accepted that. They've also made the commitment to keep at it and help each other get through this."

"It's disappointing for everybody, but we can't let that keep us down. What we need to do is get a win and get some confidence in the offensive end. It's still early in the season, so we have time to turn this around."

Franceschini is ever mindful of the fact that the Presidents are a young team, with just three players—senior Jared Downey, junior Jim Munchbach and sophomore Dan Kelly—returning from last season's tournament squad.

"It's tough for the young kids, and most of our team is very young," he said. "We had a lot of success last year, so Jared, Jim and Danny may feel the burden is on their shoulders. As long as everyone keeps focused and working as hard as they have been, we should be O.K."

The Presidents (1-5 entering this week's action) looked to get back in the win column Tuesday at Silver Lake, then host Falmouth Friday at 7 p.m. Next Wednesday at 7 p.m., Quincy hosts Bridgewater-Raynham. All three are Old Colony League tilts.

"We're heading into the tougher side of the OCL, so we have our work cut out for us," said Franceschini. "Silver Lake and B-R are two of the contenders for the league title and Falmouth's another good team."

In recent OCL action, the Presidents' offensive struggles resulted in a 66-47 loss to visiting Dennis-Yarmouth last Saturday afternoon.

"Our shooting woes have continued from the floor and the free throw line," said Franceschini. "We just can't seem to get anyone the hot hand to carry us."

Three of Quincy's players—sophomores Sean Fitzpatrick and Chase Clarke and junior Dennis Palardy, all playing in their

Silver Lake A 'Big' Obstacle For Raiders

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Five games into the season, Brian Ross has thoroughly dominated the competition, averaging 30 points, 17 rebounds and six blocks a game.

A 6-8 senior center and captain of the North Quincy High School boys' basketball team, Ross has sparked the Red Raiders to a 4-1 start, including a 3-0 Old Colony League mark.

However, that undefeated league record could be in jeopardy when Ross and his teammates face their stiffest test to date Friday at 7 p.m. at OCL foe Silver Lake, who also entered play this week with an unblemished league record.

"That's going to be a big challenge, because they're even bigger than us," said NQ head coach Ted Stevenson, whose lineup includes 6-5 Mark Stanton and 6-3 John Sullivan. "Their starting front court players are 6-8, 6-6 and 6-5, and they also bring two 6-4 players off the bench."

BASKETBALL

North remains on the road, playing a key league game at Bridgewater-Raynham next Monday at 7 p.m. Following those two road tests, North hosts Falmouth in an OCL tilt next Wednesday at 7 p.m.

In recent action, Ross put together a dominating performance to power the Red Raiders over host Plymouth South, 73-52, in a league game last Saturday night.

Ross scored a career-high 41 points, collected 18 rebounds and blocked eight shots as the Red Raiders built a 19-point halftime lead and cruised to the victory. Ross also connected on 18 of 22 free throws, and the Red Raiders as a team made 28 of 33 from the free throw line.

"They just couldn't stop him inside," said Stevenson. "He also hit four three-pointers, showing that he can score from inside or outside. He's a big bonus for us, and the rest of the kids just feed off of it."

Stevenson also cited the strong play of senior point guard Brian Linskey, senior forward Stanton (12 points, eight rebounds), senior guard Jay Turner (10 points) and senior forward Sullivan.

"Brian Linskey had a really good game," he said. "He handed the pressure and got us in the right spots offensively. John's been doing all the little things and doing a super job for us."

The Red Raiders have also received strong efforts off the bench from junior Frank McNamara and freshman Adam Woo.

On Dec. 29 in the championship of the Holiday Scholastic Tournament, NQ suffered its first loss of the season, 57-51, to host Boston Latin School, despite 26 points and 15 rebounds from Ross.

Leading by 11 at the half, the Red Raiders came out and played what Stevenson called "our worst half of basketball."

"It was like the teams changed uniforms," he said. "Everything we tried to do went wrong and once the momentum changed, we couldn't get it back."

North Looks To Keep Unbeaten Streak Intact

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Off to its best start in seven seasons, the North Quincy High School girls' basketball team looked to remain undefeated when it traveled to Dennis-Yarmouth Tuesday.

The Red Raiders (6-0 heading into this week's games) return home to host Old Colony League foe Silver Lake and two-time Division 1 Player of the Year Marche Strickland Friday at 7 p.m.

"This will be our biggest test thus far," said North head coach Ken Panaro. "I'm interested to see how we stack up against a power team. They're a real good balanced team and she's a powerful, strong player who also shoots very well. We'll see what we can do in terms of pressure to slow her down."

After the Lakers come to town, it doesn't get any easier for the Red Raiders, who host Bridgewater-Raynham next Monday at 7 p.m. and visit Falmouth next Wednesday at 7 p.m. Both teams are among the contenders for the OCL title.

The Red Raiders improved to 6-0 with a convincing 63-27 league victory over visiting Plymouth South last Saturday. A balanced offensive attack, one of the factors in North's early-season success, also played a major role in the most recent triumph.

"We're getting contributions from a bunch of players," said Panaro. "We went way ahead early, so our reserves saw a lot of action. When they came in, they

Presidents Heading In Right Direction

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Seeking its second win of the 1997-98 campaign, the Quincy High School girls' basketball team hosted Silver Lake, one of the top teams in the Old Colony League, Tuesday.

The Presidents (1-5 entering this week's play) make the long trek south Friday when they visit OCL foe Falmouth for a 7 p.m. game. Next Monday at 7 p.m., Quincy plays a non-league home tilt against Marshfield. Next Wednesday at 7 p.m., the Presidents travel to Bridgewater-Raynham for an OCL game.

"Unfortunately, the same time we're trying to pick up a victory we're facing the iron of the league," said Quincy head coach Bob Noble. "We're playing some tough clubs over the next few weeks, but we're getting better and heading in the right direction. We just have to keep plugging away and see what happens."

Last Saturday, the Presidents held their own for a half at OCL opponent Dennis-Yarmouth before the home team pulled away for a 60-45 victory.

"We actually played pretty good; the final score doesn't show how close the game was," said Noble. "Overall, this may have been our best game all year. We played with enthusiasm and did a lot of nice things. I was pleased with the effort right down to the end of the game."

"We were only down three at the break, and that was because they hit a half court shot to beat the buzzer. Late in the second half, they hit some threes to go up eight or nine points,

Quincy Ties Falmouth, Rolls Over Ply. South

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Entering this week with a sparkling 4-0-2 record, the Quincy High School hockey team hits the road for three of its next four games, including last night's (Wednesday's) 8 p.m. tilt at Barnstable.

The Presidents' next game is Saturday at 6 p.m. at Silver Lake, one of the contenders for the Old Colony League title. Next Wednesday at 7 p.m. at Quincy Youth Arena, Quincy battles crosstown rival North Quincy in the first of two regular season meetings.

"We have a couple of tough tests this week," said Quincy head coach Bob Sylvia. "Barnstable is always tough at their place and Silver Lake's one of the top teams in the league. We'll have a good idea what kind of team we have after those two games."

HOCKEY

"To this point, I'm pleased with everything we're doing, with the exception of finishing off our chances. We're averaging about 3.9 goals a game, but I'd like to see it up around five a game. We're putting a lot of shots on net and should be scoring more."

Last Saturday night in an OCL home game against Falmouth, the Presidents held a late one-goal lead until the Clippers' Dan Dufany scored with nine seconds left to force a 3-3 tie.

"The kids played very good, but we had a mental breakdown on the last face off," said Sylvia. "It was a one-in-a-million play that just worked against us. The kids weren't happy about the tie, but they showed they're as good as one of the top teams in the OCL."

Quincy's goal scorers were Chris Haidul, Bob Harvey and Bob Hall, while Derek McTomney added two assists.

"Derek played a strong game," said Sylvia. "He's been standing out for us and is probably the best defenseman in the OCL, at least of those I've seen thus far."

Senior goaltender Chris Burns stopped 18 shots for Quincy.

In earlier OCL action, the Presidents coasted by host Plymouth South, 4-1. Haidul notched the game-winning goal and Brian Nolan added an insurance goal. Sean Lefebvre and Scott Mattison also scored for the winners. Burns made 20 saves en route to the victory.

were able to keep up the pace."

North's leading scorer was junior Kristen Bowes, who finished with 12 points, followed by senior co-captain Kerry Skehan with 11. Sophomore Ashley Murphy contributed six points and turned in a solid defensive game, sophomore Jill Nicholson dished out five assists and senior co-captain Kristen Keohane continued to rebound well.

Back on Dec. 29, the Red Raiders defeated Weymouth, 66-60, in the championship of the NQHS Christmas Classic. Skehan hit two three-pointers in the final minutes to lift North to the victory. Skehan (20 points) and senior co-captain Laurie Flynn (16 points) earned all-tournament honors.

"Our three captains are very strong and definitely are our leaders," said Panaro. "They lead by example, and the others follow. Laurie was instrumental with her free throw shooting down the stretch. She just didn't miss."

Keohane and Bowes added nine points apiece for the Red Raiders.

forcing us to press. We started fouling, they made their free throws and stretched the lead out to 15."

Among the highlights were the outstanding performances of senior point guard and co-captain Kerry Duffy (nine points, seven assists, five rebounds, three steals, one block) sophomore forward Colleen Nichol (15 points, 14 rebounds, two blocks) and senior forward Erin Barry (eight points, 11 rebounds).

"Kerry played probably her best overall game," said Noble. "Colleen had another solid game. She's going to very good and is already emerging as one of our best players. Erin also played well for us and was strong on the boards."

Offensively, the Presidents continued to create opportunities for themselves but were unable to take advantage of them.

"We haven't been able to shoot well consistently," said Noble. "We made only seven of 29 free throws, so the chances are there, but we're just not finishing. It's not from a lack of effort. They're doing all I can ask and I hope it translates into some wins for them."

Marylou's Olindy's Leader

Marylou's News continues to lead the Olindy's Jr. All Star Kid's Bowling League with a 75-21 record.

The rest of the standings: Patriot Glass (58-38); Dom's (51-45); Eco Muffler (46-50); Sweeney Brothers (44-52); ; Bamie's (44-52); Olindy's (42-54); Country Ski & Sport (42-54); Mike's Auto Body (41-55); Everlasting Engraving (37-59).

Todd White has the boys top average, followed by Chris Baker and Jason Badgett. In the girls division, Kendra Ciccone and Amanda Cosgrove are the leaders with a 67 average. Colleen Ryan is third at 63.

Bowlers at the week were David Brown, who bowled his high single of 114 and triple, a 304 total, 88 pins over his 72 average; Jason Badgett, who bowled the high triple of the week, 334; Todd White, who bowled the high single of 120; and Kendra Ciccone, who bowled her personal high single of 87, and high three of 322 (24 pins over her average of 66).

The league's high single (548) and high three (1540) were bowled by Patriot Glass. The team is comprised of Thomas Cabral (200 high three, 70 high single), James Opanasets (245, 96), David Brown (304, 114), Tom Chernicki (224, 76), Marc Lopez (281, 102). High three handicap was 286; high single handicap was 90.

Sullivan, Red Raiders Double Up Taunton

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Junior right wing Mike Sullivan scored two goals and junior goaltender David Downey made 19 saves in his first varsity start, leading North Quincy High School's hockey team over host Taunton, 4-2, last Saturday.

The Red Raiders, who improved to 4-3 overall and 3-2 in the Old Colony League with the win, were back in action yesterday (Wednesday) at 6 p.m. against OCL visitor Dennis-Yarmouth.

North Quincy's next game is Saturday at 7:45 p.m. against OCL opponent Bridgewater-Raynham.

Next Wednesday at 7 p.m., the Red Raiders take on against crosstown rival Quincy at Quincy Youth Arena in the first of two regular season meetings.

In the victory over Taunton, the Red Raiders jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the first period when junior center Paul Markarian (goal, two assists) won a face off to set up Sullivan's first goal.

"Mike had a real strong game for us," said North Quincy head coach Bob Doyle. "On that first goal, he beat everyone to the puck, moved in and beat the goalie top shelf. It was a strong power forward move that myself and the rest of the coaching staff like to see."

registered the assist.

North's offense picked up right where it left off in the second period as Markarian and sophomore defenseman Ross O'Driscoll each notched an unassisted goal to push the Raiders' lead to 4-1.

"It was an ugly game, with 27 penalties, but we got through it and I'm proud of how our kids responded," said Doyle. "They held their composure and played well with the lead."

Doyle was also impressed with the play of freshmen defensemen Matt Holt and Rob Rice, two players who were called up to the varsity team and started against Taunton.

"Both Matt and Rob did a great job," he said. "We were missing a few players and the stepped in and filled the void."

Squirt B's Make A Run At K of C Title, But Fall Short

The Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt B Bulldogs made a strong run but came up short of winning the recent Knights of Columbus Tournament at the Quincy Youth Arena.

The Bulldogs beat Barnstable, 5-4, in the first game, snapping a 3-3 tie with two goals in the shootout. Brendan Mulcahy scored two unassisted goals and Glen "Gibba" Gibbons got the third goal with an assist by Dan "Reggie" Reggiannini. Ray Marchand and Reggiannini scored in the shootout to seal the win.

Stevie Bythrow, along with Mike and Matt Giordani, did an excellent job of backchecking and Ryan "The Beezer" Barter kept Quincy in the game with some big saves. The defense, comprised of Rose and Pat Devlin, Chris Tierney, Bryan Donelin, Dan Poggi and Mike MacPherson, was a major factor due to its consistent play.

In the second game, Quincy's offense was the story in an 8-1 triumph over Milton. Mulcahy collected a goal and three assists, Bythrow notched two goals, Matt Giordani added two goals and an assist, Kevin Shinnick scored a goal and Gibbons and Poggi each dished out an assist. A solid effort was turned in by James Sheehan, Steve Maggio and Danny Davis, along with defensemen Marchand and MacPherson and goaltender Barter.

Against Hingham, the Bulldogs turned in an excellent effort but lost, 3-2. Quincy's first goal was an unassisted tally by Gibbons. Quincy scored again when Matt Giordani slipped one by the Hingham goalie for an unassisted goal.

The game remained close due to fantastic goaltending by Barter. Donelin, on defense, took on a Hingham player on a breakaway and prevailed. Another standout was Rose Devlin, who played great defense.

In earlier non-tournament action, the Bulldogs recently avenged an earlier loss to Charlestown with a 3-2 triumph. Reggiannini scored for the Bulldogs at 11:34 of the second period, assisted by Bythrow.

Barter turned away several shots by Charlestown, and the Quincy defense didn't allow any rebounds. Mulcahy, Marchand, Maggio and Sheehan played strong games.

Bythrow and Reggiannini teamed up again, this time aided by MacPherson for another Quincy goal. Reggiannini notched the goal, assisted by Bythrow and MacPherson.

Later, with the game still tied, Shinnick took a pass from Matt Giordani and scored the winning goal.

*A Thought
For The Week*

"Laws made by common consent must not be trampled on by individuals." "To every description of citizens, let praise be given. But let them persevere in their affectionate vigilance over that previous depository of American happiness, the Constitution of the United States." "... The name of America must always exalt just pride of patriotism. The independence and liberty you possess are the work of joint councils and joint efforts, of common dangers, sufferings and successes." "... "Avoiding likewise the accumulation of debt not only by shunning occasions of expense, but by vigorous exertions in time of peace to discharge the debts which unavoidable wars have occasioned, not ungenerously throwing upon posterity the burden which we ourselves ought to bear." ...

Can anyone dispute the logic and wisdom of George Washington's words? Does it not make you wonder what he would think and say if he were living today? ...

Your Horoscope by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You are able to come up with new money-making ideas. It's a good week to take up a new hobby or activity. Items purchased for the home prove to be of an unusual nature.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You don't believe in love at first sight, but it could happen, even to you. An unplanned entertainment revitalizes you later in the week. A close friend has good news about a work concern.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) An inspiration requires quick action on your part, so don't be afraid. Some begin a home decorating project. A weekend out and about socializing is exciting.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) There is a special romantic connection this week between couples. A spontaneous outing for just the two of you is enjoyable. Family members know how to be discreet.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A bunch you have about money is inspired. At work, you encounter fresh chances to get ahead and succeed. This weekend, you run into someone from your past.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A partner has a pleasant surprise early in the week. Singles are taken by surprise with a romantic introduction. Creative types should feel free to present their work to the public.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You begin this week on a productive and optimistic note. All your plans fall smoothly into place. When opportunity knocks, don't be afraid to answer.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You're at your social best that eases your path. You impress others with what you have to say. Your original, innovative thinking has those around you willing to follow your lead.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Something you discover while out shopping proves to be a rare find and could be valuable. Buying and selling are particularly favored. The weekend finds you optimistic.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You know just how to show your accomplishments off to the best advantage. Bigwigs are suitably impressed. Intuitive urges are strong and should be needed in romance.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A business opportunity falls right into your lap. Time spent on your own proves to be unusually productive. You reach some amazing conclusions and gain insight this weekend.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) An unexpected social invitation takes you happily by surprise. This is great time to share with friends. You make progress in business as well.

Tax Law Seminars At Crane Library

Two seminars focusing on the Roth IRA and the Education IRA will be held this month at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Square.

Mary Steffen, vice president of Delaware Group of Funds, will be the speaker Tuesday, Jan. 13 at 7:30 p.m. The seminar will be repeated Thursday, Jan. 22 at 7:30 p.m. by Tony Robinson, vice president at Eaton Vance.

The two speakers at both seminars will explain the new IRAs and take questions from the audience. The choice of dates will allow as many people as possible to attend one of the seminars. Allen Pilch, CFA, at Fahnstock & Co. Inc. will host the seminars.

Ward 5 Assn. To Meet Jan. 12

The Ward 5 Community Association will meet Monday, Jan. 12 at 7 p.m. at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School, 225 Fenno St., Wollaston.

The topic will be the family and youth services available to the local community.

Guest speakers will be Linda Stice and Joann Bragg. Stice will speak about her work with the Quincy Commission on the Family and other services available to local families in need. Bragg will talk about the youth programs that she sponsors. Both women also serve on the Quincy School Committee.

New members and guests are welcome. For more information, call Doug Cutro at 328-7982.

Quincy Hospital Offers Bereavement Support Group

Quincy Hospital's Bereavement Support Group is facilitated by Rev. Ann Rearick, certified bereavement counselor and director of Pastoral Care at the hospital.

The next group begins Wednesday, Jan. 7, and meets for eight weeks on Wednesday's, from 2:30 to 4 p.m. at the hospital, 114 Whitwell St.

Membership is open to all those suffering the loss of a loved one, and is being offered as a free service to the community. Advance registration is required. Call Rev. Rearick at (617) 376-5502 to register or for more information.

South Shore Community Bank Extends Stock Purchasing Period

The new South Shore Community Bank & Trust Company (in organization) has extended the subscription period for purchasing stock until Jan. 16.

Donald C. Olson, the bank's chief executive officer said, "There has been an overwhelming positive response from the local community. We are extremely pleased and greatly encouraged."

A minimum investment of $1,000 is required. Anyone interested in obtaining an offering circular or additional information should call (781) 794-9992.

The bank, currently operating out of temporary offices in Braintree, anticipates it will be located in a new office building on John Maher Highway in Braintree. The goal of the bank will be to create a community-focused, customer service-oriented environment, providing another banking alternative on the South Shore.

Adult, Continuing Education Courses Available In Spring

Board Rejects Keno License For Sports Bar

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO
The Quincy License Board rejected a request from the Varsity Club for a Keno License.

At a meeting Tuesday, the board voted unanimously in opposition after a plea from Atty. George Burke, representing Adam Kessler, owner of the club. Burke said the "club had met all requirements," and that the "varsity club deserves to have a Keno License."

Burke implored the board to vote in favor and said he had "knocked on every door" in the South Quincy area and said there was only a "small opposition" to the request.

Burke said because the Varsity Club is a pouring establishment, and there were no other Keno Licenses in the area, that the board should vote in their favor.

Chairman Joseph Shea

read a letter of opposition from Ward 4 Councilor Michael D'Amico who cited noise issues disturbing the neighbors and the lack of parking.

Burke said "many customers tend to go to places with a Keno License" and said he had noise readings done and all were within the law urging the board again to issue the license.

Burke said he had been trying in vain to meet with D'Amico and had virtually "called him every day" with no response other than a FAX.

Abutter Ann Cocoran said she and her family live four houses down from the club and told about cars parked illegally not ticketed, street drinking, and patrons on the site in the wee hours of the morning.

She said at times when she called Kessler complaining, he has "hung up on me."

Councillor-at-Large

Paul H Harold, speaking in opposition told the board that although he is "not opposed to gambling," he cited the proximity to the neighborhood and said he didn't feel as though Kessler had followed through with some of the restrictions, such as closing the gates at night and restricting some of the parking.

When Burke referred to the Varsity Club back in 1959, he was reminded by Harold and Cocoran, that at that time it was known as the Alpine, a family restaurant, which served pizza primarily.

Shea said the Lottery Commission said there would be "no further extensions would be granted" and that a vote had to be taken Tuesday.

The club first applied last November, but the hearing was continued until Tuesday.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, who lives in the neighborhood said that Kessler isn't living up to his promises and said he has observed the open gates in the wee hours several times.

Gorman said after 12 p.m. "kids don't care" how loud they get" and said "they just don't realize."

Gorman ultimately made the motion to reject the request, seconded by Health Commissioner Jane Gallahe.

Shea told Burke that the club could appeal to the Lottery Commission.

RICHARD PETITTI of Quincy recently won $1 million by playing the Massachusetts Lottery's Monte Carlo game. Here he displays his first check at Lottery headquarters in Braintree.

New Chairman's Main Objective To Keep Students For Two Years

Raymondi Turns College Board Over To Lord

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Daniel Raymondi has turned the chairmanship of the Quincy College Board of Governors over to Theresa Lord, who previously served as vice chairman.

Raymondi offered the chairmanship to Lord at Monday night's board meeting and asked those on the 13-member board to support his decision. There was no opposition.

Raymondi and Lord had served as chairman and vice chairman respectively since the board's inception in 1994, but Raymondi said now is a perfect time for Lord to assume the chairmanship because of an issue crucial to the future of the college: retention.

In recent years, the two-year college has been successful in attracting new students but has had a hard time retaining them. Raymondi said during an interview Tuesday that Lord is now the perfect person to lead the board for two reasons:

"She is a Quincy College who went on to become a successful Quincy attorney working for the law office of Atty. Thomas F. Williams. Because of that, she can be looked at as a role model, Raymondi said.

DANIEL RAYMONDI

"She is a woman. Quincy College's student population is 70 percent female, and Raymondi said that "lends credibility" to her chairmanship.

"It's an opportunity for the college and board to utilize the talents that Terry Lord has," he said. "She is uniquely qualified."

Lord agreed, saying she plans to use her position as a successful female Quincy College graduate to her best advantage, and to serve as a visible chairman who attends classrooms, orientations, and other student events.

"I'm pleased and thrilled

Air Rights Granted For $39M Office Building, T Garage

The City Council has granted air rights over the North Quincy MBTA parking lot to allow a Quincy developer to build a $39 million office building and the MBTA to build a five-story parking garage.

The council's unanimous vote took place at Monday night's meeting following a presentation by the plan's proponents.

The plan calls for work to widen Hancock Street near the project and the installation of synchronized traffic lights at the intersection of Hancock Street and East/West Squantum streets.

In addition, the developer will be required to pay for an approximately $50,000 study on whether to build a ramp that would connect the Southeast Expressway in Neponset to the Neponset River Bridge entering Quincy and donate $35,000 to the Atlantic Neighborhood Center in North Quincy.

Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, whose wards will be home to the project, both voiced support during Monday night's meeting, saying a mitigation package will result in needed area traffic improvements and the project also will bring numerous jobs.

City Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon also has endorsed the plan.

The plan was first proposed two months ago by Transit Realty Associates, the T's real estate arm, and North Quincy Transit Associates, a company formed by Quincy developer Mark Dickinson and Boston con-

Women Do 80% Of Buying Commission To Study Residents' Shopping Needs

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A proposal to form a commission to study the shopping needs of the citizens of Quincy has received widespread support from city officials.

City Council President Peter Kolson introduced a resolution proposing the establishment of the commission that was passed unanimously by the council Monday night. The plan also has the support of Mayor James Sheets and Joseph Mannarino, executive director of Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning corporation.

Kolson's proposal calls for the commission to "examine obligatory shopping for food, clothing, medical supplies, and seasonal and recreational shopping such as done at gift shops and specialty shops" and report its findings to Sheets, the City Council and Quincy 2000.

The commission, which will serve strictly in an advisory capacity for a period

First Woman Sergeant

Police Dept. Promotions: 1 Lieutenant, 4 Sergeants

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Five members of the Quincy Police Department were promoted during a sweating-in ceremony Friday, including the first female sergeant in the department's history.

The ceremony, which was attended by more than 100 people including friends, relatives, department members and others, took place in the City Council Chambers at City Hall.

Thomas Bolinder, 49, of Hanson, a member of the department since 1981 and a sergeant since 1992, was promoted to lieutenant.

Susan Perch, 42, of Quincy, was one of four patrol officers promoted to sergeant. The first woman in Quincy's history to achieve that rank, she has been with the department since 1984.

Others promoted to sergeant include Stephen O'Brien, 48, of Braintree, a department member since 1971; Patrick Glynn, 38, of Stoughton, a member since 1986 and Brian Tobin, 35, of Quincy, a member since 1988.

The five were sworn-in by Quincy District Court Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin, former Quincy mayor and the father of the youngest of the new sergeants.

Several city officials spoke during the ceremony prior to the swearings-in.

Mayor James Sheets spoke briefly, offering congratulations and praising the department.

"We have the finest police department in the state and in this country," he said. "I really believe our police department is second to none. Crime is going down, and we're not satisfied; we want to drive the crime rate down even further.

"That's the challenge that our police department has, and that's the challenge they are meeting."

Police Chief Thomas Frane, who promoted the five, said it is the "commitment, dedication and support" of officers' friends and family members that allows them to succeed.

"This is one of the happiest times I've had," said Frane, who was selected by Sheets to replace retired Police Chief Francis Mullen last August. "I'd like to have more of these ceremonies in the future."

On the subject of Perch, Frane said department members are as supportive of her as they are the other three new sergeants.

"The good news is, it's not a big deal," he said. "And I'm sure they'll be others to follow her."

City Council President Peter Kolson told those promoted, "When you put on your uniform, you become civic leaders. We have one of the finest police departments in the state, and in my opinion, all of New England. Congratulations to all of you."

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond, chairman of the council's Public Safety Committee, praised the five for their long hours of work and study that led to their promotions and their loved ones for offering them support throughout that period.

"It's a great day for the Quincy Police Department, and it's a great day for the city," he said.

Following the ceremony, Frane said he is unsure whether those promoted will be participants in the city's expanding community policing program. Personnel decisions for that program will be made at a later date, he said.

Perch, for her part, made light of the fact that she is the first woman in her department to become a sergeant.

"Eventually, I knew, one of us would be promoted," she said. "I just want to praise God, and I hope He keeps His hand right on my shoulder. I have a very supportive family, and my colleagues have been very supportive, too."

The Quincy Police Department has about 200 members, including seven women. Starting salaries for a Quincy police lieutenant and sergeant are $56,227 and $44,227 respectively.

Q C Students Receive $2M In Assistance

More than $2 million in financial assistance has been received by students at Quincy College this year, announces Dr. Jeremiah Ryan, college president.

"This considerable amount of financial assistance demonstrates Quincy's commitment to accessibility," said Ryan.

The college's financial aid office stated in a written report that 2,603 Quincy College students were awarded $2,036,029.

Ryan said the college expects the totals to reach over 3,000 students and $25 million as new students begin their studies at the college this spring.

93-Year-Old Woman Killed After Blaze Begins In Basement Fatal WQ Fire Caused By Burning Newspapers

A two-alarm fire that claimed the life of a 93-year-old West Quincy woman Monday morning was caused by burning newspapers in a basement fireplace that spread to a nearby couch and ultimately to the upper floors, according to fire officials.

Carried unconscious, evidently overcome by smoke, from her home at 21 Cross St. about 5:30 a.m. Although efforts were made to revive her at both Quincy Hospital and Massachusetts General Hospital, she died around 8 a.m.

Riihimaki was the mother of Rev. James Riihimaki, pastor of Christ Episcopal Church in Quincy Center.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said it appeared as though she may have tried to dial 911—because her phone was off the hook—and also tried to get out the front door before being overcome by the smoke.

"It's a tragedy," he said. "You hate to lose anybody. Unfortunately, she was alone at the time, and she was sleeping when it started. She used a walker, and her son told us she had some medical problems. Even with all the attempts, she succumbed to smoke inhalation."

Gorman said Riihimaki earlier had been burning some papers in the fireplace and the flames somehow spread to a couch in the room before making their way to the rest of the house.

"It's probably something she'd done 100 times before," he said.

Gorman noted that the house had at least one working smoke detector.

The blaze had burned through walls to the second floor and attic by the time firefighters, radioed for help by Police Officer Joseph Lencki—who was in the area and saw smoke coming from the house—arrived. It was then brought under control within 20 minutes.

Firefighter Peter DiBona injured his shoulder while working on the second floor and was taken to Quincy Hospital for treatment.

Raymondi Wants Group To Study Electric Project

Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi has called for the establishment of a seven-member task force to study proposed electrical and other improvements in the city.

Raymondi introduced a resolution call for the task force's formation Monday night. The matter will be discussed further at a future council meeting.

Specifically, the task force members—who will be appointed by former Councillor Michael Cheney and former council candidate David McGillicuddy, who will serve as co-chairmen-- will study, evaluate and report back to the council by April 21 its findings and recommendations relative to:

- A proposal that Massachusetts Electric and/or its affiliate, New England Power, at its expense, make lighting and/or road improvements to certain areas in Quincy.

- A proposal that either or both of the above companies will, at its expense, maintain and deed over to Quincy a spare conduit that will be Quincy's conduit which shall run from Boston Edison's Dewar Street substation in Dorchester to New England Power's North Quincy substation.

Raymondi said the resolution was prompted by Massachusetts Electric's and New England Power's plans to build two new underground electric cables connecting the Dewar Street substation with the North Quincy substation.

It is important, he said, because two routes have been identified for the cables, the increase in power capacity is a necessary improvement to residents and businesses in Quincy, and land owned by the city will be used for the project.

Stressed Out....?

Each person has a particular response to stress. For some, it's headaches, back pain, neck pain or muscle stiffness. For others it's an upset stomach. Regardless of a person's response, the nervous system function is involved. When your spinal bones lose their normal motion or position, this can irritate the nervous system.

If an examination reveals areas in the spine that are "locked up" or not moving properly, Chiropractic adjustments are recommended to help reduce tension on the nervous system. This can make a significant difference in your response to stress.

Robert Keuther Jr. Succeeding Lloyd Hill New QHS Principal Seeks To Help Students Find Their 'Fullest Potential'

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The new principal of Quincy High School, Robert Keuther Jr., says he wants to create an environment at the school that will allow all students to reach their fullest potential.

Keuther, 34, was named the replacement for retiring Principal Lloyd Hill by School Supt. Eugene Creedon last Friday.

Keuther, who currently directs the GOALS (Grasp Opportunities, Acquire Learning Skills) Program—an alternative school program for middle and high school students with behavior issues—will gradually transition into his new position and take over full-time in September. Creedon said in the interim, Quincy's three assistant principals will do their best to fill the void left behind by Hill, who is leaving the 1,100-student school at the end of the month.

The superintendent added that Keuther is being signed to a year-long contract and although his salary has not been set, the position pays between $70,000 and $80,000.

Keuther, who has been with the school system for 11 years and taught at Quincy High from 1987 to 1992, said he is thrilled about his new job.

"I'm extremely excited and I anticipate a great tenure at Quincy High," he said. "I want to create an environment that allows each student to achieve his or her fullest potential in learning."

Creedon said of the three finalists for the position, he felt Keuther was best-suited for the position.

"I felt strongly that he would be a principal who would be very visible and serve as a role model," said Creedon. "He has a great energy and enthusiasm for students."

The other finalists were Agawam High School Principal Joseph Zabielski and Angela Avery, director of occupational education in the Quincy Public Schools. Creedon said the former has only served as a principal for a short time and does not have enough experience, while Avery is needed in the Quincy schools' central office to help with the design of the new Quincy High

Financial Aid Info Packets Available

Congressman Bill Delahunt has made available information packets on college financial aid, free of charge, for local students and their families.

"Looking ahead to college is exciting, but pulling everything together to pay for it is hard work," said Delahunt. "With the cost of higher education soaring, it's more important than ever for average Americans to investigate every possible option."

The packets are designed to help families cope with their expenses by outlining the types and amount of assistance from a variety of potential sources. Each packet contains federal financial aid guides, details on programs at Massachusetts colleges universities, and background on scholarships and other private aid. Also included is a list of Internet websites for college, financial aid and career planning.

To obtain a packet, call Delahunt's office at 1-800-794-9911.

Ayers Ready For Run

Bruce Ayers hasn't made any official announcement that he is running for state representative but he sure looks like he is.

And, sounds like it, too.

"It's an opportunity that doesn't come along every day," says Ayers, the Ward 6 councillor.

The opportunity is the state representative seat Mike Bellotti is vacating in the First Norfolk District to run for sheriff.

"I'm being encouraged by a lot of people in the district to make the run," Ayers adds. Ayers, or a look-alike, was seen at the State House the other day checking on the proper procedures for setting up a state election campaign treasury.

"Yes," he acknowledges, "I have been doing some basic organizing."

And, he's been getting around the district not only in Quincy but in Randolph.

Ayers was over there last week on the special election day for the state senate district seat won by Brian Joyce of Milton. Randolph is in that senate district and has two precincts in the state representative district.

Ayers was getting acquainted with voters outside the school where those two precincts cast their ballots. And there, prominently displayed, was an Ayers election banner.

Well, Bruce, you are running, aren't you?

"I'll be making an announcement sometime next month," he says.

He sure looks like—and sounds like—he's already off and running.

And, what he is going to make official next month. Meanwhile, the stage seems about to be set for a battle between former Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien and Ayers as the major contenders for the Bellotti seat.

Chretien, who lost the Democratic nomination to Bellotti in 1992 by a scant 94 votes, jumped into the race early last year and has been running hard since.

Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott and Ward 4 Councillor Mike D'Amico decided to step aside leaving Chretien and Ayers as the apparent main contenders.

D'Amico is going to support Ayers. McDermott has not indicated whether he will back a candidate or remain neutral.

Chretien probably gains by McDermott's departure. They would have split some crucial votes in Ward 3 which has three of the 12 Quincy precincts in the district.

Will anyone else get in?

Tracy Wilson, who made an impressive political debut as runner-up in the school committee race last November, indicates she's "looking at it."

And Patrick Conroy, who ran in 1992 as an Independent, may give it another whirl this year, this time as a Democrat. "I'm thinking about it," he says.

In that 1992 election, Bellotti won the seat with a vote of 8,413. Republican Michael Cronin was second with 5,375 and Conroy third with 2,061.

Both Wilson and Conroy live in Ward 6 which has five of the 12 Quincy precincts in the district.

Either one could erode some of the Ward 6 vote that ordinarily Ayers could count on. In a tight race it could be a factor.

Regardless, an Ayers-Chretien showdown will make one of the more interesting political duels in recent years.

WEDDING BELLS will ring out this year for Kerry Driscoll, Mayor James Sheets' popular and efficient personal secretary.

The lucky man is Bruce Knapp of Quincy, a contractor, who popped the question and presented her with a handsome diamond Christmas Eve at the home of her father, retired Milton Police Lt. Detective Joseph Driscoll.

Kerry and Bruce have been dating for six years. They are planning a December wedding.

WELL, the Bank of Canton obviously knows a good man when they see one. The good man: Don Gohl. Don has joined the bank as Customer Service Officer at its new branch office at 275 Quincy Ave.

Don, whose career spans a half-century, is a local banking institution himself and one who has always doubled as an "ambassador of goodwill." He does all the big—and all the little things—so important to his customers. Especially senior citizens, who love him.

Drop by and see him.

HEY, HAS ANYONE seen Jerry Dacey's hat? It's missing. Been missing since the Dec. 16 joint meeting of the Quincy Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions Clubs at the Neighborhood Club.

It's not actually a hat. It's a black and white woolen Brooks Brothers cap with button, medium size.

When the meeting was over, the cap ("It's a dandy," says Jerry) was gone. And, in its place was another cap, something like his and the same size.

Jerry thinks the owner of that cap may have mistakenly taken him. But Jerry is pretty sentimental and wants his own back.

If anyone has a clue you can contact him at Colonial Federal Savings Bank on Beach St.

Jerry is offering a $5 reward "no questions asked."

Hospital Seeks Volunteers

Quincy Hospital is searching for volunteers in the following areas:

- Filing of medical records (training provided), any day, any time until 10 p.m.
- Patient Advocate: visit with patients to determine how the hospital can better serve their needs.

- Reception Desk: greet visitors and patients and direct them to various hospital departments. A knowledge of basic computer skills or willingness to learn is necessary. Daily openings from 8:30 a.m. to noon, noon to 4 p.m. and 4 to 8 p.m. and Saturdays from 1 to 4 p.m. and 4 to 8 p.m.

•Nurses willing to take blood pressure readings at a variety of community settings.

•Cherry Gift Shop: preferably with cash register experience or an interest in learning.

•Medical Library: helping with light mailings, photocopying, and helping keep book shelves organized.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1918 POSTCARD view of Elm Ave. in Wollaston. Originally the driveway to the estate of Boston Mayor Josiah Quincy, Jr., this wide boulevard-like Avenue was created by the land companies that developed what was then known as Wollaston Park. They planted four rows of Elm trees, one row on each side of the sidewalks. Even with the grassy island down the middle, there was still enough room for the trolley tracks. The trolleys ran along here to Billings Road and Norfolk Downs. Although some of these great Elms still stand, hurricanes and the unstoppable Dutch Elm disease have pretty much wiped them out.

Planned World War II Memorial Will Honor All

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I read with interest Elmer K. Fagerlund's letter stating that the proposed World War II "Memorial" needs deep study because there is a current "Memorial" for deceased World War II servicemen in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Might I remind Mr.

Fagerlund that this "Memorial" is a statue which will honor not only the men and women who served, but the Gold Star Mothers, Medal of Honor recipients, people who worked on the home front and Red Cross workers.

At present, without any advertising, about 700 engraved bricks have been pledged. This area will be sacred ground for about 8,000 veterans. I am at a loss that Mr. Fagerlund believes that additional memorialization will tend to designate that which already exists. I disagrees with his statement. This statue will further honor them.

If Mr. Fagerlund attended veterans' meetings he would notice the great interest in this project.

Wants Trucks To Collect Old Christmas Trees

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I wish the City of Quincy would send pickup trucks around to collect old Christmas trees on a designated day (or trash collection day) after the holidays.

People would be much more likely to recycle their trees into mulch if they didn't first have to get them back up on the car roof, tie them down again, and haul them off to the specified location. For the elderly, the handicapped, and women who don't happen to have a man in the household, getting that tree atop the car is no small matter!

True, this service would cost something—but equally true, it would save something on the other end, when all those trees ended up as mulch instead of taking up space in the city dump!

How about it?

Commends Senior Citizens Police Academy Program

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Being recent graduates of the "Senior Citizens Police Academy" the residents of the Bauer House wish to say "thank you" to Sgt. Daniel Minton and Officer Robert Hanna of the Quincy Police Department and their staff.

The program conducted provided us with excellent information and educational sessions. We finished the course better equipped to handle ourselves both in physical abuse and scam and fraud situations.

We strongly feel that more grants and money be given to the Quincy Police Department in order that they can give the senior citizens of Quincy more seminars and academies so that we can better keep abreast of the problems that we will encounter in our everyday living.

On behalf of the residents of Bauer House, we thank Sgt. Minton and Officer Hanna and their staff and we hope you can return again soon.

Correction

(Editor's Note: A line of type inadvertently was dropped from last week's caption on the postcard showing the Granite Railway Quarries. It should have read as it appears below.)

THIS IS A 1924 POSTCARD showing the Granite Railway Quarries in West Quincy. Originally known as Pine Hill Quarry, its name changed when the Granite Railway Company bought it. Today they call it Granite Rail and it is probably Quincy's best known quarry. At one time this was two separate quarry holes and the company also had a third quarry known as Little Granite Rail that was just west of this one. Although this hole is now filled with water, you can appreciate the depth of the quarry by looking beyond the ledge on which the men in the foreground are standing. The granite from this quarry was used to build many buildings that remain as landmarks today. For example, the granite in the bottom portion of Boston's Customs House, including the fluted columns, is from Granite Rail. The tower added later is of Rockport granite. Other landmarks include the Minot Ledge Lighthouse off Cohasset and the Parker House Hotel and the old United Shoe Machinery building in Boston.

Students To View Ike's Inaugural On Television

By PAUL HAROLD

Officials in the school department were making extensive plans to enable as many students as possible to view Dwight Eisenhower's inauguration on television.

At the elementary schools, students would be released at 11:30 for lunch, so they could be home in time to watch the ceremonies. At the junior and senior high schools, as many televisions as possible would be installed, while persons living near junior and senior high schools were asked to take students on their homes for broadcast.

45 Years Ago

Seven city businesses had already offered the loan for TV sets, including DeNicola Brothers, Standard TV, Teleservice, Kincaide Furniture, D and S Appliances, Paine Furniture and Sears Roebuck.

Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard said the extra effort was worth it because of the educational benefit.

It was noted that students at the Merrymount School had watched the 1949 inauguration on TV and that this year that opportunity would be afforded to all the city's public schools.

TESTIMONIAL FOR CITY'S FIRST MANAGER

An estimated 550 people attended a testimonial for William Deegan, the city's first city manager. Thomas Burgin, the city's first Plan E mayor, paid tribute to Deegan, saying, "I think that you have done a remarkably good job."

Atty. Heslip Sutherland was the toastmaster, with Z. Cranston Smith, head of the Quincy Civic Association, as general chairman.

Councillors Alfred Helfrich, Edna Austin and Amelio Della Chiesa were the only councillors to attend, out of seven.

Mayor David McIntosh didn't attend because he considered it a Plan E party and he was opposed to that form of municipal government.

USS NORTHAMPTON READIED FOR DELIVERY

The USS Northampton, known as the "Ghostship," was readied for delivery to the Navy on Feb. 28. It would serve as a command and communication ship.

Its keel was laid on Aug. 31, 1944, when it was intended to be a heavy cruiser of the 1942 class. However, the contract was canceled on Aug. 11, 1945, with 56 percent of the work completed.

It was re-designed as a command-communications ship and re-ordered on July 1, 1948.

QUINCY-ISM

Former Mayor Burgin urged the school committee to name the newly expanded Quincy Trade School after William Bradford who had served for 25 years on the school's advisory committee. "He has been the spark plug and main spring of the trade school for many years," Burgin said. . . City Solicitor George Arbuckle was elected president of the Quincy City Hospital Board of Managers. . . Atty. Nicola Barbadoro, president of the John Quincy Adams Club, announced the club's testimonial for Representative and Councillor Della Chiesa. . . With the resignations of library trustees Clara Thompson, James Collins and Mrs. Henrietta Thomas, the city manager would have three board appointments. . . Quincy Music Co. advertised Royale 45 RPM records for 69 cents. . . Dorothea Lundin was installed as chief of the Stenkill Lodge, Independent Order of Vikings, are Franklin Hall in South Quincy. . . John Doherty was superintendent at the Wollaston Post Office. . . Marine Private First Class George Kryller of Fifth Ave. recently completed recruit training at Parris Island. . . Atty. BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Italian Veal Stew

There is nothing in the world as satisfying as a bowl of hot stew with dumplings. That's how it was at our house one cold night with the fire place glowing and the holidays over and sighs of relief!

The stew was made with veal and added tomato sauce. And the dumplings floating in the tomato sauce were colorful, delicious and different..

Veal Stew and Dumplings
 1 pound veal for stewing
 2 cups tomato sauce
 2 carrots (cut up)
 2 large potatoes (cut up)
 1 medium onion (chopped)
 2 cloves of garlic (chopped)
 2 tablespoons olive oil
 2 cups water (or chicken or beef stock)
 salt and pepper to taste

In hot oil, saute the onion and garlic gently. Add the veal and cook until lightly browned. Add the water (or stock), cover and cook until bubbly and meat is cooked a little more. Add the tomatoes, the carrots and potatoes, the salt and pepper and cook covered slowly cooking for about an hour.

If you want a thickened stew, you can add a little flour.

Dumplings
 2 cups flour
 1 teaspoon salt
 2 teaspoons baking powder
 1 cup milk

Mix all ingredients together until blended. Drop by tablespoon on top of stew. Cover tightly and cook 15 to 20 minutes. Serve each dish topped with a dumpling! (Beef can also be used in this recipe).

THE LOWDOWN ON CHOLESTEROL

Is it possible for your cholesterol to be too low? As attention has focused on low-fat diets and other changes, some people have been concerned that there could be a downside to lowering cholesterol TOO far. However, further study is finding that there is no reason to worry about a cholesterol count under 160—typically considered low. It turns out that some medical conditions, including certain stomach and liver disorders, actually cause cholesterol levels to drop at the same time they increase serious health risks. Habits such as heavy drinking and smoking can have a similar effect. In these cases, it isn't the low cholesterol that causes problems, but the other consequences of the conditions themselves.

P.S. Heart patients who lower cholesterol to 160 or below typically have fewer heart attacks and live longer than patients with higher levels.

For most of us, concerns about cholesterol are valid, especially as we age. Eat foods which help support your health, then when you indulge occasionally, you need not worry as much about your cholesterol levels. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, at 700 Congress St., Quincy, we specialize in heart disease. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli at 472-2550. Office hours by appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. You find that we care about you and it shows in everything we do.

Beechwood 'Dream Catcher' Influenced Mayor's Address

A Native American "dream catcher" presented to Mayor James Sheets by children from Beechwood on the Bay's After School Program had a direct influence on the mayor's recent fifth inaugural address.

In the address, Sheets began by how saying how happy he was to receive the gift and went on to make numerous references about how Quincy's dreams have come true in the past two years because the city has its own dream catcher.

According to Native American legend, the dream catcher—made from leather, stones and feathers—catches all of a person's dreams. "Good" dreams are held in the catcher until they come true, while "bad" dreams are destroyed by the first rays of the morning sun.

The Beechwood children, ages 6 to 11, represented nine elementary schools in Quincy: Bernazzani, Squantum, Merrymount, Sacred Heart, Lin-

Ayers Seeks Approval Of 'Moody's Corner'

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers is seeking to honor a Quincy family by naming the intersection of East Squantum Street and Hucks Avenue in Squantum "Moody's Corner."

The City Council unanimously approved Ayers' resolution calling for the Quincy Park and Recreation Board and Veterans Services Department to approve the name. The resolution also calls for the Park Department to determine the appropriate location at the intersection for the installation of a sign.

Ayers said the family has a "distinguished career in military services." Among those who served, he said, are four sons and a daughter-in-law of the late Mr. and Mrs. John D. Moody who lived at 786 East Squantum St.: Pvt. John T. Moody, A/S George F. Moody, Cpl. James B.

Moody, SoM. Edward J. Moody and Lt. Anne Moody, all World War II veterans.

"They've been kind of role models in the area," he said.

Ayers added that although the family now lives in North Quincy, they used to live in Squantum and the corner in question was deemed the best location for the honor.

Ward 5 Assn. Holds First Annual Meeting

More than 65 people attended the Ward 5 Community Association's recent inaugural annual meeting at the Beechwood Knoll School.

Edward Fitzgerald of the Quincy Historical Society recounted the historical evolution of the ward. The evening also included an awards ceremony, recap of 1997 accomplishments, election of officers, and discussion of future plans.

More than 20 individuals were recognized, including Michelle Lydon of the Ward 5 Citizen of the Year who received a plaque from Mayor James Sheets for her work on behalf of the Quincy Park Improvement Committee, the Park and Recreation Board, Lions Club, and Quincy Youth Soccer as well as her efforts to help bring new playground equipment to the Beechwood Knoll Playground.

Ward 5 City Councillor Stephen Durkin presented his Councillor's Award to Lynne Houghton of the Wollaston Business Association, who was recognized for her efforts toward and commitment to improving the Wollaston Business District. She also serves as president of the Rotary Club.

Ed Kyle was named "Volunteer of the Year."

Recipients of the "High Five" award were: Durkin, state Rep. Michael Bellotti, School Supt. Eugene Creedon, Park Department Executive Director Thomas Koch, DPW Commissioner David Colton, Michael Wheelwright of the DPW, Paul McEachern, Joe Kintigos, Paul DiPietro, Glenn McCauliffe, Denise Conry, Cindy DeCristofaro, Katie Barrett, Margo Stockmeyer, Steve Golden, Debbie Brandano, Jason Brandano, Chris Madden and Bill Fawley.

Officers elected for 1998 include Douglas Gutro, president; Joseph Mulvey, vice president; David Murphy, secretary and Cathleen Kyle, treasurer.

Local businesses that donated gift certificates for the association's fundraising raffle include Donovan Brothers, The Coffee Break Cafe, Mando's Italian Bistro, Friendly's, and Wiz Kid Toys.

The association meets the second Monday of every month from 7 to 9 p.m. at Beechwood Knoll. For more information, call Gutro at 328-7982.

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at last week's meeting.

•Granted a request from Tedeschi Food Shop, 751 East Squantum St. for a common victualer license. Ownership has changed from Paul O'Malley to Mark Shanahan. Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers spoke in support of the change.

•Continued a request from China Chopsticks, 488-490 Hancock St. for a common victualer license until Ward 5 Councillor Steve Durkin and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers have a neighborhood meeting.

•Granted a request to Richard Bowen, owner of Rick's Diner, 1502 Hancock St. for a common victualer license. (It was formerly Big Daddy's and Luigi's Kitchen).

•Deferred action from American Sports Services, for a permit to conduct a bicycle race in Quincy Center, May 23 at 6 p.m. until a meeting with Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association. Manning said business in restaurants in the area at that time may suffer because of the race.

•Granted permission to Granite Rail Inc., 16 Cottage Ave., to alter their premises by increasing their space from 1,925 square feet to 2,250 square feet. A fire on Dec. 7 caused the business to close. Owner Gerard Mulvey said it would reopen in about six weeks.

•Granted a request from Wal-Mart Stores Inc. for a common victualer license at 301 Falls Blvd. A snack bar called the "Radio Grille" will open the same time as the store on Jan. 26.

Maryrose Mirick Development Director For Hospital Foundation

The Quincy Hospital Health and Education Foundation has named Maryrose Mirick as director of development.

The foundation's mission is to raise the necessary funds for the purchase of advanced medical technologies and to continue improvement of the hospital's facilities. In addition, it supports health education, screening and prevention programs in the community.

Mirick will oversee and coordinate a member of fundraising events, including the foundation's annual gala and its annual golf tournament. She will also direct the hospital's annual giving program, which aims to attract a broad base of support from the local community.

Mirick most recently served as director of development for Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore, where she managed volunteers, coordinated special events and implemented a number of promotional activities. Prior to this position, she was director of membership and volunteers for the National Kidney Foundation of Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

She has gained an enormous appreciation for patient access to quality health care not only through her career, but also through personal experience.

"Fifteen years ago, I was given a second chance at life when my sister donated one of her kidneys for my transplant," she said. "This experience reinforced my belief that everyone deserves the opportunity to receive the best and most advanced medical care available. Quincy Hospital is an institution I grew up learning about and respecting from my parents, and I believe wholeheartedly in the work I will be doing with them in this new position."

Mirick serves as an ambassador for the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and as recorder for the Quincy Rotary Club. She lives in Weymouth with her husband Wayne, supervisor of attendance for Quincy Public Schools, and daughters Andrea and Jacquelyn.

Planning Board Hearings Jan. 20

The Quincy Planning Board will hold several public hearings Tuesday, Jan. 20 in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Hearings regarding the establishment of a Business Revitalization Zone in Quincy Center will be held at 6:30 and 6:45 p.m.

At 7 p.m., there will be a hearing regarding proposed amendments regarding the city's Site Plan Review process. The amendments include changing the minimum square footage of new structures affected by the process from 15,000 to 10,000 and making the City Council the permit granting authority instead of the Planning Board.

Harvard Pilgrim Health Care's proposed construction of a four-story office building containing 240,000 square feet at 1600 Crown Colony Drive will be the subject of a hearing at 8 p.m.

Copies of the Business Revitalization Zone and Harvard Pilgrim plans may be examined at the Department of Planning and Community Development at City Hall weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Podiatric Physicians and Surgeons

ARTHRITIS AND YOUR FEET

Aches and pains of the foot are among the most often-ignored physical complaints. When discomfort is a symptom of arthritis, however, refusing to pay attention can have disastrous results.

While most types of arthritis cannot be cured, early treatment can bring the condition under control or into remission, limiting pain and irreversible bone and cartilage damage. Symptoms to watch for include joint swelling, pain and tenderness, redness or heat, stiffness (especially after awakening), rashes and skin growths, and/or impaired movement. Treatment to control inflammation and maximize foot function may include exercise, physical therapy, medication, orthotics (shoe inserts), or, in severe cases, surgery.

P.S. The foot has 33 individual joints, each of which can be affected by arthritis. If you are suffering from these or any other foot related complaints call us at (617) 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Pkwy., Suite #18, Quincy and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

Law Office Of Thomas Williams Begins Charitable Giving Campaign

The law office of Thomas F. Williams has begun a charitable giving campaign.

Twenty-five dollars from every loan which is closed by the office during the month of January will be donated directly to charitable organizations which provide housing, food, and clothing for the homeless and underprivileged of our community.

"Because of the low interest rates that we anticipate, this month should be record breaking for the mortgage industry," said

THOMAS WILLIAMS

Attorney Williams. "This campaign is our effort to express our gratitude to the community for its patronage during the last 26 years. It allows us to share the wealth of 1998 with those who are less fortunate than ourselves."

The law office has served the South Shore since 1972, staffed with associate attorneys, paralegals, executive secretaries, and title examiners.

Williams can be heard on WJDA, 1300 AM every Wednesday at 10 a.m. on the Party Line.

The law office is located at 21 McGrath Highway, Suite 501, Quincy. For more information, call (617) 847-4200.

tractor Robert Walsh.

Dickinson wants to build a six-story, 265,000-square office building on one side of the 7.4-acre parking lot at the T station. It would be built on stilts and would have 798 parking spaces under the building.

The T wants to build a five-story parking garage next to the office building, which would increase the number of MBTA parking spaces from 802 to 1,302.

Dickinson said the office building is scheduled to open by 2000 and the garage could open by the end of this year. He said the project would create 1,000 office jobs and 400 union construction jobs as well as result in $450,000 in real estate taxes from the building to the city.

The project could win MBTA approval by today

(Thursday). It has also been approved by the Massachusetts Environmental Policy Act but still needs the green light from the Federal Highway Administration and Massachusetts Highway Department before any construction can begin.

The plan calls for widening one stretch of Hancock Street by nine feet, adding a right-turn lane southbound from Hancock onto West Squantum Street. In addition, the developers are negotiating to buy land from the owners of a Shell gas station at Hancock and West Squantum streets to help them widen the street.

The project also calls for building a rear entrance onto the North Quincy Fire Station that would allow engines to use a road from the MBTA station to the fire station instead of Hancock Street. A traffic signal also will be installed in front of the fire station.

Although Monday night's meeting was not a public hearing, 12 residents were allowed to give their views on the project. Some voiced support and others opposition, with traffic and the need for a ramp being the main concerns. However, Gillon backed the councillors in supporting the project and the audience applauded when the council voted its approval.

Other projects for which the city has granted air rights include Stop & Shop's corporate headquarters in Quincy Center and a Newport Avenue office building built on the other side of North Quincy T station which was constructed by Dickinson Development and now owned by State Street Bank.

School that will replace the current building—a project in which Quincy High's principal will not participate.

On the subject of Avery, Keuther said, "Dr. Avery's an outstanding educator and I anticipate a great relationship in working with her."

Originally from Buffalo, Keuther holds a bachelor's degree from Roberts Wesleyan College in Rochester, N.Y., where he was a pre-law major, and a master's degree in secondary school education from Eastern Nazarene College (ENC) in Wollaston.

He said he is certified to teach students with special needs, and is at ENC finishing up his certification to administer secondary schools. He added that he is also certified in crisis prevention, having taken courses on how to intervene when students are having problems academically, behaviorally or socially.

Keuther has also coached sports at Quincy High and ENC and has served as director of youth ministry at his church, the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene.

He lives in Marshfield with his wife Beverly and their two children but says he plans to move closer to the city.

Quincy Lumber, Duane's Sites Meeting Topic Jan. 22

The future of the Quincy Lumber and Duane's sites on Southern Artery will be the future at a meeting Thursday, Jan. 22 at 7:30 p.m. at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

The meeting is being co-sponsored by the Friends of the Souther Tide Mill and Fore River Watershed Association.

The deteriorating condition of the Souther Tide Mill, one of the state's 10 Most Endangered Historic Properties since 1993, and the pace of development in the city prompted the two groups to unite in an effort to raise awareness of the potential fate of the two parcels, which comprise more than 12 acres and one of the largest developable waterfront properties in the city.

The purpose of the meeting is to inform residents about the situation, discuss proposals for preserving the historical and natural significance of both parcels, gather neighborhood input, and build support for a redevelopment plan that is neighborhood-driven.

Quincy Planning Director Richard Meade will discuss current zoning and its impact on the development potential of the two sites. A presentation by urban planner John Goff will outline the historical significance of the area and the results of previous studies performed for the city.

For more information, call 472-3189.

ENC Receives $80,000 Gift

Eastern Nazarene College has received an $80,000 grant from the Grimshaw-Gudewicz Charitable Foundation of Fall River, announces College President Kent R. Hill.

The Grimshaw-Gudewicz Foundation was established in 1995 as part of the legacy of the late George E. Grimshaw and his wife, Irene S. Gudewicz, of Peterborough, N.H., who worked together for many years in establishing and operating fastener manufacturing and distributing companies. Upon retirement, they turned their attention to philanthropic activities revolving around education, historical preservation, medical research and the arts.

The gift will become part of a fund for capital improvements at ENC. This is the foundation's second $80,000 gift to the college, bringing the total amount of their gifts over the past three years to $210,000. Over the eight years prior to the establishment of the foundation in 1995, Grimshaw personally contributed nearly $400,000 to the college.

ENC's Board of Trustees named The Center for Institutional Advancement on the Wollaston campus in his honor in 1992.

The South Shore Association of Realtors (SSAR) will hold four Home Buyer Workshops to benefit current and future South Shore home buyers.

The SSAR is planning the workshops at the request of Joanne Condon Walsh, the association's new president.

The goals of each workshop will be:

- To educate the public about the home buying process.

- To increase the visibility of the SSAR and its affiliate members.

- To generate potential clients for the affiliate members and their firms.

- To increase the participation of all affiliate members (lenders, attorneys, home inspection companies, insurance agents, and accountants).

- To provide an opportunity for a joint venture with the realtors and affiliates.

The workshops will be modeled on the Home Buyer Series currently being run by Quincy Community Action Programs. Debbie Kidd, QCAP housing director, has agreed to assist the SSAR's committee in the planning of the workshops.

The committee's first meeting will be held Thursday, Jan. 22 at 3 p.m. at the association's Board Office at 62 Derby St., Hingham. The details and agenda of the proposed workshops will be discussed.

Those planning to attend the meeting should call Jim Flaherty at 773-1121.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Crime Prevention For People With Physical Disabilities

Disabled persons face many physical challenges. This could make them vulnerable to would-be assailants who assume the disabled are incapable of protecting themselves.

LOOK OUT FOR YOURSELF

• Stay alert and tuned in to your surroundings, whether on the street, in the office building or shopping mall, driving, or waiting for a bus or subway.

• Send the message that you're calm, confident, and know where you're going.

• Be realistic about your limitations. Avoid places or situations that put you at risk.

• Know the neighborhood where you live and work. Check out the locations of police and fire stations, public telephones, hospitals, restaurants, or stores that are open and accessible.

• Avoid establishing predictable activity patterns. Most of us have daily routines, but never varying them may increase your vulnerability to crime.

AT HOME

• Put good locks on all your doors. Sturdy deadbolt locks are best. Make sure you can easily use the locks you install.

• Install peepholes on front and back doors at your eye level. This is especially important if you use a wheelchair.

• Get to know your neighbors. Watchful neighbors who look out for you as well as themselves are a frontline defense against crime.

• If you have difficulty speaking, have a friend record a message (giving your name, address, and type of disability) to use in emergencies. Keep the tape in a recorder next to your phone.

• Ask your police department to conduct a free home security survey to help identify your individual needs.

OUT AND ABOUT

• If possible, go with a friend.

• Stick to well-lit, well-traveled streets. Avoid shortcuts through vacant lots, wooded areas, parking lots, or alleys.

• Let someone know where you are going and when you expect to return.

• Keep a purse close to your body, not dangling by the straps. Put a wallet in an inside coat or pants pocket. If you use a wheelchair, keep your purse or wallet tucked snugly between you and the inside of the chair.

• If you use a knapsack, make sure it is securely closed.

• Always carry your medical information in case of emergency.

• Consider installing a cellular phone or CB radio in your vehicle.

BEFORE YOU GO ON VACATION

• Plan ahead. If you're traveling by car, get maps and plan your route. Have the car checked before you leave.

• Leave copies of the numbers of your passport, driver's license, credit cards, and traveler's checks with a close friend or relative in case you need to replace these papers.

• Put lights and radio on timers to create the illusion that someone is at home while you're away. Leave shades, blinds and curtains in normal positions. Stop mail and deliveries or ask a neighbor to take them in.

ON PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION

• Use well-lit, busy stops. Stay near other passengers. Sit by the driver.

• Stay alert! Don't doze or daydream.

• If someone harasses you, make a loud noise or say "Leave me alone." If that doesn't work, hit the emergency signal on the bus or train.

TAKE A STAND

• Join or help organize a Neighborhood Watch group. Make sure their meetings are accessible to people with disabilities.

• Work with local law enforcement to improve responses to all victims or witnesses of crime. Role-play how people with disabilities can handle threatening situations.

• Work with rehabilitation centers and advocacy groups to offer a presentation to schools and other community organizations on the needs or concerns of individuals with disabilities.

League's Elite Teams Giving North Problems

North At Quincy Friday

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Before its game at rival Quincy Friday at 6 p.m., the North Quincy High School girls' basketball team had one opportunity to snap its three-game losing streak.

That chance came yesterday (Wednesday) at 7 p.m., when the Red Raiders (6-3 overall, 3-3 Old Colony League) visited Falmouth, an OCL squad ranked 19th in the state by the Boston Globe.

"We're facing the iron of the league right now and having a tough time because of our lack of size," said North Quincy head coach Ken Panaro, whose team jumped out to a 6-0 record, including a 3-0 league mark. "A lot of the teams in our league are quite big, which puts us at a disadvantage from the outset. We're in most of the games from the beginning, but then we tend to try to play the other team's game, and that's gets us in trouble."

In recent action, North stayed with visiting OCL powerhouse Bridgewater-Raynham for a half, but were outrebounded and outplayed in the second half and fell, 66-47, Monday night.

"We had a good first half, but they must've outrebounded us 2 to 1, and gotten about 20 or 25 offensive rebounds," said Panaro. "They're a very good team, ranked No. 2 in the state and showed why against us."

Late in the first half, the Trojans built a 20-14 lead and appeared to be in control, but North stormed back to close within three (22-19) on two free throws and a three-point basket by senior co-captain guard Kerry Skehan (eight points).

B-R came right back to build an eight-point advantage, before NQ sophomore guard Jill Nicholson (team-high 12 points) hit a layup as the first half ended, cutting the deficit to 28-22.

The Red Raiders opened the second half with two quick hoops to get within two (28-26), but would get no closer as B-R reeled off spurts of five and nine straight points midway through the half to pull away for the triumph.

"We should've done better, but we can't play their game," said Panaro. "Their pressure got to us. We had problems breaking their 2-2-1 trap, which they do very well."

Noble, Quincy Ready To Renew NQ Rivalry

'Highlight Of The Year'

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Bob Noble has this game marked down on the calendar, as do all the coaches, players, parents and supporters when Quincy High School and North Quincy High School meet in an athletic event.

So when Noble's Quincy High School girls' basketball team hosts its rival from North Quincy Friday at 6 p.m., you can be sure the Presidents will be prepared for whatever the Red Raiders throw at them.

"When these teams meet, kids on both sides rise to the occasion," said Noble. "You can throw out everything that has happened leading up to this game. Our girls will definitely be ready to play, and this game should raise their intensity level and playing ability.

"One of the unique things about this rivalry is that very few other cities enjoy in this kind of competition within our city. That makes it special and something to look forward to as the highlight of the year. It should be a lot of fun for both teams. I told the girls to just go out and have a good time and we'll see what happens."

Having lost seven of its first eight, while North won six of its first nine, Noble realizes the Presidents must play a solid 32 minutes if they have any hopes of pulling out a victory.

"North's a good team, a team on the upside that is playing well this season," he said, "so we'll have to play a strong overall game against them."

In non-league action earlier this week, the Presidents fell to visiting Marshfield, 57-44, Monday night. Quincy kept the game close until the end, when it was forced to press and foul. Shooting problems continued to plague the Presidents, who shot just 15 percent from the field (6 of 40) in the second half.

Highlights of the game for Quincy included the outstanding performance of Erin Barry (16 points, 13 rebounds, two blocks, two steals) and the solid play of Becky Mackey.

"Erin's been our most consistent player, but this was far and away her best effort this season," said Noble. "As far as the team goes, we played well enough to lose. We just can't get over the hump and do the right things down the stretch. We had plenty of opportunities, but didn't get it done."

Last Friday in OCL play, the Presidents fell to host Falmouth by a 69-34 score. Leading the way for Quincy were captain Kerry Duffy (12 points) and Colleen Nichol (15 points, 10 rebounds).

In OCL action last Tuesday, Marche Strickland poured in 26 points and collected six rebounds to lead Silver Lake over host Quincy, 67-42.

The Presidents received a solid all-around effort from Duffy (12 points, seven steals, six rebounds, five assists). Nichol contributed 12 points and 10 rebounds and Pam Gray added eight points, seven rebounds and four steals.

Former Olympian Cashman Now Has Dreams Of Teaching

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Quincy's Karen Cashman is trading in her blades for books.

A bronze medalist at the 1994 Winter Olympics in Lillehammer, Norway, Cashman, 26, narrowly missed the cut at Sunday's U.S. Short-Track Olympic Trials in Lake Placid, N.Y.

Now that her speedskating career is over, Cashman's dreams of competing in a second Olympics have been replaced by dreams of achieving her next goal: becoming a teacher.

"After the last Olympics, I had the opportunity to speak to young students," said Cashman in an interview Tuesday with The Quincy Sun from Lake Placid. "I was very inspired by them and want to help them pursue their goals.

Ross Joins 1,000-Point Club North Aims To Avoid Repeat Of Last Visit

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Ted Stevenson vividly remembers what happened the last time the North Quincy High School boys' basketball team took the court at rival Quincy.

Leading by nine with less than three minutes to play, North appeared to have the game well in hand. However, Quincy had other plans and reeled off 11 straight points to capture an memorable 47-45 victory.

"That loss is still in the back of our minds," said Stevenson, the Red Raiders' head coach. "We don't want something like that to happen again."

Friday at 7:30 p.m., North will have the opportunity to avenge that loss when it visits Quincy for the first of two regular season Old Colony League clashes.

Though the Presidents entered this week with just two wins in eight games, Stevenson and his squad aren't about to think they can step on the Vo-Tech court and roll to a victory.

"It's still the Quincy-North Quincy game, and funny things happen when we play each other," he said.

North geared up for the Quincy game by hosting Falmouth yesterday (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. in an OCL clash.

Monday, North visited one of the stronger teams in the OCL, Bridgewater-Raynham, and lost a tough battle, 69-62. NQ fell to 5-3 overall, 4-2 in the OCL.

At the 10-minute mark of the first half, North senior center Brian Ross scored his 1,000th career point, finishing with 27 points. He now has 1,016 points in his NQ career.

"He was very excited and the team was, too," said Stevenson. "They stopped the game for him and we presented the game ball to him, which he gave to his mother. They gave him a real nice ovation, including their fans, which was real nice to see."

Ross joined only two other players who have scored 1,000 points for the North's boys' squad: Sean Donovan and Doug Grutchfield.

As far as the game was concerned, North played a strong first half and built an eight-point halftime lead. However, the Trojans' depth, speed and athleticism, combined with NQ's lack of big-game experience, resulted in a B-R comeback and victory.

NQ senior guard Jay Turner (14 points), senior forward Mark Stanton (11 points) and senior guard Brian Linskey (seven points) turned in solid performances.

Last Friday, the Red Raiders lost to OCL foe Silver Lake, 59-56, despite Ross' 30 points, nine rebounds and three blocks.

In OCL action last Tuesday, Ross (28 points, 12 rebounds, three blocks) sparked North over visiting Dennis-Yarmouth, 65-47.

over North Quincy Monday.

After dropping six straight games, all the hard work and determination to turn its season around finally resulted in a victory for Quincy last Friday against visiting OCL opponent Falmouth. The 73-68 triumph improved the Presidents to 2-6 overall, 2-5 in the OCL.

"For the first time this year, shooting was not a problem for us," said Franceschini. "We shot 12 of 16 on free throws and finished at 44 percent from the field."

"This was the first night I saw the confidence come back. We never relinquished the lead and got a good effort from everyone. Hopefully we can build on it as we enter the second half of the season."

Sparking Quincy offensively was sophomore forward Joe Kearney, who poured in 28 points, including four three-point bombs. He connected on his shots at a sizzling 78 percent clip.

Returning to the form he showed during an outstanding freshman campaign, sophomore point guard Dan Kelly scored 15 points and dished out nine assists. Senior guard Jarrod Downey added 12 points.

Seniors Kevin Moore and Steve Clarke and sophomore Chase Clarke came off the bench to provide a spark and spell the starters, drawing their coach's praise of their efforts.

Last Tuesday, the Presidents visited Silver Lake and lost the OCL game, 63-42. Despite the loss, Franceschini said Quincy showed signs of life against the bigger, more experienced Lakers.

"We turned it around a bit against Silver Lake," he said. "We were down 23 at the half after extremely cold shooting for the first 10 minutes of the game put us in a deep hole."

"We rallied to within five at one point and were down six with six minutes left. Then we didn't score for three minutes. We worked hard, though, against the biggest team in the league and I was happy that we were able to handle their size. It was a step in the right direction."

Pee Wee A's Top Needham, 7-5

After a two-week layoff, the Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee A's jumped back into action with a 7-5 victory over Needham. The win was Quincy's third in a row.

The game featured outstanding plays by both teams. Leading the way for Quincy was Ryan Donahue, who netted two goals and added an assist.

Quincy's Billy McKeon collected a goal and an assist and Brendan Conley, Brian O'Hanley and Mike McGonagle notched a goal apiece. Dishing out one assist each were Matt Lavery, Brian Lewis and Josh Giordani.

Quincy, NQ Prepared For First Encounter

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Hockey is a game of momentum, and heading into last night's (Wednesday's) 7 p.m. showdown at Quincy Youth Arena, the North Quincy High School hockey team held the momentum edge against rival Quincy High School.

The Red Raiders (5-3-1 overall, 4-2-1 Old Colony League) are on a roll, unbeaten in their last three games (2-0-1) with just one loss in their last six.

Meanwhile, over at Quincy, the Presidents (4-2-2 overall, 4-2-1 OCL) have dropped their last two, both on the road, and haven't won since Dec. 29 (4-2, Plymouth South).

"Before the season began, I thought Quincy had the stronger lineup," said first-year North Quincy head coach Bob Doyle. "Now I'm anxious to play them because we've been the team that's not as talented, as big or as physical and we're tied with them for fourth in the league."

"Quincy's faced three tough foes and don't have much to show for it, so I'm on guard for that. They'll likely come out gangbusters and try to bang us around physically. We just have to meet the challenge the best we can."

The Presidents are also looking forward to the game as a way to get back on track heading into the second half of the season.

"This will be a good test for us," said Sylvia. "They're in a similar situation as we are in the league. They're a little more of an offensive team and we're maybe better defensively, so it'll be interesting to see how things work out. It should be a close game, decided by a goal in the third period."

Following the first of two regular season meetings, NQ host Plymouth North Saturday at 7:45 p.m., Plymouth North Monday at 3 p.m. and visits Falmouth Wednesday at 7 p.m. Quincy's next game is Saturday at Taunton at 8 p.m., then Wednesday at 6 p.m., it hosts Dennis-Yarmouth.

In recent action, North rallied to tie OCL visitor Bridgewater-Raynham, 4-4, last Saturday. Paul Markarian's goal with less than 30 seconds to play knotted the score.

Markarian collected two goals and an assist, Bill Walker and Chad Fitzpatrick each added a goal and John Barron had two assists.

Last Wednesday, five goals from five different players propelled North to a 5-3 win over visiting D-Y. Markarian, Fitzpatrick, John Bertucci, Mike Sullivan and Mike Powers tallied for NQ. Goaltender David Downey remained undefeated with 21 saves, including a stop on a breakaway late in the second.

For the Presidents, the past week has seen the squad fall to OCL hosts Silver Lake and Barnstable.

In the 3-1 loss to Silver Lake, Quincy's Chris Haidul scored his league-leading 11th goal of the season, assisted by Joe Valatini. As of press time, Haidul led the OCL in scoring with 16 points.

Last Wednesday, the Presidents traveled to Barnstable for an OCL clash and came out on the losing end of a 5-4 score.

Former Olympian Cashman Now Dreams Of Teaching

That's when I got interested in becoming a teacher."

After watching the rest of the Olympic Trials, Cashman will fly back to the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo., then drive to Michigan and resume her college studies at Northern Michigan University.

"I'm enrolled in four classes this semester and hope to finish my degree in secondary education as soon as I can, then move on with the rest of my life," said Cashman, a 1989 graduate of North Quincy High School. "I have about four semesters left, and I'm going to go to school year-round and hopefully finish sometime next year."

Cashman said she would love to teach in the Quincy Public School system and after she receives her Michigan Teaching Certificate, she plans to apply for a Massachusetts Teaching Certificate.

At the Olympic Trials, only the top 16 skaters in the 1,000-meter pursuit-style event qualify for the semifinals, and Cashman finished 17th at 1:42.248. Her time was just over a second behind Meghan Everett of Ballston Spa, N.Y., who qualified at 1:41.058.

Cashman, who had only been back on skates for a month following a serious leg and ankle injury she suffered on New Year's Eve 1996, was racing against younger and healthier competitors but did not allow that deter her from chasing her dream.

"I was surprised I didn't get in, to be honest," she said. "It wasn't one of my faster times in recent years, but I knew I suffered with the injury. I had an operation in mid-November and had to take six weeks off."

"I tried my hardest, but the injury won out. I've spent the past three years training and had to give it one last shot. Who knows, maybe I'll come back for the 2002 Winter Olympics. I never say never."

Pee Wee A's Rout Belmont, 6-2

The Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee A's erupted for five second-period goals en route to a 6-2 victory over Belmont in Greater Boston League action.

The game was hotly contested in the first period, with Belmont mounting several forays into Quincy's zone, testing the metal of netminder Bruce "Mr. No" Maggio to no avail. Finally, with 1:42 left in the period, Quincy's Brian O'Hanley broke the scoreless tie with a goal assisted by Sean Moriarty.

Quincy's offensive attack kicked into high gear in the second period, putting the game out of reach. "Wild Bill" McKeon got things started with a goal assisted by Brian Lewis and O'Hanley. Also netting goals were Josh Giordani (assisted by Ryan Donahue and Ryan Conley), Lewis (assisted by McKeon and Jeremiah "Miah" Hasson), Donahue (assisted by Lewis) and Giordani again (unassisted).

Belmont continued to press and scored two goals before the game was over, but it was too little too late. Quincy Coach Grazioso was pleased with his team's performance, particularly the play of blueliners O'Hanley, Steve "Masher" McGonagle, John Chevalier, Moriarty, Hasson, Matt Lavery and the tenacious two-way play of Brendan Conley.

Pee Wee B's Stay Hot After K Of C Tourney Triumph

After capturing first place in the recent Knights of Columbus Tournament, the Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee B's continued their hot streak with wins over South Boston and Dedham.

In a 4-2 victory over Southie, Quincy netminder Nick Manning turned away multiple Southie attempts and strong defensive play in front of the net by Jake O'Donnell, Bobby Donovan, Kyle Carmody and Timmy Duggan cleared out opposing forwards.

Quincy played an aggressive, physical game and took the lead for good at the end of the first period when Ryan Feldhoff tucked the puck by the Southie goaltender, off sharp passing from Andy Ross (three assists) and Pat Clifford (two goals). Donovan, a steady defensive player, made his presence felt in the offensive zone with two assists on crisp passes. Liam Powers scored a "one-timer" when Pat Maxey stole the puck behind Southie's net and fed it to Powers out from.

The B's other triumph was an 8-2 romp over Dedham, sparked by Duggan's four-goal performance. O'Donnell, always an anchor on defense, netted his first goal of the season, assisted by Donovan and Clifford. Ryan Tobin notched two goals and Maxey dished out three assists.

Feldhoff scored Quincy's first goal, finishing a break-out initiated by Carmody's heads-up pass. Carmody had another assist and Ross added two assists. Brendan Craig and Pat Casper hustled end to end and sparked frequent attacks as they aggressively challenged Dedham for every loose puck. Manning played his usual solid game between the pipes although he was not as busy as usual, thanks to his defense keeping the puck in Dedham's end.

In earlier action, the B's won the K of C Tournament at Quincy Youth Arena. The B's concluded the four-game sweep by trouncing South Boston, 6-2, in the finals. Manning made a number of spectacular saves and defensesmen Dan Durocher, Donovan, Duggan, Carmody and O'Donnell turned away a relentless Southie attack in the scoreless first period.

Trailing 1-0, Quincy roared back with four goals in under two minutes in the second period.

Brian Cooper tied the game off a pass from Maxey, followed by Ross finishing an end-to-end rush with passes from Clifford and Feldhoff. Tobin and Craig then assisted Duggan on the third Quincy goal. Less than 30 seconds later, Duggan found Maxey in the slot for a 4-1 lead.

Any chance of a Southie comeback was dashed when Clifford netted the puck after receiving a breakout pass from Carmody. Southie's last ditch effort to get back in it was thwarted when Feldhoff scored from an impossible angle deep in the corner. B's coaches Pat Clifford and Kevin Craig applauded the team, especially Manning and the defense for continuing to hustle despite a strong Southie attack early in the game.

In the semifinals, Quincy beat Hingham, 6-4. Goals by Craig, Casper and Ross gave Quincy a 3-0 lead after the first period. Ross, Maxey and Feldhoff had assists. Quincy extended its lead to 6-1 on goals by Clifford (Ross assist), Tobin (Feldhoff assist) and Powers (unassisted).

Quincy romped over Canton, 9-1, in its second game. Craig (assisted by Powers, Feldhoff) and Feldhoff (assisted by Duggan, Ross) put the B's ahead, 2-0, after one. Quincy outscored Canton, 5-1, in the second to put the game away. Ross and Cooper (two goals apiece), Powers (goal, two assists), Craig (three assists) and Clifford, Casper and Carmody (one assist apiece) did the damage in the second period. Duggan (unassisted) and Feldhoff (assisted by Duggan, Clifford) scored in the third.

In the opening game, Quincy faced its toughest challenge, Walpole, and came away with an exciting 3-2 victory. With the B's shorthanded late in the second period, Powers outskated several Walpole defenders and netted a backhanded flip shot for the eventual game-winning goal. The B's opened the scoring with a goal by Feldhoff, assisted by O'Donnell and Clifford. Duggan guided the lead to 2-0 with assists from Feldhoff and Ross. Walpole scored twice in the second to tie the game, setting the stage for Powers' heroics.

Calley, Lopes Help Doherty And White Capture Jamboree Crown

Craig Calley and Dana Lopes each scored a goal to lift Doherty & White over Quincy Sheet Metal, 2-1, and clinch the Quincy Youth Hockey Mite Division House League jamboree championship.

Assisting on D&W's goals were Scott Richardson, Mike Maxey and Dave Guerriero. QSM's goal was netted by Lambros Palambros, assisted by Eric Moreschi and Allison Griffith.

D&W advanced to the championship game with a 3-1 triumph over Paul Harold Club. Lopes had a goal and an assist, Calley and Anthony Gilbody each notched a goal and Maxey, Chris Devlin and Corey Lumaghini added an assist apiece. Doug Haskins scored for Harold, assisted by Joe Canavan.

QSM moved on to the championship game after doubling up First Choice Home Care, 6-3. Palambros notched two goals and an assist, John McInnis had a goal and an assist and Amanda Maggio, Josh McKeon and Michael Leone all chipped in with a goal. For FCHC, Ted Walsh netted two goals, Casey Conley scored a goal and Chris Hunter and Chris Rooney each collected an assist.

In earlier jamboree action, Canavan scored all four goals for Harold in a 4-1 win over Kiley Real Estate.

McInnis scored twice and Frank Sorrento dished out two assists for QSM in a 3-1 win over Barry's Deli.

Calley had a goal and an assist and Maxey recorded the shutout in D&W's 4-0 triumph over Jay Cashman.

Haskins and Canavan each notched two goals and two assists to pace Harold over Lydon-Russell, 5-2.

Ted Walsh (hat trick, three assists) led a number of multiple scorers in FCHC's 10-1 victory over Doran & Horrigan.

Maggio and Leone (two assists apiece) were the playmakers for QSM in a 4-1 triumph over Bruce Ayers Club.

Richardson & Co. Spark Sun Over Foley In Jamboree Championship

Goals by Kevin Richardson, Mike MacPherson and Matt Quigley paced The Quincy Sun over Pat Foley Painting, 3-1, to capture the Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt Division House League jamboree championship.

Dan Reggiani and Sean McCormack added assists for the Sun. Kristina Manangaro scored for Foley, assisted by Marissa Powers and Mike Lohnes.

The Sun topped Westminster Dodge, 7-4, to advance to the championship game. Leading scorers for the Sun were Richardson and Quigley (goal, two assists each), Eddie Laura and Robby Gagliard (goal, assist apiece), Jason Amato, MacPherson and Dave Oronte (one goal each), and Paul McLean and Jim Calahan (one assist apiece).

For Dodge, pacing the offense were David Tapper and Donald Gardiner (goal, assist each), Andrew Patten and Andrew Donovan (goal apiece) and Dave Finnegan, Joseph Fontana and Andrew McCabe (one assist each).

Foley knocked off M. Sugarman, 5-3, to reach the championship game. Manangaro (two goals, assist), Pat Devlin and Sean Warwick (goal, assist apiece), Chris Tufo (goal), Powers, John Clark and Matt Haskins (one assist each) paced the Foley effort. Sugarman's goals were by Bobby Newcomb, Mike McKeon and Justin Thorley, assisted by Steve Bythrow, Kevin Shinick, Paul Fasoli and Chris Tierney.

In earlier jamboree action, Foley got by Burgin Platner, 5-3, thanks to two goals by Terrence O'Connell, a goal and an assist from Sean Warwick, two assists by Powers, a goal by Mike Arrufat, and an assist apiece from Pat Maloney and Matt Haskins.

Paul Graham notched a goal and an assist for Dodge in a 3-2 triumph over Sugarman.

In the Sun's 9-2 victory over Keohane's, top scorers were Reggiani (hat trick, two assists), Quigley (two goals, assist), MacPherson (goal, two assists), Richardson (goal, assist), Kevin Nee and McCormack (goal apiece) and Imran Moin, Laura and Oronte (one assist each).

Kenney (hat trick, three assists) sparked Sugarman over Keohane's, 10-3.

Reggiani, MacPherson and Nee netted goals for The Sun in a 3-1 triumph over BP.

Lohnes and Warwick each notched two goals, sparking Foley over Dodge, 7-6.

Craig (Two Goals) Lifts Skinner's Over Black In Jamboree Title Tilt

Brendan Craig's two goals sparked Skinner's Winners over Quincy Black, 2-1, in the championship game of the Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee Division House League jamboree.

Assisting Craig were Jamie Chiochio, Josh Sawtelle and Danny Sullivan. Black's goal was by Patrick Maxey, assisted by Gene Nazzaro and Ryan Donahue.

To advance to the championship tilt, Skinner's edged Mike Morrissey, 9-8, led by Matt Grazioso (hat trick) and Craig (goal, three assists).

Other standouts for Skinner's were Ryan Conley (two goals), Steve Ohlson (two assists), Andy Flores and Chiochio (goal apiece), and Brendan Conley (assist). Morrissey was paced by Andy Ross (two goals, three assists), Josh Giordani (two goals, two assists), Jim Kennedy (goal, assist), and Miah Hasson, Steve Summerling and Tony Mignini (goal each).

In another high-scoring affair, Black got by Coffee Creek Cafe, 10-7, to move to the championship.

PEE WEES

Leading Black were Maxey (two goals, five assists), Donahue (hat trick, three assists), Jeff Butts (hat trick, two assists), Mike Cox and Lee Sheehan (goal apiece), and Bob Donovan and Bruce Maggio (assist each).

CBC's top performers were Tim Duggan (hat trick), Kristen DiMatteo and Robert Mooney (goal, assist apiece), Pat Casper, Tim Coughlin and Lisa Turowski (two assists each), John Chevalier (goal) and Dan Coughlin (assist).

In earlier jamboree action, Skinner's got a balanced scoring attack in a 9-3 win over Colonial Federal. Grazioso (hat trick), Tobin (two goals, assist), Chiochio and Brendan Conley (goal, two assists apiece), Sullivan (goal, assist), Flores (goal), Mike Donlin and Ryan Conley (two assists each), and John Mateu, Ohlson and Sawtelle (one assist apiece) led the Skinner's offense.

Robert Donovan (two goals, two assists) sparked

Black over Morrissey, 8-7. Donahue and Cox (two goals each), Kyle Carmody and Chris Sheehan (goal apiece) and Lee Sheehan (assist) also got on the board for Black. Pacing Morrissey's effort were Hasson (four goals), Ross (goal, four assists) and Summerling (three assists).

Mooney (hat trick) and Casper (two goals, assist) sparked CBC over Bernie's General Store, 10-7. Also contributing for CBC were Coughlin and Dennis Rugg (goal, assist apiece), Chevalier (goal), Ryan Feldhoff (three assists), and Stephen Price and Brian Lawlor (one assist each).

O'Hanley (four goals, assist) paced Bernie's over Skinner's, 6-5.

McKeon and McAllister both netted two goals for Colonial Federal in a 5-4 victory over Black.

Steve McGrath's incredible 12-point performance (six goals, six assists) highlighted Morrissey's 13-5 victory over CBC.

A 50/50 SPLIT

Some car owners may wrongly conclude that, since a 50/50 mixture of antifreeze and water works so well in their car's cooling systems, increasing the antifreeze level will provide more protection. Under normal circumstances, however, a 50/50 mixture does the job intended by providing freezing protection down to minus 34 degrees Fahrenheit and boiling protection up to 275 degrees. Following the "more is better" dictum by increasing the percentage of antifreeze may extend these limits a little, but the extra cost is hardly worth the very moderate increase. Consider, too, that pure antifreeze is not an optimal heat conductor. Thus, if a coolant is to be effective, it must incorporate the heat conducting qualities that water brings to the mix. In short, water helps coolant to absorb and release heat quickly.

HINT: Because antifreeze's additive loses their protective qualities, a car's coolant should be checked regularly.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

"Never put off until tomorrow what you can do today." is a good old maxim: you will find it is a reliable rule to follow, and by closely adhering to it you will be saved a great deal of trouble, sorrow and regret.

DO IT NOW!

If you have a task worth doing,
Do it now!
In delay there's danger brewing,
Do it now!
Don't be a "by and byer"
And a slovenly procrastinator;
If there's aught you would acquire,
Do it now!
If you'd earn a prize worth owning,
Do it now!
Drop all waiting and postponing,
Do it now!
Say "I will" and then stick to it.

Choose your purpose and pursue it.
There's but one right way to do it.
Do it now!
All we have is just this minute.
Do it now!
Surely you're not always going
To be "a going-to-be"; and knowing
You must some time make a shoving
Do it now! ...

Your Horoscope by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You could receive a useful financial tip this week. An intellectual project may be less time-consuming than you had thought. You'll want to go places and do things this weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Communications skills are tops, but you may have to wait a bit before you can get the ear of a higher-up. Shopping for home and family is a plus over the weekend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) It's a good week for buying and selling. It would be better to go out for good times than to have guests over later in the week. Place a special emphasis on leisure interests.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Creative interests are highlighted. You're effective in presenting your ideas to others. You could decide to get a difficult household chore out of the way over the weekend.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Judgment is excellent this week about job and family interests. You're able to help a child out with an endeavor. Couples will enjoy a weekend out on the town.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Couples will reach an understanding with a child. You could receive financial backing for a project. Extra momentum may cause you to put in some overtime toward the end of the week.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Common sense and efficiency combine to bring you gains at work this week. You may have second thoughts about an investment. The weekend favors partnership interests.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Partners will be in agreement this week about mutual concerns. In business, you'll meet with extra responsibility, but you'll also have extra initiative and drive.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Talks with those in authority positions are favored. A friend may ask you for advice. Plans for travel fall into place. Social interests highlight the weekend.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Couples will be making important plans for the future this week. You'll also be devoting extra time to a career project. Behind-the-scenes moves bring positive results.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A private business talk will give you key insights. You'll fulfill a social obligation this week and may plan a party. You project confidence and authority.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A talk with a friend is especially meaningful. You're able to bring a difficult project to a successful conclusion. It should be a good money-making week for you.

Raymondi Turns College Board Over To Lord

to be able to use that (status)," she said.

Lord said there is another reason students might be able to relate to her as chairman.

"The main thing about me is, I'm so ordinary," she said. "I don't come from a lot of money. I've just worked hard. I'm a typical Quincy College student."

Lord reiterated that retention is the issue of greatest concern to the college and that the board wants to send the message to students the Quincy College is a good place to begin one's higher education.

Asked why she thinks retention has become a problem, she said she is unsure but cited a more competitive educational market as one possible reason. A survey of students who left the college early is underway, she said, although it is unknown when the first results will be known.

Lord also said the college might need to emphasize more to the students how important they are to the institution.

"I'm not sure we've been successful in getting across how much we value the students," she said.

Raymondi said Lord will make the "formal transition" to the board's chairmanship at its next meeting in March. Board members will then choose a vice chairman, he said.

Raymondi, who is also an attorney as well as Quincy's Ward 2 city councillor, added that he will remain an active member of the board and will serve in any capacity the board chooses.

Both Raymondi and Lord said the board's change in leadership has the full support of Dr. Jeremiah Ryan, president of the college.

Commission To Study Residents' Shopping Needs

of 12 months, will be comprised of six women, each to be selected by one of the city's six ward councillors, and three men to be chosen by the three at-large councillors. Their names will be submitted to Kolson by the end of the month.

Kolson said by looking at statistics from various national groups, he discovered that 80 percent of all shopping in the United States is done by women. The proposed commission will be able to make recommendations on what products and services to offer, he added.

"We are not listening to the people we need to be listening to, the women doing most of the shopping," he said.

On Tuesday, Sheets voiced strong support of Kolson's proposal, saying the commission is something that "could be very helpful" to downtown revitalization plans as well as the future of Quincy's other shopping districts.

"I certainly support it, and I look forward to the results," said Sheets. "Although it's been said we need to draw more shoppings from other communities, I've always felt our biggest market is right here in Quincy."

"I'm interested to say what it (the commission) says. It could be helpful when we go out there to recruit retail."

Sheets also said while it initially startled him to learn that women do 80 percent of the nation's shopping, it made sense after he gave it some thought.

"I thought about it and said to myself, when was the last time I went grocery shopping?," he said. "And who usually goes out to do the clothes shopping for the kids? It's not Dad."

Mannarino also backed the commission proposal.

"We look forward to any input on anything having to do with retail or business development, and we will support them in any way possible," he said. "It's another way to generate interest in what's going on in the city, and I look forward to it."

Both Sheets and Mannarino said it is possible Quincy 2000 will actually target specific types of businesses after receiving the commission's findings, although Mannarino stressed it will depend on exactly what recommendations are made.

Should Be Returned By March 1 45,000 City Census Forms In Mail

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Quincy's annual city census forms were mailed out to 45,000 residential dwelling units Tuesday and should be returned to the city clerk's office at City Hall as soon as possible.

City Clerk Joseph Shea said he would to receive all of the forms by March 1. The results will be made known sometime during the summer, he said.

Shea noted that the census, which is required by state law, is important for a couple of reasons. It helps determine future enrollment in the city's public schools, and also aids the city in the application process for state and federal grants, he said.

The census forms are mailed to all residential dwelling units in Quincy, including houses, apartments, condominiums, college dormitories and nursing homes.

For the second year in a row, the city will pay the return postage for the census so that residents will not have to use a stamp when they mail the form back to City Hall. Shea said the postage costs about $7,000, while the total for the entire census is around $30,000.

Last year, the first time the city paid the census postage, it boosted the return from 70 percent to almost 85 percent, according to Shea.

"It was a big success," he said.

He added that the remaining percentage (those who do not respond) is factored into the total population based on numbers from the past.

"I'm confident that our current population is between 86,000 and 90,000, but it's not an exact science," said Shea.

Last year, results from the census totaled the city's population at 88,781, a total 992 higher than that in 1996.

Other 1997 figures:

•Whites totaled 68,434, a decrease of 3,630.
•Asians/Pacific Islanders

totaled 15,715, an increase of 2,715.

•Blacks totaled 2,574, an increase of 994.

•Hispanics totaled 2,041, an increase of 901.

•Female residents outnumbered males by 6,217--47,504 to 41,287.

Percentage totals in 1997 were: whites, 76.9 percent; Asians/Pacific Islanders, 17.7 percent; blacks, 2.7 percent; Hispanic, 2.3 percent; and American Indian, .2 percent.

Figures also showed that most of the Asian/Pacific population was located in Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Atlantic, Wollaston and Germantown--in that order--while most of the black population is in the Brewer's Corner area, Wollaston and Germantown.

Opposes City Council As Permit Authority Business Council Favors Buildings Height Increase

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Quincy Business Council of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce has said "yes" to a proposed zoning change that would increase the height limitation on buildings in the Quincy Center business district from six to 10 stories.

But while it also voiced support of a proposal to establish a Business Revitalization Zone in the same area, members voted against making the City Council the permit-granting authority there. Currently, that authority is the Quincy Planning Board.

The Business Council voted on the zoning proposals during its meeting Tuesday.

According to Dean Rizzo, the Chamber's community development manager, Business Council members support the proposed increase in height limitation as well as the zoning from Business "C" to Business Revitalization Zone (although they would like to see the latter somewhat expanded).

However, he added, they feel making the City Council the permit-granting authority will add "another layer of bureaucracy" for developers who will still need a favorable Planning Board recommendation before going to the City Council.

"It will scare away potential developers," said Rizzo. "And we feel we have an excellent Planning Board and Planning Department that do an excellent job scrutinizing such projects."

The changes were proposed by former City Councilor Michael Cheney, who did not seek re-election in November.

Cheney's other proposed zoning changes addressed by the Business Council Tuesday would give the City Council special permit-granting authority under Quincy's Site Plan Review process and also amend Site Plan Review to include all new developments of 10,000 square feet or more, rather than the current 15,000.

Rizzo said Quincy Business Council members voted to reject those proposals as well. The former proposal regarding the City Council was voted down for reasons similar to those related to the Business Revitalization Zone, while the square footage change

Martin Luther King 'Driven To Greatness'

Locke: 'We Should Finish Work He Began'

Norfolk County District Attorney Jeffrey Locke says Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was a man who somehow overcame his human failings and was driven to greatness.

He also thinks "we should finish the work Martin began."

Locke made his comments Monday as guest speaker of Quincy's fourth annual Martin Luther King Jr. Breakfast held in honor of the slain civil rights leader who was assassinated April 4, 1968. The event was sponsored by the Quincy Human Rights Commission and attended by an estimated 275 people.

"He was, like all of us, a person subject to the frailties of humankind," said Locke. "He felt frustration, fear, doubt and despair. He questioned his own motivations as well as those around him."

"His faults have been the subject of gossip and innuendo, and yet his greatness is undeniable. There is clearly something that drove Martin Luther King to greatness."

Locke likened the way African-Americans were scorned in the South during the 1950s and 1960s to the manner in which Christians were treated 2,000 years ago.

He said it was likely King's dedication to the Christian virtues of faith, hope and love that led the civil rights leader to new heights.

"Dr. King not only preached the fundamental truth of these Christian virtues, but more importantly, he lived them," he said. And therein, I suspect, lies the seeds of his greatness."

The district attorney then told a story about how King, in 1956, was sitting at his kitchen table in despair after being chosen to lead a planned bus boycott in Alabama--wondering if he was doing the right thing--when

1,600 Customers Affected By Power Outages

A faulty underground cable was the cause of power outages Sunday and Monday that affected around 1,600 customers in West Quincy and South Quincy.

According to Massachusetts Electric district supervisor Bob Johnson, the cable failed because of age and is being replaced. Although that will take several days, a backup cable system is being used and no further outages are anticipated, he said.

Johnson said about 1,600 customers lost power Sunday at 11:40 p.m. That outage lasted more than two hours, he said.

The same customers lost power Monday at 7:51 p.m. when the same cable, connected to a substation in Field Street in West Quincy, again failed. Crews restored service, Johnson said, just after 9:30 p.m.

A Massachusetts Electric spokeswoman said company workers would be digging in the area Tuesday in an attempt to identify the problem. Underground cable failures, she said, can be caused by a variety of environmental factors.

he heard the voice of God telling him to stand up for righteousness, justice and truth.

It was this belief in God's will, Locke said, as well as hope for the future that led King down the path he chose.

"From bus boycotts, to freedom riders, to protest marches and rallies, Martin Luther King was driven by the hope for a better tomorrow," he said. "All of his efforts toward racial tolerance and equality were predicated on the fundamental principle of hope—that society could be, and would be, bettered and that the future would promise a better, more free and equal life for black Americans."

"Truly, if one who had witnessed the ugliest side of his fellow man, who had withstood hatred, bigotry and the misuse of governmental powers to enforce subjugation, could still proclaim that justice and equality would eventually prevail, then all could rejoice in the brightness of the future."

Indeed, Locke added, even when King and others dedicated to the civil rights movement were threatened, he always told his followers to "love our enemies."

Locke concluded by saying that King should now serve as an example for those throughout the world and in Norfolk County, where people of various races and colors are moving into communities such as Quincy, Brookline, Randolph and Milton. He said the challenge today is to help those people integrate into the community and fight against "organized hate groups" who would not welcome them.

"These are the battlefields as we come upon the 21st century," said Locke. "We here assembled should barken to the words Martin heard at that kitchen table so long ago, and further resolve to stand up for righteousness, stand up for justice, stand up for truth, and finish the work that Martin began."

J.B.'s News-Variety Gets Food License

Although parking was a major concern for J.B.'s News and Variety, 263 Copeland St., West Quincy, the Quincy License Board granted a request for a common victualer license to William Kinan, new owner.

The store formerly owned for the past four years by Joanne Joyce was called J.J.'s.

In addition to newspapers, it will provide coffee, sandwiches and the lottery.

Kinan told the board he was formerly employed for many years in several hotels in the Boston area.

Chairman Joseph Shea cautioned Kinan that although there is parking allowed in the rear of the store, the landlord sometimes parks two or three trucks causing cars to park on the side of the store.

Shea said that the parking lot across the street belonging to a liquor store that has been there for 27 years is not to be used for the variety store. Shea told Kinan to warn customers as such.

Shea said the area is a "tough spot for parking", but added it is in a "good thriving area."

Contrino Captain, Bythrow Lieutenant Two Promoted In Fire Department

Two members of the Quincy Fire Department were recently sworn-in as higher ranks during a brief ceremony at City Hall.

Russell Contrino, 56, of Quincy, was sworn-in as a captain. Contrino joined the department in October 1978 and was promoted to lieutenant in March 1988.

Kevin Bythrow, 38, also of Quincy, was sworn-in as a lieutenant. He has been a member of the department since May 1989.

Each was already serving at his current rank in an acting capacity prior to his permanent promotion.

Their oaths were administered by City Clerk Joseph Shea in the office of Mayor James Sheets. Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, who promoted the two, was on hand along with the mayor and several family members.

Salaries for a Quincy fire captain and lieutenant are $56,227 and $45,712 respectively.

Shea Re-Elected Chairman City License Board

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

City Clerk Joseph Shea was unanimously re-elected chairman of the Quincy License Board at Tuesday's meeting.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman was elected vice-chairman.

The reorganization of the board is done on a yearly basis, Shea said.

He said during the past year, Police Chief Francis Mullen retired and was replaced by Thomas Frane and Matt Mulvey former building inspector was replaced by Walter White, building commissioner. (Frane was absent from Tuesday's meeting)

JOSEPH SHEA

The motion to elect Shea was made by Gorman, who said, "Joe has done an excellent job, plus the rest of us don't want the headaches."

The motion to elect Gorman was made by Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue.

Shea said in the next few weeks two neighborhood concerns will be on the agenda—the continued complaints regarding Sugarman's Junkyard on Center Street and another junkyard on Intervale Street, owned by Henry Gregoire.

Shea said he had received correspondence regarding both issues from Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico about traffic problems and hours of operation.

Shea said in the coming year, the renewal process for licenses including non-alcoholic, common victualer, boarding house licenses will be "streamlined."

Delahunt is one of only six Congressmen from the entire country who will worship at the public Mass celebrated by Pope John Paul II and to take part in other activities associated with his visit.

The group will leave Friday and return Monday, Jan. 26.

"The symbolism of the pope's personal commitment to the Caribbean, and the power of his message about religious freedom in Cuba, is enormous," said Delahunt. "Not only will his pilgrimage lift the spirits of millions in Cuba and around the world, it also offers incredible new momentum to

THERE IS HELP FOR DEPRESSION

Have you been feeling worn out lately—but still have trouble sleeping? Does it seem unusually tough to concentrate or remember things at times? Do you just feel as though a dark cloud were hanging over your head from morning to night? You may be suffering from depression, a condition that can strike virtually anyone, in any walk of life. Fortunately, there are a number of treatment options to help blow that gray cloud away. Depending on your exact symptoms and health history, your physician may recommend certain life-style changes (such as diet, exercise, sleep schedule), counseling or psychotherapy, and medication. There are several classes of antidepressant drugs from which to choose.

P.S. Antidepressants can interact with both prescription and non-prescription drugs. Check with your doctor.

Nothing improves one's sleep as much as reducing the amount of stress in one's life—which can be easier said than done. Do what you can to make your life easier: let go of commitments that burden you, come home from work on time, do what it takes to find the relaxation you need to sleep.

4 Stars For 'Amistad'

Rev. Sheldon Bennett doesn't consider himself a movie critic, but he urges you to see Steven Spielberg's "Amistad."

"If I were a critic," he says, "I would give it four stars."

He rates it high in both dramatic impact and in historic accuracy.

Bennett, as minister of United First Parish Church where John Quincy Adams worshipped and is entombed, is well acquainted with the historic event on which the movie is based and in which Adams played a major role.

It is the dramatic story about African slaves who seize control of the Spanish slave ship "La Amistad" off Cuba in 1839, are arrested and then freed thanks to Adams' impassioned arguments in their behalf before the U.S. Supreme Court two years later.

It was illegal to kidnap slaves from Africa then but 53 Mende tribesmen were in chains aboard the Amistad bound for Cuba.

A tribesman named Joseph Cinque led a bloody rebellion in which most of the crew was killed. The vessel wound up off Long Island, N.Y., and the slaves were captured by the U.S. Navy and imprisoned.

Adams, then a Congressman after serving as the sixth President, was a strong, outspoken opponent of slavery and took the case before the Supreme Court in 1841.

His passionate argument took eight and a half hours over two days. And, it was convincing.

"I found it very faithful to history," says Bennett. "It's an important, sobering movie with a powerful message."

And, he adds:

"Spielberg has succeeded in raising awareness of the brutality and inhumanity of slavery."

Bennett thinks Anthony Hopkins, who, thanks to makeup magic, looks like Adams, does a "pretty good job" in that role.

HOPKINS

makeup magic, looks like Adams, does a "pretty good job" in that role.

"But I don't think he captures Adams' passionate commitment against slavery," he says. "Adams, of course, had a complex personality and was not an easy character for someone to capture."

He says Hopkins, at times, plays Adams as a doddering old man. "He was old (74) but he wasn't doddering."

But he thinks the movie will enhance Adams' image in history. Adams is not considered by historians, as one of the great presidents but, says Bennett, "he was an outstanding Secretary of State and Congressman."

Adams served 17 years in Congress after losing the White House to Andrew Jackson in 1828. He suffered a stroke at his desk in the House of Representatives and died in the Speaker's Room Feb. 23, 1848 at age 81.

Now that the Amistad story and Adams' role in it has been dramatically told in Spielberg's movie, Bennett thinks Adams' overall image rating will now be much higher.

Bennett found the movie to be "95 percent historically accurate" and "five percent literary and artistic license that doesn't affect history."

The movie, for example, shows Cinque coming to Quincy to see Adams which he never did. And the Adams Mansion is played by another house.

"It has a different porch and library," says Bennett. Adams is shown putting around with what appear to be orchid plants.

"He did grow plants," says Bennett. "But I don't think they were orchids—not in New England anyway."

Bennett wishes the Cinque character was more fully developed in the movie. And that the famed Mende Bible the grateful slaves gave to Adams as a token of appreciation for winning their freedom was included.

That was one of the Bibles and books stolen from the Adams Presidential Library (the country's first Presidential Library) in 1996 and, fortunately, later recovered.

Although none of the movie's scenes were shot in Quincy, Bennett thinks it should help bring visitors to the city.

Unfortunately, the timing of the movie's release didn't help. The Adams historic sites had already closed for the winter.

But as more people see it, Bennett thinks it will whet their curiosity to come to Quincy. And, if the movie turns out to be an Academy Award nominee or winner, it certainly will be a big tourist booster, he feels.

Meanwhile, City Councillor Paul Harold is writing to Spielberg to see if he can obtain the original script for the movie. Harold would present it to the Quincy Historical Society where he is a member of the board.

And, one more local connection: Harold has learned that HAROLD Spielberg's step-father, identified as Barney Tower, an insurance or real estate agent, came from Quincy.

And maybe that's why Quincy is correctly pronounced Quin-zee and not Quin-see in the movie.

HAROLD

THINKING OUT LOUD: (After the big storm scare last week.) You're sitting in front of your TV set listening to your favorite meteorologist trying to tell you where that big storm is going to hit, how much snow we're going to get and how icy the roads will be.

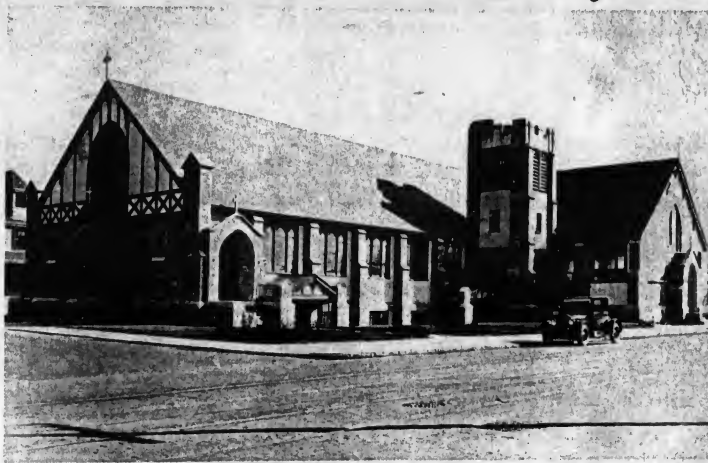

Wouldn't it be refreshing if some night you might hear something like this: "Honestly, folks, I don't know what it's going to do. If you want to be sure, stick your head out the window in the morning. That's what I'm going to do."

SMILE DEPT.: From the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter (and from wherever they go it): May all your troubles last as long as your New Year's resolutions.

Scenes From Yesterday

SACRED HEART CHURCH, ATLANTIC, MASS.

THIS IS A 1924 POSTCARD view of the old Sacred Heart Catholic Church on the corner of Glover Avenue and Hancock Street in Norfolk Downs. This picture was taken just after it was built. On the left is the old parish house that they had moved back from its original site on this corner. Fifty years ago this week, on Tuesday, January 20, 1948, the church was quickly destroyed in a catastrophic fire. Shortly after the fire began there was a huge explosion caused by super heated air inside. The result was flames engulfing the entire structure precluding any hope that firefighters could save the building. Although it was trimmed in granite and it had steel roof trusses, the church was mostly of flammable wood construction with a stucco finish. The present church on this site was dedicated in December, 1949. It has the same overall appearance as the old church but it is made entirely of seam face granite and masonry. The Boston Catholic Archdiocese in 1903 officially formed Sacred Heart Parish. Its origin was a small mission established in Atlantic in 1878 by St. John's Church of Quincy Center. The same year they built the church shown here, Sacred Heart also established a small chapel for its Squantum parishioners. That later became today's Star of the Sea Parish.

Sacred Heart Church Destroyed In Spectacular Fire

By PAUL HAROLD

Sacred Heart Church was completely destroyed in a spectacular blaze that summoned all fire personnel and fire apparatus in the city. Total damage to the North Quincy landmark was estimated at $350,000 to $500,000.

No lives were lost in the fire that was discovered at 9:19 a.m. Masses were celebrated at 7 and 8 a.m., but when the fire was discovered it had completely engulfed the central portion of the building.

One eyewitness, Guy Devoe, who owned Devoe's Diner directly across the street, said, "The flames fanned out right across the street when the windows blew out and the whole church seemed to be on fire all at once."

A half dozen families on Pierce St. were driven from their homes while firefighters were handicapped by the heavy snow.

COUNCIL APPROVES 60 NEW FIREFIGHTERS

The City Council approved the hiring of 60 new firefighters to establish a 48-hour week for firefighters which was approved as a ballot question on the November ballot.

Councillor Frank Orcutt suggested that with the new 10 and 14 hour scheme, beds should be removed from the firehouses, a move strenuously opposed by fire chief Thomas Gorman.

Chief Gorman's recommendation for the new manning plan was 89 new firefighters, but the council reduced the number to 60, for a cost of $140,000.

CARGO VESSEL NAMED FOR PFC. MURPHY

In ceremonies at Ft. Hamilton, Brooklyn, N.Y., a cargo vessel was renamed to honor Congressional Medal of Honor winner Pfc. Frederick Murphy, formerly of Narragansett Rd., who was awarded the medal posthumously.

Murphy served in Patton's Third Army, in Company E with the 259th Infantry. He was a medical corpsman who was killed in a dawn attack on the Siegfried Line in Germany.

The 500-bed General Hospital in Waltham was also named for Murphy.

Wants Student Evaluations Of Faculty Available To Students

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am writing this letter as the student member of the Massachusetts Board of Higher Education.

At the Jan. 13 meeting of the board, I presented a proposal to endorse the concept of making student evaluations of faculty accessible to students. The purpose for implementing this practice is simple: to provide students with the most information when they are registering for courses.

Students know their needs and their preferred learning environments better than anyone. By allowing them to access past student feedback about professors, we are giving them information that will help them to make the best choices when registering for classes.

Currently, students evaluate faculty members at the end of each semester and the results of these evaluations become part of the faculty member's personnel file. Because these evaluations are used in personnel decisions, they are protected as private information by state law. My hope is to develop a separate evaluation with questions that do not overlap the current evaluations, the results of which could be used strictly for student access.

I feel very strongly about this issue which arose completely as a student initiative. As a member of the Board of Higher Education, it is my responsibility to serve the 170,000 students of the system. I believe that in working toward granting student accessibility to faculty evaluations, I am doing this. Students across the state have supported this idea, and I will fight for it to be a system-wide priority in collective bargaining.

This is not a matter of attacking faculty members, nor is it a matter of job security; faculty members who are doing their job should not fear this proposal. The main idea here is that we should do all that we can to help our students succeed.

A 'Thank You' From American Red Cross

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The South Area of the American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay has completed its ninth successful Holiday Stocking Program. This program provided over 1,500 holiday stockings to needy children here in our local communities.

Only through the unsung dedication and generosity of you, our neighbors, is the American Red Cross able to accomplish such good work. You, our neighbors are the volunteers that come from all walks of life: homemakers, business men and women, corporate employees and their presidents, and even youngsters who wish to experience the true meaning of the holiday season, sharing one's good fortune.

The American Red Cross

would like to thank each and every one of you for lighting up the face of a child during this festive time.

Jumbo Shell Lasagne

I was all set to make traditional lasagne last week, but decided instead to use jumbo shells and make it the lazy way. When all is done, it looks like the shells were actually stuffed.

Jumbo Shell Lasagne

1 pound jumbo shells (not large)
1 quart or more tomato sauce
1 quart of ricotta cheese
1 egg
6 ounces cream cheese (optional), but blends great with the ricotta
1 tablespoon fresh parsley (optional)
1 8 or 10 ounce package shredded cheddar cheese (cheddar melts better than mozzarella for this dish) grated romano cheese
salt and pepper to taste

Boil the shells. Set aside. While they are boiling, mix egg, ricotta, cream cheese, grated cheese, parsley, salt and pepper.

After the shells are drained, don't rinse, but place in a large bowl and place the egg and ricotta mixture. Turn until blended well and add sauce turning until shells are covered.

In a slightly greased baking pan, pour a little sauce on the bottom, then the shells, the cheddar cheese, grated cheese, and sauce. Repeat layers until done topping it with more sauce and shredded cheese.

Bake uncovered in a 350 degree oven for about 30 minutes or until bubbly. Cool for a bit and then serve with extra sauce and grated cheese. They are also delicious left over.

(Marie D'Olimpio has written a cookbook containing recipes printed in The Quincy Sun.

The book is available at the Fruit Basket (near Star Market), Previtie's Market, Summer Street, Quincy, Nanci's Barbership, 21 Elm St., Braintree, the Cherry Gift Shop at Quincy Hospital, Samoset Pharmacy on Sea Street and Harvest Moon Restaurant, Front Street, Scituate Harbor).

Adams Birthplaces Deed Presentation At Historical Society

The Ladies' Library Association of Randolph will formally present a 17th-century parchment manuscript deed of the Adams Birthplaces land to the Quincy Historical Society tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy.

The deed from William Ellis to Gregory Belcher has been in the possession of the Library Association for many years. It will remain the property of the association to be on indefinite loan to the society.

Marie Carr of the Library Association will make the presentation and Joyce Baker, president of the society, will accept.

The movement of the deed to the society is the culmination of a process begun several years ago by the late Hobart Holly, long-time Quincy historian.

Introducing Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates

Prescribed by doctors. Preferred by patients.

Something new is happening in health care. And it's happening right here in Massachusetts.

A group of doctors and other clinicians has committed to providing the kind of care people really want. The kind that views each patient as a whole person—and gives you a voice in your treatment options.

The doctors providing this care are among the most highly qualified in the country. The health center doctors of Harvard Pilgrim have been nationally recognized for their pioneering work in disease management and preventive medicine.

Today, they have organized themselves into a clinician-run, multi-specialty group practice called Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates. Here, they treat people with an emphasis on their overall health.

So before your next checkup, check out the new Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates. And see why it's just what the doctors ordered.

Arons Accepts Development Position With Middleborough

Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino announces that Downtown Development Coordinator Bruce Arons has accepted a full-time position to head up the economic development effort for the town of Middleborough.

Mannarino said: "Bruce has done an excellent job over the past year and a half while employed with the Quincy 2000 Corp. and we will miss him. Bruce spearheaded the effort to complete the Quincy Center Action Plan and he has contributed significantly to the design of a new Directional and Way-finding Signage System for Quincy Center. He assisted in the attraction and development of new businesses for Quincy Center and the implementation of successful economic development programs like the Commercial Building Renovation Program."

Arons said, "I have enjoyed working with everyone at Quincy 2000 and in the city. The decision to lead the economic development effort for Middleborough is a wonderful career opportunity. I am very pleased to have been selected for this position and look forward to the new challenges facing Middleborough."

He added, "Here in Quincy I've worked with a number of quality individuals and organizations dedicated to strengthening the economic vitality of Quincy and particularly Quincy Center. Working for Quincy 2000 I've had the opportunity to participate in a number of successful economic development initiatives and I have had many positive experiences that will benefit me in my new position in Middleborough."

Arons assumes his new position at the beginning of February.

"Quincy 2000 is currently conducting a search for a new economic development planner with proven experience in downtown revitalization," Mannarino said. "We will continue to work with our Quincy Center Planning Committee to implement and update the strategies outlined in the Action Plan, work with the local brokers to attract quality businesses downtown, and assist business and property owners in redeveloping and revitalizing their downtown properties."

Business Council Favors Buildings Height Increase

would require "smaller buildings to go through a larger loop, which really isn't necessary," he said.

City Council President Peter Kolson said because the Planning Board must make recommendations on the proposals to the City Council following public hearings held by the latter

Tuesday night, the council will not vote on the zoning changes until after February.

"I wouldn't anticipate it being put on the agenda for next month," he said. "I simply don't think it's going to be ready. It's going to take a lot more study. We're not going to leapfrog into this thing."

If passed, the height limitation change would reverse a limit set in 1987, along with other development restrictions.

Although Cheney voted for the six-story height in 1987, he said when making his proposal last year that the increased height limitation is needed to help the cause of future development.

'Historic Quincy' Prints Available At Hospital

Prints of "Historic Quincy" are being offered for sale through the Quincy Hospital Health and Education Foundation and proceeds benefit the hospital.

"Historic Quincy" is an original watercolor lithograph by local artist Bill Beyer. Each lithograph is individually signed and numbered by the artist. The painting depicts an array of historic sites in Quincy, such as the U.S.S. Salem, Granite Railway, the Adams Birthplace and Mansion, and many more familiar landmarks. A copy of the framed print is available to view in the gift shop located in the main lobby of the hospital.

Prints are available at a cost of $35 unframed, $125 framed. The framed version is available in a choice of two different frames and mats. Proceeds from the sale of prints help to enhance health care services at Quincy Hospital.

To order a print, or for more information, call Jean Parker at 376-5495.

Senior SAFE Program Receives City Support

Mayor James Sheets and Quincy community leaders have pledged support to Senior SAFE, a year-round effort to ensure safe living for senior citizens.

The new year-round senior service grew from the successful Project SAFE (Smoke Alarms For Elders) launched in October.

"The mayor proclaimed the month of October as Fire Prevention Month in Quincy," said Sharron Beals, project coordinator and executive director of Beechwood on the Bay. "The goal for this October was a serious one: to identify and outreach to frail and special needs seniors (those at greatest risk of fire in the home), to ensure that working fire detectors were in place."

"Community organizations, the clergy, neighborhood associations, South Shore Elder Services, the Council on Aging, and health and service professionals helped spread the word."

On Senior Service Day (Oct. 4), teams of Quincy firefighters and Quincy Rotarians teamed up to install more than 700 fire detectors and 900 batteries. Curry Hardware donated four-foot dowel sticks given seniors, with encouragement for monthly battery checks.

Participants included Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, Deputy Fire Chief Paul Cuddy and Sharon Gamache of the National Fire Protection Association.

Lynn Houghton and Curry Hardware owner Bob Curry, both Quincy Rotarians, said they are inviting the other two Quincy service organizations, Lions and Kiwanis, to join the effort next year.

Beals said Senior SAFE outreach, counseling and assistance will continue throughout the year and fund-raising is underway to access resources toward that end.

Chretien Favors Lifetime Parole For Sex Offenders

Lawrence Chretien, candidate for state representative, announces his support for legislation to enroll ex-convict sex offenders in a program of lifetime parole.

The program, as outlined in a bill sponsored by state Sen. William Keating, would include monitoring methods such as regular meetings with a parole officer. The Keating bill has passed the state Senate unanimously and is now awaiting a vote in the House.

Chretien said the importance of the legislation has increased because the State Supreme Court recently ruled that the state's 1996 law requiring sex offenders to register with their local police department is unconstitutional.

"The Supreme Court has indicated that we can require sex offenders to register, provided we amend the law to include due process," said Chretien. "This is definitely worth doing. However, we should go further than the registration law and pass the bill requiring lifetime parole."

"It is not enough to have a name on a list. In the interest of public safety, we need to be able to provide greater supervision."

According to Keating, the cost of the lifetime parole program would be $1.7 million. It is intended to reduce the rate of recidivism, which is now about 35 percent for sex offenders.

Chretien said, "Considering the billions we spend on criminal justice—from police on the streets, to the courts, to running prisons—it makes sense to spend $1.7 million to prevent these awful crimes. I think that we will move toward this concept of lifetime parole for other offenses, such as those involving violent crime and drugs."

"We can provide due process and stay within the Constitution's requirements. But we must take advantage of this method in order to keep track of ex-convicts and we must reduce recidivism."

Earlier this year, Chretien stated his support for a law allowing the state to take DNA samples of violent criminals, including sex offenders. By taking DNA samples, in a manner similar to fingerprinting, the state will be better able to use that evidence in criminal investigations. That law was passed by the Legislature and made Massachusetts eligible for federal funds to establish the DNA computer database.

"By taking DNA samples and requiring the lifetime parole of sex offenders, we can do two very important things," said Chretien. "One, we can send a strong message of deterrence to offenders because they will know we have evidence. Two, with that evidence, we can more easily apprehend and convict those parolees who do commit additional offenses."

QUINCY CENTER TO TRAINS

MBTA Policing Program To Expand

The MBTA has announced plans to considerably expand its community policing program.

T officials recently said they will hire 16 officers and reassign 80 others from patrol cars, desk jobs and dispatch centers to ride the subway and be a presence at MBTA stations. Officials said they hope the program expansion will reduce subway crime.

The expansion will increase the number of officers on trains and in stations from 18 to 114. In addition, it will renovate inspector booths or build new kiosks for police use in eight stations, including the Quincy Center station on the Red Line, where will work be finished within a month.

Two officers assigned to the Quincy Center station will ride the trains between Braintree and North Quincy during their shifts.

The increased police presence comes at a time when MBTA crime already is declining. The T released a recent report that shows crime on the MBTA dropped 26 percent between 1992, when 2,066 incidents were reported, and 1997, when 1,159 were reported.

However, MBTA Police Chief Thomas O'Loughlin said at a subsequent press conference at the Red Line's JFK/UMass station in Boston that the expanded policing program will reduce the amount of train and subway crime even more.

T officials also made stops at other stations, including Quincy Center, to announce the program expansion.

Officials said the effort will target not only serious crimes such as assaults and burglaries but also problems such as turnstile-jumpers, smokers, and roughhousing that disturbs other riders.

The MBTA is promoting the community policing expansion with the assistance of AK Media/MA, which donated 10 billboards that will be displayed at various T stations throughout the state. The T will receive the billboards for a one-month commitment, a $7,300 value.

Flynn Nets 12 For Raiders North Gets By Quincy, Snaps Losing Streak

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Last Friday's 54-49 victory over rival Quincy High School was an important one for the North Quincy High School girls' basketball team on many levels.

First and foremost, the triumph snapped a four-game losing streak, all Old Colony League defeats. Second, the Red Raiders' record improved to 4-4 in the OCL and 7-4 overall. Last, but not least, it came on the road in a tough environment against North's crosstown rival.

"You always feel good with a win," said North head coach Ken Panaro, "especially against Quincy in their building. We had been pressing the last few games and it was nice to get a win under our belts."

The Red Raiders look to go over the .500 mark in the league when they visit Taunton Friday at 7 p.m. Back on Dec. 19, North held on to defeat the visiting Tigers, 64-57.

Next Tuesday at 7 p.m., North hosts OCL foe Barnstable, a team NQ easily handled, 65-48, on the road Dec. 23. Next Wednesday at 7 p.m., the Red Raiders host non-league opponent Randolph, a member of the Atlantic Coast League.

In the victory over Quincy, the Red Raiders erupted for 15 straight points to blow open a three-point game in the first half.

Leading 6-3, North senior co-captain forward Laurie Flynn (12 points, seven rebounds) got things started with a hoop and a free throw. Senior co-captain guard Kerry Skehan (seven points) followed with a three-pointer and the Red Raiders were off and running. Sophomore forward Caitlin Powers capped the run with a jumper for a 21-3 lead with 5:42 left in the half.

What appeared to be a comfortable advantage soon dwindled as the host Presidents, who had gone nine minutes without scoring a point, reeled off 17 of the game's next 22 points to cut the deficit to 26-20 at the half. Quincy, which scored the last eight point of the half, was sparked by Jessica DiBona, who scored six of her 13 points during the comeback.

"I think we got a little complacent," said Panaro. "When you get a big lead, you tend to let down, even if you don't mean it. It happens. It was a wake-up call for our kids, telling them this would be a battle to the end."

Two early baskets by senior center Kelly Shaw (five points, seven rebounds), a layup by junior guard Kristen Bowes (10 points, five assists) and a three-point play by Skehan built a 35-23 lead for North with 13 minutes left in the game. But Quincy did not roll over and play dead.

Trailing 41-29, Quincy got back in it after four straight hoops by Kerry Duffy (game-high 14 points) and two free throws by Erin Barry cut North's lead to seven (45-38) with 7:05 to play.

Back-to-back hoops by DiBona and Colleen Nichol brought Quincy to within five (47-42) with 3:20 remaining. NQ's Flynn then connected on two free throws, before DiBona nailed a jumper and Nichol put in a lay up to cut it to three, 49-46, with just 23 seconds left.

A free throw by Bowes and two by senior co-captain guard Kristen Keohane (eight points, 11 rebounds) upped North's lead to 52-46 with 19 seconds to play, and after DiBona banked in a three-pointer, Bowes hit two free throws with five seconds left to seal the victory.

"Those free throws by Keohane and Bowes down the stretch shut them down," said Panaro. "We made our shots when it counted."

"Everyone who went in played well. That's what it takes to win in this league: a good, all-around team effort."

Last Wednesday, the Red Raiders ran into a solid Falmouth squad and lost the OCL clash, 61-33, on the road.

Limited Openings For 'Tot Time' Program

The Quincy Recreation has limited openings for "Tot Time," a program for preschool age youngsters and their parents which began last Friday.

"Tot Time," a parent and tot recreation program for children ages 3 through 5, features one and a half hours of supervised play, one day a week, in the Ward 4 Community Center at the Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center.

"This program is designed to provide an opportunity for increased socialization among parents and children through games and activities conducted by recreation staff," said Recreation Director Barry Welch.

Welch thanked the Ward 4 Civic Association for their assistance in organizing the activity which is open to all Quincy residents. The program costs $18 for a seven-week period and is held on Fridays from 10 to 11:30 a.m. Enrollment is limited and taken on a first come, first serve basis at the main office of the Recreation Department, 100 Southern Artery. For more information, 376-1394.

Presidents' Best Effort Comes Up Just Short

Duffy A Standout Vs. NQ

Trailing visiting rival North Quincy by 18 late in the first half, the Quincy High School girls' basketball team appeared to be in a tough predicament.

Not about to quit, however the Presidents showed their resiliency with a 17-5 spurt to cut the deficit to just six at the half. The Red Raiders eventually won last Friday's Old Colony League showdown, 54-49, but Quincy head coach Bob Noble showered praise onto his players for a remarkable performance.

"We let them get too far ahead early, but we made a nice run to get back in it," he said. "They couldn't've packed it in, but they didn't. They fought and scratched their way back and were in it right to the end."

"This was far and away the best game we've played all year. Every single player who played contributed in and gave it all they had. I'm so proud of all the girls."

Starting with Tuesday's OCL game at Taunton, the Presidents (1-7 OCL, 1-10 overall) hope to avenge two earlier league losses. Friday at 7 p.m., Quincy visits Barnstable, which defeated the Presidents in December.

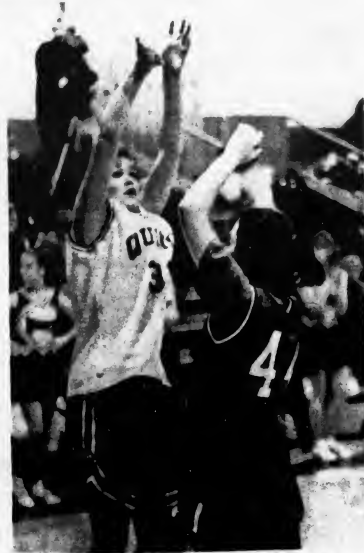

Next Tuesday at 7 p.m., the Presidents host OCL opponent Plymouth South, a team Quincy romped over, 51-30, back on Dec. 23.

In the loss to North, senior co-captain point guard Kerry Duffy's three-point basket was Quincy's only score for the first 10-plus minutes of the game.

Meanwhile, the Red Raiders raced out to a 21-3 lead, highlighted by a 15-0 run that lasted for over six minutes of the first half.

Quincy's valiant comeback began slowly, with senior forward Erin Barry (seven points, nine rebounds, two blocks, four assists) sinking one of two free throws, followed by a jump shot by junior guard Jessica DiBona (13 points, seven rebounds).

The run continued as Duffy (game-high 14 points, along with four rebounds and four assists) hit two free throws, senior guard Becky Mackey (three points, six assists, eight steals, 10 rebounds) sank a free throw and DiBona hit another jumper. After another Quincy hoop, Mackey rebounded a missed free throw and scored and DiBona closed out the half with another hoop.

When it was all said and done, Quincy had outscored North, 17-5, in the final 5:42 of the first half to close the gap to 26-20 heading into the second half.

Unfortunately for Quincy, the Red Raiders scored 13 of the second half's first 18 points and built a 39-25 lead with 12 minutes to play. Again, Quincy did not give up, sparked by the hot shooting of Duffy, who canned four consecutive hoops, and Barry, whose two free throws cut deficit to just seven (45-38) with seven minutes remaining.

DiBona and sophomore forward Colleen Nichol (seven points, four rebounds) scored Quincy's next eight points, each netting two baskets. Nichol's lay up with 23 seconds left brought the Presidents to within three at 49-46, but free throws by North's Kristen Keohane (eight points) and Kristen Bowes (10 points) sealed Quincy's fate. Not even DiBona's late three-point bank shot could bring the Presidents all the way back.

"We had our chances and had some good looks, but the ball didn't drop," said Noble. "My hat's off to both teams. This is what it's all about: a great game between intense rivals that was exciting to watch and be a part of."

Last Wednesday, the Presidents fell to undefeated OCL power Bridgewater-Raynham on the Trojans' home court.

Pee Wee A's Cruise

In a rematch of a state playdown win, the Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee A's jumped out to a 3-0 first-period lead and cruised to a 4-1 state playdown victory over Braintree last week.

Quincy came out flying in the first period as the line of "Wild Bill" McKeon, Brian "The Mailman" Lewis and Ryan Donahue forced the play into Braintree's zone. Lewis scored the goal, assisted by Brian O'Hanley, just 46 seconds into the game. Less than 15 seconds later Donahue netted a goal, assisted by McKeon for a 2-0 lead Quincy would not relinquish.

Later in the period, O'Hanley notched an unassisted goal to increase Quincy's lead to 3-0. After a scoreless second period, McKeon scored his second goal, assisted by O'Hanley. Braintree didn't give up and mounted several attacks into Quincy's zone, only to be met by the strong backing of Matt Grazioso, Matt Lavery and Brendan Conley, who continually frustrated Braintree's forwards.

Haidul Bros. Offensive Sparks Presidents Edge North, Roar Past Taunton

By LIAM FITZGERALD

The Quincy High School hockey team completed a season sweep of Taunton with a 7-1 triumph last Saturday night.

The Old Colony League road victory improved the Presidents' record to 6-2-1 in the OCL, 6-2-2 overall.

The Presidents were back in action yesterday (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. against visiting OCL opponent Dennis-Yarmouth.

Today (Thursday) at 5:45 p.m., Quincy visits Abington for a non-league clash. Saturday at 8 p.m., the Presidents travel to Bridgewater-Raynham for an OCL matchup. Next Monday at 7 p.m., Quincy hosts Abington.

In their victory over Taunton, the Presidents were sparked by senior co-captain Chris Haidul, who scored his league-leading 12th and 13th goals. His brother, sophomore Sean Haidul, also notched two goals. Senior co-captain Bob Harvey, junior Sean Lefebvre and Chris Wool added a goal apiece for Quincy and senior goaltender Chris Burns made 15 saves.

Last Wednesday night, the Presidents eked out a 4-3 victory over rival North Quincy. Steve Verlicco's goal with 9:41 left in the third period snapped a 3-3 tie and gave Quincy just its second win over NQ in the last four years.

Verlicco, a senior defenseman and captain, carried the puck over the red line and belted a slap shot from beyond the blue line that surprised NQ goaltender Chris Carthas. Burns, Quincy's goaltender, recorded the assist on the winning score.

"It's never easy," said Quincy head coach Bob Sylvia. "This was the type of game we were expecting between two of the better teams in the OCL. We were very fortunate to come away with a victory."

NQ had numerous scoring chances early but were denied by Burns and Quincy's defense. NQ's Chad Fitzpatrick broke the scoreless tie when he deposited a Mike Powers pass into the net for a power-play goal and a 1-0 lead after one period.

The second period began where the first left off, with NQ peppering Burns with shots but coming up empty. This time, it was the Presidents' turn to control the play, beginning with Harvey's goal to tie the game at the 13:52 mark. Harvey collected a loose puck, eluded a NQ defender and scored. He was assisted by junior assistant captain Joe Vallatini (goal, assist) and Wool (two assists).

Six minutes later, the Presidents took the lead when Vallatini put in his own rebound, assisted by Wool. Quincy padded its lead when senior Bob Hall redirected a Scott Mattson shot by Carthas for a 3-1 advantage.

Soon after Hall's tally, NQ's Paul Markarian snuck in behind the Quincy defense, took a pass at the blue line and raced in all alone towards Burns. Markarian attempted a backhand shot, but Burns turned the shot away.

After a penalty against Chris Haidul, North cut the deficit to one when Powers fired a slap shot from the left point for a power play goal with just 31 seconds left in the second period.

North carry the momentum into the third period, and knotted the game up at the 13:26 mark, just as a Quincy penalty was ending. Powers fired a shot on net, which Markarian deflected by a sprawled Burns.

Four minutes later, Verlicco carried the puck up ice and scored the game-winner.

"We tell our defensemen to put the puck on net, because anything on net is a potential goal," said Quincy assistant coach Ted Walsh. "Steve did that and it paid off."

Strong Effort Propels NQ Over Ply. North

Fitzpatrick Nets Game-Winner

The North Quincy High School hockey team capped a five-game homestand on a positive note, disposing of non-league opponent Plymouth North, 3-1, on Monday.

The victory improved the Red Raiders to 6-4-1 overall, while their Old Colony League mark remained at 4-4-1. North's next three games are against OCL foes: yesterday (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. at Falmouth, Saturday at 7:45 p.m. against Barnstable, and next Wednesday at 7:45 p.m. at Silver Lake.

In the win over Plymouth North, NQ got on the board first when junior Mike Sullivan beat PN goaltender Jim Croke (32 saves) in the first period.

NQ maintained the one-goal lead until junior Chad Fitzpatrick, who also had an assist, broke in and beat Croke to the glove side at 1:19 of the third period.

Tony Taormina scored the Blue Eagles' only goal to cut the deficit to 2-1.

In earlier action, North lost to visiting OCL foe Plymouth South, 9-3, last Saturday.

Last Wednesday, NQ battled back from a two-goal deficit against rival Quincy, but eventually fell, 4-3.

Quincy's Steve Verlicco netted the game-winner with 9:41 left to play, blasting a shot from beyond the blue line that got by North goaltender Chris Carthas.

"We knew it'd be a dog-fight," said NQ head coach Bob Doyle. "It was a great game; it always is. I'm very proud of the kids and couldn't be more pleased with their effort."

The game began with North controlling the play and getting numerous scoring chances on Quincy goaltender Chris Burns.

Fitzpatrick, who twice had been denied from close in by Burns, opened the scoring when he took a feed out front from Powers and slid in a power play goal at the 3:57 mark of the first period. Sullivan also had an assist on the play.

As the second period began, NQ kept the pressure on Burns early with three scoring chances, but couldn't add to its lead. The momentum quickly changed hands when Quincy's Bob Harvey picked up a loose puck and scored at the 13:53 mark.

The Red Raiders trailed for the first time when Quincy's Joe Vallatini stuffed in his own rebound at 7:28. A few minutes later, Sullivan went in on a breakaway, but his bid to tie the score was turned away by Burns.

After North's Paul Markarian was likewise denied on a scoring opportunity, the Presidents padded their lead at 2:53 of the second when Bob Hall redirected a shot past Carthas.

Late in the period, North took advantage of a penalty to score a power-play goal. NQ's Powers ripped a slap shot from the left point to cut the deficit to 3-2 with just 31 seconds left.

Early in the third period, NQ got the equalizer, again using a penalty to its advantage. Powers unleashed a blast that Markarian tipped by Burns at the 13:26 mark.

Nearly four minutes later, Verlicco netted the game-winner, though North had a number of scoring bids turned away in the final minutes.

Powers, in his first game since injuring his shoulder Jan. 7 against Dennis-Yarmouth, registered a goal and two assists. He was expected to miss at least a few weeks, but returned after just a week off the ice.

"He approached me at school and said he was fit to go," said Doyle. "That boosted the spirits of the kids, to have the captain back. It just shows what a tough competitor he is and how much he means to the team."

Winners Of Four Of Last Six

Quincy Squad Finding Some Success

By LIAM FITZGERALD

The young, inexperienced Quincy High School wrestling team, winless in its first seven matches, has won four of its last six, including two recent non-league victories.

The Presidents (4-9) are slated to compete in a quad meet Friday at 4:30 p.m. at Norwood against Norwood, Stoughton and Weymouth.

Saturday at 10 a.m., Quincy will be in a quad meet at Plymouth South against Plymouth South, Cambridge Ring and Latin and Durfee. Next Wednesday at 7 p.m., Quincy hosts Silver Lake.

Monday, the Presidents defeated Nauset, 49-30, and Plymouth North, 24-18. Quincy's top wrestler was Jim Bennett (145 pounds), who recorded a pin in each meet and was the only double-winner of the dual meet.

In other recent action, Quincy lost to Southeast

Regional 54-30; defeated Randolph, 46-20; and defeated Keefe Tech, 37-36. Dorsey and senior Tom Duggan (171) were triple-winners, and Nguyen, Tan, Davy, Feeley, Mike Turner (215) and sophomore Steve Saluti (125) were all double-winners for Quincy. Aydukan and backup heavy-weight Pat Collins won their first varsity matches.

Coming off a 5-17 record last season, Quincy head coach Lou Venturelli knew this would be a rebuilding year for the Presidents.

"We had a tough year and we lost our best wrestler in Dai Nguyen," he said. We also lost two other talented wrestlers, Sevi Tan and Kevin Connolly, to graduation. I had a feeling we'd struggle, especially with the lack of experience on the team."

Of the 14 wrestlers on the varsity, eight are sophomores and two others are freshmen. The main reason, said Venturelli, that he carries so many young athletes on the varsity is a lack of interest in the sport.

"Our biggest problem is getting kids to come out for wrestling," he said. "So many kids are working these days, looking for extra money for the weekend."

"There are also four spots for boys in the winter: hockey, basketball track and wrestling, so that creates a numbers problem right off the bat."

A possible solution, said Venturelli, is the reinstatement of the middle school wrestling program, which was disbanded eight years ago.

"I'm trying very hard to get middle school wrestling back, working with the AD (Athletic Director William Walker) and the Superintendent (Eugene Creedon)," he said. "Since 1990, Quincy's been without a real funded program. When we had it in the late 1980s, it resulted in a '94-'95 sectional high school championship."

"A lot of kids don't really know what wrestling is, and one of the reasons is they're not exposed to it in school," he said. "Most other high school sports have youth programs where kids start playing when they're young. We don't have that in wrestling, and I'd like to bring that back."

Leading the Presidents this year are Tan and fellow captain, senior Pat Harrington (130). Other starting seniors include Dan Nichol (heavyweight), Kane and Duggan. Also starting are Nguyen, Aydukan, Davy and sophomore Jasper Tan (112). Other contributors include freshmen John Alves and Dorsey, sopho-

WHOM ARE YOU CALLING A LIGHTWEIGHT?

Some would argue that cars built 20 years ago were heavier, and thus stronger, than those manufactured today. Were they? Let's look at the 10 best-selling automobiles in this country in 1973, the last year before the gas crisis forced the automobile industry to downsize its products. They weighed in at about 3,500 pounds. And their counterparts of the mid-1990s? Their average weight is a tad above 2,900 pounds.

The wild card in the pack, however, is the enormous influence that trucks have had in recent years. When trucks are factored in on both the 1970s and the 1990s lists, we find that the average weight of vehicles of both eras are roughly equal, with the decided safety edge going to the newer models.

HINT: In 1996, nearly 45% of the vehicles sold in the U.S. consisted of pickups, vans, and sport-utility vehicles.

Maintaining your car is important so that it will give you better service and last longer. At today's prices it is not wise to do anything else. To help you properly care for your car, come into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, where you will be offered the best service available by ASE Certified technicians who are very knowledgeable about today's cars. A Thought For The Week

"Do not think that what your thoughts dwell upon is of no matter... Your thoughts are making you." - Bishop Steere

Yes, you can transform yourself and your life by renewing your thoughts. A negative, defeatist attitude toward life and its problems can only bring negative end results. A positive attitude toward life attracts positive results.

How you look at a problem makes all the difference... It is an interesting phenomenon how two people view the same situation so differently, according to how they think.

Have you ever thought about why some people say a day is partly sunny and others, commenting on the same day, will say it is partly cloudy? Or if a glass of water is half full, one person will think of it as half full; another person will think of it as half empty.

...Who's the optimist... who's the pessimist? ... Yes, how you look at a problem, how you look at life, determines whether it will be happy, full, and rewarding... or gloomy, depressing and unrewarding...

What are you thoughts on life today? ...

Marie M. Corbeil, 98

Licensed Practical Nurse; Aunt Of Dionne Quintuplets

A private funeral service for Marie M. (Dionne) Corbeil, 98, of Quincy, was held Tuesday in the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Mrs. Corbeil died Jan. 15 at Quincy Hospital.

She was a retired licensed practical nurse.

She was an aunt of the famous Dionne quintuplets, who were born May 28, 1934 in Callander, Ontario, Canada. Weighing less than 2 pounds each, they were the first quintuplets ever to survive and they received worldwide attention. Three of them, Annette, Cecile and Yvonne, are still living. Emilie died in 1954 and Marie died in 1970.

Born, raised and educated in Ontario, Canada, she came to the United States in 1931. She was a resident of Quincy for 48 years.

She was the wife of the late Joseph Corbeil and mother of the late Laurence J. Corbeil. Besides her nieces, she is survived by two grandsons, Larry J. Corbeil of Braintree and Robert F. Corbeil of Naples, Fla.

Laurence R.F. Terrio, 77

Longtime Nuclear Engineer

A funeral Mass for Laurence R.F. Terrio, 77, of Quincy, will be celebrated today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. at St. Thomas More Church, Hawthorn Rd., Braintree.

Mr. Terrio died Sunday at home following a long illness.

He was a nuclear engineer with Stone & Webster for many years.

He and his twin brother, John N. Terrio, were naval aviators during World War II and served on the same aircraft carrier, the USS Bennington. He served in the Pacific Theater and was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, a high military honor which is given for heroism or extraordinary achievement while participating in aerial duty.

He was active in veterans affairs and served as a Veterans of Foreign War Legion Post commander.

Following the war, he graduated from the University of Notre Dame, where he continued to excel as a track star, just as he had in high school.

Born in Larchmont, N.Y., he was raised and educated in the Westchester County, N.Y. schools and was a graduate of North Quincy High School.

He is survived by his former wife, Rita A. (Marocco) Carver of Delray Beach, Fla.; two sons, Laurence F. Terrio of Pembroke and David A. Terrio of West Palm Beach, Fla.; three daughters, Marianne Kerr of Canton, Patricia A. Billings of Braintree and Elizabeth A. Canizio of Margate, Fla.; and nine grandchildren.

Bill will be private.

Visiting hours were yesterday (Wednesday) from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. in the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to Father Bill's Place, 38 Broad St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your social circle widens this week. A new friend is different from anyone you've ever met. Guard against absent-mindedness and people who don't keep their word.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A higher-up may seem close-mouthed and unapproachable this week. Later, you could discover something of value at a flea market or garage sale. Finances turn for the better.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You're in the mood to try new things. Originality marks your thinking. You may believe a friend is unreasonable—even so, social interests are favored this weekend.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You may do some unplanned shopping for the home. Be careful not to let things slide at work. An opinionated type won't be convinced by logical explanations.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You may take up a new hobby or intellectual interest this week. Creative work will be inspired. Be willing to listen to what a family member is saying this weekend. Be open-minded.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Avoid extravagant spending this week and be wary of those who would take advantage of you in financial dealings. New beginnings at work or at home are highly favored.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Try to avoid being too harsh in your judgments when dealing with a co-worker. Couples may make spur-of-the-moment travel plans. Romance is a plus this weekend.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A relative may be harping about something from the past. An unexpected business opportunity comes your way later in the week. The weekend accents domestic interests.

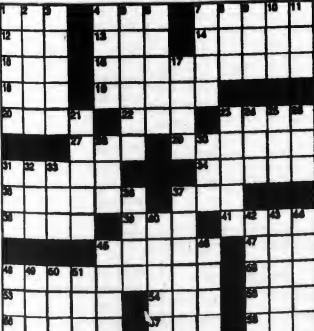

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You may make a sudden decision regarding a romance. Travel is likely to be on your agenda as well. A child has a tantrum later in the week. Socialize this weekend without going overboard.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Though the week brings positive business and financial developments, you still may have trouble completing an existing assignment. Be persistent in your efforts.

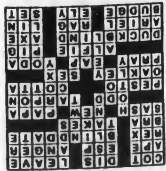

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You'll be making plans to travel somewhere you've never visited. A new adviser enters your life. A partner doesn't understand your views about a work concern.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Career interests take an unexpected turn for the better. You may think that a friend is a bit manipulative. Extravagant spending may be a temptation this weekend.

Lion's Club To Host Benefit Run-Walk

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

For the first time, the Quincy Lion's Club will host a run/walk for sight on May 31 beginning at Pageant Field and continuing the course in Quincy's Historic District.

Addressing the Quincy License Board at Tuesday's meeting, Steve Mansfield said the run sponsored by the Lion's Club in a partnership with the Thomas Crane Library, will raise funds and provide eye care to those in need in conjunction with Mass Eye Research.

Also to purchase eye glasses, eye equipment for the blind and also pay for eye exams.

Mansfield said they are seeking sponsors for water, juice, oranges, and bagels during the race.

The 3 and a half mile race will feature runners of all ages and abilities, both serious runners and casual runners.

The race will begin at Pageant Field at Southern Artery, and continue along Hancock Street, Elm Avenue, W. Elm Avenue, Quincy Shore Drive and Furnace Brook Parkway. Early entry fee is $12 and $15 for late entree fee. For 1K the fee is $5.

Divisions include men's and women's 1st, 2nd and 3rd, Masters Men's and Women's, wheelchair, young adults (12-18), senior men and women, police and firefighter categories.

For Outstanding Community Service Robert Derbes Sun 'Citizen Of The Year'

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Robert H. "Bobby" Derbes, who wears his heart on his sleeve when it comes to his love for and devotion to his native Quincy, is The Quincy Sun's Citizen of the Year for 1997.

Derbes, an unsung volunteer who has given generously personally and through the family Derbes Brothers Contracting company to community causes, was selected for the honor by a panel of judges from among 42 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers.

The 13th recipient of the annual award, he will be honored at a reception in March at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

Established in 1985, the award honors an individual for outstanding community service in a specific year or over a long period of time.

"I can't believe it," was Derbes' reaction when informed he had been selected. "I'm really flabbergasted. This is a great honor not only for me but for my entire family."

Derbes, who does what he does without fanfare, is known to friends and associates as "a man who never says no" to worthy community projects and causes.

He was nominated for the award by Sandra McCauley, secretary of the Thomas Crane Public Library Board of Trustees who cited his volunteer work as president of the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library who raise funds for library needs and for his other civic and charitable endeavors including the Quincy Historical Society where is a member of the Board of Trustees.

In her nomination remarks she said, in part:

"He and his family have contributed much

over the years to improving the quality of life in our community.

"He always went the extra mile in his contributions. "He is a devoted husband, father, grandfather, brother, etc. and last, but certainly not least, a truly good citizen of Quincy."

Looking to the future, Derbes says the family will "do something" when it comes to the paving work for the new multi-million dollar addition to the library for which ground is scheduled to be broken this spring.

The Derbes Brothers Company has donated many thousands of dollars in construction work, paving and landscaping throughout the community.

"I can't do any of this alone," says Derbes. "My brothers are 100 percent with me all the time. This award is their's, too."

The Derbes Brothers are five: Bobby is the firm's treasurer; Toffee, president; Richard, vice president; Frank, corporation clerk; and Kim, sales manager.

Bobby, at 63, is the oldest and sort of the company's spokesman and ambassador of goodwill.

The company is an Horatio Alger story in itself. The brothers founded it 35 years ago on a virtual shoestring: one small truck, one wheelbarrow, and a couple of spades, shovels and rakes.

Today it has 30 employees, a fleet of 25 half-ton trucks to 16-wheelers and now does annual business in the million dollar figures.

Bobby and his brothers' contributions to the community are done without fanfare or thoughts of recognition.

Among them, worth thousands of dollars and donated:

- Digging the trenches, pouring the concrete and laying the electrical conduits for the lighting of Veterans Stadium in 1986 for Quincy and North Quincy High School night football games.

- Driveway pavings as auction prizes to help raise funds for the Thomas Crane Library and the Quincy Historical Society.

- Re-paving the entire parking lot at St. Boniface Church.

- Patching school playgrounds.

- Pouring the foundation for the Quincy Korean War Memorial next to Veterans Stadium.

$100,000 Used In One Weekend Over One-Third Snow Budget Gone

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Despite a relatively mild winter to date, more than one-third of the city's $300,000 snow and ice removal budget for the 1997-98 season already has been used.

About $100,000 was used to remove snow and ice during the weekend of Jan. 17 and 18, while additional money has been spent on top of that for salt, sand, and other related expenditures, according to Mayor James Sheets.

The mayor said the reason for the high cost of the $100,000 weekend was that private equipment was brought in to help with the removal process. He said because forecasters had predicted relatively mild conditions for that weekend, a number of Department of Public Works employees were unavailable or away because of family-related plans, making it necessary to hire private companies.

"The real cost of snow removal skyrocketed when you bring private equipment in," said Sheets, who added that the DPW normally has "20 to 28" pieces of equipment that can be used for such purposes.

The annual $300,000 snow and ice removal budget is used up fairly quickly almost every winter. Much of it is used even before the first snowflakes fall if the city needs to purchase large amounts of salt and/or sand, the mayor said.

Once Quincy's winter budget is used up in a given season, the city must then appropriate funds from its "free cash" (cash reserve) account for snow and ice removal as needed.

Asked why the annual budget cannot be increased, Sheets said most communities "underbudget" for the winter because they are afraid of losing necessary state aid. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in the event of a state of emergency declared as the result of a severe storm, is less likely to help those municipalities that already seem to have enough money, he noted.

"There has been an advantage to intentionally keeping the figure down," he said.

Sheets added that overall, he is counting his blessings this season.

"Anytime we have snow, I worry," he said. "We've had years when we've chewed up $2 million. We've been pretty lucky so far (this winter), and I hope we'll continue to be."

$1.6M Project To Link Schools With Internet, Cable TV

By MICHAEL WHALEN

City officials are planning to have all classrooms in the Quincy Public Schools equipped with cable television and personal computers linked with the city's Internet network by next September.

Plans for a $1.6 million wiring project that will give the schools that advanced technological capability were announced Tuesday by Mayor James Sheets, Quincy Data Processing Director Robert Brennan and former Ward 5 City Councillor Charles Phelan, who will become the director Feb. 2 upon Brennan's retirement.

The city has contracted with JCI Communications of Boston to install wiring in schools that still require it. Quincy's middle schools already are wired, as are the Parker and Beechwood Knoll elementary schools.

The project will include 1,118 classrooms and a total of 137 miles of cable wire.

When the project is completed, all of the city's high, middle and elementary schools will be done. The wiring will be completed by June 30, the end of Fiscal Year 1998, and all schools will have the computers and cable television by the start of the next school year.

Sheets said it is important to allow all of Quincy's students in Grades K-12 to have a "consistent diet" of computer technology.

"No one's going to be more computer literate than our students," said the mayor.

In fact, Brennan said, the city has checked with other Massachusetts communities, and it appears Quincy is the first in the state to have the comprehensive technological upgrade.

"To our knowledge, we're the first community to accomplish this," he said.

"But it wasn't a matter of doing it before everyone else," Sheets added. "It was a question of doing it as soon as possible."

Phelan said the project will allow students to get the most updated information available via the Internet and also allow teachers to utilize educational tools such as The History Channel or The Discovery Channel through the use of cable television.

"In the world we live in, a textbook is outdated as soon as it's published," he said. "With the Internet, it's all current. And if there's something on, say, The History Channel that teachers want to use, they'll be able to."

"You can't do any of this stuff until you have the infrastructure, and that's what we're doing: providing the infrastructure."

D'Amico Unveils Traffic Plan For Crown Colony

Ward 4 City Councillor Michael D'Amico has unveiled a "traffic master plan" to deal with the future expansion at Crown Colony Office Park.

D'Amico recently presented the plan at a neighborhood meeting of South Quincy residents.

"Councillor D'Amico has worked long and hard to secure funding for far-reaching traffic improvements," said Quincy Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon.

D'Amico said he will be overseeing the placement of new traffic signals where Albertina and Centre streets meet Brooks Avenue. In addition, traffic signals will be placed at the Centre, Common and West streets crossing. A new traffic island, complete with plants and shrubbery, will be constructed at the Liberty Street and Brooks Avenue intersection.

The Quincy Traffic Department expects work to begin this spring.

D'Amico said he is involved in ongoing talks to secure monies for a widening of Centre Street near Dunkin Donuts as well as construction of a ramp into Crown Colony.

He also announced the formation of a Crown Colony Neighborhood Task Force to facilitate neighborhood input, which is said to be of utmost importance.

"The 120 acres of available land at Crown Colony are bound to be developed," said D'Amico. "It is up to us to ensure that our community's interests are served every step of the way."

Projects currently underway at Crown Colony include a 100-unit luxury condominium complex, an expansion of Arbella Mutual Insurance Company, and new office buildings for Lincoln Properties and Harvard-Pilgrim Healthcare.

North Quincy Coffee Shop Gets Cabaret License

license to The Bean Routine 2, 405 Hancock St. at Tuesday's meeting.

Owners Dorothy and Martin Aronson told the board that the license for the coffee shop (formerly the Bagel Express) will be for either a guitar player, a reader of poetry or art displays. The entertainment will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights from 7 to 11 p.m.

The Aronsons purchased the coffee shop from Michael Condon owner of The Bean Routine in Quincy Center several months ago.

Chairman Joseph Shea said Condon, owner of the other Bean Routine in Quincy Center was granted a cabaret license several months ago.

He cited other coffee shops in the city with similar licenses.

Police Chief Thomas Frane cautioned the owners to limit the purpose of what the shop was created for and said he had some concerns about wine and beer being brought into the establishment.

Shea noted that the shop was given a license to sell coffee, pastry and sweets only.

During Visit To Bernazzani School

Cellucci Pledges Improved Education

Gov. Paul Cellucci recently visited the Bernazzani Elementary School to reaffirm his pledge in his State of the State Address to hire new public school teachers and bolster the quality of education throughout Massachusetts.

"More teachers will enable schools to reduce class sizes," Cellucci told Bernazzani students. "With smaller classes, students will be better able to learn and teachers will be better able to do what they do best: teach and inspire."

During Cellucci's first State of the State Address he gave recently, he unveiled a proposal to improve the state's public school system and make a quality education available to every child in Massachusetts. In a move aimed at reducing class size and giving teachers more time and attention to devote to individual students, he committed $40 million for 4,000 new public school teachers during the upcoming academic year.

A total of $2.9 billion will be spent on public schools this year, $1.6 million more than five years ago. To guarantee that the money is spent on enriching education, Cellucci announced a "90-10" rule, mandating that 90 percent of new money goes directly into the classroom to benefit Massachusetts students and

Cellucci also vowed to make character education an integral part of the school day, not with a separate class or textbook, but by directing the State Board of Education to weave it into every school's curriculum. Noting that respect and responsibility are equally important as traditional academic subjects, he also proposed sponsoring conferences to help teachers understand their roles as character educators and creating a parent resource guide to assist parents in showing their children right from wrong.

Cellucci concluded by pledging to stand firm on new academic standards that will be used to test high school students and determine whether they graduate.

"Today, I am calling on bright students like you, educators and parents to help me improve the education system statewide," he said. "We will need that kind of teamwork to make the Commonwealth's schools better and our future brighter."

Sheets, McCauley, Meade, Keenan To Attend Mayors' Conference

Mayor James Sheets and other city officials will attend the annual winter meeting of the U.S. Conference of Mayors this week at the Capital Hilton Hotel in Washington, D.C.

According to Sheets' assistant Helen Murphy, Quincy Planning Director Richard Meade, City Councillor Francis McCauley and John Keenan, the mayor's executive secretary were scheduled to fly to Washington yesterday (Wednesday) to attend the first day of the conference.

Murphy said because of a scheduling conflict, Sheets would not join the others in Washington until today (Thursday). All four men will return to Quincy on Friday, she said.

The Quincy group will listen to several guest speakers and attend events pertaining to a number of issues, including urban development, criminal and social justice, Community Development Block Grant matters, health and human services, energy and the environment, and others, she added.

Slips, Falls & Accidents

Along with the snow & ice, comes the slips, falls and car accidents. When the head is suddenly jerked back & forth beyond its normal range, the muscles and ligaments supporting the spine and head can be overstretched and torn. Vertebrae can be forced out of their normal position which in turn could irritate soft tissue and the nervous system.

This can result in headaches, neck & shoulder pain, lower back problems and a reduced ability to turn or bend. If an examination reveals areas in the spine that are out of position, a Chiropractor uses specific adjustments to help restore proper motion/position.

NEW REMEDY FOR PARKINSON'S

Parkinson's disease can be terrifying to patients and their families because of its relentless, advancing nature. To date, there is no cure. However, recently a good deal of attention has been focused on a procedure that seems to offer dramatic, immediate results in some cases of Parkinson's.

"Pallidotomy," as it is called, was actually developed in the 1950s. Basically, the treatment involves destroying a precisely located, tiny bit of the brain. Videos have shown patients immediately "cured" of such symptoms as tremors and rigidity. Still, pallidotomy remains an experimental therapy, with considerable risks and far from certain results. Research continues, with the hope that pallidotomy may offer another weapon against a merciless opponent. P.S. A variety of drugs can help Parkinson's patients cope with the symptoms of the disease. Ask your doctor.

Advances in this disease look promising; however, what proves suitable for each patient differs according to their history and prognosis. Consult your physician for the information you need. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I listen to your concerns. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Hours by appointment. We're at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli with questions at 472-2550.

A Letter From A Mother

We usually don't pay much attention to anonymous letters here at The Sun.

Like the party with an apparent personal axe to grind who wrote to character assassinate a public figure and then challenged: "I bet you don't have the guts to print this letter."

But he (or she) didn't have the guts to sign the letter and stand behind the accusation.

That letter and similar anonymous ones are ticked off the circular file.

But now and then an anonymous one comes in that we do pay attention to.

Like the one the other day from a writer who identifies herself as "the proud mother of a firefighter" and is upset about our coverage—or lack of coverage—of recent promotions in the Quincy police and fire departments.

She apparently feels that we are showing favoritism to the police department.

That isn't so. And we want to assure her that it isn't.

If we had her name, address or telephone number we could contact her and explain the situation. But we don't, so we are going to try to do so here and hope she sees it.

But, first, her letter:

"I feel compelled to write this letter and express my feelings regarding the recent news articles about promotions to the Quincy Police Department.

"My problem is not with the employees, who I am sure, have studied very hard to advance. My problem is with equal coverage for the Quincy firefighters who also studied very hard to advance."

She refers to recent fire captain and lieutenant promotions and says:

"Neither The Quincy Sun or Patriot Ledger saw fit to even mention this. I find this inexcusable: where would our city be without either service.

"My old Irish mother had a saying, 'What's good for the goose is good for the gander.' Let's be fair.

"I am the proud mother of a firefighter and therefore reluctant to sign my name but hope you can understand my frustration."

We can understand her frustration. We get frustrated too, from time to time, over both fire and police department promotions that sometimes don't get reported because we sometimes don't know about them.

The Sun is not playing favorites. We think Quincy has an outstanding police department and an outstanding fire department. The Sun has always enjoyed a good relationship with both.

We pride ourselves in being Quincy's hometown community newspaper. Promotions in the fire and police departments—as well as those in other municipal departments and in the private sector—are proud milestones in the lives of those earning them. And deserve to be fully reported.

On Page 2 of The Sun's Jan. 15th issue, we carried a news article and group photos of the swearing in of a new police lieutenant and four sergeants—including the department's first female sergeant.

This apparently was what prompted the letter from the firefighter's mother.

Okay, so why did we have those two photos and a good-sized news article on the police department promotions but not the Fire Department promotions referred to by the firefighter's mother?

A communication oversight.

We were notified in advance on the police department promotions and, as a result, were able to be there to cover them.

We were not notified of the fire department promotions and so, unfortunately, we were not there to cover them. This was not the first time. We have missed both police department and fire department promotions in the past because somebody forgot to tell us about them.

We try to accent the positive news in Quincy. And fire and police promotions—as well as other department appointments and promotions—are certainly positive news.

We regret that things like this happen. It isn't a case of favoring one department over another. Oversights unfortunately do happen.

But we have been assured that steps will be taken to keep it from happening again.

And we will do our best to see that it doesn't.

THE NEW ATHLETICS weight room at Quincy High School will be dedicated in memory of late Sheriff Clifford Marshall Saturday at 10:30 a.m.

The new facility was made possible by a $10,000 gift from Atty. George Burke, former Norfolk County district attorney, state representative and city councillor.

Burke and Marshall became friends back in the 1950's when Marshall was on the basketball team at Quincy and Burke was a high-scoring star at UMass-Amherst.

Burke, during college breaks, assisted Coach Munroe MacLean for whom he played in his high school days at Quincy. He and Marshall hit it off and a close personal and political friendship blossomed and continued through the years until Marshall's untimely death from cancer in 1996.

"I used to call him my protege," says Burke.

At the January, 1966 organizational meeting of the City Council, Marshall, the new Ward 2 councillor, cast the key vote that gave the council presidency to Burke, then a councillor at large.

"Kippy," as Marshall was known to friends, "always used to tell people that his very first vote in public office was for me," Burke recalls.

Marshall's wife, Louise, and sons, will be at Saturday's dedication.

Three of the 12 Quincy precincts in the district are in Ward 3 where McGillicuddy knocked on a lot of doors last fall and pulled a good vote.

McGillicuddy, a retired telephone company executive, was runnerup to former Mayor Frank McCauley in the at-large race with a strong first time vote of 5,507.

We Should Remember Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Isn't it sad that the holiday honoring the memory of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and his work for social and racial justice seems to have been relegated to a black holiday for black people?

Except for government offices, it seems like business as usual, doesn't it? Much has been said about Dr. King on the pages of our newspapers and his impact on America, but too many folks have forgotten the man and the times he lived in.

Kudos to ABC-TV for showing the Ruby Bridges story recently. America's past has not always shined brightly. We can't change our past but we can learn from it. Many ugly things happened when segregation was the law of the land in many of our states. People were treated less than human and solely based on skin color. That was wrong even when the law may have said it was right.

Much has happened since Ruby Bridges integrated her neighborhood public school down in New Orleans. Old laws have vanished, replaced by new laws guaranteeing all the same equality under the law. Sadly, much has also not changed as far as attitudes. We can change laws but people must change their own hearts and minds.

Dr. King was a great man and far ahead of his time. He challenged people to see themselves. He challenged people to adopt new ways of thinking. He saw people as people. He preached love, not hate. He urged people to love each other as God's children. His dream was about tolerance and acceptance of our differences.

Dr. King wasn't the perfect man or perfect minister. He was a man who saw hope and a man who believed we could rise above our sins in harmony with one another.

We have come so far in the last 30 years but yet not far enough. We still spend too much time either hating or fearing those who are different than us. We need to honor Dr. King on his national holiday because in doing so we remember where we have been and where we need to go. It is time to continue his work in making America one nation working together for equality for all regardless of race, skin color or ethnic background.

It shouldn't matter whether our families came over on the Mayflower or arrived here yesterday. It shouldn't matter what religion or our accents. If we remember why Dr. King died, we can never forget how he lived. That's what the holiday is all about.

DR. ASH ANNOUNCES POLIO VACCINE CLINICS
City Health Commissioner Dr. Richard Ash said that 1963 could be an epidemic year for polio, but with vaccine immunization, there was no need to fear paralysis or death from the dread disease.

Immunization clinics were scheduled for the final doses of the oral vaccine at all public and parochial schools, as well as seven public buildings. Ash said that an estimated 50,000 people (starting at age three months) would be immunized at the clinics scheduled on March 16-17.

SQUANTUM CHURCH ARSONIST SENTENCED

A 20-year-old Squantum resident was sentenced to two years in the House of Corrections, after pleading guilty in Superior Court to breaking and entering and arson at the Star of the Sea Church.

Quincy Police Detective James Fay testified that the Oct. 29, 1962 break included the tearing up of altar vestments and the setting of fire to one of the church's confessionals.

District Attorney Myron Lane had pushed for a four to five year sentence in state prison.

KRISTEN PETERSON and TIMOTHY BRILLO
(Debra Pasquale Hamlin, Fine Light Photography)

Kristen Peterson Engaged To Timothy Brillo

An April wedding is planned for Kristen J. Peterson of Leicester and Timothy N. Brillo of Quincy.

Miss Peterson is the daughter of Donna Peterson of Leicester and Carl Peterson of Holyoke. Mr. Brillo is the son of Maureen and Frank Brillo of Quincy.

Miss Peterson is a graduate of Leicester High School, received a BA in psychology from Westfield State College and a BSN and R.N. from the American International College. She is a registered nurse at St. Francis Hospital in Hartford, Conn.

Mr. Brillo graduated from St. Joseph's School, Quincy Point, Don Bosco Technical High School in Boston, and Westfield State College with a BS in movement science, sports and leisure studies.

Currently in the masters program for health and fitness at Springfield College, he is employed at Ludlow High School as physical education teacher. He is also head coach of the women's basketball team and assistant coach of the varsity football team.

Sheila McIntyre Speaker At Beechwood Breakfast

Sheila McIntyre of Quincy, an advocate for the New England Organ Bank, will be keynote speaker at a Current Events Breakfast Wednesday, Feb. 4 at 8 a.m. at Beechwood Community Life Center, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy.

McIntyre, wife of the late Quincy Mayor-Sen. James McIntyre and an advocate of organ and tissue donations, will discuss the critical shortage of donated organs and tissues for transplant. An average of 10 people in the United States die daily waiting for transplants.

The New England Eye Bank, the National Kidney

Foundation and the Lions Clubs of Massachusetts jointly promote the life-saving "Charitable Gift of Life." The Lions Clubs urge residents to self-identify as prospective donors, affixing a special sticker on drivers/licenses identifying one's wish to be a donor after death.

Quincy Lions Club members have been invited to the breakfast which is sponsored by Beechwood's Multi-Purpose Senior Center.

Cost for the event is $3. Reservations close Tuesday, Feb. 3. For more information or reservations, call 471-5712.

Every room in all of the Quincy Public Schools—classrooms and administrative offices alike—will be wired for the technological upgrade. Brennan and Phelan said putting personal computers in the offices will allow each school to connect for administrative functions such as attendance, grading, student records and E-mail.

In addition, they said, audio lines will be installed in every room. While they could be used for security, telephone or intercom purposes, no final decision on those lines has been made.

Phelan said initially, the plan is to have at least one computer in every classroom. He added, however, that the wiring project will make it possible for a computer to be on every desk in the school system if necessary.

The wiring project is being paid for by a $1.6 million technology bond issue passed by the City Council in July 1995. Phelan voted in favor of the bond at that time as a council member.

According to Brennan, about $800,000 of the bond will be used to pay JCI Communications for its services. Another $400,000 will be used for computers and software, he said, while the rest of the money will go toward additional supplies and equipment.

Brennan said the city additionally has received a $261,000 state education technology grant to help equip the schools and plans to apply for other state and federal monies.

Brennan and Phelan also noted that supplies for wiring each classroom for cable are being supplied, at no cost to the city, by MediaOne as a result of provisions in the cable television contract it renewed with the city in June 1996.

All three men expressed enthusiasm over the possibilities of what the technological upgrade will mean to the school system.

"I think it's a tremendous undertaking that will move us to the forefront of technology," said Brennan.

"I think it's just unlimited, what can be done," said Phelan.

"In the 1960s and 70s, it was unthinkable that we'd be able to do something like this," said Sheets. "Now, we're doing it. That's how fast the technology is moving. It's an amazing teaching tool."

Two Nominated For Admission To U.S. Service Academies

Two Quincy students are among 28 from the South Shore and Cape Cod who have been nominated to admission to at least one of the U.S. Service Academies for the next school year, announces Congressman William Delahunt.

They are: Kevin Ann, who was nominated to the U.S. Military Academy and U.S. Naval Academy; and James Callahan, who was nominated to the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy.

"These students and their families can be very proud," said Delahunt. "They have undergone a rigorous review, and I am privileged to submit these nominees for consideration to the academies."

The nominees were interviewed and selected by Delahunt's Academy Nominee Selection Committee comprised of eight distinguished residents from the South Shore and Cape including Jo-Ann Bragg of Quincy.

The names of the nominated students will be forwarded by Delahunt to the respective academies for final admission and appointment.

Biblical Stories At Creed's Crossing

Podiatric Physicians and Surgeons

WHAT IS A PODIATRIST TO DO?

In some people's minds, to enhance comfort and mobility, a podiatrist is the person to go to for foot surgery - removing warts, fixing ingrown nails, and such. In fact, a podiatrist works with a variety of treatments, of which surgery is just one. To ease pain or help healing, a podiatrist may offer physical therapies such as massage, whirlpool, heat or cold, or ultrasound. Casting or splinting may be used to immobilize an injury. Medications may be ordered to treat infections, pain, or inflammation. Custom-made shoes or inserts, called orthotics, may be prescribed

P.S. When surgery is necessary, it is often done on an out-patient basis, with the patient walking away from the procedure.

If you are suffering from these or any other foot related complaints call us at (617) 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Pkwy., Suite #18, Quincy and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

41 Other Nominees For Sun Citizen Of The Year

There were 41 other nominees for the 1997 Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year.

The are, in alphabetical order, and the reason for their nomination:

Ernie and Peggy Aristide, as a husband and wife team coordinate activities for 60 to 70 seniors weekly. Run food and gift drives, arrange for speakers.

Laura Asci, North Quincy High School guidance counselor, who goes beyond the call of duty in her endeavors to help seniors get into a college.

Bruce Ayers for donating his time and effort with the "Helping Hand" program which provides free health care equipment (wheelchairs, hospital beds, etc) to senior citizens, veterans and people with disabilities who may not be able to afford the equipment.

Alfred Benedetti, at 104 years old is a fixture at the city's annual Senior Olympics, a champion bocce player, competitor in basketball toss and other events.

Sgt. Tom Bolinder, Quincy Police Dept., for his many years of outstanding dedication to the citizens of Quincy as a police officer, Vietnam veteran, recipient of the Purple Heart.

John Buckley, Central Middle School teacher, for his devotion and service to the youth of Quincy as an entertaining teacher and dedication to the school's Flag Football League.

The late William A. Camara, who touched the lives of many people doing many good deeds—many unknown until after he died.

Anthony F. Constantino who has run St. John's Baseball League for the last 40 years. He is 81 years old and still very active in the league.

Daniel S. Coughlin, Sr., for his 41 years of service to the Recreation Saturday Program and his dedication to the youth of Quincy.

Kevin Coughlin because of his relentless efforts to improve life for everyone, especially families and children.

Bob Curry, an honest, caring citizen and exceptional community philanthropist—a donor to every good cause.

Robert Dano for donating his spare time as a soccer coach for North Quincy High School.

The late Rev. Gerard (Jerry) Dever, "the most dedicated, loyal and hardworking priest ever assigned to St. Ann's Parish in Wollaston."

Charlotte Digiacomo for all the years of work and giving she has done for the schools, the community and her church.

Charles Ekizian, a role model in the disabled community and also a big brother to the new quadriplegic and paraplegic citizens.

Norma Gacia who has given so much of her time, talents, and energies as member of the Quincy Hospital Board of Managers and as a volunteer in supporting quality health care for the entire South Shore.

Michael and Marie Gallagher, for their contributions to the youth of Quincy, including Quincy Youth Baseball the last 20 years, and their simple philosophy: "Every child should get a chance to play."

Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, who has devoted her life to Quincy's children, their families and Quincy educators in her position as psychologist and director of Community Education at South Shore Mental Health Center and in Quincy Public Schools as director of Pupil Personnel Services and Assistant Superintendent of Schools.

Officer Robert Hanna for his involvement with Police Neighborhood Watch, Citizens Police Academy and DARE.

Rev. Thomas Keane, pastor of St. Ann's in Wollaston, a wonderful priest, great friend and all around good person—great to work for and always willing to help others.

Frank LaPierre, who runs a terrific T-ball program which gives young children a positive attitude towards sports.

Michelle Lydon, her "vision, contagious enthusiasm, pleasant patience, and good humor" have made the City of Quincy a better place to live.

Mrs. Hazel Mayne for her volunteer work at First Church of Squantum and Protestant Social Service Bureau.

Fr. William McCarthy, for his work helping the homeless. (Fr. McCarthy received the award in 1994.)

Lillian McCrackin, at age 77 she collects soda cans and uses the money to buy food for the Quincy Protestant Food Pantry, and for other acts of kindness.

Michael McFarland, a very generous and caring person—he will do anything to make Quincy a better place.

Mrs. Pat McGuinness, who gives so much of herself to the Sacred Heart Senior Citizens Club, with timely decorations and gifts, plus planning trips, sending flowers to sick members, driving people home.

Stephen Moynihan, for his dedication to many local programs, including the Teen Mothers Program; initiating the Quincy Retiree Association; and delivering food baskets to the needy around the holidays.

Charles Peter who has volunteered his services to many local organizations (such as Auxiliary Police, Red Cross, Cleaner Greener Quincy) for the betterment of the community.

Mary Pratt, who is nationally known for her efforts in promoting women in athletics and continues to be a tireless worker at age 79.

Jimmy Quigley Jr., age 17, a real role model for the young boys he coaches for the St. Boniface Basketball Team—inspires them by showing them how to play.

Martha Robinson, for her numerous and consistent efforts on behalf of her community and City of Quincy where her fellow citizens have reaped many benefits.

Grace Raymondi who has embraced the whole city as her community as a member of the Tenants Organization in Germantown and Ward 1.

Jane Reikard, for over 25 years she has single-handedly fought to preserve the rights of Quincy tenants—which many never knew they had. Without her help, many of the poorer tenants would instead be homeless.

Deacon John Salenius, over the last 19 years, he has assisted not only the people of Sacred Heart Church, but all people regardless of faith, race or ethnic group that has needed help in Quincy.

Mayor James Sheets, for the "super work done to make Quincy look beautiful and historical, the City of Today."

• Providing their large trucks and manpower to pick up the trash and debris collected during the city's Cleaner, Greener city-wide cleanups. Also, annually providing a flat bed for the Quincy High School float in the Christmas parade.

• Members of the Moslem faith, Bobby and his brothers contributed an estimated 80 percent of the construction of the Islamic Mosque in Quincy Point, the first one in New England. Also the paving at the new mosque in Sharon.

And, the family is always there to plow out the parking lots at both mosques in the winter.

The brothers made a sizable donation to help bring the USS Salem back to Quincy, something that came natural to them. The family lived at 58 Winter St., just across the street from the shipyard's main gate and where Bobby was born.

He graduated from Quincy High School in 1954 where he was an outstanding football player. He wore No. 25 which was also worn in turn by three of his brothers—Toffee, Richard and Kim—who were also standouts on the football field. Bobby is in the Quincy-North Quincy Football Hall of Fame and is now its treasurer.

Derbes is married to the former Marilyn Critcher of Adams Shore and now live on Endicott St., South Quincy.

They have six children: Cindy Lou Ohlson, Robert, Jr.; Nadia, Elizabeth Latini, Michelle Ruthier and Michael. They also have nine grandchildren.

Bobby served in the Army with the combat engineers and is a licensed pilot. "We're a close family," he says.

So, it is not surprising that the brothers donated $17,500 to the city for the purchase of seven of those old-style decorative street lamps and posts in Quincy Center.

One is in the name of their mother, Nowfe (Hassan) Derbes and their father, Toffee, both deceased. The other five are in the names of each brother and their families.

As for Bobby's involvement with the Thomas Crane Public Library and Historical Society, he says: "They are community treasures and we need to help them and preserve them. We don't want to lose our heritage."

And for all the other projects and causes he and his brothers are involved in he says, simply:

"Quincy is the greatest city in the world and has been good to our family. You should always give back to the community. When it's good to you, you should give something back when you can."

Bobby Derbes and his brothers—those who know them will tell you—have given back a lot.

Case Continued Until April 1 NQHS Student Accused Of Fire Pleads Innocent

The North Quincy High School senior accused of starting a fire in a third-floor closet at the school Monday morning pleaded innocent at his arraignment later in the day at Quincy District Court.

William La, 17, was released on his own recognizance by Judge Mark Coven. His case was continued until April 1 for pre-trial conference.

Police said La started the fire, which caused an estimated $10,000 in damage, by tossing lit paper into the closet, which ignited paper and other items stored inside.

Fire officials said the fire triggered the school's sprinkler system, which doused the blaze but started a second one by short-circuiting electronic equipment in the second-floor ceiling.

School Supt. Eugene Creedon and fire officials said the second blaze was out quickly and there was very little damage from either fire, but there was extensive damage to the second-floor ceiling caused by water dripping from the third floor into the second.

Creedon said the $10,000 damage estimate is a preliminary one.

La, who Creedon said was a Quincy Public Schools student since Grade 6, was arrested on a felony charge of burning a building a short time after the fires were quelled. The superintendent said teachers had told investigators La was seen near the closet before the fire and should be questioned.

Creedon said La has been suspended from school and hearing will be held to determine if there will be further punishment. He said the school may not have the legal authority to expel someone for arson.

Police said La recently has had academic troubles and arguments with his family, but Creedon would not comment on La's motives for allegedly setting the fire.

Leadership Quincy Program Starts March 4 at QC

The second Leadership Quincy program at Quincy College will begin March 4 and continue through May 30.

The community development program is co-sponsored by the college and the Quincy Center Business & Professional Association.

It consists of 12 seminars on Wednesdays from 7:30 a.m. to 9 a.m.

The program is designed to assist existing and emerging leaders, and to create a committed, involved and diverse network of leaders in the city. This unique program gives participants the opportunity to learn from today's leaders. Our entire community will benefit as Leadership Quincy participants gain the skills to lead their organizations and the city into the 21st century.

The program allows participants to start each Wednesday with an opportunity for thoughtful dialogue with community leaders and each other. Upon completion of the program public recognition of the graduates and a certificate of achievement will be awarded.

The program is a cooperative effort between Quincy College and Quincy Center Business & Professional Association. Featured speakers scheduled include representatives from political, cultural, social service, communication, business, education and historic agencies. Each session is designed to not only to gather information but to encourage interaction based on topic and individualized to suit participants needs.

The following quote, from a note sent from one of last year's attendees, states his appreciation for the experience. "The seminars did an outstanding job of providing excellent speakers and creating a comfortable setting for active participation." For further information or an application to be considered for participation call Pam Rosenblatt, at Quincy College, 984-1756.

Fleet Bank Renews $5,000 Quincy 2000 Membership

Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning corporation, and Fleet Bank have announced the renewal of the bank's $5,000 membership in the corporation.

The recent announcement was made by Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino and Fleet Bank of Massachusetts Senior Vice President Steven White.

"Fleet Bank is a vital component in Quincy's banking community," said Mannarino. "We're fortunate to have them as members of the corporation and members of the community."

Mannarino added that there are approximately 230 businesses that support Quincy 2000 through membership. Membership dues range from $250 to $10,000, he said.

Fleet Bank is a participating member of the Quincy 2000 Loan Pool, a small business loan program for Quincy businesses. The Loan Pool offers loans ranging from $15,000 to $150,000.

QCAP To Hold First-Time Homebuyer's Workshop Series

Quincy Community Action Programs Inc., an approved MHFA first-time homebuyer counseling agency, will hold a First-Time Homebuyer's Workshop Series beginning Saturday, Feb. 21 and continuing Saturday, Feb. 28.

Both workshops will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the second floor Community Room at Roche Bros. Supermarket, 101 Falls Blvd. Attendance at both is mandatory to qualify for mortgage options available through the Mass. Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs and other financing options.

The agenda will focus on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within your budget, how to make an offer, and determining the best mortgage program. Advanced registration is required and space is limited. Fee is $36 per household.

The workshop is sponsored by the City of Quincy and the Department of Housing and Community Development.

For more information and registration forms, call Debbie Kidd, housing coordinator, at 479-8181 ext. 115.

Getting Pre-Qualified Or Pre-Approved Can Help You Be Sure Of Price Range

By CAROL BULMAN

Q. How can I be sure of my price range?

A. Getting pre-qualified or pre-approved can help.

Pre-Qualification

A preliminary pre-qualification for a mortgage often can be completed over the telephone, at your real estate agent's office, or at your own kitchen table, in about 30 minutes, free of charge.

The CFS mortgage specialist would be happy to put the appropriate mortgage amount for which you are qualified in writing, stating that the information used to make the determination will have to be verified.

CAROL BULMAN

This is a very helpful tool when presenting an offer to purchase to a home seller who, in most cases, wants to know that the potential buyer is qualified financially to purchase the home.

A "pre-approval," meanwhile, is one step closer to an actual mortgage commitment. This process is helpful if you have not yet decided on a particular property but would like the security of knowing exactly what you could qualify for in a mortgage.

In this case, the mortgage originator meets with you, gathers the same information as in the pre-qualification process but leaves the "property" information out. The information gathered is verified by sending out verification forms to employers and banks holding any of your deposit accounts. The specialist also runs a credit report and asks for tax returns if applicable. The price for all this is simply the cost of the credit report—around $40.

Once the loan has been "processed," which means that all the information has been verified, you will receive an actual "commitment letter" or approval from the lender. You can now make an offer to a seller with full confidence that the mortgage part of the transaction will not pose a problem.

For more information, call Jack Conway Co. in Quincy, 479-1500.

Lottery Commission Ruling Awaited On Keno License

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO
The Quincy License Board is awaiting a ruling from the Massachusetts Lottery Commission regarding the issuing of a Keno License for the Varsity Club, Independence Avenue. License Board Chairman Joseph Shea said Tuesday he recently met with Adam Kessler, owner of the Varsity Club, Atty. George Burke, representing the club and the lottery commission.

On Jan. 6, the license board voted unanimously against a request from the club for a Keno License. Shea said although Kessler is a "responsible server of alcohol", complaints by neighbors and the traffic and noise problem was a factor in the vote.

At the Jan. 6 meeting,

Burke said the club "has met all requirements" and that the club "deserves to have a Keno License." He added that there was only a "small opposition" to the request.

At that meeting, Shea read a letter from Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico who cited noise issues disturbing the neighbors plus a lack of parking.

Shea said if Kessler shows "better faith in the future -- we'll see what happens."

Citing a former ruling at Shop & Save, where the lottery commission backed the board's vote, Shea said the commission generally has a history of backing the local board. He said he expects a ruling within a couple of months.

Ross (54 Points) Sets New Scoring Record

Tournament Berth Is Within Raiders' Grasp

By LIAM FITZGERALD

After posting victories over South Boston and Taunton, the North Quincy High School boys' basketball team is on the verge of qualifying for the MIAA state tournament.

"I think we starting to peak now," said North head coach Ted Stevenson, whose Red Raiders have won four of their last five games.

"Hopefully we'll use that win over South Boston as a springboard and run the string out. I think this team is capable of doing that--if we avoid the pitfalls."

North's first opportunity to clinch a postseason berth came Tuesday when they visited Barnstable in a OCL tilt.

The Red Raiders (7-2 Old Colony League, 9-4 overall) entered play this week in third place in the OCL behind league-leading Bridgewater-Raynham (8-1, 12-1) and Silver Lake (7-1, 9-2).

NO's next game is Friday at 7 p.m. against visiting OCL foe Plymouth South, which upset previously unbeaten Bridgewater-Raynham last week. Next Monday at 7 p.m., the Red Raiders travel to play at Dennis-Yarmouth.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

Next Wednesday at 7 p.m., North hosts Silver Lake, one of only two teams (along with league leader B-R) that has handed the Red Raiders an OCL defeat.

In recent action, Brian Ross shattered North's single-game scoring record with 54 points, sparking NO over visiting South Boston, 94-87, in overtime last Saturday.

Ross, a senior center and captain, eclipsed the 41-year-old mark set by Doug Grutchfield, who scored 44 in a game. With that performance, Ross improved his scoring average to 33.7 points per game, the best in Eastern Mass.

With the Red Raiders trailing by three and time running out in regulation, Ross fired in a three-pointer as the buzzer sounded, forcing overtime. In the extra session, Ross took over, scoring 13 points as North held on for the non-league triumph. He also had 21 rebounds, six assists and four blocked shots.

"This was our first big home game against a strong team, and we showed we can play with anybody," said Stevenson. "Brian had an incredible game. He plays with so much intensity every game, not just the big ones."

"The big key for us that night, besides Brian's effort, was that everybody stepped it up against tough competition and got it done."

Among those Stevenson cited for their tireless efforts were senior forward Mark Stanton (18 points), senior guard Jay Turner (10 points), senior guard Brian Linskey, freshman guard Adam Woo and senior forward John Sullivan.

The previous night, the NO jumped out to a 29-9 halftime lead en route to a 68-47 triumph over visiting OCL foe Taunton. Ross again led the way with 30 points, 12 boards and four blocks, while senior forward Matt Norton added 10 points and Linskey dished out 10 assists.

North suffered its fourth defeat of the season last Tuesday, losing to host Boston English, 85-70, despite a 43-point effort by Ross. Turner had 14 points in the non-league loss.

Presidents Seek End To Four-Game Skid

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Mired in a four-game losing skid, the Quincy High School boys' basketball team looked to break out of its recent slump Tuesday against Plymouth South.

In the first meeting between the Old Colony League foes, the Presidents, fell 54-45, at home on Dec. 23.

The Presidents' (2-9 OCL, 2-10 overall) are back in action Friday at 7 p.m. when they visit Dennis-Yarmouth and hope to avenge an earlier OCL defeat.

Next Monday at 7 p.m., Quincy hosts one of the OCL's top teams, Silver Lake, which handed the Presidents a 21-point loss earlier this month. Falmouth, a squad which lost to Quincy by five three weeks ago, hosts the Presidents next Wednesday, with tipoff at 7 p.m.

In recent OCL action, three Presidents reached double figures in points, but the Barnstable Red Raiders came away with an 80-63 road victory last Friday night.

Leading the way for Quincy was sophomore point guard Dan Kelly, who poured in a team-high 18 points. Junior forward Jim Munchbach added 13 points and senior forward Kevin Moore chipped in with 10.

Last Tuesday, the Presidents lost to Taunton, an OCL squad they had knocked off, 51-45, in the season opener.

Quincy head coach John Franceschini was unavailable for comment as of press time.

Quincy Hopes Hard Work Pays Dividends

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Seeking a victory to snap its current losing skid, the Quincy High School girls' basketball could have another win or two under its belt by week's end.

Tuesday, the Presidents (1-9 Old Colony League, 1-12 overall) hosted Plymouth South, a team Quincy rolled over, 51-30, back on Dec. 23. Friday at 7 p.m., the Presidents host Dennis-Yarmouth. Both are OCL games.

"This week, we have two games I think we have a shot at," said Noble. "We beat Plymouth South and played D-Y very well and kept it close. Hopefully something positive will come out of those games and we can pick up a win. The girls have worked so hard; they deserve to celebrate another victory."

Next Monday at 7 p.m., the Presidents visit Silver Lake and face Falmouth at home next Wednesday at 7 p.m. in two OCL contests.

In recent OCL action, the Presidents played what Noble called "probably our worst game of the year" in a 63-32 loss to host Barnstable last Friday.

"First of all, we were missing four players, including three starters, due to the flu," he said, adding that all four should be back playing this week. "That left us a little short-handed and we shot quite poorly. It just wasn't going to happen for us that night, though not from a lack of effort or desire."

Sophomore forward Colleen Nichol, Quincy's leading scorer and rebounder, paced the Presidents with six points, 16 rebounds, one blocked shot and three steals.

Early in the game, Quincy led, 4-2, before Barnstable went on a 28-0 run and held a comfortable 34-10 halftime lead.

In previous OCL action, Quincy kept it close against Taunton in the first half, but the visiting Tigers pulled away in the second half and won, 62-41, last Tuesday.

"We played well early on, and were down just three at the half," said Noble. "But three of our starters picked up their fourth foul early in the second and Taunton ran off 10 straight points. They also made about 21 free throws, which was the difference in the game."

Senior co-captain guard Kerry Duffy and senior forward Erin Barry shared top scoring honors for Quincy with 12 points apiece.

For the North Quincy High School girls' basketball team, which has dropped five of its last six, this week brings welcome relief with games against Barnstable, Randolph and Plymouth South.

The Red Raiders (4-5 Old Colony League, 7-5 overall) recently finished a strong of games against the iron of the OCL, including Silver Lake, Bridgewater-Raynham and Falmouth.

Heading into this week's games, the Red Raiders need just three more victories for the required 10 to qualify for the MIAA state tournament.

Tuesday, North Quincy took on visiting OCL opponent Barnstable, a team NO defeated handily, 65-48, back in December. Yesterday (Wednesday) at 7 p.m., the Red Raiders hosted Randolph in a non-league tilt.

Friday at 7 p.m., the Red Raiders visit Plymouth South to face an OCL team it rolled over, 63-27, earlier this month. Next Monday, North Quincy will look to avenge a three-point loss when it hosts Dennis-Yarmouth at 7 p.m.

Then, it's back to the OCL's top contenders, starting with a game at Silver Lake next Wednesday at 7 p.m. Earlier this month, the Lakers handed North Quincy a 67-52 defeat.

In recent action, the Red Raiders fell to host Taunton, 65-60, in an OCL battle last Friday night. The loss gave North a split of the season series, following a seven-point win over the Tigers back in December.

North Quincy head coach Ken Panaro was unavailable for comment as of press time.

Quincy Winners Of Six Straight Haidul, McTomney Spark Presidents To Tourney Berth

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Now that it has qualified for the MIAA state tournament, the Quincy High School hockey team has turned its attention elsewhere—towards winning the Old Colony League.

Winners of six straight games, the Presidents (8-2-1 OCL, 10-2-2 overall) clinched the postseason berth during the current streak with a 6-1 victory over Bridgewater-Raynham last Saturday.

"We accomplished one of our goals, which was to qualify for the tournament," said Quincy head coach Bob Sylvia. "Right now, I'm very proud of the kids; they've played good hockey. We're right on target and I couldn't be more pleased."

"And now that we've gotten that out of the way, another goal we set was to win the OCL championship. We're within a game now, but we're going to need some help along the way."

As of press time Tuesday, the Presidents were tied for second with Falmouth (8-2-1), trailing only league-leading Silver Lake (9-1-0). The Presidents look to continue their winning ways when they host Plymouth South Saturday at 7:45 p.m. in an OCL contest. Next Monday, Quincy visits Hull, and next Wednesday at 7 p.m., Quincy travels to play Falmouth.

In recent action, Quincy senior captain Chris Haidul, the league's leading scorer added to his total with four goals and an assist in a 9-4 win over Abington.

Following his five-point effort in Monday's non-league home game, Haidul now has 22 goals and nine assists, which does not surprise his coach.

"He plays hockey 12 months a year and keeps getting better," said Sylvia. "He's never satisfied with his performance and always feels he can improve. He's definitely one of the best I've ever coached."

Sylvia also cited the steady performance of senior Derek McTomney, calling the co-captain defenseman "one of the best in the OCL."

"He often goes unnoticed, because he's not a flashy player," said Sylvia, "but when he goes to work, he's as good as I've seen. He has real solid college potential and is a big factor in crunch time. He and Haidul are our two main men."

Against Abington, senior

Bob Hall notched two goals, and sophomores Scott Mattson and Brian Nolan scored a goal apiece, as did Chris Wool.

In the tourney berth-clinching triumph over host B-R, Haidul collected a hat trick and junior Joe Vallatini had one goal and two assists. Wool and senior Bob Harvey also scored.

Last Thursday, senior goaltender Chris Burns recorded a shutout as Quincy blanked Abington, 3-0, on goals by Haidul, Wool and Vallatini. Vallatini, Mattson and Hall registered assists.

In a 13-2 victory over visiting Dennis-Yarmouth last Wednesday, Harvey and Vallatini each scored hat tricks for Quincy. The 13 goals were the most by the Presidents in over a decade, with 14 players figuring in the scoring.

Also scoring for Quincy were Haidul, Nolan, Wool, Mattson, Hall (two assists), junior Sean Lefebvre and senior Tim Lewis. Senior captain Steve Verlicco, McTomney, junior Jake Fleming, Sean Slattery and Steve Ford also had assists. Burns posted the victory in net.

Confrontation Leads To NQ Coach Doyle's Ejection, Suspension

'I Took A Stand And It Cost Me'

By LIAM FITZGERALD

During last Saturday's game against Barnstable, North Quincy High School hockey head coach Bob Doyle was ejected following a confrontation with the referee.

Following the game, which North won, 3-2, Doyle was informed that he would also be suspended for two games, according to MIAA rules.

"I made a stand and it cost me," said Doyle, who missed yesterday's (Wednesday's) 7:45 p.m. Old Colony League tilt at Silver Lake and will sit out next Wednesday's 7 p.m. OCL game against visiting Taunton.

"I'm not proud of it," he added, "and I realize now that it wasn't the type of behavior that's acceptable."

In Doyle's absence, JV coach Mark Boussy will assume head coaching duties, with assistance from freshman coach Chip Foley, Larry Costello and Tom Bourque.

In the win over Barnstable, NQ fell behind early, 1-0, on a goal that Doyle felt should not have counted.

"I thought their player committed a crease violation, but the referee didn't call it," he said. "When I questioned the call, he said my guy was all over their player and pushed him in. I said, 'Yeah, right,' and he gave me a 1:30 misconduct penalty."

What put Doyle over the edge happened four minutes later, when NQ junior Paul Markarian was skating down the left side and was slashed on the wrist, but a penalty was not called.

"I thought the game was slipping away," he said, noting that NQ was called for 13 penalties, while Barnstable was whistled for just five. "I screamed, 'Call the penalty, call it!' and got ejected. I felt it was a blatant attempt to injure one of my players, and I wasn't going to just let that happen."

The ejection seemed to light a spark under North, which tied the game when senior captain center Mike Powers netted an unassisted shorthanded goal.

North again found itself trailing in the game in the second, but NQ senior captain John Barron knotted the game up with 2:57 left.

"He stole the puck at center ice, walked in and scored an unassisted shorthanded goal. He did a great job killing penalties and was a force on the ice."

In the third, Markarian netted the game-winner, taking a pass from junior Chad Fitzpatrick and scoring at the 3:45 mark. Entering this week, Markarian was second in the OCL in scoring with 12 goals and 11 assists.

"I was real happy for Paul," said Doyle, "because he's been denied on a few other breakaways and this time he came through with a big score."

NQ improved to 5-5-1 in the OCL, 7-6-1 overall. Junior goalie David Downey turned away 22 shots.

In earlier OCL action, the visiting Red Raiders fell to league leader Falmouth, 3-2, last Wednesday on a late goal.

"We made two mental mistakes in the first, and Falmouth scored on both to take a 2-0 lead," said Doyle. "But we bounced back in the second, playing the best period of the season. We dictated the whole flow and outshot them 2 to 1, tying the game up."

Powers and junior Mike Sullivan scored, assisted by Barron and Markarian. Downey made 26 saves.

Squirt B's Place Second At Coca-Cola "B" Tourney

In Sunday's finals of the Coca-Cola "B" Tournament in Bourne, the Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt B "Bulldogs" battled the Long Island (N.Y.) Royals to the end but the Royals emerged victorious.

It was a hard fought game, with every player working hard and playing well. Quincy goaltender Ryan "The Beazer" Barter made several outstanding saves and Steve Maggio kept attacking throughout the game, coming closer and closer to his first score. For their efforts, the Bulldogs received a standing ovation from their parents and fans.

In earlier tournament action, the Bulldogs upended the hometown favorite Canal squad, 4-1. Quincy took control right from the start, scoring at least one goal in each of the three periods.

Kevin Shinnick started the scoring four minutes into the game with a goal assisted by Matt "Gio" Giordani. Strong back-checking by Stevie Bythrow and Glen "Gibba" Gibbons kept the Canal team in a constant state of confusion. James Sheehan and Dan "Reggie" Reggiani made precise passes and gave an all-around tireless effort.

Quincy's Matt Giordani lit up the second period with two unassisted goals. The stingy Bulldog defense played another solid game. Defenseman Pat Devlin scored the fourth goal, an unassisted tally.

The Bulldogs began the tournament with a hard fought 1-0 victory over Canton. Beazer turned away shot after shot and was aided in the shutout by defensemen Chris Tierney, Bryan Donelin, Rose Devlin, Pat Devlin, Ray Marchand, Mike McPherson and Dan Poggi. At 3:03 of the third, Mike "Gio" Giordani scored the only goal of the game, assisted by Brendan Mulcahy.

DON'T GET ALL PUMPED UP

To reap the advantages of anti-lock brakes (ABS), it is necessary to forget what you probably were taught about pumping your brake pedal in slippery conditions. The technological marvel of ABS is that the system pumps the brakes for you, up to 20 times per second. To allow ABS to work properly, step down hard on the brake pedal and apply steady, firm pressure. (Pumping the brake pedal with your foot in the conventional manner only serves to compromise the effectiveness of ABS.) The pulsating that is felt underfoot is merely an indication that ABS is working properly. As the system exerts control, wheels are prevented from locking up when the brakes are applied, thereby giving greater steering control.

HINT: Do not allow yourself to be lulled into a false sense of security by overestimating the stopping ability of ABS, which does not eliminate skids. Here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, we understand that auto technology has become very advanced and sophisticated today. For example, many new cars have anti-lock braking systems. Whether you have a question about your brakes or need to have major or minor work done, trust it to our ASE Certified technicians who keep up to date with all the latest industry developments. Stop and see us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). "We're a Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Hours: Mon.-Fri. 9am-6pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm.

Grandpa loved
gardening, baseball, and playing the harmonica.

Your memories are precious. That's why, at Keohane Funeral Service, we take the time to find out what made your loved one special.

Whether it's gathering some of the flowers he so tenderly cultivated or finding a musician to play "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" on the harmonica, you can count on us to help you plan a service that will be just as unique as the person you love.

*A Thought
For The Week*

A wise man once stated... Learn all there is to learn and then choose your own path...

As we travel along life's different paths, each and every one of us have many choices to make. We establish our own values, and each person has a different set of priorities. We have to decide what is most important, less important and relatively unimportant.

One might ask - wouldn't life be so much less complicated if all we had to choose between was the good and the bad - if everything were black and white? But what about the varying shades of gray, the variables and the imponderables? Choices are often between the good things and the better things; between the better and the best; or between our best and God's best. And yes, sometimes we have to make choices between the lesser of two evils. As we travel along our life's path there are so many things that compete for a place in our thoughts and in our lives...

Wouldn't today be a good day to take stock of our lives and reorder our priorities, if necessary?

Paul G. Young, 78

Owner Of Young's TV

A funeral service for Paul G. Young, 76, of Quincy, will be held Friday at 10 a.m. in the Dewar Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Mr. Young died Monday at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Boston after a long illness.

He was the owner and operator of Young's TV in North Quincy, a television repair and sales business, for 25 years before retiring in 1983.

Previously, he was an employee of Bethlehem Steel at the Fore River shipyard in Quincy Point.

Mr. Young was a life member of the Squantum Yacht Club. Born in Laconia, N.H., he lived in Quincy since 1943. He recently became a resident of the Quincy Nursing Home.

He was an Army veteran of World War II.

He is survived by three sons, Allan Young of Rhode Island, Richard Young of Boston and David Young of Utah; two daughters, Susan Young of California and Betty Vasquez of New Hampshire; a sister, Betty Tolson of New Hampshire; eight grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

Burial will be in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Visiting hours are tonight (Thursday) from 6 to 8 p.m. in the funeral home.

Josephine G. Duffy, 90

Self-Employed Building Contractor

A funeral Mass for Josephine G. (Burke) Duffy, 90, of Oxford, formerly of North Quincy, was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) in St. Ann's Church.

Mrs. Duffy died Jan. 24 at the Pembroke Health and Rehabilitation in West Chester, Pa.

A self-employed building contractor for many years in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, she retired in 1975.

Born in Boston, she lived in North Quincy and Canton before moving to Wilmington, Del. in 1970. She moved to Oxford in 1988.

Wife of the late William A. Duffy, Mrs. Duffy is survived by a son and daughter-in-law, William J. and Barbara F. (LaFlamme) Duffy of Flemington, Pa.; a sister, Vera McCauley of Quincy; and two granddaughters.

Burial was in New Calvary Cemetery, Boston.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Josephine Gray, 86

A funeral service for Josephine (Szymczak) Gray, 86, of Quincy, was held Jan. 22 at the Cartwright-Venuti Funeral Home, Braintree.

Mrs. Gray died Jan. 20 at Quincy Hospital.

A homemaker, she was born in Boston, grew up in Readville and attended Boston schools. She lived in Quincy for 47 years.

She was a member of the First Spiritualist Church of Quincy.

Before she married, she was a beautician for many years.

Patricia Drohan-Ashley, 63

A memorial service for Patricia (Hoggard) Drohan-Ashley, 63, of Florida, formerly of Quincy and Weymouth, was held Jan. 24 in Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

Mrs. Drohan-Ashley died Jan. 15 in Holiday, Fla.

Born in Washington, D.C., she lived in Virginia before raising her family in Quincy. She moved to Florida 10 years ago.

She is survived by two sons, Edward Drohan of East Bridgewater and Scott Drohan of Quincy; three daughters, Rain Chenette of Quincy, Shawn Drohan-Shaw of Ashland and Robin Drohan-Burge of Framingham; 16 grandchildren, and a great-grandchild.

Crime Watch

Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Vandalism Isn't Funny; It's A Crime

HOW WOULD YOU FEEL IF SOMEONE...

• Broke the basketball backstop at the playground where you shoot hoop?

• Kicked your boom box and broke it?

• Slashed the tires on your bicycle?

• Spray painted obscenities on your house?

• Tore up your mother's favorite rose bushes?

And then said it was a joke.

Destroying someone else's property isn't funny. It's a crime.

Maybe you've heard that vandalism is just mischief and doesn't really hurt anyone. That's not true. Schools that have to spend money on broken windows have less money—or no money—to spend on sport equipment and student activities. Taxpayers (your parents) have to pay the costs of replacing damaged swings, basketball hoops, and streetlights.

A homeowner has to replace the torn-out roses or knocked-down mailbox.

WHAT CAN YOU DO?

• Don't destroy or deface someone else's property.

• Report any acts of vandalism to the school administration or police.

• Get your class or club to start an anti-vandalism campaign.

• Clean graffiti off walls in schools, libraries, or other public facilities.

• Work with police and school officials to start a hotline to report vandalism.

As you can see by the "Hot Spots" log, vandalism to property is a problem in Quincy. Report vandalism to the police. If you know who has committed the vandalism tell us that also. If we all work together we can put an end to vandalism and "Take A Bite Out Of Crime."

Two Appointed To College Alumni Council

Two Quincy College alumni have been appointed to the college's Alumni Council by Dr. Jeremiah Ryan, college president.

James Nolan, vice president of the Mutual Funds Division of Wells Fargo

Bank in San Francisco, Calif. and David McGillicuddy, principal and chief operating officer of McKay Fried and Partners Advertising Inc. have both joined the council effective Jan. 1.

The council was created in 1996 to assist the college in providing alumni linkages to current academic programming and to broaden the institution's fund-raising potential.

The council, with the addition of Nolan and McGillicuddy, now has 15 members.

New Due Dates For City License Renewals

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Quincy License Board has drafted a new renewal plan for common victualer and liquor license holders changing the due date from the usual Dec. 31 to the beginning to the middle of the month instead.

Addressing the subject at Tuesday's license board meeting, Chairman Joseph Shea said at renewal time there are some 2,300 licenses, most due on Dec. 31 causing "pandemonium" the last week of the year.

With input from liquor license inspector Sgt. Robert Perchard the new plan promises to implement a new procedure to collect the money in an easier and quicker way.

The following notice will be sent to all common victualer and liquor license holders.

"All liquor license and common victualer renewals for 1999 are due Dec. 11 through Dec. 20, 1998.

"Those licenses paid after Dec. 20, 1998 will be assessed a $10 late fee for every day after the Dec. 20, 1998 due date.

"Payments are to be made with a cashier's check or cash. No personal checks will be accepted.

"All holders of the liquor license will sign the notice verifying that they have been notified and understand the conditions of the notice.

"The notice will continue to be in effect for all upcoming years.

The difference in the notice for all package stores and clubs is renewals for 1999 are due Dec. 1 through Dec. 10, 1998.

Shea said the notice will be put on the agenda at future meetings for discussion.

Shea said renewal licenses for gasoline, rooming houses, cabs and motor licenses 1 and 11 are due April 1.

Quincy May Form Pact With City In Pakistan

Mayor James Sheets recently met with Riez Hussain Khokhar, the U.S. ambassador to Pakistan, to discuss the possibility of developing a "sister city" relationship between Quincy and a city in that country.

Sheets met with Khokhar at SAR Engineering in Quincy. The latter was visiting at the invitation of Sheik Rahman, owner of SAR Engineering and a close friend.

Sheets said the question of a sister city relationship was raised because "SAR does a lot of business with countries over there." He said that kind of relationship could provide possible business opportunities, noting that "you enhance the opportunities you have economically" when forming such a pact.

Still, Sheets stressed there is no guarantee the city will eventually form any relationship with Pakistan.

"It's too preliminary to say," he said. "Whether we do that remains to be seen."

The mayor commented little beyond that, although he did say the city of Peshawar was discussed as a possible Quincy partner because of its similar size and demographics.

Donnelly Enters Governor's Race

Former Congressman and Ambassador Brian Donnelly, who has a large Quincy-South Shore following, stepped into the governor's race Tuesday declaring he brings "a different set of experiences and qualifications to the table."

Donnelly, who served seven terms in the then 11th District that included Quincy and three years as ambassador to Trinidad and Tobago said he wants to improve education, help the state's cities and ensure that any tax cuts would be targeted to families and the middle class taxpayers.

Donnelly is running his campaign out of Quincy and has opened his headquarters at 25 Temple St. in Quincy

BRIAN DONNELLY

Sq. Other campaign offices will be opened later.

"I know the state," Donnelly, who is 51, said. "I understand its past. And I want to lead it into the future."

On education, Donnelly said:

"I know one thing, our children will not be prepared for the 21st century if some of them are being taught in 19th century school buildings and if we remain among the worst states in this nation in funding for our state colleges and universities.

"Our first class kids deserve a first class education. If elected governor I will work to make sure they do."

Donnelly said if elected governor: "I will fight to make sure that any tax cut is targeted to working families and the middle class taxpayers.

"Those are the people who gain the least during the good economic times

Multi-Million Dollar Luxury Apartment, Senior Citizens Complexes Planned

Traffic, Safety Concerns Over W.Q. Project

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Two city councillors and a number of local residents have voiced concerns about a Cambridge firm's proposed construction of a luxury apartment and senior residential community on Quarry Street in West Quincy.

Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott, whose ward includes the proposed site, said residents who attended public meetings on the matter in December and last Thursday have raised several concerns about the project, with traffic being a major issue.

McDermott said he has not yet seen any concrete plans for the project and is adopting a "wait-and-see" policy. The plan's proponents will be making a more formal presentation of their proposal next month, he said.

"The residents are generally saying, 'we really don't want anything up there' but they're willing to listen," said McDermott. "They feel if something has to go up there, it will have to be done extremely responsibly.

"I'm not sure exactly what the plans are. If they're (the proponents) talking about townhouses, that might work. If they want to do high-rises, then it's not going to happen, as far as I'm concerned. But I want to be open-minded about it, and so do the residents."

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico, who attended the two public meetings with McDermott, voiced similar sentiments.

"I have very important concerns concerning the traffic in the area, the number of units that would go up there, and the infrastructure in the area," said D'Amico, whose ward abuts the project site.

He added that he has doubts about whether the site can support 1,000 or more households.

"I haven't been convinced that can happen at all," he said. "However, we're still gathering information."

Seeks Better Rates, Service

Council Supports Cable Competition In Quincy

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Citing increasing prices and a growing number and complaints about service, the City Council has supported the notion that MediaOne should not remain Quincy's sole cable television provider.

On Monday night, councillors unanimously passed a resolution introduced by Councillor Paul Harold stating the city should review its licensing agreement with MediaOne. Earlier this week, Mayor James Sheets also voiced support of opening the cable field to competition.

The council's Oversight Committee will discuss the matter further Feb. 17.

Harold said there seems to be a decline in the quality of MediaOne's service despite a 9 percent rate increase in 1996. He said a number of residents--especially seniors who were promised better discounts two years ago--have complained about both the rate increase and the quality of programming offered. "I think it's worthwhile for Quincy to look into," he said.

Harold added that Somerville is the only Massachusetts community he knows of that offers such competition between cable companies and has had no rate increase since it began.

"I hardly think it's a coincidence," said Harold.

City Council President Peter Kolson applauded Harold for his efforts, say-

McDermott Seeks Bog Drainage, Cleanup

Ward 3 City Councillor Patrick McDermott wants the city to develop a proposal for the drainage and cleanup of the Montclair-Wollaston bog bordered by Belmont, Sherman, Hobart and Harvard streets.

The City Council unanimously passed on Monday night McDermott's resolution calling for the plan to be formulated. The proposal would be developed by the Department of Public Works and the Parks Department and submitted to the council by April 1.

The resolution calls for the plan to include, but not be limited to, the following:

- A short-term flood mitigation plan and suggestions for dredging.

- Estimates on new fencing around the perimeter of the bog.

- A plan for the overall cleanup of the bog, including the removal of debris from channels and the clearing of illegal dumping materials.

- A proposal for signage prohibiting dumping and warning residents of danger.

- The installation of curbing along Hobart Street to protect the grass apron.

- The possible extension of the sidewalk along Belmont Street.

- A periodic inspection plan to be followed.

- A rodent control proposal.

matation. All of the neighborhood concerns have to be met, and the City Council will be extremely objective as far as the project is concerned. But it won't be an easy sell for the developer."

Cambridge-based Congress Group Ventures, a real estate development firm that purchased the 75-acre parcel last year for $8.5 million, is in the middle of the preparation process that eventually will lead to the Quincy Planning Board and City Council, which both must approve the project.

The parcel contains several quarries—including Fallon's and Hardwick—and formerly was used as a dump site. Currently, it is vacant land that is zoned Planning Unit Development.

Congress Group Ventures President Dean Strately said although the exact number and location of the buildings will not be determined until a thorough site evaluation is completed, the cost of the project could be as high as $100 million. In the 1970s and 1980s, the property was permitted for between 1,000 and 2,200 apartments, he noted.

Strately said he believes the project will have a positive effect on the surrounding community.

Traffic, Safety Concerns Over W.Q. Project

"I see a series of benefits resulting from the project," he said.

Among those he listed:

- Construction of a state-of-the-art luxury apartment and senior residential community at a time when the need for such housing is growing at a steady rate.

- Elimination of contamination problems at the site. While he stressed there is "nothing dangerous" there, soil contamination from asbestos, lead and other contaminants has been found at the parcel. Strately estimated it will cost about $4 million to take care of the problem, the extent of which is being determined by the environmental and engineering firm Haley and Aldrich.

- Real estate taxes totaling about $1 million, and excise taxes totaling between $300,000 and $500,000, that will be paid annually to the city. Currently, the parcel is not on the city's tax rolls.

- The end of drainage/runoff problems at the site caused by rain.

- A "passive open space" component that will remain open to the public.

- A number of construction jobs for Quincy-area workers.

- Revenue for Quincy companies and merchants from residents and management of the residential community who will buy their goods and services.

Strately said he hopes to have the project ready for presentation to the Planning Board "within two months."

In the meantime, however, his firm will continue to increase public awareness of its plans. Congress Group Ventures Project Manager George Cole said a series of more meetings is planned so all city officials and residents will be able to voice their opinions.

"We've tried to touch bases in the city to find out what concerns the officials have, as well as the residents," said Cole.

"We're trying to reach out to the community," added Strately.

Strately said his firm was drawn to the West Quincy site because it seemed to perfectly suit the project's needs.

"Given the demographics of Quincy, the market dynamics, and the quality of the neighborhood, we thought the project would be reflective of the community," he said. "It's a very large site—75 acres of contiguous property—and Quincy is a tremendous city. It's just a very attractive piece of land."

Handicap Monitoring Committee To Be Formed

The City Council has unanimously passed a resolution calling for the establishment of a Handicap Monitoring Committee.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, who introduced the resolution Monday night, said the purpose of forming the committee—which would be reviewed by Police Chief Thomas Frane and Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon—is to cut down on the use of handicapped parking spaces by people who are not disabled.

Ayers said the effort will be enforcement-related and will coincide properly with a 1997 parking ticket increase passed by the City Council. The council hiked the amount of a ticket for those who illegally park in a handicapped space from $50 to $100 last year.

Raymondi Neighborhood Meeting At Roche Bros.

Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi will hold a neighborhood meeting on a variety of topics Thursday, Feb. 19 at 7 p.m. on the second floor at Roche Bros. Supermarket, 101 Falls Blvd., Quincy Point.

Issues to be discussed include:

- The use of the former Fretter's building on Quincy Avenue. Hub Pen of Braintree has purchased the building and plans to utilize the site for the manufacture of writing pens for wholesale.

- A zoning amendment pending before the City Council that would change the zoning of property owned by South Shore Habitat for Humanity from Planned Unit Development (PUD) to Residence B. The property is located at the end of Bower Road.

- A request by Faxon Properties, LLC currently before the City Council for a PUD application for the development of the Faxon Woods Retirement Community—to be located near the Presidents Plaza Shopping Center and Faxon Park—and two related zoning changes that would ensure that all traffic for the retirement community utilize Falls Boulevard and not Circuit Road.

For more information, call Raymondi at 479-9044.

The Quincy Commission on Disabilities will meet Monday, Feb. 9 at 6:15 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Meetings are open to the public. For more information, call Judie Dacey at 472-7528 or Nancy McGee at 770-4530.

To Reduce Traffic Accidents Durkin Seeks Senior Safety Zones OK

Ward 5 City Councillor Stephen Durkin is calling for the state to establish Senior Citizen Safety Zones on roadways that abut senior facilities in Quincy and other Massachusetts communities.

The City Council voted unanimously to pass Durkin's resolution toward that end introduced Monday night. The resolution has been forwarded to the city's State House delegation.

Specifically, the resolution says the special zones "would allow a speed limit of 20 miles per hour on ways which abut residential facilities designated for senior citizens' housing of at least 25 residents, such safety zone to commence within 100 feet of a senior citizen facility, and to be designated by uniform flashing lights and posted speed, as well as other traffic control signals and devices established by the Massachusetts Department of Highways." Durkin said the city is home to 16 residential senior citizens' housing complexes and that traffic can pose a great danger in some areas.

"Several senior citizen pedestrian fatalities and other serious pedestrian accidents have occurred within the last three years," he wrote in his resolution.

The resolution states that "providing measures to calm traffic speeds in the immediate vicinity of senior citizen facilities is in keeping with a resolution adopted by the Council on Aging Board and forwarded to the Quincy Center Commission Citizens Advisory Committee."

In addition, it notes that the speed limit near most of Quincy's senior facilities is 30 miles per hour but the limit for most school zones established by the state is only 20 miles per hour.

Council Wants Local Say On Communications Towers

The City Council is backing an effort to overturn a state ruling that allows the installation of communications towers or equipment without any guidance or input by local municipalities or adherence to local laws.

Council President Peter Kolson introduced a resolution Monday night, unanimously passed by the council, that supports the Massachusetts Municipal Association's ongoing attempt to overturn the ruling by the Department of Telecommunications and Energy (formerly the Department of Public Utilities) that bypasses municipal zoning in the case of such projects.

A copy of the resolution has been sent to state Sen.

Michael Morrissey, Reps. Stephen Tobin, Ronald Mariano and Michael Bel-lotti and Mayor James Sheets. It calls upon the State House delegation "to overturn the ruling and allow for great input by the local municipalities."

Kolson said he does not want to see a repeat of the situation in West Quincy several years ago, when a controversial 100-foot communications tower was erected. Neighbors were upset because they felt they were not properly notified of the project and there was no public input allowed.

D'Amico To Hold Crime Watch Meetings Feb. 11

Ward 4 City Councillor Michael D'Amico will hold two Ward 4 Crime Watch meetings Wednesday, Feb. 11 at the Ward 4 Community Center, 100 Brooks Ave., South Quincy.

At 7 p.m., a meeting with Police Chief Thomas Frane, Quincy Crime Prevention Officer Robert Hanna, and other police personnel will be held to provide residents with an update on the soon-to-be-implemented Crime Watch Program in Ward 4. Residents are encouraged to voice their opinions and concerns.

At 7:30 p.m., a meeting on the planned Community Policing Program will be held. Frane, Hanna, and others will be on hand to address any questions or concerns.

Mary McKinnon Remembered At City Council Meeting

The late Mary J. McKinnon, a longtime Quincy crossing guard, was remembered at Monday night's City Council meeting.

At the request of Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, the meeting was dedicated in memory of McKinnon, 67, who died Jan. 28.

Ayers said she worked at the corner of East Squantum Street and Atlantic Avenue for 30 years and became something of a fixture in the neighborhood.

"There were a lot of moms and dads who felt more secure knowing she was on the job," he said.

TAKE CONTROL OF PAIN

Sometimes pain is easy to understand and treat: You sprain your ankle, and it throbs; you have surgery, and you are sore. For some people, however, pain is a nearly constant companion—one they didn't invite and can't get rid of. They may come down with cold after cold, or suffer from sore muscles, fatigue, or diarrhea. Whatever the cause, discomfort seems to stay on. Of course, there are many possible reasons for such ill health, but one thing doctors are increasingly recognizing is the influence of the mind over pain. Stress and mental distress can both trigger and worsen painful physical symptoms. A family history of depression or anxiety disorders may also be at work.

P.S. If chronic pain is a problem, keep track of your ups and downs and talk to your doctor about them. You and you are sore. For some people, however, pain is a nearly constant companion—one they didn't invite and can't get rid of. They may come down with cold after cold, or suffer from sore muscles, fatigue, or diarrhea. Whatever the cause, discomfort seems to stay on. Of course, there are many possible reasons for such ill health, but one thing doctors are increasingly recognizing is the influence of the mind over pain. Stress and mental distress can both trigger and worsen painful physical symptoms. A family history of depression or anxiety disorders may also be at work.

Pain management is always a challenge, but there are strategies you can use to improve the quality of your life, no matter what restrictions you face. Sunbeams

By Henry Bosworth

The Blizzard Of '78: The Good And The Bad Well Done, Quincy

(This Sunbeams column appeared in The Sun in February, 1978, following the Great Blizzard. Twenty years later, it is a reminder of how things were back then and how people got through one of the area's worst storms ever.)

It was a storm you would like to forget but will vividly remember for as long as you live.

Awesome. Devastating. Furious. Horrendous. Mean. Terrible. You may even have a stronger one-word description.

But as bad as it was with the suffering and the losses it brought—in lives and damage—and the inconveniences, it had one nice side effect: it brought out the best in most people.

People opened their hearts and extended helping hands to those in need. Not just neighbor helping neighbor, but stranger helping stranger.

A feeling of togetherness and unity descended upon the area in a way we hadn't seen since World War II. People were united again by catastrophe. They shared a common cause: survival. And they were more than willing to make personal sacrifices to help one another get through the ordeal. Most important: they cared for one another.

Houghs Neck and Germantown were the hardest hit in Quincy. Squantum got pretty well battered, too.

Compared to neighbors Hull and Scituate, however, Quincy overall was lucky, as far as damage and other losses were concerned.

But Quincy got its full share of the record near 27 inches of snow. The city was virtually paralyzed during most of the week. Business came to a costly standstill.

Overall, we think, the city of Quincy deserves a "well done." New Mayor Arthur Tobin certainly has gotten his baptism under fire. He had been in office just 34 days when he got hit with the two worst snowstorms in our history.

We got a chance to personally observe him during this second storm—the all-time champ in fury and meanness—and saw a man calm and in complete control of the situation. He never reached for the panic button.

And so it was, all down the line.

Public Works Commr. James (Pete) Ricciuti proved an able general as his army of weary workers fought around the clock to win the Big Battle of the Snow.

There were many others who did an outstanding job during the long hard week: police, firefighters, Civil Defense units, nurses and doctors and hospital employees, snowmobilers, school personnel, and many volunteers of varying shapes and sizes who all pitched in to help Quincy residents in need.

There were many unsung heroes—and many of their heroics will never be known except to those directly affected.

Of course, it wasn't all 100 percent peaches, cream and let's-all-sing-together. A lot of people came down with cabin fever in their homes. And even in snowfighting command centers where workers were cooped up for days

THE BIG AND THE SMALL got together to help keep main streets open at the height of the storm Feb. 6-7, 1978.

Other photos on pages 12-13. (Quincy Sun photo Jack Tolson) under very trying circumstances, tempered flared now and then.

And there were gripes. About, for example, some people who managed to slip their cars by officials during the travel ban to stock up on food while most people had to trudge to stores on foot and lug small amounts of groceries home in their arms and on sleds.

Some didn't like the way their streets were plowed. Someone complained about snow being pushed against his fence, and another into his driveway. And there was the story about the guy who harassed one of the plow operators to the point where the latter stopped his truck, got out and flattened him.

And there was another one about the weirdo who telephoned a resident to report that his wife, who was in the hospital, had died. Police brought the grief-stricken man to the hospital, the story goes, where he found his wife very much alive.

That cruel prank, meanwhile, delayed police from taking needed medicine to another resident with high blood pressure.

Most of those and other similar incidents will be forgotten by the time the first robin gets up enough courage to put in an appearance here.

But there is one character we hope will not be forgotten: the looter.

Fortunately, for Quincy, there were only isolated cases of looting although some homes are still empty and could yet be plundered.

The looter, in our book, is a creep—a wart on humanity. He takes advantage of a tragic situation to steal from homes evacuated because of floods or lack of heat. Or steals from stores where windows have been blown in.

We hope anyone arrested for looting and convicted after a fair hearing gets what he should: severe punishment.

We hope judges here in Quincy and elsewhere feel the same way about that. Ricciuti (left) and Greg Shanahan found time to create a novel snow valentine on Willard St. lawn for Roby Ricciuti, Greg's fiancée.

Overall, Quincy came through it well. And most of us may even be better off in the long run for the experience. It sure humbled us.

Fr. Daniel Graham of St. John's Church told an anecdote at Mass Sunday that might give us all food for thought.

He said he was walking down Hancock St. just after the storm and met a man who said to him:

"Well, Father, I guess He showed us who's boss."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A LATE 1930'S POSTCARD published by Louis Cafe at the corner of Bay View Avenue and Sea Street in Houghs Neck. In the reprinted message on the back of this card the owners boasted - The Highest Quality Liquor and Wines - Sea Food our Specialty. 'Dine and Dance in a De-

Police Who Taught Program Were 'Patient, Kind, Informative'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I want to take this opportunity to thank the Quincy Police Department in engaging the services of Sgt. Minton and Officer Hanna in reference to their devoted time and energy in informing the senior citizens of Town Brook House on procedures in protecting us from harm to which we can be so easily subjected.

The course enrolled us to receive a diploma of graduation. They were patient, kind and informative. It would be of great advantage and success for all to continue and receive more grants from the federal government.

We can't thank the police enough and look forward to many more programs of the same stature.

Coach Is Paid For His Services

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

While it is true that all the coaches in the Quincy Public Schools devote extraordinary time and effort to their student-athletes--in many cases, well beyond what is expected of them-- and while I am deeply gratified to be nominated as a Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year, I must correct the impression that all of my time is donated, as stated in last week's Quincy Sun.

I am compensated for the position of boys' soccer coach at North Quincy High School. It would be a grave injustice to my colleagues to suggest that I donate my services, when in fact there are so many other coaches who do the extra mile for their players and their sport on a routine basis. I can only hope to live up to the standard that some of them have set.

Journalists And Presidential Rumors

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Who among American commentators, professional and others, could qualify for sainthood, for their berserk reaction to rumors about presidential indiscretion?

A question seems unavoidable: What right do the secular journalists have--those who would be the first to object to Biblical indiscretion of American youngsters--what right do they have, legal and moral, to judge anyone, let alone an American president, by Biblical standards of morality?

To the American media who would like to see Biblical standards of morality, there is a better one to choose: "Go and sin no more!" As for the media, they fully qualify for the prayer: "Forgive them, Oh Lord, for they know not what they do!"

Hail to the Chief!

It Does Matter!

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

It is troubling to hear people say that presidential philandering does not matter. It does!

If someone cannot keep the most basic of vows, then can they keep any? The American people deserve better.

'A Job Well Done' By The Quincy Police

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

For the last four weeks on a Tuesday night, we at Town Brook House had the Quincy Police put on shows telling us how to protect ourselves.

It was excellent. They did such a great job. They went to every senior housing complex, and I feel they should get recognition for a job well done.

Adams' Birthplaces Ransacked By Vandals

By PAUL HAROLD

Two 10-year-old students from the Abigail Adams School Ransacked and defaced the John Adams birthplace on Franklin St., damaging valuable artifacts in the landmark saltbox cottage.

Feb. 5 - 11

47 Years Ago

The pair told special officers Warren Corbett and James Ford that "they found the door and walked in."

A copy of the painting of Adams was slashed in several places and a bust of the president was smashed. Papers and old clothing were scattered in the second floor rooms while paint was smeared on part of the famous old cedar tree from Mt. Wollaston that is depicted on the city seal.

MULHALL RESIGNS CIVIL DEFENSE POST

Judge Mulhall resigned his position as director of the city's Civil Defense department, amid criticism that lack of fund and co-operation from the state limited the effectiveness of Quincy's volunteers.

Among those volunteers were auxiliary firemen who at the last minute, were talked out from marching on city hall to protect the lack of money to buy new equipment.

Mulhall, who took the position on a temporary basis to reorganize the department, recommended that a full-time director be named to oversee its operations. It was expected that his next volunteer appointment would be as assistant to air raid warden Clifford Mason.

FIVE-SHIP CONTRACT SAVES SHIPYARD JOBS

The employment of 7,000 workers at the Fore River shipyard was stabilized this week with the award of a $41 million contract to build five high-speed cargo ships of the new Mariner class.

The award was timely since remaining work was scheduled to run out by the end of the year. The new contract with the American Export Line was the first since 1949. In addition to the ship work, it was expected that Fore River would build the machinery for similar ships under construction at Bethlehem Steel's other yard at Sparrow's Point, for an additional $10 million contract.

In the forefront of the drive for the new work was Quincy Chamber of Commerce president George Daley, Jr., who was also chairman of the Quincy Committee for the Advancement of American Merchant Marine.

Wined Chicken & Beans

At our house, we never know where we're going to be especially when it's time to prepare dinner.

And so it was one day on the way home from our daughter Nancy's house sitting with the new baby.

I had defrosted a few chicken thighs, so I began by sauteing them I decided to add beans to it and it turned out quite tasty plus nutritious!

Chicken Thighs And Beans

4 chicken thighs
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 cloves of garlic (chopped)
1/2 small onion (chopped)
1 can cannellini (white) beans
1/2 cup Marsala wine
1/4 cup balsamic or wine vinegar (I used balsamic)
salt and pepper to taste
a smidgen of flour for thickening
In the hot oil, saute the garlic and onion and chicken turning the chicken until lightly browned. Add the marsala wine and salt, cover and cook turning for about 10 minutes. Add the balsamic vinegar, cover and cook until chicken is cooked.

Add the beans with a quarter of the liquid from the beans, cover and heat through. You may add a bit more of the wine and then if you want it thicker, just add a little flour. We had it with a side of salad. Delicious!

(Marie D'Olimpio has written a cookbook containing recipes printed in The Quincy Sun.

The book is available at the Fruit Basket (near Star Market), Previttie's Market, Summer Street, Quincy, Nanci's Barbershop, 21 Elm St., Braintree, the Cherry Gift Shop at Quincy Hospital, Samoset Pharmacy on Sea Street and Harvest Moon Restaurant, Front Street, Scituate Harbor).

Cerebral Palsy 'Fantasy' Auction Raises $26,000

CEREBRAL PALSY of the South Shore (CPSS) recently held its seventh annual "Fantasy" Auction at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy. The event raised $26,000 for the programs of the CPSS Children's Developmental Disabilities Center. Those attending included, from left, CPSS Executive Director Tom Zukauskas, Mayor James Sheets, and CPSS Board of Directors President Donald Uvanitte.

Boston Writer To Appear At Crane Library Feb. 12

Boston writer Michael Dubson Sage will read from his recently-published book "The Odor of Love and Other Aromas" Thursday, Feb. 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

The tone and mood of the book's humor runs from the bizarre to the sarcastic. It also features illustrations by Woburn artist Paul Theodore.

Dubson Sage formed T & T Publications and two subsidiaries in 1996. In addition to his publishing, he has taught composition and literature at several Boston colleges, was a member of a Boston-based comedy troupe, and has been a hit at poetry readings and other events. Last fall, he presented a paper on Shirley Jackson during the library's humanities series held in conjunction with Quincy College.

and suffer the most during the economic downturns. Fairness must be the basic overriding principle of any tax cut."

He also said: "I would work hard to reinvigorate our cities...Too often, they become the repository of society's problems and challenges. They cannot solve these problems without the active support of the governor."

"A hands-off approach to the problems of our cities is a recipe for disaster. If our cities fail, our suburbs will pay a price. The future of both are inextricably linked."

Donnelly noted that as a Congressman he worked on many of the issues that now are at the top of the state's agenda including:

•The Central Artery/3rd

Harbor tunnel project.

•The clean-up of Boston Harbor and the environment.

•Access to affordable health care.

•The ability of working class kids to afford a decent college education.

"The governor of Massachusetts is the one position that can fundamentally affect the lives of the hard-working men and women of this state," Donnelly said.

"I enter this race," he said, "because I feel that I can bring a somewhat different set of experiences and qualifications to the table."

Donnelly was elected to Congress in 1978 and served seven terms until 1992 when he decided not to seek re-election.

He was U.S. Ambassador to Trinidad and Tobago from 1994 to 1997. In 1993

President Clinton nominated him as the Alternate Representative of the United States to the United Nations General Assembly.

Donnelly, who grew up in Dorchester and now lives in Dennis, made his announcement at the Park Plaza hotel in Boston.

Donnelly is the sixth candidate and the fourth Democrat in the gubernatorial field. The other Democrats are Attorney General Scott Harshbarger of Westwood, former Boston Mayor and Ambassador Raymond Flynn of South Boston and Patricia McGovern of Andover, former chairman of the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

The Republican candidates are Acting Governor Paul Cellucci and state Treasurer Joseph Malone.

Ward 6 Democrats To Caucus Feb. 7

Registered Democrats in Ward 6 will hold a caucus Saturday, Feb. 7 at 10 a.m. to elect delegates and alternates to the 1998 Massachusetts Democratic Convention.

Joe Lydon, Ward 6 chairman, will call the caucus at The Adams Inn, 29 Hancock St., North Quincy.

Ward 6 will elect 10 delegates and four alternates equally divided between men and women to the 1998 convention.

The caucus is open to all registered Democrats, those ineligible to register, and media representatives. Only those Democrats registered to vote in the town or ward as of Feb. 6, 1998 are eligible to participate and vote in the caucus. There is no proxy or absentee voting. Candidates for delegate/alternate must be present and voting, must given their permission in writing, and be nominated. All candidates may make a two-minute statement and may distribute materials on their behalf.

All ballots are written and secret. Those candidates receiving the greatest number of votes on the first ballot shall be elected. State making is allowed, but no special preference will be allowed.

Quincy Center Topic For Ward 5 Assn.

The Ward 5 Community Association will meet Monday, Feb. 9 at 7 p.m. in the second floor conference room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The topic will be "Reviving Quincy Center, Plans and Impacts."

Subjects discussed will include: The Quincy

Center Concourse, the proposal to raise the maximum height of buildings in the business district, and other issues relevant to the citizens and businesses of Quincy Center.

All are welcome. For more information, call Doug Gutro at 328-7982.

UN-COMMON SENSE ABOUT INJURIES

Given the fact that it is the most common of all the time, it is no wonder that feet are injured occasionally - the real wonder is that they usually survive with few serious incidents! When injuries do occur, the greatest hazard can be misconceptions about what to do. Perhaps the most common of these is the old "if you can move it, it's okay" line. It is possible to walk after many types of fractures of the toe, foot, or ankle, but going without prompt care can result in improper healing and painful deformity. If the problem is a sprain rather than a break, care is equally important. Such treatment as professional strapping or casting, physiotherapy, or surgery may be necessary for full recovery.

P.S. An elastic bandage can do more harm than good. It is no substitute for professional treatment of breaks or sprains.

If you are suffering from these or any other foot related complaints call us at (617) 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Pkwy., Suite #18, Quincy and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

Tracy Wilson Won't Seek House Seat

Atty. Tracy L. Wilson, 28, announces she will not be a candidate for the First Norfolk District state representative seat Michael Belotti is leaving to run for Norfolk County sheriff.

She said it was a "tempting challenge," but she plans to focus her efforts on starting a private law practice in Quincy.

"Last year, I had the opportunity to meet hundreds of residents throughout Quincy," said Wilson, commenting on her run for the Quincy School Committee. "And at each household I visited, I learned to truly appreciate the variety of concerns on the minds of the Quincy electorate. I look forward to remaining active in improving the quality of life in our city."

Last year, Wilson made her first run for public office and finished fourth in a close School Committee race. She said she is proud of her accomplishment and indicated she has a keen interest in staying involved in the city.

"The timing just isn't right to get involved in another campaign," she said. "While my intentions are to remain active in civic activities, I will not be seeking election this year to the state Legislature."

Wilson recently was appointed to the Council on Aging by Mayor James Sheets and said she looks forward to working on creating greater opportunities and resources for Quincy's growing senior population. She also will be opening a private law practice at 14 Granite St. in Quincy Center specializing in employment and labor law.

While she has indicated that her "plate is full in 1998," Wilson has not ruled out another run for a municipal office next year.

Ward 4 Democrats To Elect Convention Delegates Feb. 9

Democratic State Committeewoman Bernice Mader announces that Ward 4 Democrats will elect delegates to the 1998 State Convention Monday, Feb. 9 at 7:30 p.m. at the Ward 4 Community Center, 100 Brooks Ave., South Quincy. Ten delegates and four alternates, divided evenly between men and women, will be elected to the convention to be held Friday and Saturday, June 5 and 6 at the Worcester Centrum. Registration is $45 for a delegate and $20 for an alternate.

Persons must have been registered Democrats in the ward in which they are running by Feb. 6, 1997 in order to qualify to vote and/or run at the caucus. However, anyone may attend and watch the proceedings for which there is no cost.

For more information, call Mader at 773-6881.

Stice Guest Speaker At Montclair-Wollaston Assn.

Linda Stice will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Montclair-Wollaston Neighborhood Association tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at Work Inc., 3 Arlington St.

Stice is executive director of the Quincy Commission on the Family. She will discuss the commission's goals and accomplishments as well as a soon-to-be-offered Newborn Baby Home Visiting Program.

A business meeting will follow with Ward 3 City

Councillor Patrick McDermott offering information on neighborhood traffic issues.

BERNAZZANI SCHOOL recently signed a partnership with Dr. Robert Clark of Clark Chiropractic in Quincy. Dr. Clark will visit the school on a monthly basis to educate students about the spine and nervous system and how a chiropractor helps patients. Neighbors Oppose Proposal For New Take-Out Restaurant Residents at a recent neighborhood meeting voiced opposition to a proposal by China Chopsticks Inc. for a new take-out restaurant on the Wollaston-North Quincy line.

The meeting at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center was held by Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers. They held the meeting to give residents an opportunity to voice their concerns before the Quincy License Board's vote on the matter.

Residents opposed the proposal for the new establishment--which would be located at 488-490 Hancock St., the site of the former Rutestein Insurance Company--citing limited area parking, the size of the business, truck delivery routes, hours of operation, noise, odors and other issues they said would negatively impact the neighborhood.

Ayers and Durkin said they and area residents will urge the License Board to deny the application for the restaurant license when the board takes up the matter Feb. 10.

SPOTLIGHT ON BUSINESS

Opened Tax Business In 1969

Tom Feenan's Goal: Help Clients Achieve Financial Success

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Back in 1969, Thomas Feenan opened a small income tax business in Dorchester to help people file their tax returns in the spring.

Today, nearly 30 years later, he has watched his business grow into a Quincy corporation that serves thousands of clients annually.

"When I started out on my own, it was in a storefront on Dorchester Avenue," said Feenan, CPCU, EA, ATA, owner of Feenan Financial Group, 40 Willard St., Suite 202, West Quincy.

"It was also just a seasonal business then," he added, "but our clients had a lot more needs, so over the years it grew into a full-time business."

As the business expanded, Feenan moved it from its original location to Adams St. in Quincy in 1978. The business soon outgrew that site, moving down the road in 1985 to its present Willard St. location.

"We needed more room; we were really constricted at the Adams St. location. We like where we are and we're not leaving Quincy. I've lived in Squantum since 1979, so I'm almost a native," he laughed.

As its location changed, so did the business, bringing in auto, homeowners, life, business, long-term care, and disability insurance for its clients. Feenan also provides income tax preparation, financial services, mutual funds, IRAs, annuities, tax-free bond funds, accounting, pension plans, mortgages for purchases and refinances.

"We want to be a one-stop financial service center," said Feenan. "We know the client, and we can help him or her obtain financial success in their life. That's primarily our goal. "We have very competitive rates, and since we represent eight companies, we want to give our clients the best possible rates."

"We're trying to meet the needs of middle-class taxpayers, the husband and wife who both work, own their home, and are trying to educate their kids and plan their retirement. That's our typical client. We help them get their ducks in order and make sure nothing falls through the cracks."

Throughout most of the year, Feenan maintains a staff of 12 to 15 people, but that number more than dou-

THOMAS FEENAN, CPCU, EA, ATA, a longtime Squantum resident and owner of Feenan Financial Group, 40 Willard St., Suite 202, West Quincy, has been in the business of helping clients achieve financial success for nearly 30 years. "We want to be a one-stop financial service center," he said.

bles come tax season. By April 15, Feenan Financial Group will process over 4,000 tax returns, placing the business in the top 10 nationally for most taxes processed in one location, according to Feenan.

"During the busy tax season, we have about 35 to 40 employees, and someone is here every day," said Feenan. "It's such a short time, but we get a lot done."

"I never realized we did that many returns until a supplier used us as proof that his product could work in a big office. We're one of the biggest in the country, and I'm quite proud of that fact."

Most of Feenan Financial Group's preparers are enrolled agents with master's degrees and 15 to 20 years of tax practice, said Feenan, which gives the business a boost when dealing with longtime clients.

"Having all that experience really helps, because they deal with the client over and over, getting to know them and what their needs are," he said. "That gives us a real step up on the competition."

While most of Feenan's customers are from the Quincy and South Shore area, over 100 clients travel from outside Massachusetts to meet with Feenan and his staff.

"I'd say maybe 30 percent of our clients are from Quincy, while most of the rest are from the South Shore and other nearby areas," said Feenan. "The close proximity to the expressway is beneficial to us, because we have 120 clients out of state who stay with us because they like our service."

To what does Feenan attribute his business's longevity?

"We just try to give the client what he or she needs, basically," he said. "If we were just a tax outfit, we probably wouldn't have made it this far. We give a lot of value. We're available for a quick phone call for information, we offer free notary service and serve as a referral source if a client needs an attorney."

"I also send out four to six newsletters a year, to keep our clients updated on the latest financial news. We hold one or two free seminars a year for our clients at the Neighborhood Club in Quincy. We like to treat our clients as our guests."

The best part of his job, said Feenan, is helping people who become his friends achieve financial success.

"It's a very positive experience," he said. "An example of that happened recently when a man told me, 'I never thought I'd have $140,000 saved.'"

"I got him started about six years ago and he's pretty happy today, with many more years to go. There's a lot of satisfaction in this job, getting clients to be able to retire with some kind of dignity."

A former Boston schoolteacher who holds a master's degree in education from the University of Massachusetts at Boston, Feenan lives with his wife, Sheila, and two children, Michael, 15, and Elizabeth, 5.

Feenan also plays an active role in the community as a member and past president of the Quincy Rotary Club and as past president and current advisory board member of the Bosox Club.

He also serves on the advisory boards of Cathedral High School in Boston ("my alma mater"), and College Courses Inc., and is a former advisory board member at Quincy College.

"We also sponsor a lot of sports teams," he said. "We want to be the right corporate business for Quincy."

Partnership To Raise Funds For Merrymount Park Fountain

The Quincy Partnership recently announced its latest project will be to bring a decorative water fountain to a newly-proposed formal garden at Upper Merrymount Park.

The announcement was made by Quincy Partnership Chairman Ed Keohane at a fundraiser at Adams Academy.

The Quincy Partnership is an organization of civic-minded business leaders and citizens whose goal is to improve the quality of life in Quincy. Its past donations include "Welcome to Quincy" signs at the main entrances of the city, the statue of Abigail Adams and John Quincy Adams near City Hall, lighting for United First Parish Church, the Thomas Crane Public Library, City Hall and Adams Academy; and others. In addition, it co-sponsors the city's Flag Day parade and celebration.

The foundation will be located in the center of a new formal garden designed by the Quincy Park Department and landscape architect Mary Smith. The formal garden will be located along Hancock Street and will also feature flower beds, park benches, varieties of shade trees, and a proposed World War II memorial.

"The Partnership is proud to participate in such a worthy project," said Keohane.

The plans for the formal garden and fountain are part of the Park Department's "master plan" for historical renovations to Merrymount Park. Drawing from the ideas and plans of the country's most renowned landscape architects, the department has drawn up a plan to improve the park.

Merrymount Park was donated to Quincy in 1885 by Charles Francis Adams II. Frederick Law Olmsted, the "Father of Landscape Architecture," was procured to help design the layout of the park. Olmsted helped design the layout of the parkway, which now is Furnace Brook Parkway.

In 1937, with the help of funds from the W.P.A., the city procured the services of Olmsted Associate Herbert Kellaway. The Kellaway plan is one of the most extensive landscape design plans ever developed for the city. In the plan, Kellaway originated the concept of a mall and formal garden for Upper Merrymount.

Utilizing the plans and ideas of Olmsted and Kellaway, the Park Department has composed a plan that incorporates the century-old ideas of the country's most famous landscape architects, while including the needs of today's public.

"The city of Quincy has an unprecedented opportunity to incorporate the plans and designs of Frederick Law Olmsted and his associates into the layout of our most-utilized park," said Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Department. With the help of the Quincy Partnership, we have an opportunity to achieve the century-old ideas of this park's benefactor, Charles Francis Adams II."

project is currently underway at Pageant Field. The rest rooms, picnic pavilions, and road to the Ryan Boat-house will all be relocated. The rest rooms will be located closer to the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre to allow better access, especially for the elderly. The pavilions will be moved closer to Black's Creek, capitalizing on the views of Quincy Bay. The roadway will follow the original design, moving the road away from high areas of pedestrian activity.

Another major theme of the master plan will be the improvement of walking trails throughout the park. In addition, new trails will be added, allowing for better access from the park to the Wollaston Beach Reservation and Grossman Park on Fenno Street.

"The city of Quincy has greatly improved our active recreational facilities, but we lack a formal park setting. The implementation of this master plan will elevate the Quincy park system to 'the finest in the state,'" said

Michelle Lydon, chairman of the Quincy Park and Recreation Board.

The Pageant Field phase will be completed during the spring of this year. The Upper Merrymount phase is scheduled to begin the fall of 1998 and should be completed by the summer of 1999.

THERE ARE 93 HOSPITALS IN MASSACHUSETTS.

NOT ONE HAS ACCOMPLISHED WHAT WE JUST DID.

South Shore Hospital has just become the first hospital in Massachusetts to receive maximum accreditation with commendation from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations three times in a row.

The Joint Commission is the nation's leading independent accrediting agency. It exhaustively reviews hospitals' performance—from patient care to facilities, clinical staff to management. Only twelve percent of US hospitals receive maximum accreditation with commendation. Fewer still receive it twice in a row. Hardly any, three times.

At a time when health care quality is under scrutiny, isn't it good to know that the Joint Commission has awarded South Shore Hospital's acute, outpatient, transitional, home health, and hospice care its highest possible accreditation?

Want more details? Just give us a call at (781) 340-8600 for a copy of our annual report or a list of our programs and services.

And discover for yourself why South Shore Hospital is where the extraordinary happens every day.

Pictorial Memories Of The Blizzard Of '78

Quincy: The Blizzard Of '78

TWO PEDESTRIANS WERE dwarfed as they trudged through the mountains of snow in Quincy Sq. before public works cleanup crews removed the final remnants of the Blizzard of '78 five days after the first of nearly 27 inches fell on the city Feb. 6-7.

STOP! ENOUGH!, the statue of Jesus Christ in front of Most Blessed Sacrament Church in Houghs Neck seemed to be saying to the snow, a command seconded by thousands of mortals in the city.

SOUTH SHORE BANK (now BankBoston) in Quincy Square appeared to be buried up to the sixth floor, but actually it was the angle the photographer took. The snow may not have been six stories high, but it was still mighty high.

SQUANTUM RESIDENTS found a way to help the Fire Department find a hydrant in case of any emergency. The flag at Bellevue Rd. and Dorchester St. says "H2." Note the mailbox virtually buried in snow.

Your Horoscope by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A revision in your philosophical outlook is possible. A new study will fascinate you. Avoid a tendency to be quarrelsome. Share warm times with family this weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) This should be a notable week regarding career interests. A raise, a new job offer, a promotion or a success is likely. The weekend accents matters of the heart.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Delays in connection with work could upset you this week. However, you may be making an important business contact socially. The weekend favors having guests over.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You'll have a clearer perspective about a matter from your childhood. Early week domestic upsets will be quickly resolved. The weekend finds you very much in love.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Problems in parenting may arise early in the week. However, in romance, feelings will deepen. You may receive a social invitation from a business colleague.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) It's a week that promises you financial gains through business interests. However, relations with a co-worker may be sticky. The weekend is especially romantic.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You may feel that someone has let you down early in the week. Later, you'll have luck with collaborative ventures and intellectual work. Your personality shines this weekend.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A person you've helped out in the past comes to you for help once again. This is the week to make deals and buy and sell. The weekend favors romantic and social get-togethers.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) The early part of the week finds you nursing a resentment, but you'll snap out of it later when you meet with a wonderful romantic or social opportunity. The weekend is pure fun!

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) This is a topsy-turvy week for you in business. A setback could be quickly followed by a triumph. This weekend you're at your very best socially. You'll attract romance.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Difficulties could arise with a friendship, perhaps due to a financial concern. However, romance is a plus, and you may become very much involved.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Extra funds will become available to you this week. Something could depress or anger you early in the week, but by the weekend, you're cheerful, charming and content.

Romance And Other Things At The Laundromat

(NU) - You may consider yourself a "sensitive" person, but how "sensitive" are your laundry habits? The Fab Sensitive Skin Sensitivity Survey of 250 people uncovered some interesting "dirt" on how people behave behind closed (laundry room) doors.

•While almost half of married women polled have put extra quarters in a stranger's dryer, only 15 percent of single men have. Married men aren't much more generous: only 20 percent have helped out a stranger with spare change.

•Single women are more likely than married women to fold a stranger's laundry. Less than 20 percent of all the men polled had ever folded a stranger's shorts. •Bringing laundry home for Mom to do is tempting regardless of gender. Almost half of single men and women polled admitted they still bring laundry home. Less than 10 percent of married people burden their mother.

•Men are more likely than women to remove someone's wet clothes from the dryer in order to dry their own stuff.

•Looking for romance during the spin cycle? Almost half of single men polled had tried to make a date while doing laundry. However, Laundromat love may not lead to something permanent: only 13 percent of married men had ever tried it.

•Nothing to wear? Close to 70 percent of single men admitted to digging into the hamper when desperate. Married men and single women are guilty, too: about half of these groups said they "re-wear" clothes as well.

•Ever found money in a washer or dryer? If you're a married woman, you would probably try to return it: 70 percent said they would. On the flip side, 73 percent of single men said they would keep the cash.

Not everyone worried about being sensitive while doing laundry, but most people do want a laundry product that will be gentle on sensitive skin. The survey was done to introduce New Fab Sensitive Skin Laundry Detergent which is dermatologist-tested, hypoallergenic, and free of dyes and perfumes. It cleans clothes like a regular detergent, so it can be used for everyone-sensitive or not.

Now if they could only do something about the person who hogs all the dryers.

Training Room Offers Care, Sports Medicine Products

By LIAM FITZGERALD

If you're the athletic type, you know injuries are part of any sport—but they don't have to keep you off the playing field permanently.

With the quality sports medicine products available at The Training Room, 353 Newport Ave., Wollaston, you can participate in athletic events without risking further injury.

"When I was a collegiate athlete, I was injured a few times and quickly recognized the value of athletic care," said Sylvia Goodman, Ed. D., head athletic trainer for the past 17 years at Eastern Nazarene College proprietor of The Training Room, which opened a month ago. "Fortunately, athletic care has advanced so rapidly that there are products for nearly anything you can think of."

However, while these products are quite accessible for college athletes at the college level, the same cannot be said for high school athletes, said Goodman.

"In my years at ENC, I've also noticed that it's much easier to find or order products at the college level than the high school level," she said. "High school trainers and coaches usually have limited budgets and refer the athlete to sports therapy, where he or she has to pay three times the price of what college-level athletes pay. Consequently, I felt I could be of service to high school athletes."

The convenience of having an orthopedic and sports medicine shop in Quincy where local trainers, parents and athletes can purchase what they need also factored into Goodman's decision.

"There are very few businesses like this, and this is the only one I'm aware of on the South Shore," she said. "I would get calls from high school parents asking to borrow different products, because they were hard to find in the area. Now, they can come and here and find what they need without leaving the city."

The location of her business came as a result of her friendship with Marilyn "Mal" Morrell, who owns Embroidery Plus with her husband, Dan, a Quincy High School coach.

"I've been friends with Mal for a long time, and they gave me the opportunity to open here and got the ball rolling," said Goodman. "It's nice to be in Wollaston for a number of reasons. We're right near the 'T' station and next door to Embroidery Plus, so when people go there to have uniforms done, they can stop by here and see what we SYLVIA GOODMAN, Ed. D., proprietor of The Training Room, 353 Newport Ave., Wollaston, displays one of the variety of braces available at the shop. have to offer."

Among the products available at The Training Room are various types of braces, nose, mouth and face guards, and shoulder and back supports.

"We have custom knee braces of people with ACL (anterior cruciate ligament) injuries, which they can have fitted here, along with rigid and lace-up ankle braces," she said. "We also have products designed for specific problems, including knee pads, braces and sleeves."

"It's hard to find a nose guard in Quincy, but we have them here. We also have a wide variety of mouth guards and face guards. In fact, North Quincy High School's trainer, Christine Flynn, came here recently for a face guard for one of the school's athletes."

Protective equipment for injuries such as dislocated shoulders and groin pulls (spandex compression shorts) are also available. Additionally, The Training Room carries a full line of foot care products.

"We do custom molding for foot alignment problems, which is done at a very reasonable price," Goodman added. "We can do it in a half-hour's time; usually, you have to wait two weeks."

Along with these items, The Training Room also has specialty items and rehabilitation equipment, including Theraband and tough ankle banding.

In addition to her years at ENC, Goodman has been an athletic trainer for the Atlanta Olympic Games, The Pan Am Games, The Goodwill Games, The Bay State Games, The Boston Marathon and the Colorado Springs Olympic Training Center. She holds an undergraduate degree in health and physical education from Taylor University in Indiana, a master's degree with an emphasis in athletic training and athletic administration from Miami (Ohio) University and a doctorate in education from Boston University.

Joining her on the staff is Ralph Evans, a longtime colleague of Goodman's who is the head athletic trainer at Wentworth Institute of Technology. He previously worked as a trainer for the NFL's Green Bay Packers and for The Boston Marathon and The Bay State Games. Also on The Training Room's staff is Kristen Keen, a teacher at Milton High School and head athletic trainer at Notre Dame Academy in Hingham. Keen is a graduate of the ENC Sports Therapy program.

"It's very important in this line of work to know the people working for you and with you," said Goodman. "I have the highest regard for their integrity. We also won't sell you anything you don't need and we won't overbill."

"All of our staff members are nationally-certified athletic trainers. If you have a question about a product, they know about it, because they've had years of experience dealing it. You may be able to find it somewhere else, but does that person know how to fit you? Here, you get what you need and have it fitted properly."

In addition to the sports medicine and orthopedic products, The Training Room has reading materials available that describe various injuries, how to care for them and why a particular treatment was prescribed.

The Training Room will sponsor a Sports Medicine Camp at ENC Aug. 3-7. The camp is designed for high school students who are interested in being student trainers to the fields of athletic training and physical therapy. Students will leave the camp with CPR and First Aid Certification and basic sports medicine skills, according to Goodman.

A longtime Quincy resident who recently moved to Hull, Goodman said she hopes "to be here for many years as a longstanding business citizen of Quincy and serve the Quincy community well. This is a very good starting point, and I'd like to stay right here."

The Training Room is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. It is closed Sunday. The phone number is (617) 479-4221 or (888) 718-8882.

How To Minimize The Damage Stress Can Do

During these 28 days designated as American Heart Month, the physicians at Spaulding Rehabilitation Hospital remind you that one of the contributing factors to heart disease is stress.

While most of us know that stress can be destructive, we find it difficult to relax it away. Here are some recommendations to help minimize the damage stress can do to your sense of well-being:

•Do everything you can to maintain a regular program of healthy eating and adequate sleep. Good nutrition and adequate rest can give you the stamina you need to cope with stressful situations.

•Exercise regularly. This promotes physical fitness and emotional well-being. Don't set yourself up for failure by demanding that you stick to a strenuous regime; walking for 20 minutes each day can be enough to renew the spirit and help keep you fit.

•Try to balance your work or school activities with play. Make time for recreation or for pursuing favorite hobbies. These activities relax your mind and offer some respite from life's big and little worries.

Ski Conditioning Program At South Shore YMCA

The South Shore YMCA will offer a ski conditioning program beginning Feb. 3.

The eight-week exercise class is designed for skiers of all abilities

Classes will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7:15 to 8:15 p.m. with an optional workout on Saturday. Registration begins Jan. 28.

•Learn how to manage your anger. When you feel yourself getting angry, stop for a moment, and think. Ask yourself if what is bothering you is really important. Take a deep breath, count to 10, and respond to the situation with a little less hostility. If you do have an angry encounter, get some vigorous exercise as soon after the incident as possible. Or, make a quick call to a friend and describe how angry you feel. This can help diffuse your anger.

•Practice retaining your sense of humor. It is a fact that laughter makes our muscles go limp and releases tension.

•Budget your time better. Make a to-do list and set priorities. Being organized can minimize the feeling that you have no time to get what you need to do done.

•Learn to say no. Don't be afraid to turn down a request for a favor if you truly haven't time to comply. Trying to keep too many commitments causes stress for many of us, especially women. If you feel uncomfortable turning down a friend, suggest that you'll be glad to help him or her another time, when your schedule is not quite so hectic.

"An excellent educational environment for your child"

DID YOU KNOW...

The National Cancer Institute Reports That:

Every year, 434,000 people die of illnesses related to their smoking. But smokers are not the only ones whose health can suffer. Their tobacco smoke in the air is called environmental tobacco smoke (ETS) or secondhand smoke. Breathing it can be a hazard to your health and to the health of your child.

Secondhand smoke contains smaller amounts of the same chemicals that harm smokers. ETS is so harmful that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has classified it as a "Group A" carcinogen. "Group A" carcinogens are the most toxic substances known to cause cancer in humans, also including benzene, radon and asbestos.

The more often you're around secondhand smoke, the greater your risk for health problems. Each year it causes about 3,000 lung cancer deaths in U.S. adults who don't smoke. Secondhand smoke increases the nonsmoker's risk for heart disease and makes worse the symptoms of adults already suffering from asthma, allergies or bronchitis.

Children are usually innocent victims, unable to choose whether or not to be in a smoke-filled environment. Among infants to 18 months of age, secondhand smoke is associated with as many as 300,000 cases of bronchitis and pneumonia each year. It also increases the chances for middle ear problems, causes coughing and wheezing and worsens asthma conditions.

Facts like these show that other people's smoke is more than an annoyance. Secondhand smoke is a serious threat to your good health. (U.S. Dept. of Health & Human Services, June 1993)

South Shore Habitat Seeks Volunteer Architect

South Shore Habitat for Humanity (SSHH) is looking for an architect to volunteer time to prepare construction drawings for a duplex to be a part of Quincy's Granite Village project.

The drawings are to be developed from the preliminary design drawings completed on Auto Cad. Those interested should call Steve Devine, c/o KFP Architects Inc. at (781) 337-8480 if interested.

Granite Village is a 10-home neighborhood being built in Quincy by South Shore Habitat. The neighborhood will be built in three phases by the organization over the next two years. The project is scheduled to begin this month. The duplex is to be completed during the second phase of the project.

SSHH is a non-profit, ecumenical organization dedicated to building homes in partnership with families in need.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Presidents Drop Two By Total Of Five Points

By LIAM FITZGERALD
Following two tough losses by a total of five points, the Quincy High School girls' basketball team ran into a hot Silver Lake squad Monday and fell, 63-27, on the road.

The Old Colony League defeat dropped the Presidents to 1-13 in the OCL, 1-15 overall. Quincy was back in action yesterday (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. against visiting Falmouth, one of the OCL's top contenders.

Friday at 6:30 p.m., the Presidents play a non-league game at Marshfield, a team they lost to by 13 earlier in the season. The first meeting went down to the wire until Quincy was forced to foul and Marshfield pulled away.

Bridgewater-Raynham, the OCL's first-place team heading into this week's action, visits Quincy next Tuesday at 7 p.m.

In the loss to Silver Lake, the Lakers' Marche Strickland, one of the best girls' basketball players in the state, poured in a game-high 27 points for the victors.

"She's just a superior player," said Quincy head coach Bob Noble. "It seemed like she had an off-night and I thought we did a good job on her, but she still scored as many points as we did. She's as good a female player as I've ever seen."

Last Friday night, the Presidents played what Noble called "probably our best overall game," but visiting Dennis-Yarmouth escaped with a 57-54 OCL triumph.

"We shot 8 for 23 from the free throw line, and that was the difference in the game," said Noble. "We were down two with 30 seconds left, missed a free throw and were forced to foul. Down the stretch, they made 4 of 4 free throws and we made just 1 of 4. That's your game right there."

The Presidents, who played an all-around strong game, were sparked by the outstanding effort of sophomore Colleen Nichol, who led the way with 23 points, 12 rebounds, three steals and two blocks. Seniors Becky Mackey and Kerry Duffy, a co-captain, also played well for Quincy.

In OCL action last Tuesday, the Presidents shot just 16 percent from the floor and came out on the losing end of a 39-37 score to visiting OCL foe Plymouth South. Senior Erin Barry led Quincy with nine points.

"We took 72 shots in the game, but made only 12 of them," said Noble. "We just couldn't put it in. It was a frustrating loss, because the girls played hard and didn't get the win."

"That's been the story all season--the effort's been there throughout, and they see that they've improved, but have nothing to show for it."

"To their credit, they've kept their heads up and not given up. They've done all I've asked of them and I'd love for them to get another win before it's over. They deserve it."

NQ's Steve Vukosa Advances To National Boxing Tourney

Steve Vukosa, North Quincy's 20-year-old super heavyweight phenom, advanced to the nationals in Colorado with two victories at the USA Boxing Northeast Regional Box-offs this past weekend at Lake Placid, N.Y.

Even though he was granted a spot in the national tournament this spring by USA Boxing due to his being selected to represent the U.S. at Halle, Germany during the first week of Match at the Chemical Cup Tournament, Vukosa chose to travel to Lake Placid to get in some work before going to Europe.

At the Box-offs, Vukosa recorded a third-round TKO of Edwin Agupito of Albany, N.Y., on Sunday and a hard-fought decision victory over Ricardo Ortiz of Brooklyn, N.Y., on Saturday.

A 6-4 1/2, 235-pound southpaw, Vukosa has made tremendous progress since picking up boxing some 22 months ago, said his trainer, Jimmy Farrell of O'Malley's Gym in Quincy.

"This kid's work ethic, athleticism, extraordinary poise and fierce pride make him very difficult to beat," said Farrell. "His upcoming participation in the tournament in Germany will expose him to international competition for the first time, and I expect that he will meet that challenge, too."

Vukosa's next local outing will be this Friday evening at the Golden Glove Tournament in Fall River. Farrell expects that Vukosa will compete in the New England Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions in two weeks.

Youth Soccer Board Asks Coaches To Pick Up, Distribute Trophies

Quincy Youth Soccer League's Fall 1997 season ended with a lot of confusion due to weather conditions.

The league's Board of Directors tried to collect equipment and give out trophies with limited success. There are coaches who have not turned in equipment--especially the nets--and collected their trophies.

The Board asks coaches in need of trophies to call the soccer office to make arrangements to collect them. Coaches should then distribute the trophies to the players, which would reduce the number of telephone calls received by the soccer office.

It is important, said the Board, that the players receive their trophies. Players who have not received their trophies should call their coaches.

Raiders' Postseason Dreams Now A Reality

Its third straight win proved to be its biggest of the season, as the North Quincy High School girls' basketball team upended Dennis-Yarmouth, 56-44, Monday to clinch an MIAA state tournament berth.

Trailing by six at the half, the Red Raiders (7-5 Old Colony League, 10-5 overall) outscored their visiting OCL opponent, 34-16, en route to the triumph.

"We knew we would make it; it was just a question of when," said North Quincy head coach Ken Panaro. "But we want more than just 10 wins. The girls won't settle for that. We'd love to get a tournament home game, but we have some tough games ahead."

Tough is right, as the Red Raiders' next three games are against the cream of the OCL crop--Silver Lake, Bridgewater-Raynham and Falmouth. Yesterday (Wednesday) at 7 p.m., NQ traveled to Silver Lake and visits B-R Friday at 7 p.m. Falmouth comes to town next Tuesday at 7 p.m.

"These will be good tests, there's no question about that," said Panaro. "We may meet one of them in the tourney, so we have to play them well this time. We want to let them know we're here to play and not to take us for granted."

In the victory over D-Y, senior co-captains Laurie Flynn and Kristen Keohane each scored 10 second-half points as the Red Raiders turned up the intensity at both ends of the court.

"We didn't play as we should have in the first half, and we knew we could beat them if we played a strong second half," said Panaro. "Kristen Bowes and Kerry Skehan made some quick steals for layups that got us in a running mode, which was important. We weren't going to let them beat us on our gym."

Flynn finished with 16 points and 14 rebounds, Keohane had 10 points, 12 rebounds and four assists,

NORTH QUINCY GUARD Kerry Skehan, trying to elude a leaping defender in an earlier game, scored nine points, grabbed four rebounds and added four assists to help the Raiders clinch an MIAA state tournament berth Monday.

senior co-captain Skehan contributed nine points, five rebounds and four assists, junior Deirdre Jacobs and sophomore Jill Nicholson each scored eight points and junior Bowes chipped in with five points, all in the second half.

Last Friday night, the NQ built a commanding 33-16 halftime lead en route to a 59-46 road victory over OCL foe Plymouth South. Keohane netted 12 points and Flynn added 11 points for North, which received solid contributions from every player.

In earlier OCL action, North held Barnstable's leading scorer, Carrie Bosworth, scoreless and rolled to a 64-41 home triumph last Tuesday night.

For NQ, Bowes scored all 11 of her points in the second half and added six assists and four steals. Skehan netted 12 points, Flynn chipped in 11 points, eight rebounds and four assists and Jacobs grabbed 10 rebounds and scored four points.

Haidul's Late Goal Ties Hull Presidents' Unbeaten Streak Reaches Eight

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Senior co-captain center Chris Haidul's goal with 1:36 left capped a third-period comeback and gave Quincy High School hockey team a 4-4 tie at Hull.

Monday's non-league tie extended Quincy's unbeaten streak to eight games (7-0-1) and improved its overall record to 11-2-3. Entering this week's games, the Presidents were in third place in the OCL with a 9-2-1 mark, trailing first-place Falmouth (10-2-1) and Silver Lake (10-2-0).

Aiming to capture the OCL championship, Quincy got its opportunity to knock off the league leader yesterday (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. at Falmouth. The two teams tied, 3-3, in the first meeting.

"It's extremely hard to win down there, but the kids believe we can beat them," said Quincy head coach Bob Sylvia. "We still have a legit shot at the title, but we need to win this game and the rest, too."

The Presidents are back in action Saturday at 7:45 p.m. against visiting Barnstable, an OCL team that edged Quincy, 5-4, last month.

Next Wednesday at 7 p.m., Quincy faces the other OCL team it lost to, Silver Lake, when the Lakers come to town. In the first meeting, Silver Lake contained the potent Quincy offense and captured a 3-1 triumph.

"If we win those first two games, the Silver Lake game could be for the league championship," said Sylvia. "North Quincy beating them was a major plus for us and we have to prove that we can do it as well."

In the tie with Hull (11-0-4), Quincy fell behind 4-1 but rallied with three goals in the final stanza to earn the point. In the Presidents' season opener, they tied Hull by the same score (4-4).

Quincy junior assistant captain Joe Vallatini, with an assist from Haidul, cut the deficit to 3-2 and later assisted on a Chris Wool goal and Haidul's gamewinning tally.

Sophomore Scott Mattson also registered an assist on Haidul's second goal, his 20th assist of the season to go along with nine goals. Mattson remained second in OCL scoring with 29 points, trailing Haidul (25 goals, 11 assists, 36 points). Sophomore Brian Nolan assisted Haidul on his first goal.

Lakers' Size Too Much For Quincy To Handle

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Overmatched inside, the Quincy High School boys' basketball team yielded 43 points to Silver Lake's starting front line in a 72-42 Old Colony League defeat Monday night.

With the home loss, the Presidents dropped to 3-11 in the OCL, 3-12 overall. Quincy was back in action yesterday (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. at Falmouth, a team the Presidents beat, 73-68, last month.

"That win was our best offensive performance," said Quincy head coach John Franceschini. "We shot 44 percent from the field and 78 percent from the free throw line. They're similar to us in size in that they don't have a real big guy and they're athletic. We'll have to shoot the ball well to beat them."

The Presidents are then off for six days until they visit league-leading Bridgewater-Raynham next Tuesday at 7 p.m. B-R took the first meeting at Quincy last month, 91-73.

Against Silver Lake, the Presidents struggled from the outside and were out-rebounded by a much bigger Laker squad, said Franceschini.

"The bottom line was our shooting was off, and their big guys cleaned up on the boards," he said. "We were down 10 at the half, then they went up 16 and made it tough for us to come back."

Sophomore point guard Dan Kelly was Quincy's leading scorer with 12, followed by junior Jim Munchbach with nine. The Lakers were paced by senior Jon Bond (17 points, six rebounds, two steals).

Last Friday night, the Presidents stopped a five-game losing streak with a 57-50 league victory at Dennis-Yarmouth. Kelly sparked Quincy with 22 points and senior guard Jared Downey added 11 points.

Franceschini cited the efforts of his low post players, including senior Jim Quigley (nine points, 12 rebounds) and sophomore Sean Fitzpatrick (six points, 16 rebounds), and Quincy's second-half success at the free throw line (13 of 15).

"The difference in this game was our inside offense," he said. "Our two big kids helped us a lot, picking up points down low. Overall, though, our defense was the key as we never relinquished the lead."

In earlier OCL action, the Presidents fell to host Plymouth South, 70-41, last Tuesday night. Munchbach led Quincy with 13 points and Kelly chipped in with nine.

League Powers B-R, Silver Lake Visit NQ

Tourney-Bound North Still In OCL Title Hunt

Coming off its MIAA state tournament berth-clinching victory last Friday, the North Quincy High School boys' basketball team claimed its fourth win in five games Monday.

Led by senior captain Brian Ross (39 points, 21 rebounds), the Red Raiders held off Dennis-Yarmouth's second-half comeback and captured a 61-51 Old Colony League road triumph.

"They tried all different ways to stop Brian, but nothing worked," said North Quincy head coach Ted Stevenson. "The key for us was dominating the boards offensively and defensively."

Thanks to their success in league play, the Red Raiders still have an outside shot at the OCL championship—if they beat the two teams ahead of them, Silver Lake and Bridgewater-Raynham, this week.

Yesterday (Wednesday) at 7 p.m., the Red Raiders hoped to keep their 6-0 home mark intact when they hosted Silver Lake, a team that edged North in their previous meeting, 59-56. The Lakers, 9-2 in the OCL and 11-3 overall, are led by Jon Bond, a 6-6 senior who averages 20.2 points per game.

B-R, the OCL's first-place squad, comes to town Friday at 7 p.m. having lost just one game all season. Last month, the Trojans (10-1, 14-1) held off North, 69-62, and are led by the high-scoring duo of Kyle (20.0 ppg) and Keith Quimby (17.3 ppg).

"This is obviously a big week for us," said Stevenson. "We have the two top teams coming to our gym, and we'd love to avenge those earlier losses. Beating both of them will put us back in the hunt for at least a co-championship."

Following these two key league battles, the Red Raiders visit Falmouth next Tuesday at 7 p.m. in another OCL tilt.

In the victory over D-Y, North received solid efforts from senior forward Mark Stanton (12 points) and senior guard Brian Linskey (six points, eight assists).

Leading by 10 at the half, NQ pushed the lead to over 20 before D-Y's Corey Blake (20 points) nailed five three-pointers to cut into the deficit. Fortunately for NQ, every time Blake drew D-Y closer, Ross answered with a hoop of his own, said Stevenson.

Last Friday, the Red Raiders clinched a tournament berth with a decisive 67-51 triumph over visiting OCL foe Plymouth South. Ross again led the way with 35 points and 27 rebounds, and was aided by strong efforts from senior guards Jay Turner and Linskey.

In earlier OCL action, North missed 17 free throws en route to a 70-62 defeat at Barnstable last Tuesday.

Downey Records 3-0 Shutout Silver Lake No Match For Raiders -- Again

No other Old Colony League team has been able to do it once, and the North Quincy High School hockey team has done it twice.

In two meetings against OCL powerhouse Silver Lake, the Red Raiders have recorded two victories—both via the shutout.

Back in December, the Red Raiders handed the visiting Lakers a 2-0 defeat on goals by juniors Chad Fitzpatrick and Mike Sullivan and 26 saves by junior goaltender Chris Carthas.

This time around, North traveled to Silver Lake and brought home a 3-0 triumph last Wednesday night, handing the Lakers their second OCL defeat. The win improved the Red Raiders' record to 6-5-1 in the OCL, 8-6-1 overall. Silver Lake fell to 9-2, 10-3.

Having won three of their last four, North now stands just three points (a win and a tie, or three ties) shy of an MIAA state tournament berth. NQ was back on the ice yesterday (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. in an OCL tilt against visiting Taunton, a team NQ doubled up, 4-2, in their first meeting.

The Red Raiders' next game is Saturday at 7 p.m. when they take on host Dennis-Yarmouth in an OCL contest. North took the first meeting, 5-3, last month. Next Wednesday at 8 p.m., the Red Raiders visit Bridgewater-Raynham, an OCL team they tied, 4-4.

In the victory over Silver Lake, junior goaltender David Downey picked up the shutout with a 22-save performance. Senior Sean Fitzpatrick opened the scoring with a long slap shot that got by Laker goaltender Justin Burke for a quick 1-0 lead.

As he did in the first win over Silver Lake, Fitzpatrick was involved in another goal for the Red Raiders. This time, he set up North's second goal, feeding junior assistant captain Paul Markarian who deposited it in the net for his 13th goal of the season.

Markarian got the assist on NQ's third tally, firing a shot which Sullivan redirected by Burke in the second period. With the goal and assist, Markarian entered this week's play third in the OCL in scoring with 25 points.

Downey preserved the shutout with two clutch third-period saves, the first coming on a Silver Lake 2-on-1 break and the other on a slap shot by the Lakers' Tom Allen.

Wrestling Tonight At NQ

Wrestling bragging rights will be decided tonight (Thursday) at 7 when the Quincy High School and North Quincy High School wrestling teams clash at North Quincy's gym.

Quincy, which enters the match with an 0-3 Old Colony League record and 5-15 overall mark, seeks its sixth straight triumph over its crosstown rival. North, coached by John Colton, is also 0-3 in the OCL and hopes to finish its league meets on a positive note.

Before the meet begins, Quincy coach Lou Venturelli will honor Dai Nguyen, who graduated last year following a stellar wrestling career at Quincy.

"I'm going to tell Dai to look at the banner the next time he stops by our gym," said Venturelli, "because his name will be there."

Pee Wee A's Move On To District 3 Title Game

The Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee A's advanced to the District 3 championship game with a 4-2 state playoff victory over visiting Walpole.

A loss in last Thursday's tilt at Quincy Youth Arena would have knocked the A's out of the running for the state tournament. Now, a triumph in the District 3 championship game would secure Quincy an invitation to the state tournament.

In the win over Walpole, both teams came out tight, looking for each other's weaknesses. Finally, the Quincy line of "Wild Bill" McKeon, Brian "The Mailman" Lewis and Ryan Donahue forced the play into Walpole's zone, with Donahue scoring on an assist from McKeon. Walpole responded midway through the period to tie the game.

Later in the first, Quincy regained the lead when the line of Matt Lavery, Brendan Conley and Matt Grazioso kept play in the Walpole zone, leading to a goal by Jeremiah "Miah" Hasson, assisted by Conley and Grazioso. Trailing in the second, Walpole stepped up its play and mounted several attacks in Quincy's zone, only to be met by the strong backchecking of Rob Mooney, Ryan Conley and Josh Giordani.

Donahue scored again in the second, taking passes from McKeon and Lewis to give Quincy a 3-1 lead. In the third, Walpole realized time was running out and eventually cut the deficit to one with 6:23 to play. With the clock ticking down, Walpole pulled its goalie for one last assault into Quincy's zone. The rush was repelled, with Lewis breaking out, sending the puck into the empty net. John Chevalier notched the assist.

Coach Grazioso noted the exceptional play of Quincy's blueliners, Brian O'Hanley, Sean Moriarty, Chevalier, Steve "The Masher" McGonigle, Hasson, Steve Kelly and goaltender Bruce "Mr. No" Maggio.

Barry's Deli, Doherty & White, Harold Club Among Winners

Jim Fitzpatrick scored two goals as Barry's Deli topped Lydon-Russell, 4-1, in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Mite Division House League play.

Also netting goals for Barry's were John Strella-Mullin and Sean Dunn, with single assists from Brendan Foley, John Sessions and Jeremiah Foley. L-R's lone goal was by Brian Bowe, assisted by Conor Roche.

Joe Canavan (two goals, assist) and Mike Gillespie and Mike Griffin (one goal, two assists each) sparked Paul Harold Club over Bruce Ayers Club, 4-0. Robert Mann recorded the shutout in goal for Harold.

Craig Calley (two goals) led a balanced scoring attack for Doherty & White, which defeated First Choice Home Care, 6-4.

Other multiple scorers for D&W were Anthony Glibody (goal, assist) and Dana Lopes (two assists). Adding a goal apiece were Erik Angelhart, Kyle Craig and Brian Campbell, while Dave Guerriero, Scott Richardson, Joe Reggiani, Matt Rodriguez and Brendan Gavanagh each dished out an assist for the winners.

Leading the way for FCHC were Tom Conley and Kyle Tobin (two goals apiece), Glen Misho and Jim Patten (two assists each), and Casey Conley and Chris Hunter (one assist apiece).

Kiley Real Estate doubled up Jay Cashman, 4-2, led by Bryan Gilligan's two-goal effort.

For the winners, Matt Flaherty and Zach Sloane each netted a goal, Joe Ferris dished out two assists and Justin Laura and Jason Laura each added an assist. Cashman was paced by goal scorers Teddy Finnegan and John Magliozzi, with single assists from Joe Morris and Andrew Bythrow.

Josh McKeon's hat trick proved to be the difference as Quincy Sheet Metal topped Doran & Horrigan, 5-2.

Also scoring for QSM were John McInnis (goal, assist), Joe Garland (goal) and Lambros Papalambros (assist). For D&H, unassisted goals were by Greg Cahalan and John Kurpeski.

MITES

McGonagle, Donahue Spark Black; Skinner's, Morrissey Tie

Mike McGonagle (five goals, assist) and Ryan Donahue (four goals, two assists) lifted Quincy Black over Colonial Federal Savings, 11-9, in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee Division House League play.

Also contributing for Black were Gene Nazarro (goal, assist), Mike Cox (goal), Jeff Butts and Chris Stivaletta (two assists apiece), Mike Griffith and Jim Burke (one assist each).

For Colonial, Bill McKeon (five goals, assist) was the top scorer, with other goals by Liam Powers, Bill Cox, Joe Norris and Mark DeCoste. Richard Stone dished out two assists and Lauren Struzik and Nick Manning each had an assist.

Skinner's Winners and

PEE WEES

Mike Morrissey Club skated to a 7-7 tie.

For Skinner's, Dan Sullivan netted two goals and Brendan Craig, Jamie Chiochio and Brendan Conley each collected a goal and an assist. Andy McDonough and Ryan Tobin both scored a goal, Matt Grazioso had four assists, and John Mateu and Paul Grazioso each picked up an assist.

Morrissey's leading scorers were Mike Delahoyde (goal, two assists), Miah Hasson and Josh Giordani (two goals each), Andrew Ross (goal, assist), Bryan Petit (goal), Matt Peters (two assists), and Steve Summering and James Kennedy (one assist apiece).

Brian O'Hanley's hat trick and two assists sparked Bernie's General Store to an 8-3 triumph over Coffee Break Cafe.

Other offensive standouts for Bernie's were Joey McManus (two goals, two assists), Billy Barter (goal, two assists), Bryan Cooper (two goals), and Patrick Kelley, Matt Lavery and Casey Winter (one assist each). For CBC, Tim Coughlin had a goal and an assist, Pat Casper and Dan Coughlin each netted a goal and Kristen DiMattio and Robert Mooney had one assist apiece.

Sugarman, Quincy Sun, Foley Pick Up One-Goal Victories

Justin Thorley's goal and assist sparked M. Sugarman over Keohane's, 3-2, in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt Division House League play.

Other goals for Sugarman were by Bob Newcomb and Jake McQuinn, while Ian McRae, Dennis Magaldi, Kevin Shinnick and Paul Fasoli each added an assist. Scoring for Keohane's were Paul Lennoni and Brian Sorenson, with single assists from Alex Shaffer, Brendan Mulcahy and Mike Gibbons.

Eddie Laura collected a goal and two assists for The Quincy Sun in a 4-3 victory over Burgin Platner Insurance.

Robby Gagliardi dished

out four assists and Pat Mullen added an assist for The Sun, which also got goals from Sean McCormack, Matt Quigley and Ryan O'Keefe. For BPI, Mike McKeon and Kevin Richardson each had a goal and an assist, Steve Maggio netted a goal and Daniel Poggi picked up an assist.

Terrence O'Connell's two goals and one assist propelled Pat Foley Painting over Westminster Dodge, 5-4.

Also contributing for Foley were Sean Warwick (two goals), Kristina Mangano (goal), Patrick Maloney (three assists), and

Patrick Devlin, Andrew Potter and John Clark (one assist apiece). Leading the way for WD were Andrew Patten (two goals, assist), Paul Graham (goal, assist), Andrew Donovan (goal), Patrick Malone (two assists), and Michael Flaherty, Gregory Jenkins, James Spellman and James Sheehan (one assist apiece).

Pee Wee B's Capture First At Coca-Cola Tournament

The Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee B's won the annual Coca-Cola Tournament recently held at the Gallo Hockey Arena on Cape Cod over two weekends.

Great hustle and teamwork enabled Quincy to sweep three games during the first weekend. Super Bowl Sunday saw the B's face a quick team from Avon, Conn., which they shut out, 5-0. The B's outscored their opponents, 16-2, are have won both tournaments in which they've competed.

Quincy's scoring in the finals all came from the line of Ryan Feldhoff (a.k.a. O'Feldhoff), Andy Ross and Pat Clifford. Feldhoff and Clifford each scored two goals and Ross netted one goal and earned two assists. Clifford also had two assists and Feldhoff collected one.

Nick Manning came up big, as he has in the past when the stakes are high, with several key saves in goal to anchor Quincy's defense. Danny Durocher and Jake O'Donnell were intimidating at the blue line and prevented Avon's forwards from entering the B's zone. Timmy Duggan, Kyle Carmody and Bobby Donovan all played stellar defense, frustrating any Avon attack with hard checking and crisp passing to teammates in the neutral zone.

The tournament's first weekend required the B's to dispose of three teams in a schedule which proved particularly grueling for B's coaches Pat Clifford and Kevin Craig. Late night workouts and strategy sessions took their toll and Sunday afternoon's division finals against Cape Cod Canal became a test of endurance.

The point system for the tournament required that Quincy at least tie the game against Canal to insure their return for the championship game. Feldhoff scored the lone Quincy goal with an assist from Ross as a well-rested Canal team gave the B's a scare in a hard-hitting battle. Manning's superb netminding helped Quincy hold on for a 1-1 tie.

Earlier in the weekend, Liam Powers notched a hat trick to spark Quincy to a 4-0 victory over Canton. Linemates Brian Cooper and Brendan Craig each had two assists as they hustled and passed like a well-oiled machine. Duggan was the other scorer on an "Orrible" rush the length of the ice.

Quincy opened the tournament with a decisive 6-1 triumph over Hingham. The B's attack was slow in starting but came on like gangbusters when the line of Ryan Tobin, Pat Casper and Pat Maxey erupted for two quick goals to put Quincy ahead to stay.

WHERE THE RUBBER MEETS THE ROAD

While anti-lock brakes (ABS), traction control, and four-wheel drive help optimize the acceleration and braking capabilities of vehicles outfitted with them, it is the tires that provide the actual gripping ability at the point where the vehicle makes contact with the road. To be sure, ABS helps prevent the tires from locking and skidding by releasing pressure and pumping the brakes. For its part, traction control helps prevent tire spin by applying the brakes and/or reducing the power sent to the tires. And, the ability of four-wheel-drive to provide power among all four wheels provides a significant advantage when accelerating in slippery conditions. However, the more tire traction these systems have to work with, the better.

HINT: Do not neglect to rotate your tires at recommended intervals to promote even wear among all four tires. Cars with air bags, seat and shoulder belts, ABS, etc., are safer than ever. It's the driver that's the problem. People generally put a great deal of money into their cars. To be sure your car is safe and in the best condition have it regularly serviced and repaired by the best, ASE Certified technicians around. *A Thought
For The Week*

"Thanks."
This is not a long, hard word to pronounce, but it is a word that some people find hard to say. Also it is an inspiring little word that can bring the sunshine out on a dark day if we are willing to have it so. Thanks before meals. Thanksgiving in our prayers. Thanks to those who have done so much. Thanks for our families. Thanks for our friends.

What a tragedy that the grace of gratitude is not as common as it ought to be. Kind words of appreciation and encouragement to each other by husband and wife could "make their day." A child brightens a weary mother's day with acknowledgment of her value by a word, a hug or a kiss.

All of us are the recipients of countless deeds of kindness on the part of those with whom we rub shoulders with every day, and yet all they may receive from us are picky criticisms, when a word well-spoken would completely change the service and the server.

May we take this opportunity to say a "Thank You" to all our readers who have commented on the "Thoughts" they have here. Your comments have and always will be most appreciated.

Jean E. McGuinness, 64 Chicago Tribune Office Manager

A funeral Mass for Jean E. McGuinness, 64, of Washington, D.C., formerly of Quincy, will be celebrated Friday at 10 a.m. in Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy.

Ms. McGuinness died Sunday at George Washington University Hospital in Washington.

She was the office manager at the Chicago Tribune's Washington bureau. She joined the newspaper as private secretary to former Washington bureau chief Walter Trohan and, since 1972, helped the Tribune learn coverage of political conventions and other major events.

Ms. McGuinness managed the Tribune's hospitality suite at the annual White House Correspondents dinner, which often attracted Hollywood celebrities to the nation's capital.

Born in Quincy, she graduated from North Quincy High School in 1952. She worked at the Fore River shipyard for several years as a secretary for Bethlehem Steel.

She moved to Washington in 1964 and worked briefly for RCA and the National Council of Agricultural Employers.

She had a summer home in Bethany Beach, Del., for many years.

Wife of the late Joseph O'Connell, she is survived by her companion, George Wardle of Washington; two sisters, Marguerite C. Della Barba of Quincy and Ellen McGuinness-Lamie of Squantum; and many nieces and nephews.

Burial will be in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Visiting hours are today (Thursday) from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. in the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, 1115 W. Chestnut St., Brockton, MA 02401.

Frances P. Hamelin, 79 International Trade Center Waitress

A memorial Mass for Frances Pauline (Dankszewicz) Hamelin, 79, of Quincy, will be celebrated at a later date.

Mrs. Hamelin died Jan. 24 at the Elihu White Nursing Home in Braintree.

She formerly worked as waitress at the International Trade Center in Boston for 20 years.

Born in Whitman, she lived there before moving to Quincy 37 years ago.

Mrs. Hamelin is survived by her husband, Lee C. Hamelin; a son, Dennis M. Hamelin of California; four sisters, Helen Scutis of Quincy, Katherine MacMahon and Wanda Kingston, both of Florida, and Ferne Monsour of California; and a grandson.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Doris L. Lyons, 76 South Shore VNA Nurse's Aide

A funeral Mass for Doris Louise (Metcalfe) Lyons, 76, of Quincy, was celebrated Tuesday at St. Mary's Church.

Mrs. Lyons died Jan. 30 at home after a long illness.

She was a nurse's aide for the South Shore Visiting Nurses Association and a homemaker.

A lifelong resident of Quincy, she graduated from North Quincy High School.

She belonged to the Loyal Order of Moose in Braintree.

She is survived by her husband, Leonard C. Lyons

Sr.; two sons, Leonard C. Lyons Jr. of Foxboro and Thomas Lyons of Weymouth; two daughters, Janet Queen of Georgia and Carol Visalli of Holbrook; three sisters, Barbara Totten of Quincy, Lydia Ciardi of Randolph and Roberta Baker of Rockland; nine grandchildren; 10 great-grandchildren; and many nieces.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

Evelyn A. O'Neil, 86 Bookbinder For 15 Years

A funeral Mass for Evelyn A. O'Neil, 86, of Quincy, was celebrated Jan. 31 at St. Ann's Church.

Miss O'Neil died Jan. 26 at Quincy Hospital.

She was a bookbinder for the J.K. Hall Co. for 15 years.

Born in East Boston, she lived in Dorchester before moving to Quincy 22 years ago.

She is survived by a brother, Leonard O'Neil of Randolph; three sisters, Gertrude O'Neil, Margaret Myett and Helen Riley, all of Quincy; and many nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to Boston Catholic Television Center, P.O. Box 9109, Newtonville, MA 02158.

Protecting Children

McGRUFF THE CRIME DOG

KIDS

They bring us such joy. But caring for children also brings big responsibilities, and big worries. I know - I've got a few pups of my own.

Teachers, law enforcement officers, and others who have some responsibility for the well-being of young children share parents' concerns.

Most kids pass through childhood without ever experiencing physical harm. But too many of our kids are frightened or hurt by crime every year. Their property may be stolen or their lunch money taken.

All children are vulnerable.

But all children can be taught how to avoid trouble, how to spot trouble, and what to do if trouble happens to them. Not enough kids know these things.

Safety and crime prevention should be a family effort. It's your job to teach kids how to be safe. It's my job to show you how. Read on to see how you can - "Take A Bite Out Of Crime."

TEACHING CHILDREN SAFETY RULES:

Talking to children about certain dangers to their personal safety makes many adults uneasy. It's difficult and painful to acknowledge that there are people around who want to harm children. And some safety rules you'll teach your children may seem to contradict other values, like being polite and obeying adults.

Children have a right to know about potential threats to their safety, and what to do if they find themselves in trouble. Same basic knowledge will increase their confidence and self-reliance. And you'll feel better knowing that they know how to cope when you're not around. And more and more kids today spend time at home and at play alone while their parents are at work.

Rule #1 For Any Adult Caring For Very Young Children:

Never leave them alone at home, in a car, or in any public area. Not even for a minute!

It is very important, when teaching children personal safety and caution, that they don't become overly frightened. So, never present too much information at once; young children can't absorb a lot at one time. Children should know, of course, that the reason for learning and following safety rules is because they're loved. Rules should not be seen as arbitrary and adults should take care to be consistent with the rules they teach, and practice what they preach.

Quincy "a better shot" at keeping rates down and getting the best possible service.

"You've really hit the nail on the head, councillor," Kolson said.

Also speaking in favor of the resolution were Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott, Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers—all of whom co-authored the resolution with Harold—as well as Councillor Francis McCauley and Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico.

Mayor Sheets said Monday the city has begun negotiations with a second cable company, Residential Communications Network

(RCN) that will include a plan to string fiber optic cable throughout the city to provide telephone and Internet services in addition to regular television programming.

The mayor said Quincy will continue its contract with MediaOne, but would have RCN—which recently was formed in partnership with Boston Edison—as a second provider to give options to city residents.

Sheets added that he has spoken with Barry Welch, chairman of the city's cable television corporation, and has received his support. The mayor said another meeting might be held on the issue next week.

MediaOne has 28,000 customers in Quincy. Quincy signed a 10-year agreement with the cable company—then Continental Cablevision—in 1996.

Sheets and Harold said the city is being assisted in its current negotiations by telecommunications attorney Howard Horton, who negotiated the current contract with Continental which became MediaOne when it was bought by U.S. West Media Group.

MediaOne spokesman Rick Jenkins said this week his company supported cable competition in the Federal Telecommunications Act of 1996 and welcomes the challenge of a competitor in Quincy.

Durkin Seeks Crossing Guard At St. Ann's School

Ward 5 City Councillor Stephen Durkin has asked the Quincy Police Department to assign a school crossing guard at St. Ann's School. In a letter to Police Chief Thomas Frane, Durkin described the intersection of St. Ann's Road and Hancock Street as "dangerous" and called upon the police department to provide protection for school children and parents transporting children to school.

'I'm A Loyal Democrat' Sheets Declines McCauley Offer To Join The GOP

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets has politely declined an offer from City Councillor Francis McCauley to join the Republican Party.

Sheets, a Democrat, has received a letter from McCauley suggesting that he consider switching to the GOP. The letter followed comments last week by other Democrats, including state Sen. Michael Morrissey, who criticized Sheets for refusing to endorse a Democratic candidate in this Survey Indicates Two-Thirds Support For Former Congressman Donnelly Gets Big Boost From Local Delegates

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Former Congressman-Ambassador Brian Donnelly's quest for governor got a hefty boost in the Quincy Democratic caucuses as he walked off with about two-thirds of the local delegates to the state convention.

According to a Quincy Sun survey of the city's six wards, Donnelly—who announced his candidacy just last week—has received the endorsement of nearly all of the delegates from at least four wards who caucused last Saturday and Tuesday.

To be placed on this fall's primary ballot, Donnelly and other candidates must receive the support of at least 15 percent of the delegates who attend the Massachusetts Democratic Convention on June 5 and 6 at the Worcester Centrum.

The survey indicates Donnelly has about two-thirds of the city's 61 delegates, with Attorney General Scott Harshbarger taking all 10 of the delegates in Ward 2. Former Boston Mayor/Vatican Ambassador Raymond Flynn and former state Sen. Patricia McGovern each also has at least one supporter.

BRIAN DONNELLY

•Ward 1: City Councillor Paul Harold said he and two other delegates are supporting Donnelly. Former Councillor Michael Cheney, another delegate, said he will back Flynn. The other seven delegates are officially uncommitted, according to Harold.

•Ward 2: All 10 delegates are supporting Harshbarger, according to Ward 2

City Councillor Raymondi, a delegate.

•Ward 3: Ten of 10 delegates are supporting Donnelly. Delegate Charles McIntyre said he knows of nine official Donnelly backers. School Committeeman Michael McFarland said his support makes it unanimous.

•Ward 4: Ward 4 City Councillor Michael D'Amico said eight of the 10 delegates, including himself, are solidly behind Donnelly. "We had a Donnelly slate that I organized myself," he said. However, Bernice Mader, Ward 4 chairwoman, said the only vote she can confirm is her own, and she is supporting McGovern. She said none of the Ward 4 delegates made their positions known publicly, although she acknowledged she may be unaware of the D'Amico-led effort

HUD Endorses City's Squantum Gardens Plan

The city has received word from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) that its plan to convert the former Naval facilities at Squantum Gardens/Naval Terrace into a senior housing has been officially approved.

Sheets received a letter Tuesday from HUD Assistant Secretary Saul Ramirez Jr. announcing the approval. The letter states Quincy's proposed use for the buildings meets the requirements of the federal Base Closure Community Redevelopment and Homeless Assistance Act.

The mayor said the announcement is good news for the city.

"This means the city can now begin to officially negotiate the conveyance of all 27 acres at the site to the city," said Sheets.

The city signed a five-year lease with the Navy, which owns the property, last July. Although the lease can be renewed up to three years, officials want permanent ownership of the land that can be acquired, through a special conveyance, at little or no cost.

Sheets said he plans to deliver the city's master plan for the site to Navy officials in Washington, D.C. in about three weeks.

The city is seeking agency sponsorships because senior housing is not on the Defense Department's standard list of approved uses for abandoned bases. Agencies that have been targeted for sponsorships are HUD, the Justice Department and Health and Human Services (HHS).

HUD would review senior housing, while HHS would sign off on a planned senior center, transitional housing and assisted care. The Justice Department would have to sponsor the portion of the master plan that calls for putting the to endorse other Democratic candidates in the past—including gubernatorial candidate Mark Roosevelt in 1994 and Sen. John Kerry during his re-election bid in 1996—on the grounds that he must work closely with officials from both parties if Quincy is to benefit from local, state and federal partnerships.

"Mayor, since many members of your own party appear to be upset with your position, I suggest that you seriously consider joining the Republican Party," wrote McCauley, an active Republican for over 30 years who preceded Sheets as mayor. "In taking this step, you would be joining other prominent elective officeholders, including President Ronald Reagan, Gov. Edward J. King and Suffolk County District Attorney Ralph Martin, as well as our beloved Norfolk County Sheriff Jack Flood, who over the years converted to the Republican Party."

McCauley also offered in the letter to set up a meeting with Sheets and leaders of the Quincy Republican City Committee to discuss the issue.

Sheets said he is flattered by McCauley's invitation but he has no plans to change parties.

"I would just remind former Mayor McCauley that while I am not endorsing a Democratic candidate for governor, I am also not endorsing a Republican candidate for governor," he said with a chuckle. "And while I have a great respect for his party—the party of Abraham Lincoln and Ronald Reagan—I am committed, by birth and experience, to the Democratic Party of Wilson, Roosevelt, Truman and Kennedy."

Sheets also maintained that local politics is non-partisan and it is crucial for city and town officials to be able to cooperate with all state and federal leaders, regardless of party affiliation.

He added that such cooperation has made it possible for a number of projects—including the upcoming re-opening of the Fore River shipyard—to come to fruition. The shipyard reopening, he said, would not have been possible without the assistance of Gov. Paul Cellucci and former Gov. William Weld, both of whom are Republicans.

"I'm a very loyal Democrat, but I'm also a very loyal mayor," he said. "My loyalty is first to the people of this city, and after that, to my party—in that order."

Presidents Day Celebration In Quincy Center Feb. 16

The city's second annual Presidents Day Celebration will be held Monday, Feb. 16 from noon to 5 p.m. in Quincy Center.

The event is being produced by First Night Quincy. First Night Chairman Michael Cheney is the event chairman and Mayor James Sheets is honorary chairman.

Scheduled locations and events include:

• On the street: Ice sculptor Jerome Shea will create a sculpture of Abraham Lincoln and five of his other works will be on display. Chain saw artist Ken Dudley will create a wood sculpture. A giant mural of all U.S. Presidents (created by artist Victor Alois) sponsored by The Flatley Co. will stand outside United First Parish Church and lead into the Adams crypts inside.

There will also be a Presidents Day Float featuring the work of Quincy sculptor Gene Shea, Civil War Camp, Colonial Soldiers Camp, and snowboarding on a man-made mountain (weather permitting). Brunswick Stew, an old-time meal, will be served.

• United First Parish Church: Sam and Lenny will perform a mime acrobatics comedy, juggling and music show from noon to 2 p.m. Dr. Watson Reid and Americana will perform music of the American folk tradition from 2:30 to 5 p.m.

• Old City Hall (Council Chambers): The Made in the Shade Dixieland Band will perform from noon to 2 p.m. Actor, teacher and author will perform "Teddy Roosevelt: Mind, Spirit and Body" from 3 to 5 p.m.

• New City Hall (Atrium): Waggles the Clown and magician Jay Darish will perform from noon to 2:30 p.m. Marianne Donnelly appears as "Frostina" from 3 to 5 p.m.

• New City Hall (Second Floor): The Quincy Art Association will display an art show featuring works by local artists and a live clay demonstration. At the same time, Presidential Camera will present photographs by some of the South Shore's best amateur photographers.

Admission to all events is free. For more information, call the First Night Office at 376-1071.

Objections Raised By Board, Raymondi Wants To Move Eddie's Diner To Shipyard Area

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Members of the Quincy License Board objected to the moving of Eddie's Diner to 176-178 East Howard St. across from the Fore River Shipyard at Tuesday's meeting and placed the request on file.

The landmark diner was burned down several years ago.

Saying that Sam Kotoulas who now operates the Sabatino's Express food canteen across the shipyard was "putting the cart before the horse," the board also heard a petition opposing the site from area residents.

Kotoulas, who has owned four restaurants in Quincy failed to convince the board that the area would be a viable one.

Building Inspector Walter White said many issues should be addressed before the board can vote on the move including action from the fire department, the building department and the zoning board.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said he had serious concerns and said

"we all love nostalgia," noting that the diner had been in Quincy since 1952, "but this is not a practical move."

He said diners were made to be on main thoroughfares where there is a lot of traffic and that people had changed their eating habits and enjoy going to "nice restaurants." He added people are more health conscious of what they eat, and that the food once eaten in a diner was now found "not as good as we thought."

He said he "hated to see Kotoulas get burned" if it didn't work out.

Chairman Joseph Shea noting that the "concept is exciting and has peaked a lot of interest" suggested maybe placing the diner somewhere inside the shipyard until all issues are resolved.

Kotoulas told the board he would be spending $250,000 to renovate the landmark diner with the American Diner Museum donating the rest of the money.

However, Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi expressed concerns over the site in Quincy Point and called the diner a "burned out old piece of rubble."

Raymondi said that a lot of time and money is being spent to renovate the shipyard and that he wonders about the negative reaction to Quincy Point residents if there was a diner there.

Although Kotoulas came prepared with plans for parking and seating for 80 persons, Raymondi said there are no other plans on paper, no purchase and sales agreement, no commitment by the American Diner Museum and wondered what the move would mean to the "image of Quincy Point."

He urged the board to move "very cautiously."

While placing it on file, Police Chief Thomas Frane said it would allow Kotoulas to pursue his request along with the Museum to locate at another site.

CITY COUNCILLOR Francis McCauley recently was honored by the American Red Cross for donating his 100th pint of blood. McCauley has been making the donations regularly for 20 years. Emergency Alert I.D. Bracelets Available

An emergency medical alert service featuring identification bracelets for people "at risk" with medical or memory impairment is available in Quincy.

The service is being offered by the Quincy Police Department, Quincy Friends of the Handicapped, and Beechwood Community Life Center.

To register, call Beechwood at 471-5712. Registration includes a $10 fee and is payable to the Quincy Commission on Disability.

A confidential information form is filled out, registered with the police department, and entered into its central registry. An I.D. bracelet, with code number, is issued by Beechwood at registration time.

If a person wearing the bracelet is found wandering, unconscious or unable to speak, whoever finds him or her calls the police and gives the code number. The police then notify the registered contact person(s) and assist as needed.

The police department suggests the following action when a memory-impaired person wanders off:

- Search the vicinity thoroughly.
- Notify the police (479-1212).

- Report if the person is wearing an alert I.D. bracelet.

- Stay by the phone, or have someone else do so.

- Keep incoming and outgoing calls as brief as possible.

For more information, call Beechwood at 471-5712.

They're For The Ball At City Hall

Alba Tocchi and Steve Cantelli have changed their minds.

They once thought the granite ball, now at the Fore River traffic rotary, should be moved to Shea Park on Copeland St., West Quincy.

Now, they feel, it should really go back to outside City Hall where it was in the first place.

Where it definitely shouldn't be, they now agree with many people, is at the Fore River rotary.

"I want people to be able to see the ball and close-up," says Alba. "Especially the children."

"You'd get killed trying to cross the street down there to get a close-up look at the ball. And if you are driving around the rotary or coming down the Fore River bridge you really can't get a good look at it unless you don't mind getting in an accident."

Cantelli, a teacher at the Lincoln-Hancock School, says: "City Hall is a good place for it. It's spacious there. More people will see it there. It makes a good fit."

Both played major roles in the creation of the Granite Workers Statue and the beautification of Shea Park. And first thought the ball should go there but now feel the park probably is too small for it.

The near 11-ton polished ball was presented to the city on June 25, 1925 to commemorate the 300th anniversary of the settlement of Quincy in 1625.

It was a gift to the city—not to any one section of the city—from the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association.

At the time there was some debate over the right site for it. The Thomas Crane Public Library lawn and a spot beside First Parish Church were among the suggested places. An area near the Neponset Bridge also got a vote. Quincy Point didn't get mentioned.

The granite manufacturers association finally settled on a spot alongside the city clerk's office. It was moved to the Fore River rotary in 1937.

Alba and Cantelli agree with this column that traffic approaching Fore River bridge from Quincy Point and traffic coming from North Weymouth makes it more difficult if not impossible to see the ball because motorists have to or should—keep their eye on the road.

THE GRANITE BALL at its original site outside old City Hall before it was moved to the Fore River Traffic Rotary.

Trying to dodge traffic to walk to the rotary is Mission Impossible.

Alba recalls the day she and her husband, Edmund, a retired granite worker, wanted to cross Washington St. to see the ball close-up.

"Good luck," someone at the nearby swimming pool store told them.

She said a nurse driving by saw them at the edge of the road and traffic flying by and thought they were trying to cross to the other side of the rotary.

"She stopped and told us to get in her car and she would drive us around the rotary to the other side," says Alba.

When they told her they just wanted to get out to the rotary island to see the ball, the nurse got out of her car and halted traffic like a police officer so they could safely reach it.

"Can you imagine a child trying to get out there," Alba asks. "And that's sad. When the ball was at City Hall, children used to like to see their reflection in the polished granite."

She and Cantelli also agree with us that something nautical—a large anchor or a replica of a ship—would be appropriate to replace the ball at the rotary.

When you think of Quincy Point you think of the great ships built there. You don't think of granite.

And with the USS Salem and the planned shipbuilding museum just a few yards from the rotary, an anchor or ship replica would be a great attraction and directional tie-in.

Alba, Cantelli, Councillor Michael D'Amico and Linda Monti Montillio now would like to see a granite industry museum in the West Quincy area with mementoes and artifacts of Quincy's great granite era.

The granite industry and what it meant to Quincy should never be forgotten, they say.

Meanwhile, they say, bring the granite ball back to City Hall where it belongs. And can be seen by more people—close up.

Especially the kids.

FORMER COUNCILLOR Michael Cheney can still pull a vote. He reportedly topped the Ward 1 Democratic delegate ticket at the Saturday caucus. Cheney says he committed to Ray Flynn before Brian Donnelly got into the governor's race. And will stay with Flynn. If Flynn can't do it, he will go with Donnelly.

PAUL HALEY, (D-Weymouth), House chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, is sponsoring a reception Feb. 17 for William O'Donnell, candidate for Norfolk County district attorney.

The reception will be from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Common Market Restaurant, Willard St. Tickets are $100 per person and can be obtained by calling John Gillis, former city clerk and now county commissioner, at 773-1396.

LOOK ALIKES: Doesn't White House Press Secretary Mike McCurry remind you a little of Quincy's Ed Keohane?

JERRY DACEY is still trying to track down his missing hat, the cap that vanished during a joint meeting of the Quincy Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions last December.

At a recent Rotary meeting, Sharon Beals, the Beechwood Community Center sparkplug, tried to ease his pain by giving him a foot and a half tall Dr. Seuss hat.

His fellow Rotarians started telling him he really looked good in it. But Jerry is a man who recognizes opportunity when it knocks. He told them, okay, he'd wear it throughout the meeting provided everyone coughed up a Happy Buck. It was good for about $60 which will go the club's charitable endeavors.

Meanwhile, while continuing his Sherlock Holmes investigation, Jerry is wearing another cap similar to the missing one. And keeps it in his coat pocket at meetings for safe keeping.

Great, Jerry, but what if someone walks off with the coat?

AN ANCHOR LIKE this one or something else nautical would be an appropriate replacement for the granite ball at the Fore River rotary, just a short distance from the USS Salem and shipbuilding museum.

Scenes From Yesterday

ENTRANCE TO PUBLIC PARK, SQUANTUM, MASS.

THIS is a 1921 POSTCARD view of the entrance to Squantum Park at the end of Dorchester Street in Squantum. At that time, a trolley line ran to the park from the Atlantic station of the Old Colony Railroad. Known originally as Chapel Pastures, this was the site of three of the first resort hotels in Boston Harbor. The natural attractions here were the spectacular view from the Chapel Rocks and in particular, the legendary Squaw Rock. In 1895, a cairn was erected here to mark the site of the landing of Myles Standish. He was the first recorded white man to visit this area that was the home of the sachems or leaders of the Massachusetts Indians. An old legend has it that Indian ghosts still haunt this part of Squantum.

A Tribute To Mary McKinnon

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Close-knit neighborhoods are harder to find today. Most of us are rushing so much, we forget to stop and look at each other and value our friendships.

When I moved to the Atlantic neighborhood back in May 1987, I enjoyed taking my baby daughter for carriage rides down to the beach. It was during one of these strolls I met Mary J. McKinnon for the first time. I always knew her as Mary, the Crossing Guard Lady.

Rain or shine, she was there at her beat across from Charlie's Market guarding "her kids" as they waited for the school bus to Squantum School. She was one of the first people to welcome me to the neighborhood. Over the years I enjoyed my morning chats with her while she always managed to keep one eye on the school kids playing in the nearby driveway of the house she lived in.

She saw my daughter go from being a tiny baby to this year being a student at Atlantic Middle School. I thought of Mary as an eternal fixture in the neighborhood. Even after she moved to Wollaston a few years back, you could tell her heart was still in Atlantic and for the kids who boarded their yellow school bus at the corner of Atlantic and East Squantum Sts.

Once she told me that many of the kids she protected from the traffic were the children of kids she also protected years ago at the very same spot. I found out Mary's last name only after she died. I'm not surprised.

We were on a first-name basis. In fact, she seemed to be on a first-name basis with the entire neighborhood.

I was shocked to her of her sudden and unexpected death.

The children of the neighborhood mourned with their parents at Mary's passing. She was the kind of person all of us—young and old—not only liked but loved. I'm told she had been doing her job at the corner of Atlantic and East Squantum Sts. for 30 years. City Councillor Bruce Ayers told me he vividly remembers back when he was a school kid having Mary help him cross East Squantum on his way to school every morning.

I feel bad that I will no longer be able to chat with her at her corner anymore. An important person who made my daily life richer has passed on and I, like most people, will never forget her. The tears shed by my neighborhood show each of us how important we all are working with each other together.

I believe an important part of the City of Quincy died last week with Mary J. McKinnon but Mary will never die as long as we remember her, her life and her job. The children of the Atlantic Neighborhood have lost one of their best friends. In this spirit, I know that many of my neighbors and their children are working with Councillor Bruce Ayers to find a fitting and lasting memorial to her in the Atlantic neighborhood.

Good-bye Mary, I'll always think of you when I pass by your spot across from Charlie's. You will live there forever!

Best Thing Clinton Can Do Is Resign

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Bill Clinton would do well to take seriously the oft-quoted words of his boyhood hero, John F. Kennedy - "Ask not what your country can do for you; ask what you can do for your country."

In these unhappy days of a scandal-ridden White House when reports of defilement and just plan bad behavior seem to swirl around the president and spill over into our homes, demoralizing our children and grandchildren, the best thing the president can do for our country is to resign. We then might have a chance to restore our White house to some semblance of normalcy.

An early exodus from the presidency would not be a first. The day after Richard Nixon departed, the sun came up and the government continued to operate. No man is indispensable, certainly not one who, since we have known him, has lingered under a cloud of doubt and suspicion.

Mrs. Mary C. Ginnetty
North Quincy

The Statue of Liberty was dedicated in 1886. However, it did not become a national monument until 1924.

Anti-Clinton Material Is 'Brainwashing Propaganda'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

There is a Turkish proverb which says: "If you would pay attention to every dog's barking, you would never reach your destination." Our President seems to know Turkish!

There are two different videos on which President Clinton is depicted giving a hug to La Belle Monica. But those two scenes have been run day and night, 24 hours a day, without interruption. The impression is created that he hugged her 1,000-plus times.

Such a brainwashing propaganda prompted a wonderful clergyman from Quincy to be swayed from the American legal system by which one is considered innocent until proven guilty and from the Christian response to human frailty. Instead, Rev. John Swanson joined, in your newspaper, the barking dogs from television and the press.

Shipyard Unions Vote Strike Authorization

By PAUL HAROLD

Some 1,600 members of Locals 5 and 90 of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America met at the Quincy High School auditorium and voted to give their leaders the right "to call a strike when and if they deem it necessary."

The standing vote was nearly unanimous.

Meanwhile, in Washington, there was no progress in talks between representatives of labor and management of the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics at Fore River.

BLAIR ELECTED S.S. BANK PRESIDENT

Fifty-one year old Robert Blair of Hatherly Rd. was elected president of South Shore National Bank, at the bank's 129th annual meeting of its stockholders.

Blair became the bank's seventh president, succeeding William Martin, who was elected chairman of the board of directors.

Martin joined the bank as a messenger after graduating from Quincy High School in 1917. When he was elected president in 1940, he was the youngest bank president in the United States.

DELLA CHIESA OPPOSES VOLPE'S SALES TAX

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa came out in strong opposition to fellow Republican, Gov. John Volpe's proposed sales tax.

The mayor said, "I'm definitely opposed to the sales tax due to the distribution formula announced by the Governor." He noted that Quincy residents would pay $2 for every $1 returned.

Also voicing opposition was State Rep. George Burke, a Democrat.

School Committeeman Charles Sweeney, who was state president of the Association of School Committees, gave guarded support to the tax plan, noting the need for state aid to education costs.

QUINCY-ISMS

The School Committee gave its approval for a fund-raising campaign to bring the USS Massachusetts to Fall River, from Norfolk, Virginia. The ship was built in Quincy in 1947. A cap of 10 cents per student was placed on solicitations. The state School Building Assistance Board approved preliminary plans for the new $5 million Vo-Tech School. Auditor Alexander Smith and Treasurer were scheduled to meet with the Emergency Financing Board to get approval for the bonds. Quincy Junior College President Kenneth White was the main speaker at the Jewish War Veterans' program, "Classmates Today—Neighbors Tomorrow." QHS senior Jonathan Entin was among the recipients. Committee members were Commander Benjamin Rudner, auxiliary Commander Zelma Brava, and past commanders Irving Issacson and David Freedman. Jaycees president Alfred Sweeney presented Sen. James McIntyre the "Outstanding Young Man of the Year" award. Ground was broken for the $250,000, five-story Kendon Building on Hancock St., near Merrymount Rd. Joel Davidson was on the grade seven honor roll at Central Junior High School. James Randazzo of Lafayette St. died. He was a barber at Angelo's in Quincy Center for 45 years. The school committee voted against converting O'Neil Field at Atlantic Junior High School into an ice rink. Three hundred and fifty people attended a meeting at the Montclair Men's Club, sponsored by Ward 6 Councillor Richard Barry, to discuss problems in the ward. Twin daughters were born at Quincy City Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Uhlar of Quaterdeck Rd. Linda Brown of Clifton St., a senior at Quincy High, was named "Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow." A pension of $57.31 weekly was approved for Park Department employee George Imlay. Mr. and Mrs. James Triglia were co-chairmen for Willard School PTA's Valentine Dance. Robert Lewis succeeded Edgar Phillips as NQHS varsity baseball coach, at a salary of $700. Carol Herbat and Joan Hebert were on the honor roll at Broad Meadows Junior High School. The mayor announced the state upped rates for nursing home patients 90 cents a day to $7.11.

TRADITIONAL LION DANCE ceremony to celebrate the Chinese Lunar New Year was held Feb. 2—the first day of the Year of the Tiger—at Citizens Bank's North Quincy branch. The performance was part of the bank's Asian Outreach Program. Looking on are students from the Acorn Day Care Center and the Curtis Guild School, both in Boston.

A FLUTTERING IN THE HEART

Everyone's heart "races" from time to time, during periods of emotional or physical stress. However, when the heart suddenly pounds for no apparent reason, one of the possible causes may be atrial fibrillation (AF). The trademark symptom of AF is a rapid, irregular beating of the heart's left atrium (upper left chamber of the heart). A person with AF may experience periods when the left atrium beats as many as 400 beats a minute, as compared with the normal 60 to 100. Other symptoms often include feeling lightheaded or dizzy and sensations of discomfort or pressure in the chest. Besides being uncomfortable or even frightening, AF "heart fluttering" can have serious side effects. Increased risk of stroke and heart failure are both associated with AF. Given proper treatment, though, patients may reduce those risks and continue to lead normal lives.

Whatever your concerns about your heart, make sure you see a doctor promptly. With the right diagnosis, treatment, and care, much can be done to alleviate or prevent an increase in heart problems. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, at 700 Congress St., Quincy, we specialize in heart disease. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli at (617) 472-2550. Office hours by appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. You find that we care about you and it shows in everything we do.

P.S. Atrial fibrillation is just one type of irregular heartbeat. Consult your doctor about any heart activity that doesn't feel right.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Valentine's Day Feast

With Valentine's Day on a Saturday, we can make a reservation for two at a cozy room with a fire glowing and the food fabulous—sound romantic?

Traditionally, Valentine's Day is touted to be just that. This year, it could be celebrated at home. You could start with a breakfast pie made the night before.

And with a touch of glamour for dinner, with maybe a glass of chablis and candles burning, how about a shrimp pot pie? Both recipes are pretty simple.

Breakfast Pie

1 1/4 cups milk
8 slices white bread, cut in half diagonally
4 eggs, slightly beaten
1 package of cut asparagus (thawed and drained)
1 cup cooked ham (cut in cubes)
1 recipe of white cream sauce
1 cup shredded cheese (favorite)
1 recipe for white cream sauce with 1/4 cup grated parmesan cheese, salt and pepper to season.

Dip 8 halves of the bread in a mixture of the milk and eggs. Arrange on the bottom of a greased pie plate. Set aside the other halves of bread and egg mixture.

Spread asparagus over bread layer, then the ham. Pour the cream sauce over that and top with the shredded cheese. Dip the other 8 halves of the bread in the egg mixture and cover the top of the pie. Cover and refrigerate overnight.

The next morning, preheat oven to 350 degrees for 45 to 55 minutes, or until puffed and golden brown. Cool for a couple of minutes and then cut.

For dinner at night.

for Donnelly. "I could be wrong," she said.

•Ward 5: City Councilor Timothy Cahill said he believes nine of the 10 delegates in his ward are backing Donnelly, himself included. Another delegate, Joseph Murphy, said he knows of at least six official Donnelly supporters, while he also is leaning in the same direction.

•Ward 6: Delegate Janet

Coughlin confirmed that all 10 delegates are Donnelly supporters.

Harold, who is acting as a spokesman for the former Congressman, said Donnelly has also received the support of all or most of the delegates in other communities that were part of the former 11th Congressional District he used to represent.

According to Harold, Donnelly received has the support of all delegates in several communities, including Abington, Avon, Brockton, Holbrook, Milton, and Whitman, as well as 24 of 28 delegates in Weymouth. Braintree's delegates will caucus tonight (Thursday).

"We've been trying to maximize the number of votes in his home base," said Harold. "We've been able to compile an impressive number so far."

DON'T CRAMP YOUR STYLE

There is no ignoring a foot or leg cramp. It can send you bolting upright from a deep sleep or freeze you in mid-stride while walking. Occasional cramps are often harmless. However, if cramping occurs with increasing frequency, especially during walking or other activity, it may be a warning sign of something more serious. For example, in arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries), cramping occurs when narrowed arteries prevent sufficient blood from reaching the feet, starving them of oxygen. These cramps generally ease when the leg is rested, but as blockage of arteries progresses, cramping may occur while at rest as well. Anyone with severe, persistent foot cramps is encouraged to seek professional help.

If you are suffering from these or any other foot related complaints call us at (617) 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Pkwy., Suite #18, Quincy and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

P.S. Beside cramping, signs in the feet of poor circulation may include brittle toenails, thin skin, and small ulcers.

Hancock Park, School-Community Partnership Start New Ed. Program

The Hancock Park Rehabilitation and Nursing Center in Quincy Center and the Quincy School-Community Partnership have initiated a unique cooperative education program with the Quincy Center for Technical Education.

An official partnership signing was held Monday at the Three Seasons Restaurant in the Center for Technical Education.

The mutually beneficial arrangement provides hands-on experience at Hancock Park for high school students in an interna-tive called the Quincy Public Schools Center for Technical Education, Health and Human Service Program. As a result of the program, Hancock Park has employed three students as Certified Nurse Assistants (CNAs) qualified to provide patient care at Hancock Park.

Hancock Park has assigned mentors for a one-to-one relationship with each student. Having been trained in adolescent psychology, the mentors are prepared to answer any questions the students may have or solve problems and issues that arise.

Hancock Park, owned and managed by Norwell-based Welch Healthcare and Retirement Group, is a 142-bed skilled rehabilitation and nursing center that also provides sub-acute care, specialized Alzheimer's programs, Adult Day Health, and Assisted Living residences.

The Quincy School-Community Partnership is a partnership that supports all school grade levels with their participation in the community. On the high school level, it recognizes the need to identify, develop, enhance, and continually support the opportunities for students to collaborate with businesses in the community. The collaboration is designed to foster academic excellence in the community on educational issues, and on occupational preparedness for the workplace.

Signifying New Name Ribbon Cutting Held At Harvard Vanguard

The physicians and other clinicians of Harvard Pilgrim Health Care's 14 health center, for years known as Harvard Community Health Plan, have formed an independent, non-profit group practice called Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony was held recently at Harvard Vanguard's office at Presidents Place in Quincy Center, one of 14 medical offices transitioning to the new name.

Officials said the decision to establish an independent, non-profit medical group provides a contest for Harvard Vanguard physicians and clinicians to renew their commitment to providing care in a personal style that patients want. They added that it also gives physicians and other clinicians increased control over their group practice and continues their heritage of clinical autonomy.

Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates clinicians provide adult and pediatric medical care along with a variety of specialty services at 14 locations in the metropolitan Boston area. The practice, founded in 1969 by Harvard Medical School Dean Robert H. Ebert, MD, is affiliated with Boston's premier teaching and community hospitals, and has been nationally recognized for clinical innovation, especially in preventive care and the management of chronic conditions like asthma. Harvard Vanguard doctors play an active role in teaching Harvard Medical School students and residents, and are involved in a range of clinically-oriented research.

In addition to Harvard Pilgrim members, the practice cares for individuals with indemnity health insurance and patients who are covered by the HealthCare Value Management PPO.

WJDA Begins New Morning Lineup

WJDA Radio (1300 AM) in Quincy began a new 9 a.m. to noon lineup on Monday.

The station has added "Money Matters," a live, two-hour call-in talk show to its morning programming. The show runs from 9 to 11 a.m. and is followed by Roy Lind's one-hour "Partyline" program that formerly aired after the 10 a.m. news.

"We have taken advantage of a great opportunity to add a very topical show to the station, a show with value and appeal to our listeners," said John Nicolson, station manager.

"Money Matters" features New England Advisory Group financial professionals Barry Armstrong and Conrad Wicks. Listeners will hear guests and experts from all over the finanacial industry. They can also call in with their questions regarding mortgages, mutual funds, IRAs, stock tips or any financial issues that affect their lives.

Armstrong is the founder and president of New England Advisory Group and has achieved success that includes being one of New England's most productive financial services organizations.

Wicks is a longtime business consultant who joined NEAG in 1993. He has expanded his financial planning specialty to areas of tax and estate planning, investment strategies and asset protection.

The show also will air on WESX-AM in Salem, WADN-AM in Concord, WARA-AM in Attleboro and WPLM-AM in Plymouth.

Robert Johnston: A Lesson In Courage

By Dr. CAROL
LEE GRIFFIN

The students of the Woodward School for Girls and its Board of Trustees, parents and staff have had a rare and unforgettable lesson in courage and grace this past year as they watched Headmaster Robert L. Johnston battle with ALS, or Lou Gehrig's disease, with dignity and good humor.

He lost that battle last Thursday afternoon when surrounded by his family in his Houghs Neck home. He died one year after he and his wife Carol received that fatal diagnosis in a Boston hospital.

Throughout his illness he was cared for at home by Carol, a nurse, and his family, assisted by home health nurses. From his living room he overlooked Quincy Bay and the Boston skyline and that setting always brought him peace and tranquility.

This past year the Woodward community watched as Bob progressed from using a cane, to sitting in a wheelchair and finally became a paraplegic on full ventilator support. Up until three weeks ago he was at the school one or two days per week overseeing the school he loved and checking on the progress of "his" students. Despite his approaching death, he was ever-optimistic and his marvelous sense of humor was ever-present.

When students arrived at school last Friday and saw the flag at half-mast and learned that their field trip to the Science Museum had been canceled, they immediately knew that Mr. Johnston had died. Students, staff past and present, and clergy joined together in the school's auditorium to mourn his death and to celebrate his life. Crisis workers from the South Shore Mental Health Center were also present to deal with the grieving students.

Tributes were offered by Deans Susan Hayes and Karen Dwyer-Tower, Chairman of the Board of Trustees Mrs. Terry Wilcox, the Rev. Philip Jacobs, the Rev. Cherie Daniel, and Mr. Johnston's son Peter and daughter Brenda Cuneo.

The themes of the tributes were Mr. Johnston's caring and concern for each student, his efforts to foster self-esteem, his continual quest for academic excellence, and his total dedication to the Woodward School.

Mr. Johnston's life will be celebrated at two Memorial Services, both to be held at Quincy Point Congregational Church. On Friday, Feb. 13 at 7 p.m. there will be a Memorial Service for the Woodward School students and their parents, and for alumni and friends of the school.

On Saturday, Feb. 14 at 10 a.m., the Memorial Service will be for Mr. Johnston's family and friends. A reception will follow each service.

The Johnston family has requested the memorial contributions be made to the Robert L. Johnston Scholarship Fund, Woodward School for Girls, 1102 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169; or to the Quincy Point Congregational Church Access Fund, 444 Washington St., Quincy, MA 02169; or the ALS Association, 21021 Ventura Blvd., Suite 321, Woodland Hills, CA 91364.

The Board of Trustees have established a search committee and are currently searching for a replacement for Johnston, who has been headmaster at Woodward for the past two decades.

(Dr. Carol Lee Griffin recently retired as a Quincy Public Schools assistant superintendent, is a long-time friend of Mr. Johnston and has been assisting him at the Woodward School.)

Hospital Seeks Volunteers

Quincy Hospital has a variety of departments seeking people willing to donate four hours of their time on a regular basis.

Opportunities include:

•Filing for the Radiology Department any time until 10 p.m. Training is provided.

•Reception Desk worker to greet visitors and patients and direct them to various departments. A knowledge of basic computer skills or willingness to learn is necessary. Openings are available weekdays, 8:30 a.m. to noon, noon to 4 p.m., and 4 to 8 p.m.; and Saturdays from 1 to 4 p.m. and 4 to 8 p.m.

•Data entry for the Public Relations Department three to four hours per week. Basic computer skills can be taught.

•Cherry Gift Shop worker, preferably with cash register experience or an interest in learning.

•Medical Library assistant to help with light mailings, photocopying and keeping book shelves organized.

Three Residents On UMass Dean's List

Three Quincy residents have been named to the Dean's List for the fall semester at the University of Massachusetts at Dartmouth.

They are: Leah M. Alves, an English major; Dennis K. Kohut, a sociology major and Louise M. Mahoney, a humanities and social sciences major.

Remembering A Headmaster, Father, And Friend

The following are excerpts from essays and poems written in tribute to the late Woodward School Headmaster Robert Johnston by his daughter, colleagues and students.

They will be included in a book of tributes to be presented to the Johnston family.

Brenda Johnston Cuneo, daughter and Woodward graduate: "Bob Johnston's life work was about caring for others and about enabling others to grow in mind and spirit. His dedication to seeing a task to completion was enviable. His faith in God and the goodness of people inspired his students, co-workers and friends to achieve goals that seem impossible. We thank him for the challenge to go and fight windmills."

Susan Hayes, Dean of Students: "Mr. Johnston was compassionate. He would spend hours with students, giving them the extra attention they needed to feel success. These student sessions were important to Mr. J., and they often took precedence over other meetings! The girls did indeed come first."

"We are all enriched because we knew Mr. J. We admire his passion, his love of Woodward School and its students and staff. We admire his courage in facing his disease and for his refusing to give up. He has taught all of us so very much by the way he lived this past year. We are glad that he has finally been released from the pain he has lived with for the past year."

And we admire, and share, his vision for the future."

Karen Dwyer-Tower, Academic Dean: "Mr. J.'s heart lives here in this unique old building. He loved this school, building and all. He envisioned the expansion of the school, planning, always planning on ways to improve the school and recruit more students."

"An eternal optimist, he believed in possibilities. When some teachers despaired that a student would not or could not learn, Mr. Johnston would preach patience, compassion and communication. Some of the students we are most proud of persevered through school and through adversity because Mr. Johnston believed in them, counseled them and made them part of his family, his Woodward family."

Barbara Segadelli, Director of Development and Admissions: "As a leader he was energetic and dedicated to leading by example. He never asked any of us to do something that he wouldn't do himself. He has been known to wash and wax floors, move furniture and even paint the building inside and out! Not the typical job description for a headmaster, but then Bob was never typical. He was always

Sheets Calls Late Woodward Headmaster 'Irreplaceable'

Mayor James Sheets says Robert Johnston is virtually "irreplaceable" and that the Woodward School would have ceased to exist without the late headmaster's contributions.

Sheets made his comments Tuesday while reflecting about Johnston, who died last Thursday of ALS, or Lou Gehrig's disease.

The mayor, who serves on the Woodward Board of Directors, said he can remember when enrollment at the private school dropped to a total of 68 students. Because of Johnston's commitment, he said, the school survived struggling economic times and now has a student body that totals about 146, he said.

"Bob Johnston was a very unique person," said Sheets. "If it were not for Bob Johnston, in my opinion, the Woodward School would not be here today."

"It was his dedication, commitment, and sacrifice that helped bring the school through its most difficult years. In that sense, a man like Bob Johnston is irreplaceable. He will be greatly missed."

Sheets knew Johnston during all of his 20 years as headmaster, but said he got to know him much better after first taking over as mayor in 1990. The two men helped create the present governance structure at the school established in 1994 that made it more independent of the city, the mayor said.

LIGHT MOMENT is shared between Robert Johnston, the late Woodward School headmaster and an unidentified student.

ways there, sometimes seven days a ready to listen and help all of us, students, parents, teachers, staff and, of course, the alumnae."

Leah Mills and Kathleen Hester, eighth grade students: "You are my hero, you are my star, you are everything in my heart. Now that you're gone I am sad; to tell you the truth, I'm really mad. Because you were my hero, you were my star."

Adrienne Sarofeen, seventh grade student: "Mr. Johnston was a wise man, he always knew what to say.

He lived a life with lots of love, it came and went both ways. He was like God's angel. He always was watching over you like a guide, making sure you were always happy and safe."

Shanda Louis, seventh grade student: "W stands for the wise man Mr. Johnston was. O stands for outrageous; he was outrageous because he would do anything for Woodward's success. O stands for optimism he had, the belief that food will ultimately prevail. D stands for dependable; Mr.

Johnston was always that kind of person. W stands for willing, because he was always so willing to help anyone that needed help. A stands for the amazing person he was. R stands for remarkable, because he was always so worthy of notice and also was extraordinary. D stands for desirous, because his desire was to achieve, and to make the Woodward School for Girls a better place.

"And thanks to Mr. Johnston it is a better place. We love you, and we will miss you, Mr. Johnston."

Teaching Children To Spot Trouble

By McGRUFF THE CRIME DOG

Friendly strangers can be dangerous strangers. Strangers who offer treats to children may be offering threats instead. Teach young children what a stranger is: "anyone they do not know well."

Even if children know how to avoid trouble, sometimes trouble - in the form of dangerous strangers - may find them. Children will encounter strangers when you're not around. Most strangers are well-meaning and not to be feared. But, because children are trusting and vulnerable, they can fall for offers by adults who seem kind, but are not. So, make sure your children learn and follow these basic rules when you're not around.

- NEVER accept rides, candy, gifts, money, or medicine from a stranger.

- NEVER get close to a car if a stranger calls out to you for directions or anything else. It is easy for a stranger to pull you into a car.

- NEVER give your name or address to a stranger.
- NEVER open the door to anyone you don't know.
- NEVER tell callers that you're home alone. Say mom or dad can't come to the phone, and will call back.

- NEVER volunteer family vacation plans or other information about your home.

- ALWAYS avoid strangers who are hanging around rest rooms or the playground and want to play with you or your friends.

What about the persistent stranger? Here's what the experts say you should teach your kids.

- If a stranger in a car bothers you, turn and run in the opposition direction. It's not easy for a car to change direction suddenly.

- When frightened, run to the nearest person you can find - a police officer, a person working in a yard, or a neighborhood house or store. While you should always stay away from strangers who approach you, it's okay for you to ask an adult you do not know for help.

- If a stranger tries to follow you on foot or tries to grab you, run away, scream and make lots of noise. The last thing a dangerous stranger wants is a lot of attention.

Kids spend a good part of their lives at school - in the classroom and on the playground. Strangers who want to hurt children know this, too. Find out what the school's policy is for children leaving school with adults other than the parent or guardian. Also find out what school security measures exist to insure students' safety.

Get together with other parents if you find these measures lacking or weak, and work together with school officials and local law enforcement to beef up school security.

You won't be sorry!

Are Your Teeth Too Big?

DR. FRED ATTARZADEH

From time to time a set of teeth will appear to have been meant for a larger jaw—and then it looks as if there are too many teeth in the mouth.

Actually, nature rarely puts too many teeth in a mouth. She counts them out very carefully before installation. However, when teeth are very large, it sometimes looks as if there are too many teeth in the mouth. We call this "crowding" and we can predict at an early age if the adult mouth will be crowded.

If severe crowding will result as you get older, we know that certain permanent teeth will have to be removed. This will allow the remaining teeth to erupt into a more normal position.

When To Remove Baby Teeth

If your permanent front teeth do not have room enough to erupt properly, then it is often advisable to remove certain of the baby teeth in sequence. This is called "serial extraction."

DR. FRED ATTARZADEH

•To minimize the severe crowding and severe rotations of the front teeth.

•To reduce the chances for tooth decay and tissue damage that often occur when teeth are crowded.

•To permit your teeth to be straightened, resulting in a healthier and better looking mouth.

The taking out of baby teeth does not permanently solve the problem, nor does it eliminate the necessity for removing permanent teeth later.

Serial extraction can be recommended by your family dentist or "pedodontist" (children dentistry specialist) and performed at the appropriate time. It is one of the kindest procedures we have found for guiding permanent teeth into a more normal relationship.

Serial extraction affects each individual jaw separately but does nothing to coordinate the two. The way the two jaws meet and relate to each other is sometimes called your "bite." Orthodontic appliances are usually required at a later date to complete the correction.

The orthodontist's job is to control and move teeth with maximum accuracy and efficiency. The orthodontist's tools are called "appliances" which can be removable, fixed (braces), or a combination of both.

[Dr. Fred Attarzadeh's practice is located at 1050 Hancock St., Quincy. For an appointment, call 471-4600.]

What Is Chiropractic?

By DR. THOMAS KRETZ

The purpose of this article is to explain what chiropractic is in our office, what it is not, what to expect as a patient. Then you will have the information you need to decide.

Chiropractic is the science of locating and reducing the interference with the transmission of nerve energy in the human body caused by the vertebral subluxation. My goal is to correct the vertebral subluxation (spinal bones misalignments) because they in and of themselves are a detriment to the function of the body and optimized potential.

Science calls the condition the vertebral subluxation complex and it consists of five components. They are: 1. Abnormal spinal alignment (spinal kinopathology); 2. Pain, tingling, numbness, burning sensation (neuropathophysiology); 3. Muscle spasm (myopathology); 4. swelling (histopathology); 5. Degenerative changes (pathophysiology).

What are the causes of the vertebral subluxation? The birth process, slips and falls, sports injuries, poor posture habits, automobile and work injuries, the aging process and improper lifting and bending.

The correction is made by the chiropractor's hand, the main objective to allow the body's ability to better express itself by reducing the interference in the nervous system. I do not prescribe drugs or perform surgery.

People often think of chiropractors as "back doctors" because we work on the spine. This is because the spinal vertebrae covers and protects the nerve system, which is our main concern.

People generally tend to feel better not because of some secret treatment but simply because their body begins to function normally.

Patients usually consult my office for one of three reasons: 1. To get symptom relief; 2. Preventative care; 3. Wellness care.

I think that is the main objective of other health professions as well, keeping the patient well rather than sick care.

There are three types of care for the vertebral subluxation complex in this office: 1. Intensive care...with frequent visits to relieve symptoms if possible; 2. Rehabilitative care...

to help stabilize the spine; 3. Maintenance...wellness care to keep well.

The number of visits vary per patients due to a variety of factors: 1. Age of the patient; 2. The nature and age of the injury; 3. The amount of damage; 4. Physical condition and habits of the patient.

Chiropractic in this office is not a once in a life visit. It is a lifetime lifestyle, to help reach optimal potential.

In closing, perfect health consists of wholeness (having all the parts) function 100 percent all the time. It is the purpose of the nerve system to control the function of organs and tissues. The spinal vertebrae covers the nerve systems, so it is important that we protect the function by proper spinal motions. If you are interested in the chiropractic lifestyle please contact my office. I conduct patient health workshops on Tuesday evenings free to the public. Please call for a reservation.

DID YOU KNOW...

Tobacco doesn't only hurt the user. It hurts those around the user also. Just being near tobacco smoke increases a person's chance for getting cancer or lung disease. Some people are allergic to tobacco smoke.

Studies show that pregnant women who smoke may be hurting their babies. For example, babies may be smaller than average or be born prematurely. Infants exposed to tobacco smoke are more likely to die of crib death or get lung disease than those not exposed.

Healthy Living

Why fluids are important

Fluids dissolve and transport food substances. They break down products of metabolism in the body. They keep mucous membranes moist and regulate the body temperature through sweating.

Fluid needs per day: (Average, estimate)
85 fl. oz.

33.8 fl. oz. from food
50.7 fl. oz. from beverages

Drinking fluids is good because:

- It improves blood circulation
- It makes you more fit
- It improves your concentration

The Truth About Orange Eating

(NAPS)—Each year, consumers spend billions of dollars on dietary supplements from vitamin packs and powdered drinks to energy bars and sports drinks. More and more Americans are turning to these "quick fixes" to improve or complement their overall health and achieve nutritional and beauty goals. But experts argue that nature's greatest source of nourishment is often overlooked—the whole food. Oranges, for example, are a comprehensive source of important vitamins, minerals, fiber, and other healthful ingredients—not to mention cost efficient.

Whole foods—especially fruits, vegetables and grains—are nature's "power bars," containing an all-natural assortment of ingredients that work together to deliver the greatest nutritional punch.

"The whole orange offers much more than just a whole day's supply of vitamin C," says Dr. Liz Applegate, a nutritionist and faculty member at the University of California at Davis. "Packed with more vitamins, fiber, folic acid and disease-fighting agents called phytochemicals, oranges far surpass food supplements, derivatives, processed foods and even juice."

Battling to Lose Weight?

(NU) - Fads, quick fixes and potentially dangerous drugs come and go, but one organization has had a remarkably consistent message about weight loss since 1948.

TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly), the oldest nonprofit weight-loss organization in the world, remains focused on the only proven method for weight-loss success: healthy eating habits, physician-prescribed weight goals, exercise and ongoing emotional support from others.

TOPS serves 275,000 members in the United States, Canada and 14 foreign countries. Check out the TOPS Web site at www.tops.org.

Cottage cheese, pot cheese, farmer cheese and skim milk ricotta contain about 1/3 less calories, but most of the nutrients, of regular cheese.

Dietary fiber, found only in oranges and other plant foods, may lower the risk of heart disease, stroke and some forms of cancer. Just one orange boasts 28 percent of the Daily Value for dietary fiber.

Compared to a glass of orange juice, a navel orange contains more fiber, bioflavonoids and other phytochemicals that recent research suggests act as powerful anti-aging agents. According to Applegate, the most beneficial nutrients are often located in the pulp or skin of a fruit or vegetable, which are usually eliminated by the juicing process. Applegate recommends that people follow the nutritional guidelines of the National Cancer Institute (NCI), which includes at least five servings of fruits and vegetables daily.

While American consumers are spending approximately $50 billion a year on healthcare, many healthcare professionals believe prevention to be one of the keys to good health. According to the NCI, which estimates that as much as 70 percent of all cancer deaths in the U.S. are related to diet, once people embrace disease prevention through whole foods, cancer deaths may be reduced by one third. Since Sunkist oranges are a whole food, they provide many benefits that cannot be bottled in a jar of dietary supplements, including folic acid, fiber and carbohydrates, which deliver important fuel for the body, particularly the brain. And during exercise, the body's muscles utilize stored carbohydrates called glycogen, which is replenished by eating carbohydrate-rich foods like oranges.

In increasing numbers, consumers are also seeking alternative ways to help themselves stay healthy. The compelling medical research on the power of an orange has got some people returning "back to basics." Hippocrates, the father of modern medicine, said, "Let your food be your medicine and let your medicine be your food." Over two millennia later, we've finally come full circle.

For more information on the benefits of oranges, check out the new Sunkist web site at www.just1.com.

Answers To Health Questions

(NAPS)—These days, does it seem you need a medical degree just to get your simple health questions answered? Would you feel more comfortable talking with your doctor if you were more informed? What if you could speak with other people who have had similar symptoms?

The Internet has become both a research tool and a place to meet people with similar interests, hobbies, and even medical conditions. One resource, Better Health & Medical (<http://www.betterhealth.com>), is staffed with experts and populated with people who share concerns about their health. Established in 1993, it is a place filled with easy-to-digest information, important facts, and thousands of everyday people who are searching for answers, discussing medical issues, and helping each other find information and support.

Better Health & Medical is a community online, open 24-hours each day, where people discuss real-life topics that range from pregnancy and asthma to cancer and AIDS. With more than 2,000 health topics covered, 50 message boards, and 500 regular support groups and forums, you are likely to find information of interest to you.

If you're looking for quick answers about treating cancer, quitting smoking, or looking better as you age, Better Health can be found through America Online (keyword: betterhealth) or on the World Wide Web at <http://www.betterhealth.com>. All that timely health information is only a couple of clicks away.

State Funds Available For Home Repairs

State Rep. Ronald Mariano announces availability of approximately $250,000 in state funds for the rehabilitation and repair of homes in the Quincy Point area.

The loans are available through Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services (QNHS), local non-profit rehabilitation agency and affordable housing developer that has helped hundreds of Quincy homeowners repair their homes with low-interest loans and grants since 1981.

The Washington Street area in Quincy Point recently received a CARD (Commercial Area Revitalization District) designation from the state Department of Housing and Community Development.

Mariano praised the low-interest loan program as "one part of significant efforts to renew the lower Washington Street area."

For more information or to apply for the low-interest home repair loans, call QNHS at 770-2227.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Advice you receive may be off the mark. Guests could drop by at an inappropriate time or someone you're expecting later in the week may be delayed in arriving. Be flexible this weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You may be talking to someone this week who has a big line. Remain properly skeptical. Keep business aims realistic. Weekend social plans may be subject to chance.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) In your pursuit of good times, remember to honor prior commitments and stay on top of responsibilities. It's not the best week for a do-it-yourself project.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You're in a pleasure-seeking mood this week and may be inclined to take foolish risks. Stay away from long-shot gambles. This weekend, you're a bit impulsive in matters of the heart.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Money owed you may be late in arriving. Don't part with joint funds until you check with your mate first. This weekend, have enjoyable times without being overly indulgent in food or drink.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A family member may be unable to attend a planned get-together this week. It's best to be sure of a person's taste before purchasing a gift. This weekend, watch your wallet.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Someone could keep you waiting early in the week. Be leery of those who promise more than they can deliver. Business and pleasure do not combine favorably over the weekend.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Though there'll be time for socializing this week, you'll also want to devote some time to a work-related project. Try not to go overboard on spending on the home this weekend.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) The pleasures of food and drink may be alluring at this time. Be careful not to abuse your health. Keep the lines of communication open this weekend with those close to you.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You have some difficulty making up your mind about a possible purchase. Moderation should be your keyword this week since you have a tendency to go to extremes.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You should be discriminating about which social invitations you accept. Some are more fruitful than others and more enjoyable. Travelers meet with unexpected expenses this weekend.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You have innovative business ideas this week, but it's not the time to push them. When shopping over the weekend, be careful not to overspend on a luxury item. Be sure you know your prices.

QHS Plays North Saturday Presidents' Unbeaten Streak Ends At Nine

It was deja vu all over again last Saturday for the Quincy High School hockey team, which dropped a 5-4 decision to Barnstable for the second time this season.

The Old Colony League setback lowered the Presidents' league record to 9-3-2 and its overall mark to 11-3-4. It also snapped Quincy's nine-game unbeaten streak, which began Jan. 14 with a win over North Quincy.

Entering this week's play, Quincy was third in the OCL standings, trailing league-leading Silver Lake (11-2-1 OCL) and Falmouth (10-3-2 OCL).

With their league title hopes all but dashed, the Presidents shift their focus towards finishing the regular season with two wins, earning them a higher seeding in the tournament.

"We play Silver Lake and North Quincy this week, so have to go out and prove we can go with the best," said Quincy head coach Bob Sylvia. "Not winning the OCL is not the end of the world by any means. We're in the tournament, and we'd like to get a good seed with a couple more wins."

Quincy a 3-1 defeat last month, came to town yesterday (Wednesday) for a 7 p.m. face off.

The Presidents' regular season finale comes Saturday at 7:45 p.m. when they take on rival North Quincy at Quincy Youth Arena. Quincy edged the Red Raiders, 4-3, on a third-period goal last month and aim to sweep the season series.

"This time around, the pressure is off both teams, since both are in the tournament," said Sylvia, who added that he could not recall a year in which both school's hockey teams qualified for the tournament. "I expect a real good game, like the first one, with an exciting finish."

In the loss to Barnstable, goal scorers for Quincy included senior Bob Harvey, junior assistant captain Joe Vallatini and junior Sean Lefebvre. Senior co-captain Chris Haidul remained first in OCL scoring with 26 goals and 11 assists (37 points) heading into this week's action.

Earlier OCL action saw Quincy and host Falmouth skate to a 3-3 tie last Wednesday night. Quincy held a 3-2 lead until the Clippers' Henry Sabens notched the equalizer with just seven seconds remaining. For the Presidents, Harvey and Vallatini each had a goal and an assist and Haidul netted a goal.

Despite a hat trick and an assist by Johnny "Big John" McInnis, the Quincy Youth Hockey Mite A's fell to Charlestown, 6-5, on Sunday.

Quincy's Stephen McDonagh netted two goals, Teddy "Ballgame" Walsh dishd out three assists, Jimmy "Fitzy" Fitzpatrick had two assists and Dana Lopes and Mike Maxey each chipped in with an assist.

Other standouts for Quincy were Brian Sullivan and Chris Rooney, who played strong defensively, and Matt Connors, who turned in a solid game in goal.

NQ Faces Quincy Saturday Raiders Roll Past D-Y, Clinch Tourney Berth

By LIAM FITZGERALD

With its fourth straight victory, a 7-3 triumph last Saturday over Dennis-Yarmouth, the North Quincy High School hockey team secured itself a berth in the MIAA state tournament.

The Red Raiders, who were hovering around the .500 mark in late January, improved to 8-5-1 in the Old Colony League, 10-6-1 overall.

"For a team that won just eight games the last two years, this year's been quite a turnaround," said North head coach Bob Doyle. "They're a good group of kids who have kept a positive attitude and have a good chemistry with each other."

Along with the players, Doyle praised the tireless efforts of his coaching staff, assistants Mark Boussy, Chip Foley, Larry Costello and Tom Bourque.

"The coaching staff has done a tremendous job keeping the team focused," said Doyle, who returned to the bench Saturday following a two-game suspension.

"They ran the team smoothly in my absence and have seen their hard work result in four straight victories."

Now that they've secured a spot in the tournament, the NQ's goal is to conclude the regular season with four victories in as many games. The final stretch began yesterday (Wednesday) at Bridgewater-Raynham in an 8 p.m. OCL tilt.

Then, the long-awaited rematch between North and rival Quincy takes place Saturday at 7:45 p.m. at Quincy Youth Arena. A third-period goal by Quincy edged North, 4-3, in the first meeting Jan. 14.

"We've been looking forward to playing them again, and expect it to go down to the wire again," said Doyle. "Both teams are in great shape, so it should be an interesting matchup."

Next Monday at noon, NQ visits Blue Hill Regional Tech for a non-league clash. North wraps up the regular season with a non-league game next Wednesday at 9:15 a.m. against Rockland.

In the victory over host D-Y, North was sparked by junior Chad Fitzpatrick (hat trick) and senior John Barron (goal, two assists).

Senior Mike Powers added a goal and an assist, senior Bill Walker, junior Mike Sullivan and freshman Joe Cronin dishd out two assists apiece. Junior Ryan Barrett and sophomore Ross O'Driscoll each netted a goal, and junior Paul Markarian (30 points, second in OCL) chipped in an assist.

In OCL action last Wednesday, the Red Raiders rifled 62 shots en route to an 11-0 romp over visiting Taunton. Sullivan and Markarian each notched a hat trick and an assist for NQ.

Other standouts included Fitzpatrick (goal, five assists), O'Driscoll (three assists), Walker (two assists), Powers and senior Brian Gates (one goal, one assist each), Cronin and senior Jeff Glynn (one goal apiece), and senior Tom Vitt and junior John Bertucci (one assist each). Junior goaltender Chris Carthas recorded his second shutout of the season.

Quincy Boys' JV Hoops Off And Running

The Quincy High School boys' junior varsity basketball team continues to roll over the competition, compiling a 14-1 record following a win over Falmouth last week.

According to coach Ray Papile, the secret to Quincy's success has been the players' hard work on and off the court.

"They're not just a group of great kids—they're also good students who get the job done in the classroom," said Papile. "The easy part for me is coaching when you have a group of players who are all friends and get along with each other."

The team is comprised of six sophomores and five juniors. The sophomore group includes captain Nick DiStasi, Andy Tam, Thiago Abranches, Tim Pezzullo, and Larry and Keith Antonellis (both were recently called up to the varsity squad). Juniors on the JV include Ozgar Berk, Dan Paluzzi, Jeremy Theberge, Jason Goldrick, and Bard Hajrizaj. Other players include the freshmen combination of Marky Robinson and Dave Centrella.

"They (Robinson and Centrella) have both done a great job," said Papile. "These two young men are sure to be big assets to the basketball program for the next few years."

Joining Papile on the staff is volunteer assistant and former Quincy High player Chris Beatrice, in his third year on the staff.

"He's not only familiar to me, but he's also familiar with our program and his philosophy," said Papile, adding that "if you're looking for an exciting night of basketball, you need to catch a Quincy High School boys' basketball game."

North Hosts Quincy Friday After Tough Loss, NQ Bounces Back Vs. B-R

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Despite the fact his club was about to face league-leading Bridgewater Raynham, Ted Stevenson had a good feeling about how his North Quincy High School boys' basketball team would perform.

It turned out North's head coach was right on target, as the rejuvenated Red Raiders rolled over the visiting Trojans, 87-64, in a key Old Colony League clash last Friday night.

"I thought we would come out and play well, because I could feel the intensity in the locker room," said Stevenson. "With this win, we showed we can play with the best when we put together a solid effort."

The Red Raiders, who improved to 10-4 in the OCL and 12-6 overall, were coming off a disappointed three-point home loss to an undermanned Silver Lake squad that knocked NQ out of contention for the league crown.

"I was real proud of how they bounced back from that Silver Lake game," said Stevenson. "We took a second look at ourselves and realized we weren't doing the best we could."

NQ wraps up its regular season this week with OCL games at Falmouth Tuesday and against rival Quincy Friday at 7:30 p.m. North won the first battle on the Presidents' home court, 70-60, but is well aware of Quincy's intentions in the rematch.

"It'll be a war; it always is, no matter what the standings are," said Stevenson. "We want to help ourselves in seeding and get at least one home game. We expect them to come in pumped, because a win could make their season."

"Our seniors (Brian Ross, Mark Stanton, John Sullivan, Brian Linskey, Jay Turner, Colin Shea, Steve Wilson and Matt Norton) would love to go out sweeping Quincy, so we have a lot of incentive as well."

In the victory over B-R, NQ took control right from the opening tip, building a 30-point lead en route to a 51-point first half outburst.

Leading the way as he has all season was senior center and captain Brian Ross, who poured in 48 points (the fifth time he has scored 40 or more points this season) and collected 16 rebounds.

Other key contributors were senior forward Mark Stanton (13 points) and senior guard Jay Turner (nine points) and Brian Linskey (six assists, four steals). Sophomore guard Matt McCann, seeing his first varsity action, came off the bench and hit a couple of big shots, said Stevenson.

In OCL action last Wednesday, North fell to visiting Silver Lake, 63-60, despite the absence of senior Jon Bond (20 points per game average).

Trailing by three with eight seconds left, North had one last chance to tie the game, but Ross (36 points) misfired on a three-point attempt. Turner corralled the rebound and unleashed a three-pointer from the corner, but that also did not fall as the final buzzer sounded.

Quincy Visits NQ Friday Presidents Misfire In Loss To Falmouth

By LIAM FITZGERALD

A problem that has plagued the Quincy High School boys' basketball team, inaccurate free throw shooting, resurfaced last Wednesday in a 67-54 loss to Falmouth.

The visiting Presidents, who missed 11 of 17 free throws, fell to 3-12 in the Old Colony League and 3-13 overall following the league setback. The victorious Clippers, meanwhile, connected on 17 of 20 from the free throw line, including 14 in the decisive second half.

"We missed key free throws down the stretch, and they made theirs when it counted, which was the big difference," said Quincy head coach John Franceschini. "If not for our free throw shooting woes, we were in it with a chance to win."

Among the highlights for Quincy were the performances of sophomore Dan Kelly (10 points, nine assists), junior Dennis Palardy (six points, seven rebounds) and senior co-captain Jim Quigley (six points, 14 rebounds).

Franceschini was also impressed with the play of sophomores Keith and Larry Antonellis, who recently were called up from the junior varsity squad.

"Keith and Larry had outstanding seasons at the JV level and give us a little more defense on the varsity, which is great to see," he said.

This week, the Presidents face two of the OCL's elite clubs, Bridgewater-Raynham (Tuesday) and rival North Quincy (Friday, 7:30 p.m., NQ gym).

"We know we'll have our hands full against two big teams," said Franceschini. "If we control the boards and shoot well, we should be in both games."

In the first meeting against North, the host Presidents had no answer inside for center Brian Ross, who poured in 40 points in a 70-60 Raider triumph. Franceschini knows that a repeat performance by Ross would spell doom for the Presidents.

"We need to play good, solid defense and hopefully control Ross a little bit," he said. "A player like that you don't stop, you just try to control."

And for the seven seniors (co-captains Quigley and Jared Downey, Kevin Moore, Rob Downey, Steve Clarke, Manny Ashford, Steve Maze) on the Presidents' squad, they want nothing more than to win their last battle against the Red Raiders.

"It's a special game for the seniors," said Franceschini. "I'm very proud of them, because they kept focused on the positive things and helped keep the younger kids focused, too."

Next Monday and Tuesday, the Presidents host the ERA Central Real Estate Quincy Invitational Tournament. Monday at 6 p.m., Hanover plays Stoughton, followed at 7:30 p.m. by Quincy against Milton.

Tuesday's consolation game is at 6 p.m., followed by the championship tilt at 7:30 p.m.

Quincy's Steve Scigliano Back In Ring Feb. 14 At Braintree Armory

Quincy heavyweight Steve Scigliano, The Fighting Tunnel Rat, returns to the ring Saturday, Feb. 14 in a four-rounder at the Brain-tree Armory.

The main event will pit South Boston junior middleweight Shaun Creagan (6-0-2) against Rick Edson

(8-7-2) of Laconia, N.H., in a rematch of their exciting draw last month at Foxwoods Casino in Connecticut.

Joining Scigliano and Creagan on the card are O'Malley's Gym stablemates Tommy Attardo (7-0), a South Boston welterweight, and cruiserweight Dave Lawhorn (3-1).

Making their pro debuts on the card in four-round contests are Marshfield middleweight and Goody Petronelli protégé Jeff Boudreau, Dorchester bantamweight Richie Mallard, South Boston welterweight Jimmy LeBlanc, and Stoughton middleweight Bob Chase. Also boxing on the card will be Lawrence junior middleweight Reggie Brown (2-0).

The first bout starts at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $20 general admission. For more information, call O'Malley's Gym at (617) 786-9547.

QUIT SMOKING

Bluish or grayish smoke that lingers in a cloud for a relatively long time after starting up the engine is something that requires attention. This smoke is caused by oil burning in the combustion chamber, usually due to worn valve seals, valve guides, or piston rings, which are common conditions on high-mileage engines. While faulty valve components limit the scope of the repair to the cylinder head, worn piston rings require a complete engine overhaul. If a heavy smoking condition is left uncorrected, a close watch should be maintained on the engine oil level. The burning oil will also likely foul spark plugs to cause rough idling, hard starting, and poor engine performance.

Is your engine starting to burn oil? If so see your service technician. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO invites your inquiries about most anything connected with the care of your car or light truck. Our highly skilled, ASE Certified technicians never take any shortcuts and will do everything necessary to keep your vehicle in safe, running condition. We know you'll love our friendly atmosphere at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781) 843-1550. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored.

HINT: If blue or gray smoke coming from the tailpipe upon starting the car clears after the engine warms up, the problem may simply be due to clogged oil passages in the cylinder head (often caused by dirty oil.)

North Hosts QHS Friday

NQ's Objective: Sweep East Boston, Quincy

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Today (Thursday) at 4 p.m., the North Quincy High School girls' basketball team visits East Boston, a non-league opponent North has rolled over twice this season.

"We should beat them again, but you never know," said North head coach Ken Panaro. "We can't afford to overlook them, because a win would help us get a better seed in the tournament."

The game against East Boston follows three contests against some of the stronger Old Colony League squads: Silver Lake (a 59-40 loss last Wednesday, Bridgewater-Raynham (a 57-44 loss last Friday) and Falmouth (Tuesday).

The Red Raiders close out their regular season by hosting rival Quincy on Friday at 6 p.m. In the first meeting at Quincy, North built a comfortable lead only to see the Presidents rally and nearly pick up the victory.

"We expect to beat them in our gym, but we know it'll be tough," said Panaro. "They've haven't had much success, though it's always nice to knock off your rival. It would make them a little happier. Our girls are looking forward to that game, and want to go into the post-season with at least a pair of wins."

In the setback against B-R, the Red Raiders fell behind by 16 after the first half and despite a solid second half, could not complete the comeback.

"It was one of those games where they got off to a big start and we couldn't get back into it," said Panaro. "We got within seven, but by then the girls were exhausted. I was pleased with the effort, but it wasn't enough against a very good team."

NQ was paced by junior Kristen Bowes (12 points) and senior co-captains Laurie Flynn (nine points, 11 rebounds) and Kristen Keohane (nine points).

Against Silver Lake, the Red Raiders trailed by just three at halftime, but scored just 14 points in the second stanza. NQ senior co-captain Kerry Skehan scored a team-high 13 points.

"We just fell apart in the second half," said Panaro. "We had a lot of opportunities but were missing easy shots."

Noble: 'This Is Our Tournament Game'

With just one victory heading into this week's play, the Quincy High School girls' basketball team has one thing in mind: beat rival North Quincy at its home court (Friday, 6 p.m.).

"We hope to end the season on a positive note," said Quincy head coach Bob Noble. "When Quincy and North meet, you can throw out the records, no matter what sport. The intensity will be there, and the girls' level of play goes up another notch."

"North's got an excellent team, and Ken (Panaro, NQ head coach) has done a great job with his kids, getting into the tournament. We'll definitely come to play Friday night. This will be like our tournament game."

Noble and the Presidents also recall how the first clash between the rivals on Quincy's home court went down to the wire, with North pulling out a 54-49 Old Colony League triumph.

"The last time we played, we put together a nice comeback, but it wasn't quite enough," said Noble. "I think this one could come down to the last minute as well. We're all looking forward to it and hope to play well enough to win."

The Presidents (1-13 OCL, 1-17 overall) geared up for Friday's contest with a game against visiting OCL power Bridgewater-Raynham Tuesday.

In recent non-league action, the shorthanded Presidents fell to host Marshfield, 62-38. Quincy was missing the inside presence of senior Erin Barry, who scored 16 points in the first game against Marshfield, but was unavailable for the rematch.

Senior co-captain Kerry Duffy, who along with fellow senior co-captain Pam Gray has played consistent basketball all season, led Quincy with nine points.

Against OCL foe Falmouth last Wednesday, the Presidents fell to the visiting league leaders, 63-36. Barry sparked Quincy with 11 points and seven rebounds and Gray chipped in nine points.

North Girls' Track Sweeps Quincy, 79-6

The North Quincy High School girls' winter track team finished off its dual meet season with a 79-6 victory over rival Quincy last week, improving its record to 4-3.

North, which won all 11 events, was led by winners Kelly Lockhead (hurdles), Liz Leuchte (dash), Sarah Houghton (mile), Linda Nguyen (1000), Genevieve O'Brien (600), Lynda Wilson (2-mile), Sarah Beston (high jump) and Nicole Bertone (shotput).

Also victorious for NQ were the 4x200 relay team of Leuchte, Lahar, May Ling Luc and Ha Le Tran, and the 4x400 team of Genevieve and KellyRose O'Brien, Christine Marre and Christine Cote.

Wilson qualified for the states in the 2-mile with a 12:33.8 clocking.

North competed in the OCL Championships Tuesday and will bring several athletes to the Class A state meet Feb. 21 at the Reggie Lewis Center.

Quincy Girls' Track Keeps Improving

The Quincy High School girls' winter track team continues to be successful as the season draws to a close. Last Friday, despite a strong effort by the Quincy squad, rival North Quincy came out on top, 79-6.

Senior Marissa Ross came in third in the hurdles, freshman Katie McEvoy was second in the 50 and senior Diane Hanlon placed third in the 2-mile.

"Diane has been doing great all year," said coach Robin Welinsky. "She volunteered to run the 2-mile only because no one else wanted to try it. Each time she runs the event, her score improves tremendously."

Other members of Quincy's squad are: juniors Sara Ewen (shotput), Connie Wong (300/600, 4x200 relay) and Kimberly DiBona (50), sophomores Amy Gordon (shotput), Holly Archer (300), Airy Lau (50), Diana DiPietro (300), Diane Lynch (50), Samantha Cohen (shotput) and Devin McCaughlin (50).

Freshmen include Caitlyn Flaherty (50, 300, 4x200 relay), Breanna Picard (300), Ilana Saxe (shotput), Courtney Thompson (300), Jessica Pierre (300), Katie McEvoy (50, 400, 4x200 relay), Laura Kane (600, 4x200 relay) and Mary Kane (1-mile).

Presidents Win Battle Of Wrestling Rivals

The Quincy High School wrestling team picked up its first Old Colony League win, defeating rival North Quincy, 36-23, at North's gym last Thursday night.

Dan Kane's pin of Sean Foley in the 171-pound weight class secured the victory for Quincy.

"It was a good, competitive match and it came down to the next-to-last match before we pulled it out," said Quincy coach Lou Venturilli.

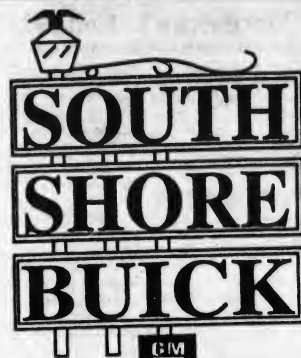

Also winning via the pin for Quincy were Pat Harrington (130), Dan Dorsey (119), Tony Davy (135), Ismail Aydugan (140) and Mike Turner (189).

North's winners by pin were Scott Keefe (103, Matt Kane (112), Vin Traietti (160) and Chris Barra (152).

Over the weekend, the Presidents (7-16) topped Duxbury, 38-21, and lost, 48-18, to Whitman-Hanson. Quincy's double winners were Jasper Tan (112) and Davy (135). Picking up wins Jimmy Tan (119), Turner (189), Kris Ricupero (heavyweight), Harrington (130) and Kane (171).

Robert L. Johnston, 64
Woodward School HeadmasterROBERT JOHNSTON

well as the Woodward School For Girls Foundation. He helped gain the school independence from financial and managerial control by the City of Quincy.

He left the school for three years to work at Flavin & Flavin Real Estate while remaining president of the Woodward Foundation. He returned to the school in 1992 as interim head and was later rehired as head.

The school's enrollment redoubled between 1992 and 1997, and renovations were again undertaken so that the school could celebrate its Centennial in grand style.

He and his wife, Carol (Schuerch) Johnston, whom he married in 1958 and who survives him, were both active in the Quincy Point Congregational Church. He was a member of the Stewardship Committee and served two years as its chairman.

He had been a member of the Board of Christian Education and the By-Laws Revision Committee, Leadership Development Committee, and Church Growth Committee. He also served as Church Moderator. Last year, the church presented Mr. and Mrs. Johnston with its Churchmanship Award.

Before taking the job at the Woodward School, he was Administrative Vice-President of the Chandler School for Women in Boston.

In 1975, he joined the Leland Powers School of Radio, Television and Theatre where he was executive director, administrative vice president, and later, president. He increased enrollment 300 percent and secured accreditation for the school from the National Association of Trade & Technical Schools.

Born in Milton, he moved to Quincy when he was 10. He was active in the Houghs Neck Congregational Church and in Boy Scouting.

While a student at Boston University, he served as associate pastor at Houghs Neck Church. He graduated from Boston University School of Theology and was ordained in the Congregational Church in 1958.

He served 13 years as Minister of Edwards Church in Framingham. While there he served on many local, state and national educational committee for the United Church of Christ and advised many youth forums on morality and peace.

He founded the Suburban Coalition Against Racism and chaired a committee which settled Cuban refugees in Framingham. He founded the Framingham Educational Guild and served as director of the Jonathan House Kindergarten.

In 1972, he joined the International Training Institute in Chicago. He taught seminars on religious education throughout the United States and Canada. Mr. and Mrs. Johnston also spent a year in Japan and Korea where he taught.

He is also survived by a son, Peter D. Johnston of Roslindale; a daughter, Brenda L. Cuneo of Abington; his mother, Isabella (Ramsey) Johnston; a brother, David R. Johnston of Quincy; two grandchildren; and many nieces and nephews. He was the son of the late John L. Johnston.

A Thought For The WeekSCOTT DEWARE

Abraham Lincoln was a great man and patriot. Three factors stood out in Lincoln's life and contributed to his greatness.

The first was his moral character. Lincoln believed that he lived in a universe controlled by moral law. To him it was stupid and hideous that men should attempt to break that moral law. He believed that he, the nation of which he was a part, and all the individuals in the world were under the control of moral forces which they could defy only at their peril.

The second factor in his makeup was his sound common sense. Lincoln believed that the principles and policies which worked in the management of a grocery store at New Salem, the post office over which he presided, and the little farm his father owned, could be made to work in Washington in handling of a nation.

The third outstanding factor in his life was his unusual spiritual insight. He could see straight into the hearts of men. He had a childlike dependence upon God. Every situation, no matter how secular it might appear, was to him a spiritual situation.

Lincoln was a man of great ability, but his overpowering genius lay in his penetrating insight into spiritual truth.

Emergency Management Youth Install Squantum Gardens Fence

Quincy Emergency Management's Youth Services Explorer Post One, Boy Scouts of America recently installed slats and tracks to a newly-installed chain link fence at Squantum Gardens. The site is located at the former Naval housing property.

Emergency Management Deputy Director Anthony Siciliano supplied refreshments for the team. He said he encourages middle and high school students to become actively involved in community service.

"Young adults are mainly recruited from the Quincy Public Schools, and we also have members from Boston and South Shore schools," he said.

Siciliano was recently reappointed to a second two-year term to the Federal Emergency Management Agency's Board of Visitors through December 1999. He said his happiest moment was when he was notified that Quincy College President Dr. Jeremiah Ryan and the college board, in conjunction with FEMA's Higher Education Initiative, developed curriculum in Emergency Management for an associate of science degree program in the fall of 1997.

Siciliano added that students can graduate from high school, attend Quincy College and become a professional emergency manager with an associate's degree.

"It all starts with family commitment, keeping our kids from drugs and alcohol, building their self-esteem and helping them to acquire the best education possible," he said. "Thereby, they should enter the 21st century with a sense of pride and accomplishment."

Parents or students wishing to learn more about the Emergency Management Youth Services Exploring Post Program may call 376-1211. Quincy Emergency Management is located at 55 Sea St.

Steven Fernald On Dean's List

Steven M. Fernald of Quincy has been named to the Dean's List for the fall semester at Fitchburg State College. Fernald is majoring in business administration.

This deposit will be refunded for one set for general bidders and for one set for subidders on return of the set in good condition within thirty days of the receipt of the general bids, otherwise the deposit shall be the property of the city. Additional sets may be purchased for $100.00 per set, which is non-refundable.

Bidders requesting contract documents to be mailed to them shall include an additional non-refundable check in the amount $25.00 per set, payable to the City of Quincy, to cover the mail handling costs. General bids and subbids shall be accompanied by a bid deposit that is not less than five (5%) percent of the bid amount, made payable to the City of Quincy.

The successful bidder shall be required to furnish a one hundred percent (100%) Construction Performance Bond and a one hundred percent (100%) Payment and Materials Bond from a surety company acceptable to the City. The bidding and award of this contract shall be in full compliance with Massachusetts General Law, Chapter 149, Section 44M, as last revised.

No bidder may withdraw his bid within 60 calendar days after the actual date of the opening of the bids.

All federal/state and City of Quincy regulations in relation to Minimum Wage Rates, Minority Business Enterprise (MBE), Women's Business Enterprise (WBE), Minority Work Force, Equal Employment Opportunity, Apprenticeship Program, Employment of Quincy Residents and local building license must be complied with.

The project goals are as follows:

1. The Contractor shall maintain on the project a not less than ten percent (10%) ratio of minority employee manhours to total manhours in each job category.
 2. A minimum of ten percent (10%) MBE participation and five percent (5%) WBE participation by state-certified MBE's and WBE's will be required and maintained on this project. The bidder shall submit completed MBE/WBE forms within five (5) working days after the receipt of the bids.
 3. Compliance with the City of Quincy's Ordinance No. 532, including all revisions thereto, requiring contractors working on city-supported construction projects to hire a certain percentage of Quincy residents is mandatory.
 4. Performance with the Minimum Wage Rates for all workers, as mandated by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industries issued in the most current "Wage Decisions" as applicable to the project area shall be enforced.
 5. Compliance with the City of Quincy's Municipal Code Section 12.28.090 - Apprenticeship Training Program is mandatory.
 6. The General Contractor awarded the work shall be responsible for qualifying for and obtaining a Builder's License-Class A, issued by the City of Quincy.
- Failure to comply with these requirements may render the bid non-responsive and thus ineligible for further consideration. No waiver for any portion of these provisions will be granted. The City reserves the right to waive any informality in or to reject any or all bids if deemed in the best interest of the City. The City does not condone the submission of unbalanced bids. Such bids may be summarily rejected.

The project site will be available for inspection during normal library hours on all days, except Sundays and holidays, during the bidding period. No appointment is necessary to view the public spaces up to and including March 14, 1998. The library is open 9:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. Monday-Thursday and 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. on Friday and Saturday. An appointment is needed for viewing non-public spaces between 9:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m. weekdays. An appointment for all visits will be required after March 14, 1998. Contact the Library at telephone (617) 376-1301.

A pre-bid conference will be held in the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, on Wednesday, February 25, 1998 at 1:00 p.m. A site tour will follow immediately after the pre-bid conference. All prospective bidders are urged to attend.

INVITATION TO BID

INVITATION TO BID
CITY OF QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS
PURCHASING DEPARTMENT
1305 HANCOCK ST., QUINCY, MA 02169

Invites sealed bids/proposals for furnishing and delivering to the City of Quincy:

LIBRARY MOVING COMPANY
FEBRUARY 26, 1998 @ 10:30 AM

A mandatory pre-bid conference and tour of facilities will be held at 10:00 a.m. on February 18, 1998 for contractors to inspect the premises. Only those contractors that attend the pre-bid conference and tour will be considered to perform the move.

Detailed specifications are on file at the office of the Purchasing Agent, Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, Massachusetts, 02169, between the hours of 8:30 am to 4:30 pm.

Bids must state exceptions, if any, the delivery date and any allowable discounts. Bids/Proposals must be in a sealed envelope (which is supplied). The outside of the sealed envelope is to be clearly marked "BID ENCLOSED" with time/date of bid call.

Firm bid prices will be given first consideration. Bids/Proposals will be received at the office of the Purchasing Agent until the time and date stated above, at which time and date they will be publicly opened and read. Late Bids/Proposals, delivered by mail or in person, will be rejected.

If applicable, Bids shall be in accordance with Chapter 149 of the M.G.L. as amended, M.G.L. Chapter 39, section 39A, 39B and 39F-R, M.G.L. Chapter 149, Section 26, 27, 29, 35 and 44A-44M.

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids or to accept any part of a bid or the one deemed best for the City, and waive any informalities in the bidding, if it is in the best interest of the City to do so.

Registration for kindergarten for the 1998-99 school year will be held Tuesday, March 10 from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. at every public elementary school in Quincy for children who will be age 5 in calendar year 1998.

Parents must present a birth certificate at the time of registration and evidence of immunizations. New Department of Public Health kindergarten entrance immunization requirements are effective:

•Five doses of DPT, unless fourth dose given after fourth birthday.

•Four doses of Polio, unless third dose given after fourth birthday.

•Two doses of MMR, with first given after first birthday.

•Three doses of Hep B, if born after Jan. 1, 1992.

A recent entrance physical examination if mandated by the state for all students entering school, and preerably should be presented at registration or at least before the start of school in September. In addition, evidence of previous screening for lead poisoning is required for all kindergarten entrants.

Children who will be age 6 on or before Dec. 31, 1998 and who have not attended public kindergarten may be registered for Grade 1 on the same day.

Parents of children living in the Lincoln-Hancock, Point-Webster, and Snug Harbor districts may receive information at kindergarten registration concerning opportunities for pre-school/early childhood education.

POLICE CHIEF Thomas Frane was among those who signed the "Quincy Community Statement Against Domestic Violence in Asian Communities" during last week's forum held by the Asian Outreach Campaign Against Domestic Violence.

Officials Vow To Fight Back With United Citywide Effort Domestic Violence A Serious Problem In Asian Community

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Domestic violence is a more serious problem for the Asian community than it is for most people and needs to be addressed with a united, community-wide effort.

That was the message from city officials and domestic violence experts during a forum held by the Asian Outreach Campaign Against Domestic Violence last week at City Hall.

The event included several speakers and was highlighted by a moving story by Jane, a longtime victim who has been physically, verbally and mentally abused by her husband.

A native of Hong Kong who has lived in the United States for 10 years, Jane described the horror she has known living with her husband.

"I was beaten and abused by my husband for years and years," she said.

In addition to physical and verbal abuse, Jane also was victimized psychologically. She described how her husband isolated her from family and friends, discouraged her from going to school, broke household items when angry and refused to help her with chores.

"I was lonely and afraid," said Jane. "For years, I didn't do anything, because I was taught to listen to my master—my husband."

On Mother's Day of 1992, she finally decided to do something. She took her two children—then ages 3 and 4—moved into a shelter, and went on welfare. For a brief time, she was free. But then her husband persuaded her to return, promising he would change—and the cycle began all over again.

Eventually, however, Jane again sought help and

Name Change Proposed For Portion Of Artery

The Quincy Park Department is asking the city to rename a portion of Southern Artery "Merrymount Parkway" by some time this spring.

On Tuesday night, the City Council scheduled a public hearing on the proposal for March 23. The council would have to approve the name change by amending a city ordinance.

Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park Department, said the idea of the name change—which would affect Southern Artery from Hancock Street to Furnace Brook Parkway—coincides appropriately with the department's master plan for historical renovations to the park.

Koch noted that the park, donated to the city by Charles Francis Adams in 1885, was dissected in 1928 when the state decided to build Route 3A, which includes Southern Artery. He said the feeling at the Park Department is the name change makes sense in conjunction with the other work planned.

"In our effort to restore the park, we felt we should take advantage with this," he said. "Southern Artery

First Major Step City Buys New QHS Site For $3.5 Million

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The city has purchased the parcel of land in Quincy Point that will serve as the home of the new Quincy High School, the first major step toward bringing that project to fruition.

Mayor James Sheets announced Tuesday that he signed the papers for the deal last week. The city paid Atlantic Development Corp. of Hingham, the previous owner, $3.5 million for the land.

The 15-acre parcel is located behind the Bradlee's store on Quincy Avenue.

Sheets said the purchase is a crucial step toward making the new Quincy High School, which initially was proposed last year, a reality.

"This pretty much locks in," he said.

The mayor also noted that the $3.5 million price tag was something of a bargain for the city.

"I think we got it at a good price," said Sheets. "Initially, they (Atlantic Development) were talking about $5 million."

The $3.5 million was taken from a $15.5 million bond issue passed by the City Council in December. The bond will pay for the first phase of a $73 million school construction and renovation plan.

Specifically, the bond issue will cover—in addition to the land purchase—the design/architectural work for the new Quincy High, the conversion of the Point-Webster Elementary School into a middle school, and renovation work at the current Quincy High on Coddington Street, which eventually will become the new Central Middle School.

The old Central will be closed when its replacement opens. The new Clifford Marshall Elementary School in Quincy Point will become the new home for Point-Webster students, while Point-Webster will be used to help relieve overcrowding at the Sterling Middle School in South Quincy.

The Marshall School will open in September and the renovated Point-Webster in 1999. The new Quincy High and other school projects will follow.

Ultimately, all of the schools in the city will be the beneficiary of some kind of structural work as a result of the $73 million plan. However, nearly half that total will be the new Quincy High, which Sheets said will cost about $34 million to build.

Because the city has been forced to pay skyrocketing costs for special education students and other necessities, maintenance funding has been limited in recent years.

Some of the buildings to be affected by the long-term project have been around for a long time. The current Quincy High was built in 1924, while the existing Central Middle School is 104 years old.

A FORUM WAS HELD last week at City Hall by the Asian Outreach Campaign Against Domestic Violence. City officials vowed to fight the problem of domestic violence in Quincy, particularly in the Asian community. From left are Charlene McDonald of the Quincy Human Rights Commission, Mayor James Sheets, Police Chief Thomas Frane, Rev. Cheng Imm Tan, executive director of the Asian Task Force on Domestic Violence, Norfolk County District Attorney Jeffrey Locke, Quincy Commission on the Family Executive Director Linda Stice and Judge Charles Black, presiding justice of Quincy District Court.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE VICTIM Jane speaks of the abuse she has endured living with her husband at last week's domestic violence forum. City officials, Asian community leaders and others attended the event.

Domestic Violence Serious Asian Community Problem

is in the process of permanently severing all ties with her husband. Now employed, she works different hours than he does, so they rarely see one another. Also-unknown to him-she is taking classes. With the help of those involved in the battle against domestic violence, she plans to become completely independent.

Jane broke into tears at the end of her story, but not before saying, "All people should come forward to see that domestic violence is ended in the community. It is a serious problem."

Moved by Jane's courage in telling her story, the audience gave her a standing ovation.

Norfolk County District Attorney Jeffrey Locke, who served as the forum emcee, said "a new direction, a new approach" is needed to end domestic violence in the Asian community. He said there are several factors that make such violence a more troubling problem for Asian women, mainly language barriers.

Mayor James Sheets said the new effort to fight the problem is simply another chapter in the city's history of doing so, which began with the initiation 20 years ago of Quincy's domestic violence program that since has served as a national model.

"Today is a continuation of what has become a long history (in Quincy) of developing programs to combat domestic violence," he said.

Sheets noted that domestic violence is a crime that is often "hidden from sight" and affects women of all ages, colors, races and creeds. He said it "seems only fitting" that as Quincy becomes more and more populated with Asians, the problem is given additional attention.

Rev. Cheng Imm Tan, executive director of the Asian Task Force on Domestic Violence, elaborated on why the problem so severely impacts the Asian community. In addition to language barriers, she cited the lack of tolerance for divorce in the Asian community, taboos regarding sexual assault, the centrality of the Asian family unit (families being kept together "at all costs"), and more.

Despite the problems the Asian community has faced, however, Rev. Tan said she is heartened to see a collaborative effort in the city to battle domestic violence.

"It's very exciting that we are all working together to make this happen," she said.

Other officials also spoke briefly on the issue, including Police Chief Thomas Frane, Judge Charles Black, presiding justice of Quincy District Court; DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) Executive Director Ann Marie Simone, Quincy Commission on the Family Executive Director Linda Stice and Charlene McDonald of the Quincy Human Rights Commission. All pledged the continued support of their agencies in the battle against domestic violence.

As a sign of unity, officials and audience members signed a "Quincy Community Statement Against Domestic Violence in Asian Communities" at the end of the forum.

Those involved in a domestic violence emergency situation should contact the Quincy Police by dialing 911.

For more information about the problem or the effort to stop it, call DOVE at 471-1234 (Youth Hotline: 773-HURT), the Quincy Commission on the Family at 376-1421, the Asian Task Force Against Domestic Violence Hotline at 338-2355, the Quincy Police Domestic Violence Unit at 745-5700 or Hi Thai, the Quincy Police Asian liaison, at 745-5850.

Cheney: 'Absolutely Fantastic'

Over 3,000 Attend Presidents Day Festival

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The second annual Presidents Day Winter Festival in Quincy Center sponsored by First Night Quincy on Monday was an enormously successful event that drew almost twice as many people as last year, according to the event's organizer.

First Night Chairman Michael Cheney said between 3,000 and 4,000 attended the event, a significant increase from last year's number of about 2,000. He received the estimate from police officers at the scene.

"It was absolutely fantastic," said Cheney. "The weather had a lot to do with it. We had a 45-degree day with no wind. It was absolutely perfect."

Cheney said one real highlight of the celebration was a giant mountain of artificial snow created around 2 a.m. Monday when temperatures were still in the mid-20s. Following an hour-long snowboarding demonstration during the afternoon event, children were able to use the mountain for sledding and other purposes.

"It really was the highlight of the day," he said. "We really haven't had any snow all winter long, and the kids had a ball."

There were also two vehicles used to take those in attendance on a hayride around United First Parish Church.

"Even though the hayride only went around the block, the line went the full length of the church all the way to the statue of Abigail Adams," said Cheney. "Everybody loves an old-fashioned hayride."

One of the most eye-catching attractions at the festival was a giant mural created by local artist Victor Alosi of all U.S. Presidents

Financial Aid Information Available

Students planning to attend college next fall should apply for financial aid immediately, according to state Sen. Michael Morrissey.

"While there is substantial financial aid available, people need to apply early, preferably before March 1, and investigate all possible funding sources," he said. "It is very important for people interested in going to college to explore every possible revenue avenue."

Last year, Massachusetts students received over $1.2 billion in grants and low-interest loans from the federal and state government. This is in addition to millions of dollars in scholarships Massachusetts colleges and universities donated from their own funds.

Financial aid information can be found at high school guidance offices, financial aid offices and public libraries. They can also call the Higher Education Information Center (HEIC), a division of The Education Resource Institute (TERI) at the Boston Public Library.

TERI offers from information and advice on applying for aid. The center, which has a computerized database of private scholarships and a wealth of information, is open Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Friday and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m.

To apply for financial aid, students must complete a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) form. Many colleges and universities also need a PROFILE form. The HEIC and other Educational Opportunity Centers have counselors to advise and assist people with these forms.

"Another highly valuable resource for scholarship information is the Internet," said Morrissey. "The HEIC's web page (<http://www.heic.org>) contains links for people to find major sources of free scholarship databases."

Applying before March 1 will give people earlier consideration when their application is reviewed. For more information, call the HEIC at 1-800-442-1171.

Remembering Pete Ricciuti

You couldn't help but like Pete Ricciuti.

As a right arm and confidant to three mayors, a city official and a major figure on Quincy's sometimes rough and tough political front for a quarter century, he wore well.

He didn't mind walking in the political shadows of three good friends: Mayors James McIntyre, Walter Hannon and Arthur Tobin.

TOBIN

He didn't have to walk in front. He built his own reputation: well liked, loyal, fair, respected—and, a gentleman.

Oh, he picked up a few political enemies along the way. But they respected him. Time mellowed the hard feelings for the most part with an exception here and there.

A long-time friend, former School Committee member Paul Kelly reminded us, "They used to call Pete the Jim Farley of Quincy politics."

That was quite a compliment. Farley was a shrewd political analyst and advisor to Franklin Roosevelt. Pete was like that to McIntyre, Hannon and Tobin and when it came to sizing up the local political scene.

Pete was instrumental in the move to return Quincy to the strong present mayor Plan A form of government after its stormy several year marriage with the city manager Plan E form of the late 1940s and early 1950s.

He served as purchasing agent, executive secretary and public works commissioner under McIntyre at different times in the 1960s and is believed to be the only one to hold all three of those posts.

He was also public works commissioner under Hannon and then Tobin in the 1970s.

Political opponents called those years the years of the "McIntyre Machine." Well, if it was a machine, Pete was co-pilot, the machine had round wheels and moved the city forward.

Those of us who were around in those years have fond memories of those times and of Pete. I have a couple that always come to mind when I think of him.

One is of the Blizzard of '78 when as public works commissioner under Tobin, he proved himself an able general leading an army of weary workers in an around-the-clock battle to free and dig the city out from under 27 inches of snow that fell on top of a previous big storm just a few days before, imprisoning the city.

I can still see Pete, along with Tobin, and Rev. Bedros Baharian who was chairman of the city Planning Board trudging through the downtown area checking on the battle's progress while we were trying to get The Sun out that night.

But, my fondest memory is of an earlier time when Jim McIntyre, then a young, 29-year-old city council president, decided in 1959 to challenge Amelio Della Chiesa, one of the city's all-time political power-houses.

Pete was McIntyre's campaign manager and they fought the good fight in a hard-hitting election campaign.

But election night that November was not to be theirs.

I walked into the McIntyre headquarters that election night and he and Pete were studying what they considered key early returns.

"I don't think we're gong to make it," McIntyre said. Pete was holding off a little to be sure but later figures confirmed it. The final count gave Della Chiesa the win by 1,917 votes.

There were touching moments that night that I will always remember.

There was Sheila McIntyre at Jim's side. When they were sure it was not to be a McIntyre victory, Sheila went to the phone and called her mother in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

I overheard her say:

"Jimmy didn't make it." And, then added: "But it's only an election. We lost something more important than that."

She was referring to the death not very long before of their infant son, William, named after Jim's father, Police Captain William McIntyre.

It was now getting late. Jim and Pete looked at one another. Both knew what they were going to do.

"Let's go," McIntyre said.

I went along with them as they walked across the street to City Hall and climbed the stairs to the mayor's office.

Della Chiesa was there after leaving his own campaign headquarters just down the street. McIntyre and Pete shook hands with him and congratulated him.

"You're still the mayor," McIntyre told him.

Della Chiesa grasped McIntyre's hand and then, like a father, slipped his arm around him and said: "You're young, Jimmy. Your day will come."

And it did come in 1965 when Della Chiesa stepped down and McIntyre succeeded him.

I will always remember that 1959 scene that night when those political adversaries who had campaigned hard, sometime bitterly, against one another became friends again.

James J. Ricciuti died at 81 Feb. 21 after a long struggle against diabetes and its complications including pneumonia.

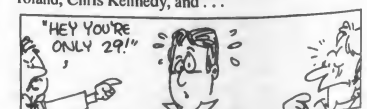

But as Pete, a nickname he won when he wore the letter "P" on his football jersey back before numbers were worn, he will be fondly remembered.

I find myself thinking he and Jim McIntyre, who were as close as brothers, are now together again.

Our national motto, "In God We Trust," probably originated from verse 4 of the Star Spangled trust."

Although the Constitution requires U.S. Senators to be at least 30 years old. In 1806 Henry Clay of Kentucky was appointed to fill an unexpired term when only 29.

Mayor Thomas Burgin announced the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company was making a gift of a five-foot, 800-pound bronze bust of John Hancock to the city.

The bust was in storage since 1922, when the insurance company moved from its old headquarters on Federal St. in Boston, where it was installed over the entrance.

1951
47 Years Ago

Burgin said the bust would be mounted on a base on Quincy granite and be placed on the lawn of the Adams Academy, the site of Hancock's birthplace.

GRANITE WORKERS SEEK 47 CENT RAISE

The Granite Cutters' Union (International Association-AFL) was seeking a raise of 47 cents an hour, increasing the hourly rate to $2.25. The current contract with the granite manufacturers was scheduled to expire on May 1st.

The union represented 300 cutters, 22 laborers and 39 blacksmiths. Blacksmiths were not paid at an hourly rate, but a rate based on the number of employees at the plant. The current rate of 75 cents per employee would be increased to $1.14 under the union's proposal.

EAST COAST SHIPWORKERS STRIKE LOOMS

Union officials at Fore River were awaiting action in Hoboken and Sparrows Point shipyards, as workers at five of Bethlehem Steels' East Coast shipyards unanimously rejected the company's offer of an 11 and a half percent wage hike. The current contract expired within a few days (Feb. 28).

An East Coast strike of Bethlehem's yards would involve 17,000 workers, including 4,800 at the Quincy yard.

Save Eddie's Diner

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Save Eddie's Diner. Call City Hall. Bring back the good old days.

We thank the South Shore Savings Bank for donating the diner to the American Diner Museum (110 Benevolent St., Providence, RI 02106). The museum plans to restore the diner to its original beauty. Eddie's was once Quincy's most popular all-night eatery. Many of Quincy's senior citizens made Eddie's the last stop for coffee and played the juke box from the table. Truly, it was the good old days. The prices were right and you could walk in any hour of the night.

Let's give Mr. Kotoulas a second chance to open and run the diner. It's not costing the City of Quincy anything. Located near the USS Salem Museum, it will become a tourist attraction.

It's nice to see something old completely restored. It will bring back old memories to all the senior citizens. I, for one, will be there when they re-open the diner.

Congratulations To Those Who Joined National Guard

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Two of our boys joined the National Guard in October 1997.

One was my grandson, Joseph Kidney—the son of Charles Kidney and Virginia Sines, both of Quincy—and the other is Sean Middendorf, the son of Sgt. Charles Middendorf of the Quincy Police Department.

Joseph Kidney was sent to Fort Leopard Wood which is in the heart of the Ozarks in Missouri (which some there call "The State of Misery").

Sean Middendorf was sent to Fort Benning in Georgia.

They are to be congratulated for being willing to serve their country. To give part of their life and interest in U.S. Service.

As Joseph Kidney's grandmother, I had the honor of attending his graduation in Missouri on Jan. 15. What a wonderful experience it was to see the group of boys march and chant, which was almost like one soldier marching and not a group. They were so perfect.

Basic training is tough, real tough. We saw films of what they go through and in today's standards of young fellows it takes only the best.

"Rotten Apples" are weeded out in the first few weeks (because there are some). The National Guard does not want them or put up with them. The way they train, you have to have the real "want to" to go on with the basic training. It requires physical and mental demands.

When the boys graduate, they do it with such pride and honor and you can see it in their faces as they go through their graduation services. I was so proud to be there because it was not what I expected. Every fellow is to be congratulated for going through this tough basic training.

Too bad more young fellows who are in the middle of the road of not knowing what they want to do, do not join the National Guard and find themselves. And believe me, when they find themselves after this basic training with the National Guard, they can really stand straight and tall and say, "Boy, I am great!" And they really are great!

Joseph, I am very proud of you. Thank you for being my grandson.

Thanks Police, Sgt. Minton

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On behalf of the O'Brien Towers/Crowley Court Tenants Association, I would like to express our thanks to the Quincy Police Department particularly Sgt. Danny Mitton, who came to our building and conducted a four-week course entitled "Advanced Senior Citizens Police Academy."

We heard from representatives of the many services available to seniors, were shown videos, and had actual demonstrations as well. We were also given printed materials for referral in case we ever needed help. Our thanks to everyone who came to speak with us, assuring us of the help Quincy has available for their senior citizens.

QHS People's Choice Art Awards In March

The Bradford Library and the Art Department at Quincy High School are sponsoring the People's Choice Art Awards in early March.

The goals of the competition are three-fold:

- The artistic efforts of students will be recognized. Each student, whether enrolled in formal art classes or not, may submit his/her artistic efforts. The works may be two- or three-dimensional. Ink, paint, chalk and photography entries are welcome.

- The pieces voted "favorite" by students and staff will enhance the Bradford environment by becoming part of the library's student art collection.

"The winning artists will win a small stipend for their work. The stipend is designed to reinforce the notion that students' work can be appreciated and marketable, an idea that can help encourage students as they enter the working world.

All work is due in the Bradford Library by March 12. Voting will take place March 16. All students and staff will be invited to vote. Winners will receive a $25 check and the pieces will be hung in the library with winners from previous years.

Parents are asked to encourage their students to participate.

'Lights, Camera, Music' At Squantum Church

First Church of Squantum, 164 Bellevue Rd., will sponsor "Lights, Camera, Music" Saturday, Feb. 21.

There will be a ham and bean supper at 6:15 p.m. followed by a musical program by Paul Frazer and Brenda Kelly at 7:30 p.m.

Cost is $5 for the dinner only, $7 for the entertainment only, or $10 for both. For tickets, call Joan Hansen at 328-0917.

Quincy Partnership To Hold St. Patrick's Day Celebration

The Quincy Partnership will hold its second annual St. Patrick's Day Celebration Tuesday, March 17 at the Quincy Elks Lodge on Quarry Street.

The celebration is a fundraiser with all proceeds going to benefit the Quincy Partnership's efforts to purchase a decorative water fountain for Merrymount Park. The luncheon celebration and entertainment will take place from noon to 2 p.m.

The event co-chairmen, Adams Innkeeper Robert Galligan, City Clerk Joseph Shea, and Park Director Thomas Koch announce that this year's entertainment program will feature the same type of Irish music and humor as last year's event. A traditional St. Patrick's Day dinner of corned beef and cabbage will be served.

Tickets are $30 and can be purchased by contacting Shea at 376-1131 or Koch at 376-1251. They should be ordered as early as possible.

The Quincy Partnership's latest project is to bring a new decorative water fountain to Merrymount Park. The fountain will serve as the centerpiece of a proposed formal garden planned for the stretch of Merrymount Park along Hancock Street. Construction of the new formal garden, named "Adams Walk" is scheduled to begin this fall.

A benevolent organization comprised of business and civic leaders, the Quincy Partnership aims to better the quality of the city in a variety of ways. Most recently, the group donated the bronze statue of Abigail Adams and son John Quincy in Quincy Center.

Past endeavors include: donating the "Welcome to Quincy" signs located at the main entrances to the city, the purchase of outside lighting for the Thomas Crane Library, the First Parish Church, the Quincy Historical Society and Quincy City Hall, and the purchase of the Manet located on the facade of the Quincy Historical Society at Adams Academy.

"The new fountain will add beauty and character to the proposed formal garden. The Partnership is proud to participate in a project that will reinforce Quincy's reputation as the finest city in which to live, work and do business," said Quincy Partnership Chairman Ed Keohane.

Black History Month Celebration Feb. 26

The Impact Quincy People of Color Focus Group and the Germantown Neighborhood Center will celebrate Black History Month and the 100th anniversary of the birth of Paul Robeson Thursday, Feb. 26 from 6 to 7:30 p.m. in the Neighborhood Center, Palmer St.

Robeson was an African-American scholar, lawyer, humanitarian, athlete, actor, singer and advocate for justice. A half-hour video entitled "Paul Robeson: Tribute To An Artist" will be shown and signatures will be collected on a petition to have a commemorative stamp issued in his honor.

Refreshments will be served. All are welcome.

QSO Concert At NQHS Feb. 27

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra will present a concert Friday, Feb. 27 at 8 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center of North Quincy High School, 318 Hancock St.

The program will include works by Bach, Wagner, and Rimsky-Korsakov.

Perry Johnson III, who will perform Bach's Concerto for Viola and Orchestra in C Minor, is principal violist. Born in Arkansas, Johnson formerly was associate principal violist with the Arkansas Symphony Orchestra. He came to the Boston area to study at the New England Conservatory and was granted an assistantship in 1996 to study with Patricia McCarty at the Boston Conservatory.

Tickets at the door will be $12 for adults, $8 for students and senior citizens. The school is wheelchair accessible and parking is free. For more information, call (781) 925-4319.

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra is a non-profit corporation.

Wollaston Beach Pollution Task Force Proposed

The Ward 5 Community Association has asked Mayor James Sheets to appoint a citywide task force to oversee the investigation and cleanup of bacterial contamination at Wollaston Beach.

The association made the proposal in a recent letter to the mayor.

The proposal has been supported by Ward 5 City Councillor Stephen Durkin, who introduced a resolution Tuesday night request the council's support for the task force.

"I strongly support a call for task force on Wollaston Beach pollution," said Durkin. "Clean water at our beach is important to bathers, boaters, fishermen, local businesses and all our residents. We deserve to enjoy the full range of amenities that living on the shoreline can offer."

Water quality levels at the other 18 Boston Harbor area beaches were measured at safe levels for 95 percent of the times tested in summer of 1997. At Wollaston Beach, only 13 days between June 1 and Aug. 19 registered water quality levels deemed safe for swimming.

"A task force on Wollaston Beach pollution could serve to facilitate coordination between the various sites and local entities responsible for handling pollution issues," said Doug Gutro, president of the Ward 5 Community Association. "It will also give a voice to the residents that would benefit from a cleaner beach."

In 1982, the City of Quincy initiated the Boston Harbor cleanup by bringing suit against the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC), contending that raw sewerage from the Nut Island treatment plant was fouling Quincy Bay and polluting Wollaston Beach.

The Ward 5 Community Association is a non-political organization whose mission is to learn about and facilitate discussion on a range of issues impacting Ward 5. In August, the association sponsored a forum on beach pollution. In September, it co-sponsored a beach cleanup and storm drain stenciling initiative designed to educate and deter dumping into storm drains that drain to Wollaston Beach.

FATHER BILL'S PLACE, the city's homeless shelter, recently received a $1,000 donation from the Quincy office of Merrill Lynch. Greg Hopeman, Merrill Lynch regional vice president, presents the check to Fr. William McCarthy of St. John the Baptist Church for whom the shelter is named. The company's Quincy office also made $1,000 donations to five other local charities.

was originally part of the park."

Koch said in addition to the name change, that portion of Southern Artery would receive additional trees and flower beds to beautify the area. Other changes that would make the roadway safer—including a lower-speed limit and/or a traffic signal near Collins Rest-A-While and Veterans Memorial Stadium—are also a possibility, he said.

"We want to make it safer for the park users," he said. "We also want to make it more aesthetically pleasing. That way, it won't be just a speedway; it will have more of a parkway/boulevard look. It'll be what a parkway should look like."

Koch said he does not anticipate any opposition from neighbors because no residential homes will be affected by the name change.

In fact, the only address change will be that of the Park Department, currently located at 100 Southern Artery. He said that change will be a welcome one, because the mail for the department sometimes goes to the senior citizens complex at 1000 Southern Artery—and vice versa.

Koch hopes the name change can take place by the spring or "as soon as possible."

QUINCY COLLEGE and the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office recently signed a partnership agreement for continuing education services for the sheriff's office's inmate population. The signing took place in the Norfolk County Commissioners Office. Seated from left are College President Dr. Jeremiah Ryan, Commissioners Chairman William O'Donnell and Sheriff Jack Flood. Standing are County Treasurer and City Councillor Timothy Cahill, Commissioners John Gillis and Peter Collins, and Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymond.

Quincy College, Sheriff's Office Sign Partnership

Quincy College and the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office have signed a partnership agreement for continuing education services for the sheriff's office's inmate population.

The signing, which included Sheriff Jack Flood and College President Dr. Jeremiah Ryan, took place at the Norfolk County Commissioners Office whose chairman, Commissioner William O'Donnell, expressed his full support for their collaborative efforts and said he was pleased to recommend the agreement to the commission members.

The agreement will bring an education program facilitator to the Community Corrections Units of the Sheriff's Office to provide population assessments for continuing education and higher education purposes for qualified inmates. The coordinator will further help to ready inmates for college enrollment post incarceration in addition to providing employment readiness and life skills courses at the correctional facility. The life skills courses will consist of five-week courses at 10 hours per week.

The agreement also allows qualified inmates to participate in an education program which permits them to attend pre-approved courses at Quincy College during incarceration.

Flood said, "This partnership takes one more step toward my goal of responsible reintegration of inmates that are detained in Norfolk County. I intend to see that the inmate population that I manage returns to the community with the effective tools they need to turn their lives around."

He added, "This type of initiative is a mutually beneficial situation. While attempting to make our communities more safe, we have implemented a new program without any cost to the taxpayers as the inmates' fifteen fund will fully fund this program."

Ryan said, "Quincy College is proud to be a part of this innovative and creative program. We hope that this will be one of many partnerships that will develop with the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office."

Also attending the signing were Norfolk County Commissioners John Gillis and Peter Collins, Norfolk County Treasurer and City Councillor Timothy Cahill, and Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymond.

Robert McCann Joins Army Under Delayed Program

Robert S. McCann has joined the U.S. Army Reserve under the Delayed Training Program at the U.S. Army Recruiting Station in Quincy.

The program gives young men or women the opportunity to delay enlistment into the Army for up to one year before reporting to basic military training.

The enlistment gives the new soldier the option to learn a new skill, travel and become eligible to receive college education benefits. After completion of basic training, soldiers receive advanced individual training in their career specialty.

McCann, a 1993 graduate of Don Bosco High School, Boston, has reported to Fort Leonard Wood, Waynesville, Mo., for basic training. By enlisting, McCann qualified for a $3,000 bonus.

He is the son of Doris and Robert McCann of 193 Marlboro St., Quincy.

Josiah Quincy House National Historic Place

The Josiah Quincy House in Quincy, along with two other South Shore buildings, has been added to the National Register of Historic Places.

The Josiah Quincy House, built in 1770, is located on Muirhead Street in Wollaston and is considered an outstanding example of unaltered American Colonial Georgian architecture. Among the guests who stayed at the house were Presidents John Adams, John Quincy Adams and James Monroe as well as Daniel Webster.

The house joins 228 other local sites on the National Register, which is the nation's list of property and buildings that designates places of importance in American history and culture.

The house also has been designated a national historic landmark, the designation given to places of a broad national interest.

The designations are primarily honorary, but they can pave the way for state funding for buildings that are owned by municipalities or non-profit organizations.

The state gave $5.4 million in grants through its Massachusetts Preservation Project Grant Fund for places listed on the National Register. Any site listed nationally is also placed on the Massachusetts Register of Historic Places.

The Massachusetts Preservation Project Grant Fund last year gave United First Parish Church in Quincy Center $100,000 to replace its slate roof and $30,000 to the Stetson House in Hanover to replace the roof and wall shingles.

RESTLESS LEG SYNDROME

Getting to sleep and staying asleep is a challenge for many people, especially among those over age 60. It can seem as though the body's mind won't shut off, with irresistible urges to move the legs or arms, accompanied by sensations of "pins and needles," aching, itching, or crawling. In such cases, the culprit may be a problem known as restless legs syndrome (RLS). The cause of RLS is not totally understood, although there is some evidence that it may run in families. It is clear, however, that the condition can be extremely uncomfortable and unpredictable, with the symptoms at their worst when at rest or in confined situations (cars, airplanes), in the evening, and at night.

Getting some daily exercise can really help with sleep problems, especially as you age. You will also experience gains in alertness, energy, and well-being—so why not improve your daily satisfaction by treating your body a bit better? At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, located at 700 Congress St., Quincy, we listen to your concerns. We are affiliated with Quincy and South Shore Hospitals. Please call us at 617-472-2550; office hours by appointment.

P.S. Pregnant women sometimes develop RLS, but it often disappears after giving birth.

Quincy Hospital Expands Pregnancy, Childbirth Education Classes

Quincy Hospital has expanded the patient education classes related to pregnancy and childbirth with two new classes and a support group for young parents beginning early in 1998.

The first of the new classes is designed for expectant mothers early in pregnancy. This Early Pregnancy Class will offer the woman and her partner information about prenatal care and testing, fetal development, physical changes, nutrition and safety. Helpful hints for managing common discomforts of pregnancy will be discussed as well. A tour of Quincy Hospital's First Moments will conclude this 2 1/2 hour class.

parenting teens. The support group is an ongoing source of education and support throughout the pregnancy and parenting experience. Scheduled meetings will be held once a month.

(NAPS)—Here's some encouraging news: there are ways you may be able to help prevent repetitive motion injuries to your hands, wrists and fingers while on the job.

The American Occupational Therapy Association, Inc., offers the following advice:

Some ways you may be able to help prevent repetitive motion injuries is by keeping shoulders erect, but relaxed, and taking 10 minute breaks every hour.

One of the better known workplace injuries is carpal tunnel syndrome. It affects the hands, wrists and fingers. It is most often seen in keyboard operators and assembly line workers.

If you are experiencing any symptoms of carpal tunnel—such as numbness, weakness, pain and difficulty in moving your hands, wrists and fingers—you may want to see your doctor.

WHAT ABOUT THAT PAIN IN THE NECK?

We've all heard the expression, "You give me a pain in the neck," meaning that stress can affect us in a painful way, especially if there is weakness in one's neck.

The neck is the most delicate part of the spine and the most easily injured. It is comprised of seven separate bones that are loosely connected together by ligaments and muscles. The structure of the neck allows for great mobility, but also predisposes it to injury. Poor posture, occupation, falling asleep in a chair or on the couch, car accidents, falls, twists and strain take their toll on the neck (cervical spine).

The part of the nervous system housed within the bones of the neck is an extension of the brain. Displacements or misalignments of the neck bones may cause pressure on the adjacent spinal nerves commonly referred to as "pinched nerves." Some of the symptoms seen most often with pinched nerves in the neck are: headaches, sinusitis, dizziness, neck pain, shoulder pain, and pain, numbness and or tingling into the arm, hand or fingers.

One should always consult a chiropractor after a motor vehicle accident, fall or strain, even if you do not think you are hurt. If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

Focusing on the mothers who delivered a previous baby by Cesarean, the Vaginal Birth After Cesarean (VBAC) class offers a discussion of the fears and realities surrounding the labor process and a vaginal birth with the current pregnancy. The rationale and advantages of a vaginal birth are highlighted. The single class session is approximately two hours.

The Young Parents Pregnancy Support Group will provide education and a forum for conversation with other pregnant and Continuing classes include the series on preparation for the birthing experience which continues to be the core of the childbirth education program. This series is offered as a 2-day weekend program of a four evening weeknight class series. Breastfeeding instruction and a class for soon-to-be big brothers and big sisters continue to be popular with many of the expectant families.

Joan's Olympic Gym Cheerleading Team Having Successful Season

The Joan's Olympic Gym all-star cheerleading team, the Spirit All-Stars, is having another successful season.

Coached by Elisa Pollard with the support of Joan McDonough--owner of Joan's Olympic Gym in Braintree--the team has made impressive strides since its inception two years ago.

Pollard took over the team in its second season, a rebuilding year with a roster consisting of new members, many of whom had never cheered before.

From the beginning, the team members collaborated to learn their various competition routines, including jumps, stunts, dance, mounts, motions and tumbling. The older girls helped the new members learn the routines, and the team began to show considerable improvement by the beginning of the 1996-97 season.

The girls, now in their third season, range in age from 11 to 17 and compete throughout New England. In addition to the competitions, they perform exhibitions at schools, retirement homes, Boston Celtics games, Faneuil Hall and other locations.

Since their first competition, the Spirit All-Stars have captured several titles, including first-place finishes at the New England Regional Cheerleading Competition, the Silver City Cheerleading Competition, and a bid to the National All-Star Cheerleading competition for two consecutive years.

This season, the team has placed first in its two competitions to date. The girls competed in the Emmanuel College Cheerleading Competition on Nov. 8 and in the East Coast Cheerleading Competition on Nov. 16 which secured them a bid to the CANAM International Cheerleading Championship to be held in March.

Pollard said she firmly believes her team, with its self-discipline, energy and enthusiasm, can go the nationals and come away with

Vitamin E: Add A "Boost" To Your Body

(NAPS)—New benefits of vitamin E are continuously being discovered. Already researchers have learned that vitamin E may dramatically reduce the risk of heart disease by preventing the buildup of plaque in coronary arteries. Now researchers have discovered that vitamin E may reduce the risks of certain cancers, prevent muscle inflammation and soreness, slow the progression of Alzheimer's disease and boost the immune system.

In a study published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, subjects who were given 200 milligrams a day of a vitamin E supplement showed a 65 percent improvement in response to a skin test measuring immune reaction. Antibodies to certain disease also increased by six-fold over people who did not take vitamin E.

Although 400 milligrams was found to be optimal for helping to reduce heart disease, improving immune function seems to require fewer milligrams.

Alzheimer's Disease

Another major study, pub-

Vitamin E may be a very beneficial vitamin because it has been shown to prevent heart disease, slow down the progression of Alzheimer's disease and boost immunity.

lished in the New England Journal of Medicine, found that when high doses of vitamin E were given to patients with Alzheimer's disease, the patients demonstrated a 25 percent increase in retaining daily functions compared to those individuals not treated.

Because vitamin E is a fat-soluble vitamin, it is found mostly in foods high in fat such as nuts, oils, salad dressings, mayonnaise and margarine. Therefore, an excellent way to obtain vitamin E is through a supplement. If you do decide to take a vitamin E supplement, stick with a daily dose of 100 to 400 milligrams. In fact, a recent editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association suggests multivitamin supplements containing vitamin E is an excellent way to help prevent disease in older people.

DID YOU KNOW...

Smokers subject themselves to a much greater risk of death or disability at a younger age.

It is estimated that 87% of lung cancers are caused by cigarette smoking, causing about 150,000 deaths per year in the U.S.

Death rates from cancer of the esophagus, pharynx, lip, larynx and mouth are at least six times as great for smokers as for non-smokers. Death rates from heart disease are twice as high for smokers as non-smokers - from peptic ulcers, nearly three times as high.

A tragically high number of people die in early middle age, when their children need them the most, from cigarette-related diseases.

Parents who care about their children should seriously consider quitting smoking.

High Home Insurance Premiums Not Mandatory

[The following is from ERA Central Real Estate, 128 McGrath Highway, Quincy.]

Home insurance premiums are just one aspect of owning a home. However, high premiums don't have to be.

There are several things you can do to minimize your payments without minimizing your overall coverage:

- Increase deductibles. By raising your deductible from $250 to $500, you could save about 12 percent on your premiums, according to the Insurance Information Institute.
- Use the same company. Many insurance companies that sell multiple coverages will discount your premiums for having both your car insurance as well as homeowners insurance

Squirts, Pee Wees, Bantams Prevail Three Quincy Teams Open Kiwanis Tourney With Wins

Three Quincy teams picked up victories in Monday's opening round of the 25th annual Quincy Kiwanis Club Youth Hockey Tournament at Quincy Youth Arena.

Quincy's Pee Wees, Squirts and Bantams were victorious, but the Mites fell in their opening game.

Billy McKeon's two goals lifted the Pee Wees to a 2-1 triumph over the South Shore Eagles. Tim Duggan and Sean Moriarty each had an assist for Quincy. The Pee Wees' next game is Friday at 6:40 p.m. against Lewiston, Maine. Saturday at 7 a.m., the Pee Wees take on the Connecticut Clippers.

In other Pee Wee action, Braintree blanked Lawrence, 6-0.

Mike McKeon notched two goals and an assist as Quincy's Squirts edged Arlington, 5-4. Andy Patten added a goal and two assists, Pat Maloney and Matt Haskins each netted a goal and Jonathan O'Connor had an assist for Quincy. The Squirts' next game is today (Thursday) at 3:10 p.m. against Whitman/Hanson/Kingston. Friday at 8:10 a.m., the Squirts battle Middlesex, Conn.

In other Squirt action, Brockton doubled up Milton Flyers, 4-2, and the Mohawks topped Walpole, 6-3.

Dan Kennedy (two goals, three assists) provided the offense and goaltender Shaun Flaherty supplied the defense as the Quincy Bantams blanked Peabody, 7-0. Paul Campbell (two goals, one assist), Brian Scott (two goals), Jim Cashins (goal), and Scott McDonald, Frank Curreri and Mark Giese each dished out an assist for Quincy.

The Bantams are back on the ice Friday for a 10:30 a.m. game against California. Saturday at 11:40 a.m., the Bantams go up against Lewiston, Maine.

Tom Pasquantonio, assisted by Johnny McInnis, scored the only goal for Quincy's Mites in a 6-1 loss to Braintree. The Mites' next tilt was yesterday (Wednesday) at 5:40 p.m. against Weymouth. Saturday at 3:10 p.m., the Mites take on Lewiston, Maine.

In other Mite action Monday, Charleston edged Weymouth, 4-3.

His Two Third-Period Goals Spark Comeback Sullivan, North Rally To Tie Up Quincy, 4-4

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Mike Sullivan's two goals capped a thrilling three-goal, third-period comeback as North Quincy High School's hockey team tied rival Quincy, 4-4, Saturday night at Quincy Youth Arena.

With the Old Colony League tie, North concluded its league campaign with an 8-6-2 record. Monday, North (11-6-2 overall) topped Blue Hills Regional Tech, 7-5.

In the win, NQ junior assistant captain Paul Markarian notched four goals and an assist, giving him 21 goals, 15 assists and 36 points (second in the OCL). Senior goalie Anthony Fasoli, in his first varsity start, earned the win.

NQ wrapped up its regular season yesterday (Wednesday) against Rockland.

Saturday's tie marked the end of the regular season for the Presidents, who saw their record go to 9-3-4 in the OCL, 11-3-6 overall. The deadlock was Quincy's fourth in its last five games.

Both the Red Raiders and

HOCKEY

the Presidents are heading to the MIAA state tournament, with seedings to be announced next Wednesday.

In Saturday's exciting game before a packed Youth Arena crowd, North found itself trailing, 4-1, entering the third period. Quincy, which had jumped out to a 3-0 first-period lead, appeared en route to its second win over NQ this season.

However, the resilient Red Raiders battled back in the final stanza, scoring three goals in a four-minute span to salvage the tie. The rally commenced when senior captain Mike Powers slid the puck by Quincy goaltender Chris Burns (23 saves) at the 11:11 mark. North senior captain John Barron recorded the assist.

Just two minutes later, Sullivan, a junior, scored his first goal, stuffing a rebound into the net that sliced the deficit to 4-3. Junior Chad Fitzpatrick (two assists) and senior Mike Fitzpatrick picked up the assists.

Soon after, North took advantage of a Quincy penalty, with Sullivan knotting the game up at the seven-minute mark with a power-play goal. This time, Sullivan was set up by sophomores Ryan Murray and Ross O'Driscoll.

Down the stretch, the Red Raiders killed off two penalties, including one in the final minute of the game, to preserve the tie.

"This was more like a win than a tie for us, and the kids should be quite proud of themselves," said North Quincy head coach Bob Doyle. "They kept their composure, kept battling back and little by little, we got the momentum back."

"I couldn't be more proud or pleased, because they could've folded and they didn't. They stuck together and found a way to get back into the game."

The first period belonged to the Presidents, as they kept the puck in NQ's end and outshot the Red Raiders, 15-5, taking a 3-0 lead into the second period.

Senior captain Steve Verlicco, the hero of Quincy's 4-3 win over North on Jan. 14, opened the scoring with a slap shot that deflected off the glove of NQ goaltender David Downey (25 saves) and into the net. Verlicco's power-play goal, which came at the 4:40 mark, was unassisted.

The Presidents got on the board again with just over three minutes left in the period on a nice goal by junior assistant captain Joe Vallatini (16 goals, 19 assists). Vallatini, who also collected two assists, slid the puck by a North defender, then recovered it and sent it past Downey for a 2-0 lead. Assists were by seniors Tim Lewis and Bob Harvey.

Just before the period ended, the Presidents struck again. This time, it was the OCL's leading scorer, senior Chris Haidul (30 goals, 11 assists) collecting a rebound and sliding it by Downey at the right post with just nine seconds to play. The goal, assisted by sophomore Scott Mattson (nine goals, 23 assists) and Vallatini, gave Quincy a seemingly comfortable 3-1 advantage after one period.

The Red Raiders finally cut into the deficit early in the second, when Chad Fitzpatrick fired a pass to Markarian, who was waiting alone near the crease. Markarian one-timed the feed past Burns at the 13:35 mark.

Later in the period, NQ had a golden opportunity to close the gap but came up empty. Two Quincy penalties resulted in a 5-on-3 for North for 1:26. However, it was Quincy which had the best scoring chance as Chris Wool broke in alone but was denied by Downey.

The Presidents increased their lead to 4-1 when Vallatini fed the puck to senior Bob Hall, who deposited it into the net. The goal came at the 5:07 mark and was also assisted by junior Jake Fleming.

With the goal, Quincy recaptured the momentum from NQ, which had it for most of the second period. Fortunately for the Red Raiders (and unfortunately for the Presidents), the momentum shifted to the North side for its spirited third-period comeback.

(As of press time, Quincy head coach Bob Sylvia could not be reached for comment.)

Raiders Prepare For Tourney NQ's Ross & Co. Pull Off Sweep Of Quincy

By LIAM FITZGERALD

The knock against the North Quincy High School boys' basketball team, that senior captain Brian Ross is its only player, was disproved last Friday in North's 67-59 win over rival Quincy.

Although Ross scored a game-high 36 points and pulled down 15 rebounds, it was also the tireless effort of the Red Raiders' supporting cast that lifted host North to the Old Colony League victory.

"We've heard all year that it's Ross and no one else," said North head coach Ted Stevenson, whose team swept the season series over Quincy. "The kids showed tonight that it's not just Brian."

"Brian Linskey hit some big shots, Mark Stanton did a super job bringing the ball up, John Sullivan does the little things coaches notice, and Jay Turner played an excellent game."

With the triumph in its regular season finale, North improved to 12-4 in the OCL, 14-6 overall, putting itself in position to possibly host an MIAA state tournament game.

"Fourteen wins is big in the seeding," said Stevenson. "We had good league record and hope to host a game or two in the playoffs."

Quincy, meanwhile, dropped to 3-14 OCL, 3-15 overall and wrapped up its season Tuesday against Hanover in the consolation game of the 11th annual ERA Central Real Estate Quincy Invitational Tournament.

In a 61-44 loss to Milton

in Monday's opening round, Quincy's Dan Kelly led the way with 20 points, six rebounds and five assists. Teammate Jared Downey added eight points and played a strong defensive game, while Jim Quigley pulled down 14 rebounds.

Last Friday's Quincy-North clash started off with Ross scoring 11 of NQ's first 16 points, including seven straight as the Red Raiders built a seven-point lead late in the half. A three-pointer by Linskey (10 points), his second of the half, pushed the bulge to 25-14 as North cruised into the break with a 31-22 advantage.

As the second half began, it appeared the Red Raiders would pull away as Ross spearheaded a 13-4 spurt in the first eight minutes. Among the highlights of the run was a three-point play by Mark Stanton.

"I thought the big difference was Stanton; he played a great game for them," said Quincy head coach John Franceschini. "He was the X factor that did us in."

However, the Presidents battled back, responding North's spurt with a 10-2 run of its own, highlighted by Jim Munchbach's (22 points) seven points.

"Jimmy's probably our best outside shooter, and had it going tonight," said Franceschini. "It was a wonderful thing to see and hopefully this will lead to bigger and better things from him next year."

Quincy finally cut the deficit to eight when Kelly (14 points) followed a missed free throw with a lay up to slice NQ's lead to 52-44 with under six minutes to play.

After two straight hoops by NQ's Turner (eight points) pushed the lead back to double digits, Quincy continued to peg away as a three-pointer by Steve Clarke (nine points) and five straight points by Munchbach brought the Presidents to within five (60-55) with 1:17 remaining.

The Red Raiders answered the threat with a full-court inbound pass from Sullivan to Ross for an uncontested lay up. Kelly scored Quincy's final four points, but three free throws by Ross and a lay up by Linskey off a Turner steal sealed the victory for North.

"Quincy doesn't die and they showed that again tonight," said Stevenson. "Their kids worked very hard; they wanted to beat us but we were able to pull it out. I'm really happy with our performance. Everyone who came in played well and contributed something to the win."

His 36-point effort secured Ross top scoring honors in Eastern Mass. with a 35.7 points per game average.

In earlier OCL action, Ross poured in 44 points and collected 19 rebounds to spark North over host Falmouth, 69-60 on Feb. 10. It was the sixth game this season in which Ross has scored 40 or more points.

Quincy Shocks North In Season Finale, 48-45

Senior Captains Duffy, Gray Spark Presidents

It was only the team's second victory all season, but Quincy High School's girls' basketball players and head coach Bob Noble could not have been happier.

Last Friday, the Presidents pulled off the upset, shocking tournament-bound North Quincy, 48-45, on the Red Raiders' home court.

"This was our tournament game, and fortunately we played that way," said Noble, whose team finished 2-14 in the Old Colony League, 2-18 overall. "We played well all year, but nothing seemed to go our way. Finally, all the effort and hard work paid off.

"There's no greater way for the seniors to go out than this. Our two senior captains, Kerry Duffy and Pam Gray, both had great games. I couldn't be happier for all the girls. We beat a good team and all the credit goes to the kids. They worked for it, and they deserved it."

With the loss, the Red Raiders finished the regular season at 7-9 in the OCL, 11-9 overall. The setback was North's fourth in its last five games and likely cost the team a higher seeding in the tournament.

"This might have cost us, because now we might have to play a top seed right away," said North head coach Ken Panaro, whose team will learn its first-round opponent this weekend and likely play its tournament opener next Monday or Tuesday.

"It was a horrible game from our point of view," Panaro added. "The girls played poorly, they were outthustled and simply outplayed. There was no effort, no desire at all.

"If our girls were overconfident, they should've known better. Playing Quincy is never easy, and they played very well against us. We just didn't come to play—it's that simple."

As the game began, it appeared neither team came to play basketball as nearly eight minutes passed before a point was scored. North senior co-captain Laurie Flynn, who led all scorers with 14, broke the ice with a runner in the lane.

"Laurie plays hard all the time," said Panaro, "but we needed more than one player to do that if we're going to win."

North maintained a slim lead throughout the half, taking a 17-10 lead before the Presidents reeled off seven straight to knot the score, including two free throws by senior Rebecca Mackey (six rebounds, four steals, three assists). A basket by Gray (career-high 11 points, also six rebounds, three assists, two blocks) evened the score at 19-19 at halftime.

The Presidents, who trailed throughout the first half, jumped ahead on a Gray basket and never relinquished the lead. Sophomore Colleen Nichol (11 points) gave Quincy a 29-24 advantage, capping a 10-5 spurt. After NQ sophomore Jill Nicholson swished a three-pointer, Quincy's Duffy (11 points, eight rebounds, four assists, two steals) answered with two baskets of her own as the visitors maintained a four-point lead at the halfway point.

Senior Jessica DiBonna then gave Quincy a little breathing room at 38-31 with a clutch three-pointer. Five straight points by Duffy and a basket by senior Erin Barry (five points, six rebounds, five blocks, two assists) provided the Presidents with their biggest lead, 44-36, with less than four minutes remaining.

A steal and a basket by NQ junior Kristen Bowes, followed by a Nicholson basket, trimmed Quincy's lead to 45-40 with 1:38 left. After Bowes misfired on a three-pointer, Nichol nailed two free throws to push the lead back to seven. Flynn answered with two free throws of her own, and Quincy turned the ball over on its next possession, giving the Red Raiders an opportunity to cut the deficit once more.

However, senior co-captain Kristen Keohane's three-pointer rimmed out and North was forced to foul. After Barry made one of two attempts, Keohane connected on a three-pointer, but the final buzzer sounded and Quincy emerged victorious.

"Tonight," said Noble, "it was our turn to smile."

Three Residents Named Commended Students

Three Quincy residents who are seniors at Boston College High School have been named Commended Students in the 1998 National Merit Scholarship Program.

A Letter of Commendation from the school and the National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC), which conducts the program, will be presented by the school principal to the three and 10 other B.C. High seniors.

Commended Students placed among the top 5 percent of more than 1 million students who entered the 1998 Merit Program by taking the 1996 Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test.

Two Quincy Wrestlers To Compete In States

Two Quincy High School wrestlers, captains Pat Harrington and Jimmy Tan, will compete in the state tournament Friday and Saturday at Chelmsford High School.

Harrington, a senior, and Tan, a junior, qualified with strong performances at last weekend's Sectionals. Harrington placed fifth in the 130-pound weight class and Tan finished third at 119. The top six finishers in each class advanced to the states.

"One of their goals was to make the states, and I'm happy they accomplished that goal," said Quincy coach Lou Venturelli. "They'll have to wrestle their absolute best to move on to the All-states next weekend, though. They've had great seasons and hopefully that will continue this weekend."

Two other Quincy wrestlers, junior Jasper Tan and senior Dan Kane, will serve as alternates at the states. Tan came in eighth at 112 and Kane placed eighth at 171 at the Sectionals.

Country Ski & Sport, Sweeney Brothers Olindy's Leaders

The second half of the Olindy's Jr. All Star Kid's Bowling League season is in full swing, with Sweeney Brothers and Country Ski & Sport sharing the top spot with 32-8 records.

The rest of the standings: Dom's (28-12); Patriot Glass (26-14); Mike's Auto Body (22-18); Eco Muffler (22-18); Bernie's (16-24); Everlasting Engraving (12-28); Marylou's News (6-34); Olindy's (6-34).

The top boys average is currently held by Todd White at 106, followed by Jason Badgett at 100 and Chris Baker at 97. In the girls division, Amanda Cosgrove is the leader with a 70 average, followed by Kendra Ciccone at 68 and Colleen Ryan at 65.

Bowlers of the week were Chris Baker, who bowled the high single of the week (131) and had a three-string total of 317; James Opanaset, who bowled 45 pins over his 69 average with a high single of 96 and a high three of 252; Amanda Cosgrove, who bowled her personal high three of 212 and a high single of 83; and Brittany Kelley, who bowled 14 pins over her average of 62 with a high three of 200.

Chris Barra Wins Judo Tournament

Christopher Barra, a junior at North Quincy High School, finished first at the recent Kwang Moo Kwan Invitational Judo Tournament in Norwich, Conn.

The annual tournament drew competitors from Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island and New York.

Barra, who won four matches, defeated two opponents with a submission choke koshi-jime (hip strangle). Another he beat with a side four corner hold down.

The final first place-clinching match was a close decision over Joe Nees from Rhode Island. Nees came back undefeated from the losers pool in the double elimination tournament after having lost to Barra earlier. Nees finished second and is also expected to compete at the High School National Judo Tournament in March. Barra studies under Bill Stevens and Tom Comerford at the "L" Street Judo Club in South Boston, and with Rick Meara in Everett.

Pat Foley Painting used a balanced offensive attack to edge Keohane's, 5-4.

Leading the way for Foley were Mike Lohnes (two goals, assist), Kristina Manganaro (goal, two assists), Terrence O'Connell (two goals), John Clark (two assists), Patrick Maloney and Marissa Powers (one assist each). For Keohane's, offensive standouts were Matt Giordani (two assists), Jim Carita and Jonathan O'Connor (one goal apiece), Mike Giordani and Paul Lennon (two assists each), Tim Fernandez and Sean O'Neil (one assist apiece).

Matt Quigley's goal and assist paced The Quincy Sun to a 3-1 triumph over M. Sugarmann.

Eddie Laura and Brendan Clifford added a goal apiece and Robby Gagliardi, Patrick Mullen and Daniel Reggiannini each dished out an assist for The Sun. Sugarmann's goal was by Ian McRae, assisted by Steve Bythrow and Bob Newcomb.

Squirt B's Blank Brookline

The Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt B Bulldogs continued their strong play of late with a 9-0 victory over Brookline on Sunday.

Ryan Barter notched his second shutout and the solid defensive work of Pat Devlin, Rose Devlin, Ray Marchand, Mike McPherson, Bryan Donelin and Dan Poggi set the tone for the offensive show to follow.

Rose Devlin opened the floodgates when she scored on a shot from the point, assisted by Kevin Shinnick. Matt Giordani netted the second goal, assisted by his brother Mike and McPherson. Shinnick went on to notch two goals, with assists from James Sheehan and Steve Maggio.

In the second period, Glen Gibbons put in a goal, assisted by Stevie Bythrow, who scored a few seconds later on an assist from Dan Reggiannini. In the third, Poggi netted a goal with assists from Pat Devlin and Marchand.

YOUTH HOCKEY

The highlight of the game was the hat trick scored by Maggio, who had worked hard all season and finally saw the effort pay off with his first three goals.

Last Thursday, the Bulldogs avenged an earlier one-goal loss, scoring four goals in the second period en route to a 6-2 triumph over Dorchester.

Brendan Mulcahy opened the second-period outburst with a goal assisted by Matt Giordani. Not to be outdone, Matt Giordani scored a goal assisted by his brother Mike, who later netted an unassisted goal.

Reggiannini lifted one into the net assisted by Stevie Bythrow, who scored an unassisted goal in the third. Reggiannini notched another goal, courtesy of a pass from Glen Gibbons. Throughout the game, Barter's goaltending and the defensive line anchored by Rose Devlin continually turned back the Dorchester assault.

In earlier action, the Bulldogs blanked Westwood, 3-0, with Ryan Barter recording the shutout between the pipes. Mike Giordani opened the scoring with a blast into the Westwood net, assisted by Bythrow. Barter and the blueliners kept turning away Westwood's attack.

Bythrow scored a goal assisted by Rose Devlin to end the second period. In the third, the Quincy defense tightened up and Barter made save after save. Mulcahy, Matt Giordani, Gibbons and Reggiannini put on a clinic on how to back check.

All of Sheehan's hard work paid off when he scored his first goal of the season in the third, assisted by Maggio and Shinnick.

Squirt A's Fall To Framingham

The Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt A's fell to Framingham, 3-2, on Sunday when Framingham scored the game-winner midway through the third period.

Quincy opened the scoring in the first period when Kevin Richardson netted a goal assisted by Paul Noonan and Andrew Patten. Framingham tied the score in the second before Quincy regained the lead on a score by Alex Shaffer, assisted by Richardson and Jonathan O'Connor.

Framingham mounted several forays into Quincy's zone, including a breakthrough that goaltender Pat Maloney stopped to protect the one-goal lead. The play went up and down the ice with both teams getting numerous scoring chances. Framingham took the lead for good on a searing-eye goal that passed through a maze of players.

The action continued at both ends of the ice with Framingham looking for an insurance goal and Quincy seeking to tie the game.

With less than a minute to play, Quincy pulled its goalie for one last attack but ran out of time. Coach Richardson was pleased with the play of all his players, particularly Mike McKeon, Dave Oronte, Brendan Clifford and Matt Haskins.

OBITUARIES

David E. Curtin Jr., 75
Longtime Quincy Firefighter

A funeral Mass for David E. Curtin Jr., 75, of Quincy, was celebrated Tuesday at St. Ann's Church.

Mr. Curtin died Feb. 11 at Quincy Hospital after a brief illness.

He was appointed to the Quincy Fire Department in 1958 and served 32 years before his retirement in 1980.

He was a World War II Army veteran.

A lifelong Quincy resident, he was educated in Quincy schools.

He is survived by his wife, Rose K. (Carmickle) Curtin; a son, David E. Curtin III of Quincy; three daughters, Christine M.

Small of Ashland, Robbie C. Richardson of Shrewsbury and Katherine R. Morris of Weymouth; two brothers, James J. Curtin of Weymouth and Lawrence M. Curtin of Braintree; two sisters, Edna M. Marini of Weymouth and Marion C. Fitzgerald of Hingham; eight grandchildren; and many nieces and nephews. Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to the charity of one's choice.

Antonio Camilo, 79
Retired Factory Worker

A funeral service for Antonio Camilo, 79, of Quincy, was held Tuesday in the Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St.

Mr. Camilo died Feb. 13 at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth.

He was a retired factory worker.

Born in the Cape Verde Islands, he had lived in Dorchester and for several years in Quincy.

He is survived by his wife, Maria (Silva) Camilo; two sons, Joe Camilo of Saugus and Charlie Camilo of Addison, N.Y.; five daughters, Madeline Gomes, Mariana Tawfik and Anna Langton, all of Quincy, Maria Camilo of Braintree and Eunice Rietman of Medford; 16 grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

James J. 'Pete' Ricciuti, 81
Confidant To Three Mayors
Former City Official

A funeral Mass for James J. "Pete" Ricciuti, 81, former city official and confidant to three Quincy mayors, was celebrated Tuesday in St. Mary's Church, West Quincy.

Mr. Ricciuti, a Quincy native who more recently lived in Weymouth, died Feb. 12 at Quincy Hospital of complications from diabetes.

He served as public works commissioner under Mayors James McIntyre, Walter Hannon and Arthur Tobin and was also purchasing agent and executive secretary to Mayor McIntyre.

Norfolk County Commissioner John Gillis, former Quincy city clerk and a longtime friend of Mr. Ricciuti said in his eulogy at the Mass:

"Pete was a visionary who looked to the future.

"He grew up in the age of innocence when there were strong family values, family, friends, church and helping your neighbors was all important.

"He had a wonderful father and mother who loved their family dearly and brought them up to be good and hard working, kind and loving.

"I personally remember (him) as sturdy as the granite that was mined in the quarries of his birthplace in West Quincy."

Friends of Mr. Ricciuti from the Wollaston Golf Club who annually got together with him each winter in Florida attended a Mass for him in Ft. Lauderdale at the same time as the Mass at St. Mary's Church.

Mr. Gillis' eulogy was faxed to Ft. Lauderdale and read by another longtime friend, former School Committee member Paul Kelly at that Mass.

Mayor James Sheets, who ordered flags at City Hall and on all other municipal buildings lowered to half-staff in respect to Mr. Ricciuti, said of him:

"Pete was a very loyal, a

JAMES J. RICCIUTI

very dedicated and a very committed man to the City of Quincy. He provided outstanding leadership as the Commissioner of Public Works, especially during the Blizzard of '78. He was a tower of strength (during the blizzard), working virtually days without sleep, and Quincy was dug out a lot faster than most communities.

"Pete left his mark on the city. We're all indebted to what he's done, and we're all going to miss him."

There were other tributes from friends and associates. Among them:

Congressman William Delahunt, who was among those attending the Mass, said: "When I think of Pete Ricciuti one word jumps out: loyalty. He was loyal to his family, his friends, his city and his country."

"With Pete's death, the McIntyres have lost a cherished friend and confidant," said Sheila McIntyre, wife of the late mayor. "The wisdom that came through years of varied experiences enabled him to provide sage advice and counsel when sought by Jim and later by our families over the years."

"Pete believed that if someone asked for help, you gave it without a second thought. Just one example of his quiet acts of kindness was evidenced when as a member of St. Boniface Haiti Foundation I mentioned that we would like to acquire an ambulance for a hospital there. He immediately put me in touch with

Edward J. Brady, 81
Quincy Court Assistant Clerk

A funeral Mass for Edward J. Brady, 81, was celebrated Feb. 14 in Immaculate Conception Church, East Weymouth.

Mr. Brady died Feb. 10 at the Hancock Park Nursing Home after a long illness.

He was an assistant clerk in the Quincy District Court for 43 years before his retirement in 1990.

He began his career in private practice and began filling in as temporary clerk at Quincy District Court in 1948. He held that post until he was permanently appointed in 1965.

From there, Mr. Brady rose through the ranks. He was promoted to third assistant clerk in 1975, second assistant clerk in 1976 and first assistant clerk in 1977, when he remained until his retirement.

He received many award and plaques over the years.

"He was one of the finest gentlemen, greatly beloved by all the ladies in the office, a wonderful human being," said Quincy District Court Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin. "He was a fine example of the Bar and he was always very helpful—he would always seem to find a way to resolve an issue in the best possible way. He was a very caring man, a very caring individual."

Mr. Brady served as a corpsman second class in the Army during World War ii.

He was a past member of the Quincy Zoning Board of Appeals, a member and past officer of the St. Joseph's Holy Name Society and members of the Ave Maria Council of the Knights of Columbus.

Born, raised and educated in Williamstown, Vt., he lived in East Weymouth for 30 years before moving to Quincy three years ago.

He graduated from St. Michael's College and Marquette University and earned a law doctorate from Suffolk University Law School. He was admitted to the Massachusetts Bar in 1943.

In his youth, he was a pitcher for the American Legion New England championship baseball team from Barre, Vt.

Mr. Brady is survived by his wife, Margaret M. (Driscoll) Brady; three sons, Thomas A. Brady of Eastham, Edward J. Brady Jr. of Weymouth; a daughter, Mary J. Brady of Weymouth; and seven grandchildren.

Burial was in Village Cemetery, Weymouth.

Funeral arrangements were by the McDonald Funeral Home, East Weymouth.

Donations may be made to Father Bill's Place, 38 Broad St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Edward J. Hogan, 73
Longtime Auto Mechanic

A funeral Mass for Edward J. Hogan, 73, of Quincy, was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) at Sacred Heart Church.

Mr. Hogan died Feb. 14 at Brigham and Women's Hospital, Boston.

He was the owner of Hogan's Exxon in Quincy for 15 years and worked for the post office as an auto mechanic for 13 years before retiring five years ago.

He served in the Army as a battalion sergeant major and then in the Coast Guard.

He was a member of the North Quincy Knights of Columbus and past commander of the Disabled American Veterans Chapter in South Boston.

Born in New York City,

he lived in Quincy the past 38 years.

He is survived by his wife, Mildred F. (O'Neill) Hogan; three sons, Ned Hogan of Quincy, Michael Hogan of Weymouth and Charles "Chuck" Hogan of Florida; two daughters, Helen Corriero of Malden and Theresa "Ten" Hooper of Quincy; a sister, Maureen Lundahl of North Kingston, R.I.; and 10 grandchildren.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to Sacred Heart Church Memorial Fund, 386 Hancock St., North Quincy, MA 02171.

SCOTT DEWARE

*A Thought
For The Week*

While most people do not like to think about their own death or that of a close family member, funeral pre-planning and/or pre-financing can ease possible problems associated with death. There are many reasons that people pre-plan their own funerals.

One of the most important is that pre-planning makes one's wishes known; it eases the burden placed upon the family at a time when clear decisions may be difficult to make.

Pre-planning does away with any possible disagreement among the bereaved as to what to do and how much to spend. Pre-planning gives one a piece of mind in knowing arrangements have been made in advance.

If you have any questions concerning pre-planning and/or pre-financing, please feel free to contact us by phone or stop by for consultation. We will answer all questions honestly and frankly and in the strictest of confidence. At no obligation, of course...

Ray Fallon (of Fallon Ambulance) whom he knew was involved in such charitable work and before long an ambulance was made available. A simple act that will have a lasting impact.

"We loved Pete and our lives were enriched by him."

"I looked to him for his wise counsel and sound judgment," said Tobin. "I turned to Pete when a tough decision had to be made, because he always had the best intentions of the City of Quincy at heart."

"He always made sure the right thing was done; he had good instincts and everyone who worked with him valued his good judgment."

Former Mayor Hannon said: "He was just a great guy. He knew how to get things done and when he wanted something done, it got done."

Daniel Raymond, Ward 2 City Councilor, recalled the admiration he and his father, the late Alfred Raymond, shared for Ricciuti.

"My father was highway superintendent under Pete, and they had a great working relationship," said Raymond. "He thought very highly of Pete, as did I when I became a city official."

"When I think of Pete, I recall his dedication, not only to his job as public works commissioner, but to the City of Quincy and his family. His dedication and contributions can be seen all over the city. He was a great individual, and the city will miss him dearly."

Raymond fondly remembered a favor Ricciuti did for him when he applied to Boston College Law School.

"BC was the only law school I wanted to go to, and Pete, a BC graduate, sent letters to the president of the school on my behalf," he said. "He showed he would go out of his way to help the young people of Quincy further their education or career. He was just a great guy."

Mr. Ricciuti was treasurer of the Citizens for Plan A, which led to Quincy's changing its chief administrative executive from city manager to mayor.

After serving as public works commissioner, Mr. Ricciuti then worked with the MBTA and the extension of the Red Line through Quincy Center and the State Street South building construction.

He also ran the family business, Hancock Monument Co., with his two brothers.

He was past president of Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association. He was president of the Triangle Associates Investment Club. He was also a member and past treasurer of the Wollaston Golf Club.

A lasting honor remains in Quincy for Mr. Ricciuti and his family: a West Quincy road named Ricciuti Drive.

A veteran of World War II, he served in the South Pacific with the Army in the 317th Field Artillery Battalion, 81st Infantry Division. He was a past commander of the Cyril P. Morissette American Legion Post in Quincy.

Born and raised in Quincy, he graduated from Quincy High School and went to Boston College High School for a year to take preparatory classes. He studied business administration at Boston College, graduating in 1939.

He played football in high school and later played for a semiprofessional team in Milton.

In high school, he wore the letter "P" on his football jersey before numbers were worn which led to his nickname "Pete."

He lived in Quincy most of his life, moving to Braintree after his retirement and then to Weymouth. He also had a home in Pompano Beach, Fla.

Husband of the late Anita (Lorbat) Ricciuti and the late Doris (Barrett) Ricciuti, he is survived by six daughters, Joanne Ricciuti of Medford, Carol Corner of Milton, Anita Coolin and Elise Nagy, both of Quincy, Janice Ricciuti of Pompano Beach, Fla., and Linda Mills of Weymouth; two brothers and a sister, John T. Ricciuti, Philip L. Ricciuti and Marie D'Olimpio, all of Quincy; five grandchildren and many nieces, nephews, grandnieces and grand-nephews. He was also the brother of the late Genevieve Palumbo and Gloria Pelleriti.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Dolan Funeral Home, Milton.

Donations may be made to American Diabetes Assn., 2 Mount Ave., Marlboro, MA 01752.

Marion C. Melville, 90

A funeral service for Marion C. (Yoerger) Melville, 90, of Quincy, was held Feb. 13 at the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Mrs. Melville died Feb. 7 at the Colonial Nursing and Rehabilitation Center in Weymouth.

She worked as a dietitian for Howard Johnson's restaurants for 20 years, retiring in 1950.

Born in Quincy, she attended the Fanny Farmer Cooking School in Boston. Her family owned the Copper Kettle Restaurant for many years.

She formerly lived in New Jersey and lived in Quincy for 80 years.

She was a member of the Wollaston Women's Club.

Rev. Willis P. Miller, 78

Pastor At Quincy Methodist Churches

A memorial service for Rev. Willis Miller, 78, of South Hamilton, a former pastor of two United Methodist Churches in Quincy, will be held May 31 in the Vesper Circle of Asbury Grove in Hamilton.

The Rev. Miller died Feb. 9 in a Beverly Nursing Home.

The Rev. Miller, who practiced the unusual combination of the ministry and magic, also was a member of the Boston Assembly of the Society of American Magicians.

He performed his magic tricks during Billy Graham evangelistic crusades in India and South America in the 1970s. He practiced ventriloquism and slight of hand to entertain and educated young people about the evils of drugs and alcohol. He was past president of the American Council on Alcohol Problems, the Massachusetts Temperance League and the Foundation for Alcohol Education.

The pastor practiced tricks he had perfected since his youth for Sunday school children in his Quincy parishes and at First Methodist Church in Lynn, and congregations in Beverly, Jamaica Plain, Wilmington and Salem.

He also served congregations in Kentucky and Utah, where he was a mis-

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The near future is likely to bring a pay raise or a new chance to improve your income in some way. Coincidentally, your love life will take priority over friendship and family for a while.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Make it a point to plan some more weekend getaways. You need a diversion. This week, you'll be engrossed in a work-related project and may not be in the mood for much socializing.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Property and family concerns take center stage this week. Work progress is intermittent, though. Over the weekend, loved ones are on the save wave length.

CANCER (June 21 to July 21) A new romantic interest is on the horizon for singles in the near future. You'll reach an important decision this week concerning a financial or domestic matter. Trust your instincts.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You take pride in what you accomplish at work this week. However, watch your credit card spending. This weekend, romance and children's interests are favored.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) It's a good week for signing a contract or reaching an important agreement. You receive important insights and make further decisions about career concerns. The weekend favors quiet pursuits.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You're looking good in terms of financial prospects for the foreseeable future. However, a career matter requires further thought. This weekend, social life is accented.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) For the most part this week, benefits come to you through the auspices of an adviser. You derive a greater satisfaction from intellectual interests than from your social life this weekend.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You receive plaudits from your superiors. In general, this is a time of important career gains. Later in the week, others seek your advice. Cultural interests are highlighted during the weekend.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your popularity is at a peak this week. In addition, your thinking is on target regarding career interests and personal goals. Follow through on hunches.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You embark on an important research or creative project. However, guard against money slipping away through careless spending. This weekend brings interesting times with friends.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Reaching an agreement about a mutual financial concern may be difficult this week. However, you have renewed self-confidence. Over the weekend, enjoy home-based activities with family.

High Home Insurance Premiums Not Mandatory

through them.

*Consider insurance when buying. Even before purchasing a home, think about your coverage. Policies for new homes may be cheaper because the houses come equipped with sounder electrical and plumbing systems.

*Insure your house, not the land it's on. Keep in mind that in most cases your land is not at risk for the reasons you usually buy home insurance. You don't have to include the land's value when deciding how much coverage to purchase for your home.

*Increase security measures. Many insurers will also give discounts for smoke detectors, burglar alarms and dead-bolt locks. You may qualify for further discounts if your security system is wired to alert police and fire departments in case of emergency.

*Be loyal. If you have your car and home insured with the same company for many years, there is a chance they will reward your loyalty with discounted premiums.

*Check policy yearly. Perform an annual check-up on your coverage. If you gave your grandmother's wedding ring to a daughter as a gift, you probably don't have to keep the coverage on your policy. You can just have that rider deleted and you can pocket the savings.

Don Gohl Bank Of Canton Customer Service Asst. V.P.

Don Gohl has been named the new assistant vice president for customer service at the Bank of Canton's Quincy Banking Center.

Gohl has 52 years of banking experience in Quincy. He has been known to provide transportation and perform transactions for customers who are incapacitated.

In addition, he is an active member of the Southern Artery Players, a past president of the Quincy Rotary Club, and has been active in the Chamber of Commerce, the Boy Scout Council, the Retired Senior Volunteer Program.

DON GOHL

In May 1996, Mayor James Sheets honored him for his 50th anniversary in the banking industry and his continued service to the residents of Quincy.

"I know banking, and I know banks," said Gohl, "and I have never been with a bank that values customer service as much as the Bank of Canton does. They pay consistently high rates and provide service with a friendly smile—even a simple passbook savings account pays 3 percent."

"I hope that all the people who have been so loyal to me over the years will come and visit me at the Quincy Banking Center. I want them to see for themselves."

McKay Fried Selected For Atlantic Data Campaign

Atlantic Data Services (ADS) of Quincy has named McKay Fried & Partners Inc. its agency of record.

McKay Fried will be responsible for developing a comprehensive campaign on behalf of ADS, utilizing both advertising and public relations.

ADS, established in 1980, is a solution-oriented consulting firm which exclusively partners with financial institutions to manage change. The firm offers business, project and technology expertise to its industry partners to provide value-added business solutions.

"We have been seeking a marketing partner for some time," said ADS Chairman/CEO Robert Howe. "McKay Fried & Partners came to us with an integrated marketing plan that really made a lot of sense, strategically, for where we want to take this company."

John McKay, commenting on the new client, said,

"ADS challenged us to come to them with a truly strategic plan that would raise their visibility in this extremely competitive arena."

ADS specializes in five major practices including Information Technology Consulting; Year 2000; Consolidations and Conversions; Electronic Commerce/Home Banking; and Application Outsourcing; to meet the business needs of its clients.

Stop & Shop Effort Raises $909 For NQHS

Quincy Stop & Shop customers helped raise $908.85 for North Quincy High School in 1997 through a recycling program initiated by the supermarket and the Environmental Products Corp. (ENVIPCO). Stop & Shop teamed up

Dr. Norman Wortzman
Podiatric Board Diplomat

Quincy podiatrist Dr. Norman A. Wortzman has been named Diplomat in the American Board of Primary Podiatric Medicine.

Following his successful completion of written, oral and case presentation sections, Wortzman was board certified by the American Board of Podiatric Orthopedics and Primary Podiatric Medicine.

Wortzman is a Massachusetts Podiatric Medical Society (MPMS) past president and has served as a member of the Massachusetts delegation to the American Podiatric Medical Association (APMA). He is a past chairman of MPMS Division 6, and has recently been elected to the position of treasurer of APMA Region One. He currently serves as secretary of MPMS and has served as manager of the annual APMA Region One toll-free New England-wide foot health hotline since its inception in 1993.

The 1975 graduate of Boston University received his doctor of podiatric medicine degree from the New York College of Podiatric Medicine in 1979. Wortzman served his residency in podiatric medicine in surgery at Doctors Hospital of Worcester from 1979 to 1980.

He is in private practice at 389B Hancock St., North Quincy.

Bill Feeny Assistant V.P.
At Boston Mortgage
Investment Co.

Boston Mortgage Investment Company has named Bill Feeny of Quincy as assistant vice president on their mortgage origination team.

Feeny will be using his experience and expertise to help expand upon the company's position on the South Shore.

Boston Mortgage Investment Company recently moved to a new state-of-the-art headquarters at 32 Chestnut St., Quincy. The facility has enabled the addition of staff and services to help solidify the company's reputation as one of the area's quickest, most efficient, and most innovative mortgage originators.

Feeny has lived in Quincy for the past 32 years with his wife, Jean, and six daughters (Maureen, Lynda, Kathleen, Patricia, Kara, and Marybeth). He is active in his church (St. Ann's) and community. He also has a passion for the game of golf.

Lynda Brandt Hospital
Perinatal Services Director

Lynda Brandt, RNC, M.S. has been named director of perinatal services at Quincy Hospital.

Brandt brings with her an extensive background in perinatal care, including positions in nursing education and management in low risk, high risk and critical care settings. She also has developed obstetrical education and professional competency programs for low risk, high risk and critical care obstetric facilities.

She received her B.S.N. degree from Mt. Mercy College in Cedar Rapids, Iowa and her master of science degree from the University of Colorado Health Sciences Center in Denver, Colo.

Her focus on patient education has resulted in expanded offerings for local expectant parents.

"We are firmly committed to helping our patients feel well-informed and comfortable about the birthing experience," said Brandt.

The staff of the maternity service, First Moments, is actively involved in the development and teaching of the expanded education program. Brandt added that the group of RN's is focused on individualized care of the mother and newborn.

Brandt comes to Quincy Hospital from Wilford Hall Medical Center at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas.

JOHN ADAMS, the second U.S. President and a Quincy native, was at Monday's Presidents Day Winter Festival in Quincy Center in the form of an ice sculpture created by Atlantic Ice Sculptors of Quincy.

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS of Quincy, the nation's sixth President, was among a half-dozen ice sculptures created for the second annual Presidents Day Winter Festival on Monday.

from George Washington to Bill Clinton. Measuring 50 feet wide and 24 feet tall, the mural served in part as an entrance to the crypts of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams inside the church.

"Everybody loved the mural," said Cheney.

He added that the visits to the crypts were particularly well-organized this year and broke previous attendance records at the site.

In addition, there were Civil War and Colonial encampments, six ice sculptures created by Atlantic Ice Sculptors of Quincy (including one of all the Presidents), a giant eagle composed of recycled cardboard and paper featuring 1,000 hand-made feathers (created by artist Gene Shea of Quincy, brother of Jerome Shea of Atlantic Ice Sculptors), an inflatable "Sky-Dancer" that was first used at First Night Quincy and will be used in other city events, live entertainment, face-painting and more.

Admission and all activities were free, although $2 was charged per person for the face-painting.

"It was only to help defray our costs," said Cheney. "The entire event cost around $15,000 to $16,000 to put on, and the paint we used was expensive."

He said overall, he was very pleased with the response the event received, noting that local television news stations, including Channels 5 and 56 were in attendance as well as residents from Braintree, Canton, Milton, Plymouth and other communities.

"It wasn't just people from Quincy attending," said Cheney. "Clearly, we have shown events like this bring some tourism to the city, and hopefully some of the people there did some local shopping."

"It also speaks well of the city and shows that we care about our city and our country. We are the only event in the U.S. that celebrates Presidents Day."

Cheney said he hopes next year's festival can be expanded. For instance, while this year's event featured a one-man performance on the life of Theodore Roosevelt, he wants the 1999 celebration to include similar re-enactments featuring George Washington, John Adams, and John Quincy Adams.

300 More In Early 1999 Sheets Sees 300 Hired At Shipyard By August

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Approximately 300 workers will be hired for the soon-to-be reopened Fore River shipyard by August, and that number will double in about 15 months, according to Mayor James Sheets.

Sheets said Tuesday that Sotirios Emmanouil, the head of Massachusetts Heavy Industries and the shipyard's owner, plans to hire 300 workers before the end of the summer and another 300 in early 1999.

"I'm excited because young people from Quincy will be able to train for good jobs with good benefits at the shipyard and be able to raise their families on those wages," said Sheets. "It just adds another dimension to our economic base. It's also, in reality, the revitalization of Quincy Point."

Sheets said the workers hired this summer will be comprised of about 60 percent with prior shipyard experience and 40 percent without. Those numbers will be reversed for employees hired next year, he said.

The mayor added that, under an agreement with the federal government, at least 50 percent of those employed at the shipyard, if possible, will be Quincy residents. All will receive training for their positions, he said.

Eventually, Sheets said, even more workers will be hired.

"To build two ships a year, he (Emmanouil) would need 1,000 people working there," he said.

Shipyard officials including Massachusetts Heavy Industries Vice President and former Congressman Gerry Studds, met with local union members in Dorchester last week to outline employment prospects at the shipyard, which is currently being modernized for tanker construction. Emmanouil has told city officials he plans to use all union labor at the shipyard.

The shipyard has been closed since General Dynamics left the city in 1986. Emmanouil, a Greek shipbuilder, obtained $55 million in federal loan guarantees from the U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD) in December to reopen it after many months of work.

Emmanouil is still awaiting word on another $249 million in loan guarantees which will allow six tankers for which he has contracted to be financed and built.

In the meantime, Sheets said, the site is being cleaned up in preparation for the construction of four buildings that will house the shipyard's fabrication house--where most of the shipyard construction will take place--which should begin within a month.

At O'Brien Towers

Electrical Explosions Leave 300 Seniors Without Heat

A power outage at O'Brien Towers in Germantown left nearly 300 residents without heat or electricity for over 13 hours during Tuesday's coastal storm.

Peter Kolson, superintendent of maintenance for the Quincy Housing Authority--which operates the senior facility--said the outage was caused by "a series of 10 or 15 explosions" of electrical feeder bars that power the building's main distribution boxes.

At press time it was unknown what caused the explosions. Kolson said that according to Thomas Purpura, the city's wire inspector, the torrential rains and heavy winds could have been a factor.

Kolson said he arrived on the scene after the initial set of explosions--which occurred around 5:30 a.m.--and was there when the next

Goal: 'Keep It In Quincy'

Shopping Commission Vows Aggressive Action

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A new commission formed to study the shopping needs of the citizens of Quincy plans to be "vibrant and aggressive" in making recommendations to city officials, according to a group spokesperson.

Judy Kolson, a commission member, said the group held its first meeting at City Hall last Thursday, at which time members selected a name for the commission--Keep It In Quincy--and made a number of recommendations. A chairperson may or may not be appointed at a later date.

"Keep It In Quincy" means keep the shopping in Quincy," said Kolson. "It was a vibrant, successful meeting, and people came in with a lot of ideas."

Joseph Mannarino, executive director of Quincy 2000--the city's public-private planning corporation--attended last week's meeting and said he looks forward to working with the commission.

"It's very important to have enthusiastic citizens," he said. "It's good having someone making suggestions. It's an asset."

Mannarino also said Quincy 2000 will act on suggestions about what kinds of businesses to bring to Quincy if possible, but ultimately such decisions are made by real estate brokers and property owners.

Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (OCBPA) Executive Director Maralin Manning, however, said the commission could be duplicating some of the work of previous committees that already have identified the needs of the downtown and other Quincy shopping areas.

"It's one thing to say what's needed, and it's another thing to provide the atmosphere and ambience to make it happen," she said.

But commission member Joanne Dondero, owner of Abigail's Crossing in Quincy Center, said the new group is determined to find out "about what the people want, as opposed to what others think they want. This group is not intended to take over Quincy 2000's or any one else's job.

"Last week's meeting was one of the most productive I've ever attended. Everyone was very upbeat, and they want to get things done. We have a good cross-section of people."

The commission was formed at the suggestion of Kolson's husband, City Council President Kolson, who made the proposal last month. The councillor said his research indicates that 80 percent of the nation's shopping is done by women, and that a mostly-female commission should be formed to make recommendations on what products and services should be offered in the city, particularly Quincy Center.

"We need to make sure there are businesses there to provide the services they need," said Judy Kolson.

Appointed by the City Council, the 10-member commission includes: Kolson and Nancy McArdle, Ward 1; Zaida Shaw, Ward 2; Judy Farmer, Ward 3; Sue Webber, Ward 4; Joanne Dondero, Ward 5; Linda Colon, Ward 6; Peter Seppala and David Lydon, at-large; and Nancy Callahan of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women. All are community activists or local business owners.

"We're all Type-A personalities," said Kolson. "We're going to be a vibrant, aggressive committee, dedicated to not only making Quincy Square better, but also other things."

Kolson added that the group will be particularly aggressive in making its suggestions for improvement to Mayor James Sheets, the City Council, the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, and Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning corporation.

"If, for instance, we make a suggestion to Quincy 2000 and say we want an answer within two weeks, we'll insist upon an answer within two weeks," she said.

One of the commission's first orders of business, she noted, will be to formulate a questionnaire when it meets again tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in City Hall. The questionnaire will be sent to all the employees of Quincy Center's "major employers" for their input about what improvements should be made, Kolson said.

If the endeavor receives a good response, the questionnaire might be included in the mail with residents' tax bills at some point in the future, she added.

Some of the other ideas commission members came up with at last Thursday's meeting:

- Bring a button/fabric store and more clothing shops to the downtown.

- Make Quincy Center more attractive with various aesthetic improvements, including cleaner store windows and the installation of brighter streetlights.

- Change people's views about the area's parking situation.

- Print 100 bumper stickers advertising Quincy shopping.

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

- Granted a permit to Michael Quinn Productions, Inc. in con-

- Have the Quincy Planning Department look into advertising Quincy on the MBTA Red Line from Quincy Center to Harvard Square.

- Make the downtown as vibrant as possible on Sundays.

- "We want to shoot for a Main Street USA," said Kolson. "The dream is to become (like) a Newbury Street (in Boston); the reality is we have a lot of work to do."

The commission, when it meets, will seek as much input as possible. The Planning Department and Quincy 2000 will be represented at all meetings—which also will be open to the public—and Quincy Center business owners and real estate brokers will be invited to attend on certain dates. However, only the 10 members will vote on what suggestions to make to city officials.

The group has been appointed to serve for 12 months. Kolson said she believes the commission's work can be completed in that time.

- "We want the project completed in one year," she said. "We're project-objective, not process-objective."

Dondero said the same. "I think there will be some results from this group, and the sooner the better, as far as I'm concerned," she said. "I think Quincy has a bright future."

- Granted a permit to South Shore Habitat for Humanity to conduct a road race at Marina Bay, Sunday, May 17. Rain date is May 31.

- Allowed a transfer of ownership from Freddy's Cycle Center, 92-94 Franklin St. (Fred DiGiusto) to South Shore Motor Sports, Inc. (Mark Brewster) and for a Motor 1 License and permit to store 250 gallons of gasoline in the tanks of vehicles stored at the site.

- According to board chairman Joseph Shea, the board will hear a request April 1 from Roche Brothers Supermarket for a beer and wine license. They were unsuccessful two years ago when they first applied.

Shea said that Shaw's Supermarket in North Quincy will also apply again for a beer and wine license sometime in April.

Quincy Republicans To Caucus March 6

The Quincy Republican City Committee will meet Friday, March 6 at 7 p.m. at Roche Bros. Supermarket in Quincy Point to vote for delegates to the State Convention or April 17 and 18.

In order to vote, a person must be a committee member. In order to run as a delegate, a person must be a Quincy resident and have been enrolled in the Republican Party for at least one year.

Each elected delegate will be required to pay $45 to attend the convention.

You Can Help Stop the Decay!

The fact that people are living longer stresses the importance of caring for your spine. Misaligned spinal bones affect your nerves which can affect your balance, spinal health, posture, and resistance to disease. If the position / motion of the affected vertebrae is not corrected, degeneration occurs, becoming worse over time. This can result in stiffness, headaches, neck & shoulder pain, backaches, numbness and tingling.

Chiropractic adjustments keep proper motion in the spine and stop spinal decay. You can always benefit from a healthier spine!

License Board To Look Into Overcrowding Report At Coffee House

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Quincy License Board Chairman Joseph Shea told the board Tuesday after learning of a five piece band and overcrowding at the Bean Routine on 299 Newbury Ave., that a "review of coffee house licenses has to be made."

The establishment, owned by Michael Condon, does not have an entertainment license Shea said. Condon also owns the Bean Routine on Hancock Street, next to Finian's, which does have a cabaret license.

Shea said the coffee houses seem to be a "place for in between people"

Det. Sgt. Robert M. Perchard, liquor inspector told the board that the non-alcoholic establishment has a seating capacity of 19. He said the night he got the call to investigate, there were from 70 to 75 persons (ages about 15 to 19) in the coffee house with about 40 to 50 persons waiting in a line outside.

Perchard said the manager John King did not have any knowledge of the entertainment license. Citing danger in case of fire, Perchard added that there is only one extra way out of the building and that persons would have to go through the kitchen to get out.

Perchard said when Condon was given the license for the Bean Routine on Newbury Ave., the hours were to be Monday through Saturday, from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. and on Sundays from 6 a.m. to 1 p.m. He told the board that the coffee house is in violation of those hours.

Shea said he would ask Condon to attend the March 10 meeting of the license board.

PEPPER SPRAY Training Class will be offered Tuesday, March 3 from 5 to 8 p.m. in Conference Room A at Quincy Hospital. To register, call 773-6100, ext. 6102.

Pepper Spray Training Class At Hospital March 3

Quincy Hospital, 114 Whitwell St., is offering a free Pepper Spray Training Class Tuesday, March 3 at 7 p.m. in Conference Room A.

Mark Dutra, security operations manager, will teach defensive and offensive techniques for pepper spray use. Participants will learn differences in strengths of the product and how to work through exposure.

Comfortable clothing is recommended and advance registration is required. To register, call the hospital's Security Department at 773-6100, ext. 6102.

Earlier Renewal Dates For Liquor, Food Licenses

The Quincy License Board in an effort to issue license renewals in a "more orderly fashion" will renew permits earlier in December..

Chairman Joseph Shea in addressing Tuesday's board meeting, said the idea to change the time was initiated by Det. Sgt. Robert Perchard, liquor inspector and license board agent.

All liquor and food licenses renewals for 1999 are now due Dec. 11 through Dec. 20, 1998. (they used to be due Dec. 31.)

Licenses paid after Dec. 20 will be assessed a $10 late fee for every day after the Dec. 20 due date.

Perchard said instead of mailing the information to license holders, he plans to visit each one personally and have them sign off a sheet. He said this will stop the fact that some of the holders said "they didn't get it in the mail."

Shea said some license holders "wait until the last minute" and arrive at 4 p.m. on New Year's Eve. He said he hoped the new plan would "entice people to come forth earlier."

Other license holders such as cabs, rooming houses, gasoline stations have until April 1 to renew their licenses.

Other stipulations in the notice include:

•This notice will continue to be in effect for all upcoming years.

•Payments are made with a cashier's check or cash. No personal checks will be accepted.

You never used to hear about bone density. Parents told children that rays. Bone density for them grow up big and strong, and every once in a while, the news would circulate that someone's elderly Uncle Ed—or, more often, Aunt Edwina—had broken a hip. That was MEDICAL about it. Today we know that there are things you can do to both build up bone density and prevent bones from deteriorating. Among the more controversial tools are hormone therapy and bone-building drugs. Before considering these, you may be advised to have your bone density tested. There are several methods. One highly accurate test is dual X-ray

It's Ayers Vs. Chretien

It's a pretty safe bet that the new state representative in the First Norfolk District will be Bruce Ayers or Larry Chretien.

What at first looked like a crowded field for the seat Michael Bellotti is vacating to run for Norfolk County sheriff appears to have narrowed down to a two-man battle between Chretien and Ayers.

And the stage will be officially set for it tonight (Thursday) when Ayers formally declares his candidacy at a 7 to 9 p.m. announcement party at Raffael's, North Quincy. (Tickets: $10 per person, $15 per couple.)

Ayers and Chretien look like the two main contenders and—maybe—the only contenders.

When Bellotti announced he would seek the sheriff's badge instead of re-election, the immediate reaction was something like this: stand back, folks, you might get run down by speeding candidates.

But, one by one, the other major potential candidates stepped aside. Names like Ward 3 Councillor Pat McDermott, Ward 4 Councillor Mike D'Amico, School Committeewoman Jo-Ann Bragg and Tracy Wilson, hot off an impressive political debut as runner-up in last fall's school committee race.

There may be another candidate or two out there. Patrick Conroy who ran as an independent in 1992, David McGillicuddy who was the runner-up in the city council at-large race in his first run, and Robert Boussey who ran for the Ward 3 seat, have hinted they might get in.

But, the two top contenders appear to be Ayers and Chretien.

Chretien, former Ward 3 councillor, lost the Democratic nomination to Bellotti in 1992 by just 94 votes. Bellotti went on to defeat both Republican Michael Cronin and Conroy in the final election.

Conroy, who polled 2,061 votes as an independent in 1992, says if he runs it will be as a Democrat. He lives in Ward 6 and could affect the Ayers vote there.

McDermott's decision not to run could help Chretien eliminating what would have been some crucial vote-splitting.

But Ayers, as Ward 6 councillor, has a big plus of his own. There are 13 precincts in the First Norfolk District, 12 of them in Quincy. And five—almost half of those—are in Ward 6.

Three are in Ward 3 which Chretien used to represent, two in Ward 4 and two in Ward 5. The 13th is in Randolph.

D'Amico has lined up with Ayers and will try to deliver the two Ward 4 precincts to him.

McDermott and Ward 5 Councillor Steve Durkin have not yet indicated whether they will support either Ayers or Chretien or remain neutral.

Chretien got off to an early start formally announcing his candidacy last September and has been running hard ever since.

But Ayers said he has been doing some campaigning of his own the past month or two even before announcing.

It should be a pretty good race.

FORMER CONGRESSMAN Brian Donnelly, a late starter for governor, should be putting something big into his campaign chest at a fundraiser tonight (Thursday) 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at Pier 4, Boston.

Tickets are $100, $250 and $500.

For more information contact campaign director Jack Garland at the campaign headquarters on Temple St., Quincy Square.

FORMER SCHOOL COMMITTEEMAN Charles Sweeney recently drove to Missouri to turn over two family Civil War mementos to a museum there in Springfield named for his great grandfather, Union General Thomas W. Sweeney.

They were a sword and field glasses presented to the general by officers of the 52nd Illinois Volunteer Infantry for their "respect and confidence" in him in the battle of Shiloh, Tenn. He was known for leading his regiment from the battle line not from the rear. The names of 31 officers are engraved on two shields mounted to the glasses.

Dr. Thomas Sweeney (no relation), owner of the museum, was quite impressed with Charlie and wrote of his visit in the museum's newsletter, noting:

"Charlie, at the age of 81 years, drove to Springfield by himself in his Pontiac Firebird. When asked why he drove such a sporty car, he replied, 'I can get my skin in and out very easily through the hatchback.'"

Charlie, he would have been even more impressed if you had told him about the roses.

QUINCY FRIENDS WILL be interested in this update on Fr. Robert Flaherty, who was the first member of Our Lady of Good Counsel Parish to be ordained to the priesthood.

It comes from his sister, Dorothy Eilers of Rosewood Ave., Louisville, KY, who sent a note along with her subscription renewal to The Sun.

Fr. Flaherty, she writes, celebrated the 50th anniversary of his ordination as a Carmelite priest June 7, 1997 at Carefree Village Retirement Complex where he serves as chaplain.

Then, on Sept. 13, he helped celebrate the 50th wedding anniversary of his twin brother, John Flaherty of Carver.

Mrs. Eilers says Fr. Flaherty "was the first young man from Our Lady of Good Counsel Church to be ordained and celebrated his first Mass on June 15, 1947 at the church.

"My brother and I grew up first at St. John's and then at Our Lady."

WHEN IT COMES to politics, North Quincy's Sal Giarratani isn't easy to keep track of.

Elected an alternate delegate at the Ward 6 Democratic caucus, he will be going to his fourth state convention in June. But his first as a Democrat.

The last time he went was as an alternate from Ward 5 in 1986—as a Republican.

Sal is calling himself a "Flynn-ocrat" this year, working for Ray Flynn in his bid for governor.

Scenes From Yesterday

The Ujjas-Koitto, Temperance Society Hall, Quincy, Mass.

Ujjas-Koitto, Raitius. Seuran Talo Quincy, Mass.

THIS IS A 1920 VIEW of the Ujjas-Koitto Temperance Society Hall that was on the corner of Nelson Street and Suomi Road in West Quincy. They first built the small section of the hall in the front in 1894, and then they expanded it with the church-like structure in the rear in 1912. Today a stone tablet is all that identifies this site. Fire in 1973 destroyed the building. Quincy was an early leader in the temperance movement. Long before he was President, John Adams tried to limit the number of taverns and retailers who sold rum. Finally in 1881, Quincy's Henry H. Faxon succeeded in having the State Laws changed so that the question of liquor license was brought directly before the voters. By the time it became a city in 1888, Quincy was a no-license town. For many years temperance societies like this one were an important part of the community.

Quincy's Granite Tourism Future Has Rock-Solid Foundation

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Thank you for writing about Quincy's great granite ball, and the Quincy granite industry, which it symbolizes.

As you noted, the near 11-ton polished ball was presented to the city in 1925 to commemorate the 300th anniversary of settlement in 1625. Quincy residents might also be pleased to remember that 1925 also marked the 100th anniversary of the commercial founding of the granite industry in Quincy, 1825 being the year when construction commenced upon the Old Quincy Canal, linking Washington Street with Town River Bay adjacent to the Souther Tide Mills.

While Quincy has long been promoted as the "City of Presidents," its status as birthplace of the U.S. granite industry is one of its most remarkable achievements, and a story which interweaves the Presidential story. The visitor to Quincy's President's City Hall (across from Quincy City Hall) cannot fail to be impressed by the superb monolithic columns in that structure—or the scale of the large stone blocks which make up both the church and old City Hall. That fine stonework is also evident in the burial ground nearby, while historical sleuthing also reveals that John Quincy Adams was a stockholder (and thus builder and promoter) of the Quincy Canal—as well as a famous U.S. President and abolitionist.

Less widely known is the fact that the Adams and Souther families were related by marriage—and that both prominent Quincy families were involved mechanically with figuring new ways to drain quarries of water (sound familiar?) to build wharves and canal locks, and to design and build ships to carry the stone, allowing many—including Thomas Crane—to amass vast fortunes in the stone-cutting industry.

Because the Quincy granite story is such a major part of Quincy's heritage—and because it's a story that reached all across the United States in the cities and stone economics it built I am convinced that Quincy's granite tourism future has a rock-solid foundation. I encourage those like Tocci, Cantelli, D'Amico, the Montis, Montillios and others who are pushing for a new Quincy Granite Museum to consider using part of the proposed Waterfront Heritage Park near the Souther Tide Mills as a splendid new setting to tell the story on the banks of the Quincy Canal where the industry had its birth. That site also has highway exposure, water access, granite artifacts, proximity to landmarks, and room for expansion.

Hunting Not Wanted In Quincy

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The other day when I took my daughter to her piano lesson at Beechwood on the Bay, I couldn't help but notice the new sign across the street in the parking lot at the Hummock. It read: "No Hunting."

Apparently, folks at Beechwood noticed hunters showing up in their neighborhood. God knows where they came from, but they apparently heard about our ducks over in the marshes behind Beechwood between the back of the school building over to the Marina Bay residences.

Apparently, the sight of hunters made many parents dropping their kids off at Beechwood a bit nervous. Beechwood called the Quincy Police, who quickly responded to check the situation out. All the hunters had their proper licenses. Under present city ordinances, bird hunting on public land such as the marsh area is legal as long as it is 500 feet from a school or residence.

You know, I still can't figure it out, can you? Hunters showing up with shotguns to shoot birds? Apparently, the MDC also didn't like this news and posted that "No Hunting" sign at the Hummock. I also heard that developer Peter O'Connell also posted "No Hunting" signs on his property to the rear of Beechwood where hunters may have been hunting. Seemed some of them were unknowingly on Peter's land.

Quincy Police are patrolling the wetlands by Marina Bay and the MDC keeps a close eye on the Hummock but the bottom line seems clear. If the MDC can post "No Hunting" signs on their land, why can't the City of Quincy change the city ordinance on hunting?

Hey, I love a good chicken dinner and even have a taste for duck, but I get mine at the supermarket, not behind Beechwood. If you like hunting, go to New Hampshire, go to Maine, go anywhere you want, except North Quincy. We ain't the woods. It's one thing to do bird watching, it's another thing to take 'em down with scud missiles in my backyard, isn't it?

It is time to declare an end to hunting season in Quincy once and for all. I agree with Daffy Duck on this issue: "Hunting duck in Quincy is despicable!"

Brett, Shea Fight N. Quincy Re-Zoning

By PAUL HAROLD

Councillors Joseph Brett and Charles Shea were on the losing side of a 7-2 vote to re-zone from residential to business the area of Vane St. that was taken for parking purposes.

Feb. 26 - March 4
1959

39 Years Ago

Both councillors put up a spirited fight, with moves to delay action and raising legal issues on the original taking.

Brett introduced letters from four of the six owners whose homes were taken, asking for a vote to rescind the original vote, to get their homes back.

The rezoning motion was made by Councillor William Ellis, and seconded by Councillor Edna Austin.

THREAT TO PADLOCK QUINCY DEPOT

In a letter to the New Haven Railroad, the Quincy Health Department warned that if conditions at the Quincy Depot were not cleaned up immediately, the station would be padlocked shut.

Sanitary Inspector Arthur Perette said the city received numerous complaints of "unsightly and unsanitary" conditions, in the rest rooms and waiting room. He noted the arrangement that had the station agent both sell tickets and maintain the station, was not working out.

BARBERS VOTE ON $1.75 HAIRCUT

Quincy barbers scheduled a meeting, to follow the vote in Boston of the Associated Master Barbers and Beauticians, to increase the price of haircuts from $1.50 to $1.75.

Vincent Pepe, president of the South Shore Local 699, scheduled a meeting of area union and non-union barbers to hear their opinions on the price increase. Robert Immonen of Sea St., vice president of the local, expected a favorable vote for the 25-cent boost.

QUINCY-ISMS

TINY TUMORS, BIG-TIME PAIN

Remember the princess and the pea? It took only one tiny kernel to drive that damsel to distraction, despite a pile of cushy mattresses. A glomus tumor (GT) is kind of like that. GTs are totally benign, small growths that can pack an amazing amount of discomfort. They tend to appear in certain areas of the toes, where glomus cells normally grow without incident. Occasionally, though, these cells gang together to form a little nodule. The result is usually extreme pain centered in a very small area. Patients often describe the sensation as throbbing, with a secondary burning feeling. Fortunately, treatment for GTs is fast and effective, requiring just a local anesthetic and minor excision. If you are suffering from these or any other foot related complaints call us at (617) 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Pkwy., Suite #18, Quincy and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

P.S. A ganglion is another benign, sometimes larger, tumor, usually occurring on the foot's top or outer toes.

Quincy High, Hancock Park Sign Partnership Agreement

Delahunt Seeks Tributes To John Quincy Adams

Congressman William Delahunt has invited the Quincy City Council and the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C. to help organize public commemorations of the former president's legacy.

Delahunt made the suggestion on Monday, the 150th anniversary of Adams's death.

"As the first member of Congress since Adams to call Quincy home, I am anxious to work with you and other elected officials, the Quincy Historical Society, and the National Park Service to organize a fitting celebration of the life and work of this remarkable man," Delahunt wrote to City Council President Peter Kolson and Councillor Paul Harold.

"Our celebration of this anniversary will benefit our city and our region in many ways, stimulating renewed pride in our local heritage and giving a boost to the tourism that is so important to the local economy," wrote Delahunt, who also stressed the value of this initiative to the Town of Weymouth, which was the home of Adams's mother,

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS

Abigail, and his maternal grandparents, William Smith and Elizabeth Quincy.

Because of the anniversary's national significance, he also proposed on Monday an appropriate celebration this year in Washington. In a letter to Dr. James Billington, head of the Library of Congress, Delahunt sought "help in organizing an appropriate commemoration of the life and work of this remarkable man."

and man of letters."

The letter also mentioned how Steven Spielberg's recent film "Amistad" brought Adams's role in the anti-slavery movement to the nation's attention.

To kick off his own commemoration of the Adams anniversary, Delahunt has launched his office's on-line website (www.house.gov/delahunt) that also includes a link to a Library of Congress exhibition featuring a hand-written manuscript of Adams's defense of the Amistad mutineers.

Delahunt said he will continue to search other Adams-related links for his Congressional website and plans to involve the John Quincy Adams Society in Washington, a group of moderate Republicans who gather periodically to celebrate Adams's memory.

Pain Center Offering Two New Treatments

The Quincy Comprehensive Pain Center, in its third year of treating patients with acute and chronic pain, is offering two new treatments.

They include massage therapy, an alternative method of treatment that can alleviate pain for a number of disorders involving muscle and other soft tissue, and acupuncture, the ancient Chinese art of healing.

The Pain Center uses traditional medical techniques and alternative therapy to help patients deal with acute or chronic pain. In a holistic approach, treatment ranges from nerve blocks and medication to acupuncture, manipulation, stress reduction and relaxation techniques. The acupuncturist is a board-certified practitioner.

Andrew Koropecy, MD,

Pain Center Medical director, said, "Patients have more alternatives than they would generally find in a more traditional medical environment."

The professional staff at the center includes Dennis Bailey, DO, osteopathy; David Blaustein, MD, psychiatry; Lee Chartock, MD, psychiatry; Jeffrey Erickson, MD, psychiatry; Barry Freedman, MS, DC, chiropractic medicine; and Koropecy, anesthesiology.

The center is located on the Quincy Hospital campus and is accepting new patients with a variety of acute and chronic disorders. For more information or to make an appointment, call 376-5557.

Tooth Brushing Tips

DR. FRED ATTARZADEH

One of the common fears about orthodontics is that the braces may cause decay. Your full bands, or the brackets bonded to your teeth, if your orthodontist has chosen to use this method, cover and protect that portion of your teeth as long as they are firmly attached.

Either way, your brushing problem is the same. The bands or bonded brackets do make your teeth harder to clean. The brackets, tubes and wires tend to make a little shelf around the outside of the teeth. This shelf makes it harder for your toothbrush to clean the space between your gums and the attachments.

If you fail to get the teeth clean and fail to exercise your gums swell and make it even more difficult to clean.

Continued Neglect

DR. FRED ATTARZADEH

Of These Areas

Will Result In Decay

Foods that usually slide across the teeth and gums during chewing are held back and prevented from doing their job of helping to clean the teeth and exercise the gums.

So when and how should you clean your teeth during orthodontic treatment?

When: Within five minutes after you eat. Easy to say but sometimes hard to do? When you're away from home, we suggest you carry a travel type or folding toothbrush with you.

How: First, brush back and forth across...between the wires and gums on the upper and lower to loosen the food particles. Next, brush correctly as if you had no bands on.

•Start on the outside of the uppers with bristles at a 45-degree angle toward the gum or shelf we have referred to. Scrub with a circular motion, two or three teeth at a time using 10 strokes, and move on.

•The same on the inner surfaces of the uppers.

•Scrub the chewing surfaces last.

•Start on the outside of the lower teeth and repeat this process. Remember, direct the brush at an angle toward the gum or shelf area.

Next, rinse your mouth and toothbrush. Look in a mirror to see if you have missed any places. Check the little half-moon spaces of teeth between the bands and gums and the space between the molar tubes and gums. If you see any areas you have missed, clean them now.

When you have finished, the bands and wires should be free of all food particles and the soft white coating (called plaque). The braces should look clean and shiny.

The oral lavage or oral hygiene device (water type) can be very helpful but it is to be used AFTER thorough brushing. It is not a substitute for brushing but does remove food particles that the brush cannot reach.

[Dr. Fred Attarzadeh's practice is located at 1050 Hancock St., Quincy. For an appointment, call 471-4600.]

Smoking Cessation Program At Quincy Hospital March 4

Quincy Hospital will offer a smoking cessation hypnosis program Wednesday, March 4 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the hospital, 114 Whitwell St., in the cafeteria.

Susan Holden-Dodge, MSW, certified in chemical dependency and licensed hypnotherapist, will begin the program with an interactive group session discussing nicotine, weight gain and other concerns and fears encountered when trying to quit smoking. It will be followed by a hypnosis session and further discussion. Comfortable clothing is suggested.

Fee is $10 and registration is not required. Call the Quincy Hospital Public Relations Department at 376-4020 for more information.

Red Cross Training Program Begins March 16

The American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay will offer a combined dual certification program for participants to be trained as a Nurse Assistant and Home Health Aide beginning Monday, March 16.

The course will be held every Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Red Cross, 1495 Hancock St., Quincy Center, through April 9.

Students will learn to care for residents in long-term care facilities and patients in hospitals as well as provide basic care in a home environment to allow clients to maintain an independent and quality lifestyle. All health care training graduates who successfully complete the course and pass the Massachusetts State Nursing Examination can earn six credits at local community colleges.

Cost for the 100-hour dual certification program is $515, which includes all materials. Limited financial assistance is available. To register, call (800) 564-1234, ext. 221, 235 or 273.

Joining in the presentation are Commissioner John Gillis of Quincy (left) and Peter Collins of Milton.

Sheltering Coalition Receives $500 County Grant

The Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (QISC) recently received a $500 grant from Norfolk County to support the feeding program of Father Bill's Place, Quincy's homeless shelter for adults of the South Shore area.

Each year, 1,100 individuals receive support from the shelter. Father Bill's serves three meals a day, seven days a week. Residents in need of assistance may call the shelter at 770-3314.

Father Bill's accepts donations of food 24 hours a day, seven days a week at 38 Broad St. in Quincy. Appropriate foods include canned fruit, baked beans, jars of spaghetti sauce, macaroni and cheese, canned coffee, tuna fish, juice drinks, and sugar.

The QISC is committed to ending homelessness. Father Bill's provides a wide array of services aimed at moving people beyond the shelter. Case management, housing search, and rental-based assistance are just some of the services offered by the organization.

For more information regarding the shelter, call Laurie at 770-3314.

Flood Insurance: It's Something To Think About

(NAPS)—AARP members: if you are undecided whether to buy flood insurance for your home or business, here are some facts you may want to think about:

- More than 99 percent of homes and businesses that flooded in July of 1994 in Georgia, Florida and Alabama were without flood insurance.

- About one-third of flood insurance claims are paid to property owners in "low to moderate risk" flood areas.

- If you live in a Special Flood Hazard area, your building has a 26 percent chance of being flooded during a 30 year mortgage.

According to National Flood Insurance Program officials, the average insured flood claim from California's January 1995 floods was $20,000, while the average federal grant to those who lacked flood insurance was only $4,000. It is important to note that: 1) this is a reimbursement for just 20 percent of the damage, and 2) most

One of the changes in how flood insurance is offered is that the insurable maximum for a residence has been raised from $180,000 to $250,000.

Federal Disaster Assistance is given as a loan which must be paid back with interest.

The federal government estimates that only a third of people living in heavy flood zones carry flood insurance, leaving about eight in 11 million unprotected. Here are some tips on dealing with flood situations from the experts at The Hartford.

Before The Flood

- Develop evacuation routes to high and safe areas.

- Keep emergency equipment available: portable radios, cooking equipment, flashlights and batteries could be lifesavers.

Buy flood insurance.

As a Write-Your-Own company for the Federal Flood Insurance Program, The Hartford, providers of the AARP Auto and Homeowners Insurance Program, can round out the insurance needs of customers and even non-customers to include this important coverage.

During The Flood

- Keep a battery-powered radio tuned to a local station, follow all instructions and be prepared to evacuate.

- Turn off all utilities at the main power switches. Avoid touching any electrical equipment.

- Fill bathtubs, sinks and jugs with clean water.

After The Flood

- If there is any damage to your home, call your insurance company immediately.

- Beware of building collapse. Before you enter your home check for structural damage. Make sure gas is turned off.

- Watch for any downed electrical wires.

A brochure about flood insurance is available free by calling the AARP Flood Insurance Program, 1-800-296-7542.

Fixed Rate Mortgage Offers No Surprises

By CAROL BULMAN
We humans truly are creatures of habit and most of us tend to avoid change.

We like to remain in the comfort of familiarity. We want to wake up in the morning to a hot cup of coffee and hear our car purr when we turn the key. We like to be able to count on things, and our monthly mortgage payment is no exception.

The adjustable rate mortgage has become a popular tool which many homeowners feel has benefited them greatly. However, there still remain just as many borrowers who want the surety of a fixed rate mortgage.

A 30-year fixed rate loan provides you with the security of a monthly payment that remains the same during the term of the loan. The only change that could occur would be an increase or decrease in the amounts the lender collects for real estate taxes, or property insurance.

Although the basic payment remains the same for 30 years, the interest portion of your payment is higher in the early years. As the loan matures, the portion of your payment that is applied to your principal balance increases a little each month.

At the end of the 30-year term, the payments have been calculated to ensure your principal balance will be paid off in full. This process of making principal and interest payments is called amortization.

A 15-year fixed rate mortgage reduces the amount of interest paid over the life of the loan by accelerating the principal reduction.

In other words, a greater portion of your payment is applied to your principal balance each month when compared to the 30-year fixed rate mortgage. Moreover, interest rates are traditionally lower on a 15-year fixed when compared to the 30-year fixed. Combined, these factors contribute to significant interest savings with a 15-year fixed over the 30-year fixed rate mortgage. Of course, in order to pay off your loan in 15 years rather than 30 years, your monthly payment on a 15-year mortgage will be higher than a 30-year payment given the same loan amount.

Like the 30-year fixed rate mortgage, the payment on a 15-year fixed never changes. It will require making higher monthly payments to pay off the loan amount over 15 years rather than 30 years, but the interest savings and accelerated equity build-up are very attractive to many consumers.

Adjustable rate mortgage interest rates are traditionally lower than rates offered on fixed mortgages. One might think that people would be more inclined to "gamble" with an adjustable rate mortgage when they anticipate lower interest rates in the upcoming years. However, many buyers are still hesitant to ride the roller coaster. They'll pay the higher payment and wait for the rates drop and lock into a new fixed rate mortgage by refinancing.

At Conway Financial Services, we offer the products of numerous local and national lenders, which equates to scores of mortgage products. But when it comes right down to it, many of our customers still prefer apple pie, Fenway franks, and the "no surprises" fixed rate mortgage.

How To Protect Children: Part 3

By
McGRUFF THE CRIME DOG
McGruff's Thought For The Day:

"Lots of kids wear clothing or carry belongings which bear their names. Parents, remind your kids that people who call them by name may still be strangers, and 'stranger rules' apply."

Play It Safe - Teach Children How To Avoid Trouble

It is normal and natural that children will spend time playing or traveling out of the sight of trusted and caring adults. The best way to keep trouble away from kids is to teach them to avoid areas and situations where trouble might lurk. Here are some basic "play it safe" rules for children:

- NEVER play in deserted areas such as the woods, a parking lot, an alley, deserted buildings, or new construction.
 - ALWAYS try to play or walk with friends. It's safer, and more fun!
 - NEVER play or loiter in such public areas as washrooms and elevators.
 - TRY to wait with a friend for public transportation. Try to sit or stand near the driver of the bus.
 - ALWAYS keep doors and windows locked when home alone.
 - NEVER display money in public. Carry money only if necessary and keep it in a pocket until needed.
 - NEVER hitchhike. NEVER!
 - NEVER walk or play alone outside at night.
 - ALWAYS tell a family member or other adult in charge where you'll be all the time, and what time you'll be home.
- NEXT WEEK: Part 4 - "Child Molestation and Abuse."

Tourney Road Tests First Step For North

Boys At New Bedford; Girls Visit Falmouth

By LIAM FITZGERALD
Both North Quincy High School basketball teams have their work cut out for them, opening the MIAA Division 1 South Sectional this week away from the friendly confines of North's gymnasium.

Tonight at 7, the No. 9 seed North Quincy boys visit No. 8 seed New Bedford in the first round. The Red Raider girls, seeded 13th, traveled to play Old Colony League power Falmouth (No. 4 seed) last night (Wednesday) at 7.

North's girls (11-9), winless in two previous meetings against the Clippers (17-3), had to contend for a third time with OCL Co-MVP Phoenicia Wright, the league's second leading scorer, and her OCL All Star teammates, Kim Craft and Cristin Dillon.

"Wright's as strong as can be and very good inside, so we'll try to keep her out as best we can," said North head coach Ken Panaro. "To win this game, we'll have to play exceptional basketball, which includes shooting when we have open shots, boxing out, and getting back on defense."

"We can't afford to make too many mistakes. The last two times we played them, we hurried our offense trying to get the ball up court. We'll try not to do that this time around."

Also working in the Clippers' favor is their home court dominance and distance from the South Shore, making for long trips for visiting teams.

"It's a good home gym for them; they haven't lost there in three years," said Panaro. "It's also a tough gym to shoot in, because there's no backdrop, which makes it hard to get good depth perception. They're used to it; we're not."

"Everyone hates the ride, too; it's the worst in the league. I don't want the girls to be tired from the ride, then come out and not play well. Whenever we play them, it's usually a tough game, a knock-down, drag-out battle. We just have to play well, or we'll be out."

If the Red Raiders won, they advance to the quarterfinals Friday at 7 p.m. against the winner of No. 12 seed Newton North/No. 5 seed Newton South. As the 13th seed, North Quincy would again play the visitors' role.

The semifinals will be held early next week, with dates and time yet to be announced.

nounced.

Over on the boys' side, North Quincy's squad has been on a roll, winning five of its last six, including three straight to close out the regular season.

"We're playing as good as we can and seem to be hitting our stride at just the right time," said North head coach Ted Stevenson. "Brian (Ross) is our leader and captain, but it's also been the effort from the rest of the players that has gotten us to this point. That's what it takes to win in the tournament—a solid team effort."

In its first round game, the Red Raiders face a New Bedford team that shares the same overall record (14-6) with NQ, but not the same style of play. The Red Raiders feature a powerful inside game, with senior captain Ross (35.7 points per game) the go-to guy in the paint. Other big men who should play a vital role for North are senior forwards Mark Stanton and John Sullivan.

"They'll have to stop Brian, and with his quickness and ability to hit from anywhere on the court, it's going to be tough for them," said Stevenson. "Their tallest player is 6-3 or 6-4, so Brian will have a size advantage no matter who they play against him."

New Bedford, as Stevenson alluded to, is a smaller, quicker team that relies more on its outside shooting. The squad boasts talented three-point shooters and a pressure defense that forces plenty of turnovers.

"They're not very big, but they're quick and they trap all over the place," said Stevenson. "They can score a lot of points and will want to play run and gun. We have to control ourselves and not let them dictate the pace of the game."

"I think it'll be a good matchup. They will probably get between 2,000-3,000 people in the gym, but that shouldn't bother us. We've played in tougher gyms than that, and our kids will be ready for anything."

If the Red Raiders win tonight, they will likely play at No. 1 seed Attleboro in Saturday's quarterfinals at a time to be announced. Attleboro received a first-round bye and tonight hosts the winner of Tuesday's Catholic Memorial-B.C. High tilt.

The semifinals will be held early next week, with dates and time yet to be announced.

BASKETBALL

BRIAN ROSS

Four Local Players OCL Hoop All Stars

Four basketball players from Quincy and North Quincy High School—including North Quincy senior captain Brian Ross—were recently named to the Old Colony League All Star team.

Joining Ross, the leading scorer in Eastern Mass., on the All Star squad is senior teammate Mark Stanton, one of the numerous unsung players on the tournament-bound Red Raiders. Representing the Red Raider girls' team is senior co-captain Laurie Flynn, who helped lead NQ to the state tournament.

From Quincy High, senior Jared Downey was selected to the OCL All Star team. Downey was one of the veteran leaders on a youthful Presidents' squad.

Receiving the Individual Sportsmanship Awards were Quincy senior Rob Downey, North senior John Sullivan and North junior Lauren Luzzo. Quincy's boys' team was honored as Most Sportsmanlike Team.

Quincy, NQ Featured In Double Bill Saturday

Presidents, Raiders Play At Northeastern

By LIAM FITZGERALD

This Saturday at Northeastern University, local hockey fans will be treated to a doubleheader featuring the Quincy and North Quincy High School hockey teams.

As part of the MIAA Division 1 South Sectional's first round format, No. 4 seed Quincy will take on 13th-seeded Braintree at 3:30 p.m., followed at 5:45 p.m. by No. 7 seed North Quincy's tilt against Dedham, seeded 10th in the Sectional.

If the Presidents are victorious, they will play the winner of No. 12 Norwood/No. 5 Brockton in the quarterfinals. Should the Red Raiders win their tournament opener, they will advance to the quarterfinals and battle the winner of No. 2 Needham/No. 15 Barnstable.

Dates and times of the quarterfinals and semifinals have yet to be announced, though the quarterfinals are expected to be played early next week.

The Presidents (11-3-6), who wrapped up the regular season with four ties in their last five games, are fully aware of what Bay State League foe Braintree (10-8-2) will bring into Saturday's showdown.

"We scrimmaged them, and they're similar to us in that they have a very good balance and can hurt you offensively," said Quincy head coach Bob Sylvia, who led Quincy to its second straight tourney appearance. "(David) Osis is a talented player who can score a bunch of goals, so I'm looking for a very competitive, close game."

Quincy may catch a break as Osis (28 goals), who separated his shoulder in an all star game last weekend, may not be able to play. Regardless of whether or not Braintree's top gun is able to perform, Sylvia is confident his squad will arrive at the rink rested, focused and ready to face the Wamps.

"I'm very confident of our chances against Brain-tree and in the rest of the tournament," said Sylvia. "We're healthy right now, and I was impressed with the effort in Monday's scrimmage against Boston Latin. We have three good lines, five defensemen who can hold their own and three talented goalies."

"If the game is on the line in the third period, we can handle it, because we've done that all year. You also need a couple of bounces here and there, so we'll throw a lot of rubber at their goal and hope a few get by him."

Sparking Quincy's offense, as they have all year, will be senior captain Chris Haidul (41 points), tied for first in OCL, and junior assistant captain Joe Valatini (35 points, second in OCL). Senior Chris Burns, rock solid between the pipes all season long, will start in goal for the Presidents.

Over at North Quincy, first-year head coach Bob Doyle and the Red Raiders are gearing up for their first tournament game in three years.

HOCKEY

"There's a lot of excitement at the school, with the hockey team and the boys' and girls' basketball teams all in the tournament," said Doyle. "This is a good achievement for this team, but they know not to be satisfied with just making it. The work has just begun."

The Red Raiders (12-6-2), who followed a comeback from behind tie against Quincy with high-scoring victories over Blue Hill Regional Tech and Rockland to close the regular season, have picked up where they left off following a short respite.

"I was impressed with the way they came out and practiced this week after a few days off to rest and heal some nagging injuries," said Doyle. "They came out ready to practice hard. They're focused on the task at hand and definitely want to use this opportunity to make some noise."

Though at first unfamiliar with Bay State League foe Dedham (11-6-3), Doyle will undoubtedly have NQ

Fifth Graders Win Second Straight Title

The Quincy fifth grade basketball team recently finished the season with a perfect 12-0 record and won its second straight South Shore Prep League title.

The Quincy team defeated travel teams from Easton, Foxboro, Newton (twice), Franklin, Walpole, Canton, Sharon, Westwood, Duxbury, Norwood, and Plainville.

Last year, the team also won the league title going undefeated as fourth graders. Members of the team are: Nick DeVico, Dave Jaehnig, Ray Marchand, Nick Malvesti, Chris Marinelli, Tony Pepdjonovic, Dean Sandomato, and Brian Young. Coach of the team is Fran Sandomato.

Pee Wees, Bantams Bow Out Two Quincy Teams Reach Kiwanis Tourney Finals

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Two Quincy Youth Hockey teams advanced to the finals and another reached the semifinals of the 25th annual Kiwanis Youth Hockey Tournament, but no local team was able to pull out a championship victory.

The Quincy Bantams, which won last year's championship, fell to the South Coast Sabers of California, 3-1, in Sunday's finals. The Quincy Pee Wees, which lost in double overtime in last year's finals, were defeated, 4-1, by Lewiston, Maine, in the championship game on Sunday.

Quincy's Mites, which advanced to the semifinals with a spirited comeback win over Lewiston, Maine, lost to Braintree, 9-3, in Sunday's semifinal round.

BANTAMS

In the Bantam championship game, Quincy's Mark Giese scored the team's only goal, with an assist from Jim Cashins.

Earlier in the tournament, the Sabers edged Quincy, 2-1.

PEE WEES

With goals from four different players, the Lewiston, Maine squad downed Quincy in the final.

Scoring for Quincy was Brian O'Hanley, with assists from Brian Lewis and Bill McKeon.

MITES

In the semifinal loss to Braintree, Quincy's John McInnis notched a goal and an assist, Dana Lopes and Jim Fitzpatrick each netted a goal and Mike Maxey added an assist.

Braintree, sparked by Daniel Gaughan's hat trick, doubled up Weymouth, 6-3, to clinch the championship.

In its exciting 9-5 triumph over Lewiston, Quincy trailed, 5-1, in the second period before reeling off eight unanswered goals. McInnis, who scored six goals, tied the game with a penalty shot.

Other Quincy goal scorers included Jonathan Conso, Tom Pasquantonio and Fitzpatrick. Lopes notched five assists, Brian Sullivan added three, Pasquantonio had two and Conso, Maxey, Joe Cavanaugh, Mike Marshall and Stephen McDonagh each had one assist for Quincy.

SQUIRTS

Quincy's Squirts were eliminated from the tournament following a 7-4 setback to Middlesex (Conn.) last Friday. Quincy was led by Justin Thorley (two goals) and Kevin Richardson (goal, assist), along with Andy Patten (goal) and Pat Malone and Mike McKeon (one assist apiece).

The Mohawks edged Lewiston, Maine in overtime, 3-2, to capture the division championship. Lewiston tied the game with just nine seconds left in regulation, but Anthony Calabrese netted the game-winner three minutes into the extra period.

Late Surge Lifts West Coaches To A 9-9 Tie Vs. East

During the 25th annual Kiwanis Youth Hockey Tournament at Quincy Youth Arena, the Western Conference rallied to tie the Eastern Conference, 9-9, in last Friday night's first annual coaches game.

In the third period, two goals by Quincy Bantam coach Dennis Murray, along with single goals by Quincy Mite coaches Jack McInnis (two goals, two assists) and Ted Walsh (goal, assist), Quincy Sun Editor and Quincy Kiwanian Bob Bosworth, and Parkway Bantam coach Ed O'Hare (goal, two assists) sparked the Western Conference comeback.

Other Western players chipping in were Quincy Bantam coach Chris Shaughnessy (goal, assist), Parkway Bantam coach Ed Gay (assist) and Charlie Shea of Quincy. Quincy Bantam coach Frank Sorrento served as the Western coach.

The Eastern Conference, led by Quincy Squirt coach Paul Noonan (two goals, four assists), scored six goals in the second period to build a seemingly comfortable lead. Noonan is the brother of South Boston native Brian Noonan, a member of the NHL's Vancouver Canucks.

Also contributing offensively for the Eastern team were Braintree's Jim Jim-

Local Youths Shine In Skills Competition

For the first time in the 25-year history of the Kiwanis Youth Hockey Tournament, a skills competition was held last Wednesday at Quincy Youth Arena to determine the tournament's fastest skater and the hardest and most accurate shots.

QYA Manager Michelle Stenberg, assisted by QYA Assistant Manager and Quincy Mites coach Jack McInnis, came up with the idea to include the competition as part of the tournament's festivities.

"They held this competition at the NHL All-Star Game, and we thought it would be fun for the kids," said McInnis. "The kids were definitely into it, and I think it went pretty well. It will be a lot better next year, because we'll get even more kids involved."

In the fastest skater competition, Kevin Richardson of Quincy was the Squirt division champion. John Molignano of Braintree was the fastest skater in the Pee Wee division and John Cole of Braintree took top honors in the Mite division.

The hardest shot in the Pee Wee division belonged to Matt Cummings of Braintree. In the Squirts division, Andrew Patten of Quincy and Kevin Foster of the Mohawks battled to a tie. A three-way tie emerged in the Mite division, with Quincy's Chris Rooney and John McInnis finishing first, along with Mike Durant of Weymouth.

Three Braintree skaters—Brendan O'Brien, George Costa and Stephen Richards—tied for most accurate shot in the Pee Wee division. The Squirts division also resulted in a tie between Mohawk teammates Rick Cutts and Anthony Calabrese. In the Mite Division, Joe McInnis of Quincy, Joe Greene of Weymouth and John Cole of Braintree finished in a three-way deadlock.

JOHN MCINNIS, scoring one of his six goals in the Quincy Mites' 9-5 comeback victory over Lewiston, Maine, also excelled in the skills competition. He finished in a three-way tie for first in both the hardest shot and most accurate shot competitions.

New Tai Chi Class

Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy, has included Tai Chi in its collection of new course offerings.

Tai Chi is an ancient Chinese exercise and moving meditation designed to reduce stress and promote systematic relaxation. Tai Chi exercises develop and maintain a balanced, energized, health, mind and body. Many doctors even recommend it to reduce stress and increase balance and health.

"In response to a tremendous community request for Tai Chi, we are offering another Tai Chi program," said Sharron Beals, Beechwood's executive director.

Beechwood's new Tai Chi Class, instructed by Mary McKenzie, will begin Tuesday, March 3 from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. and will run for 10 weeks. Pre-registration required. Call 471-5712.

SOUND LIKE TROUBLE?

Car owners who hear unusual sounds coming from beneath their hoods and elsewhere may have trouble communicating to their auto technicians how and when the noises occur. To help facilitate this process, drivers should qualify the sound by asking themselves a few questions before they schedule appointments: Does the noise occur when the car is in motion, at rest, or both? Does it happen when the engine is hot or cold? Does it occur in reverse, as well as in drive? Does the noise occur while the car is going in a straight direction, or while cornering? Does it change according to traveling speed? Does it occur upon acceleration or deceleration? And, finally, do surface conditions affect the sound?

Is your car suddenly making strange noises? The ASE Certified technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNCOCO will do their part in checking out every system in your car. Your safety and that of your family is our concern. Here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550), we look forward to meeting you and to giving you the same level of personal attention we give our own. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Count on us also for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles.

HINT: A rhythmic tapping or ticking that speeds up as the engine runs is likely due to a maladjusted valve gap, a shortage of engine oil, or a stuck lifter.

Similar to their counterparts at Quincy High, the Red Raiders have put together the winning combination of a balanced offense, strong defense and reliable goaltending. Among the leaders offensively is junior assistant captain Paul Markarian, who with a late season burst finished tied for first in OCL scoring (41 points). As of press time, Doyle had not made named his starting goaltender—junior Chris Carthas or David Downey—and said it would likely be a game-time decision. The two shared goaltending duties during the season and played significant roles in securing NQ's tournament berth.

Senior Games Ice Hockey At Quincy Youth Arena

For the third year, the ice hockey competition of the Massachusetts Senior Games will be held at the Quincy Youth Arena.

This Saturday, two games will be held, followed by one game next Monday. According to Barry Welch, Quincy Recreation Department director and MSG board member, the board has awarded the championship round to be held March 14 and 15 at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Saturday in the 50 and over division, the Quincy Presidents will play at 6:40 p.m., followed at 9 p.m. by the Quincy Hamlin Cabinets in the 60 and over division playing a team from Rhode Island.

Monday's game begins at 10:30 a.m. and featured another Quincy entry in the 60 and over division, the Quincy N.E. Office Connection, against Quincy Hamlin Cabinets.

Seven teams will compete in the 60 and over division, along with 10 teams in the 50 and over division.

Formed in 1991, the Senior Games give older adults a variety of sports activities (23 summer events, seven winter events) to participate in, with over 1,500 competing every year.

This marks the fourth year for winter games that include downhill and cross country skiing in addition to hockey.

Games are open to the public and there is no admission charge. For more information, call 376-1394 or 376-1245.

Country Ski & Sport Leads Olindy's Jr. All Star Bowling League

Country Ski & Sport holds the top spot in the Olindy's Jr. All Star Kid's Bowling League with a 38-10 record.

The rest of the standings: Sweeney Brothers (37-11); Patriot Glass (34-14); Mike's Auto Body (28-20); Dom's (28-20); Eco Muffler (24-24); Barne's (18-30); Everlasting Engraving (15-33); Marylou's News (14-34); Olindy's (6-42).

The top boys average is currently held by Todd White at 106, followed by Jason Badgett at 99 and Chris Baker at 97. In the girls division, Amanda Cosgrove is the leader with a 70 average, followed by Kendra Ciccone at 68 and Colleen Ryan at 64.

Bowlers of the week were Jake Dizenzo, who bowled his personal high single of 114 with a three-string total of 292; Jamie Fontaine, who bowled the boys' high three of 306;

Thomas Cabral, who bowled 46 pins over his average of 94 with a high single of 98 and a three-string total of 220; Amanda Cosgrove, who bowled the girls' high single of 88 and high three of 208; and Sarah Giudici, who bowled 36 pins over her average of 53 with a 195 three-string total and a high three of 74.

The league's high single (432) and high three (1240) were bowled by Mike's Auto Body. The team is comprised of Mike Boyl (253 high single, 83 single), Jake Dizenzo (292, 114), Mike Henn (268, 87), Brian Pakalietis (199, 68) and Alex Lopez (193, 70). High three handicap was 35; high single handicap was 10.

New Baseball Field At Pond Street Playground

The Park Department is currently renovating the Monroe Playground on Pond St. in Quincy Point.

A new baseball diamond is being constructed to replace the little league fields at the site. The new field should be ready for use during the spring/summer 1998 baseball season.

The fields were recently used as a staging site for the Army Corps of Engineers. The nearby Town Brook flood alleviation project resulted in the Army Corps utilizing the fields for excavation materials from the tunnel work and the storage of heavy equipment and machinery. The Park Department was unable to permit these fields for the past four years due to the project.

The Park Department is performing most of the required field renovation work with in-house personnel and equipment, thus saving thousands of dollars. Funding for the materials necessary to renovate the fields is coming from the Army Corps as part of the agreement with the Park Department to restore the field to its original condition.

A new sod infield is being installed and the outfield area will be slice-seeded and fertilized. The field should be ready for use sometime during the upcoming baseball season.

The field will be utilized by the high school baseball program and Babe Ruth youth baseball league. The high school soccer programs and Quincy Youth Soccer will be able to use the field during their Fall 1998 season.

"We are pleased to have Pond Street back in use for athletic activities," said Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Departments.

"With the demand for field permit requests, we can ill afford to lose the use of any of our fields. Having a new baseball diamond at Pond Street will help us to continue to provide top-quality recreational facilities for the people of Quincy."

"It is my hope that we can complete our renovation efforts at Pond Street by eventually improving the basketball and tennis courts as funding becomes available."

Sacred Heart Boys Hoop Teams On A Roll

Two Sacred Heart boys basketball teams have combined to win 17 straight CYO games in their respective divisions.

The boys Cadet squad (14 and under) has won 10 straight games and boasts an 11-1 record, good for first place in the CYO Cadet South division. The winning streak has been fueled by unselfish team play as eight different players have been game high scorers in the past 10 victories.

Most notable was an exciting 43-40 overtime triumph on the road against perennial league power Gate of Heaven of South Boston. Sacred Heart handed Southie only their second home loss in the past six seasons.

Sacred Heart's Brian Ferrara scored three of his seven points in the overtime period while Tom Buckley and Mark Maher sank clutch free throws to seal the win. John O'Connell (15 points) and Brendan Bowes (10 points) dominated the defensive boards, which proved to be a key.

Sacred Heart completed its first-ever season sweep over Gate of Heaven with a 48-43 victory. O'Connell and Bowes each scored seven first-half points to stake Sacred Heart to an early lead, only to see the opponents rally to take a four-point, second-half lead. Chris Ham (13 points) sank a huge three-point bomb and Pat Jaehnig (10 points) followed that shot with a three-point play as Sacred Heart rescued victory from the jaws of defeat.

Justin Hall (seven points) was the high scorer in Sacred Heart's 44-38 triumph over St. Gregory. Mark Maher, who leads the team in assists, chipped in six points, as did John Fidalgo and Dennis Thomson.

Matt Donovan made a beautiful bounce pass through traffic to key a big run as Sacred Heart of Quincy rallied from a 10-2 deficit to knock off Sacred Heart of Roslindale, 48-35.

Brendan Bowes (10 points), Pat Jaehnig (eight points) and Brian Ferrara (eight points) provided the offensive firepower while the tenacious defensive pressure of Chris Ham, Dennis Thomson, John Fidalgo and Matt Donovan led to many easy baskets for the winners.

The Sacred Heart Bantam squad (12 and under) has a seven-game winning streak of its own and boasts a record of 11-2 and a solid lock on second place in the CYO South division.

Sacred Heart lost a heart-breaking 42-39 game against arch rival Gate of Heaven, despite 14 points each from David Jaehnig and Daryl Costa. Steve Williams was a tower of strength under the boards with 11 rebounds. Mark Tobin and Jimmy Burke's super defensive effort held league high scorer Sean Dwyer to only nine points as they covered him like "wallpaper."

Bouncing back from that defeat, Sacred Heart upended St. Agatha's, 45-39. Daryl Costa (14 points) and David Jaehnig (13 points) once again led the way offensively while Ryan Farnham chipped in with eight points.

Andrew Bronske and Chris Marinelli each netted seven points to paced Sacred Heart to a 36-25 triumph over St. Brendan's of Dorchester.

Brian Lynch, Ryan McHugh, Steve Williams and Dean Sandomato each scored seven points to spark a balanced team scoring effort in a 49-45 win over St. Leonard's. David Jaehnig and Jimmy Burke added six points apiece for the winners.

Sacred Heart continued its winning ways with a convincing 54-38 victory over an aggressive St. Gregory club. Daryl Costa (17 points), Ryan Farnham (12 points) and Brian Lynch (eight points) were high scorers while Jimmy Burke, Mark Tobin and Ryan McHugh continued to play outstanding hustling defense.

Lindsey Langille To Compete In National Hockey Tourney

Twelve-year-old Lindsey Langille of 30 Edison St., Quincy, will compete in the Women's National Hockey Tournament in Anaheim, Calif., in early April.

Langille's Assabet Valley Girls Squirt 1 team recently won the Massachusetts State Tournament in Marlboro.

Her team will compete against other state champions from across the country, including Michigan, California and Connecticut.

Langille is the daughter of Adin and Maureen Langille.

OBITUARIES

Alice S. Janson, 88
N.E. Telephone Co. Operator

A funeral Mass for Alice S. (Stuart) Janson, 88, of Quincy, was celebrated Tuesday in St. Ann's Church.

Mrs. Janson died Feb. 20 at the John Adams Nursing Home.

A telephone operator for New England Telephone Co. for 42 years, she retired in 1967 and was a member of the Telephone Pioneers of America.

She was a member of Merry Shores and Penn's Senior Citizens groups.

Born, raised and educated in Quincy, she was a lifelong resident of the city.

Wife of the late Elmer P. Janson, she is survived by nieces and nephews and their families, including June and John Kichler of Hingham.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to National Osteoporosis Foundation, 1150 17th Street, N. West, Suite 500, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Frederick F. Comis, 72
Mason; Owned Own Business

A funeral Mass for Frederick F. Comis, 72, of Quincy, was celebrated Feb. 21 at St. Mary's Church.

Mr. Comis died Feb. 18 at Good Samaritan Medical Center in Brockton after a long illness.

He worked as a mason and owned his own business, Fred Comis and Sons. He was also president of Manet Construction. His company did the masonry work at the Louisburg Square development in North Quincy.

He was a Navy veteran of World War II.

He played semi-pro football for the Quincy Manets.

He was a 50-year member of the American Legion and a life member of the Morrisette Post. He was a charter member of the Sons of Italy and a member of the Milton Kiwanis. He was also active in the Boy Scouts and the Milton Grenadiers Drum and Bugle Corps.

A lifelong resident of Quincy, he graduated from Quincy High School and attended Louisiana State University on a football scholarship.

He is survived by his wife, Madeline Dona (DeGrosso) Comis; three sons, Frederick J. Comis of Quincy, David A. Comis of Raynham and Donald W. Comis of Marshfield; his mother, Alice V. (Anderson) Comis; a sister, Lorraine Sullivan of Quincy; eight grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. He was also the father of the late Deborah-Jo Cochrane. He was the son of the late Florindo F. Comis.

Burial was in Knollwood Memorial Park, Canton.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Funeral Home, 326 Copeland St.

Mary C. Meady, 74
Administrative Secretary

A funeral Mass for Mary C. (Corson) Meady, 74, of West Quincy and West Dennis, was celebrated Tuesday at St. Mary's Church.

Mrs. Meady died Feb. 20 at South Shore Hospital after a long illness.

She was administrative secretary at St. Mary's Church for 25 years, retiring in 1992. She was also involved in many other church activities, including Beano parties, parent-teacher organizations, social dinner/dances and other fundraising efforts.

During World War II, she worked in the office at the former Hingham shipyard. After the war, she worked in the executive offices of the former Red Coach Grill restaurant chain in Wollaston.

She was a lifelong resident of Quincy and graduated from Quincy High School in 1943. She also had a second home in West Dennis for many years. She was a communicant of St. Pious X Church in South Weymouth.

She is survived by her husband, Leo F. Meady; two daughters, Maureen Hussey and Marilyn McInnis, both of Rockland; three grandsons and two granddaughters; and many nieces and nephews.

SCOTT DEWARE

*A Thought
For The Week*

Of all the blessings we receive in our lifetime, the gift of patience is one of the greatest...

PATIENCE is love at work. Patience is a mother who loves her small child even after he has spilled a glass of milk on the tablecloth and himself.

PATIENCE is a father teaching his teenage son how to drive an automobile without getting angry at him for his every wrong move.

PATIENCE is the man in his wheelchair and the woman in her walker thanking God for their blessings and bearing their hardships with a smile.

PATIENCE keeps our tongues from uttering unkind words, keeps our hands from doing angry deeds, keeps our feet from hasty acts.

PATIENCE is God's restraining hand. Surely it is what God must have in dealing with us every day.

Grandpa loved
gardening, baseball,
and playing the
harmonica.

Your memories are precious. That's why, at Keohane Funeral Service, we take the time to find out what made your loved one special.

Whether it's gathering some of the flowers he so tenderly cultivated or finding a musician to play "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" on the harmonica, you can count on us to help you plan a service that will be just as unique as the person you love.

TRIVIA TEST
by Aaron E. Tucker

Celebrating his 87th birthday, one of the most popular presidents ever in the United States, I thought it only appropriate to wish him well and dedicate this trivia to a great man.

1. After being sworn in as president in 1980, how long did the Ayatollah Khomeini wait to release our hostages from Iran?

2. How long have Nancy and Ronald Reagan been married?

3. What is Ronnie's middle name?

4. Name all four of Ronnie's children.

5. Name the actress (pictured with Mr. Reagan) who stated in 1949 after leaving The Queen Mary from England to the United States, "I don't like Ronald Reagan. If he runs for president or vice president, I will give up my American citizenship, I really will."

6. Can you name the actress with whom Ronald Reagan starred in the 1950 motion picture, "Storm Warning"?

7. What state was Mr. Reagan born in?

8. Name the actress who co-starred with Ronald Reagan in the 1939 Warner Brothers motion picture, "The Battle Cry of City Hall."

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You could end up being the silent partner in an enterprise. Discord arises midweek with a cantankerous co-worker. Ego considerations cause you to blunder into selfish behavior this weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Career objectives will be achieved, but it's better to work from behind the scenes than to engage in pitched battle. Keep peace on the home front. Some are just looking for an excuse to argue.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) The financial picture for you should be improving. In fact, you should be able to plan that special vacation trip you've anticipated. Family members are cooperative over the weekend.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You'll get your career on the right track this week. Still, further planning is needed. The weekend is relaxing and invigorates you for the week to come.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Loved ones should have a good time together, although the accent this week falls on home-based activities later on. Some could be burning the midnight oil this weekend with additional work tasks.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You're ready to begin a new work push. However, you'll still be finishing up some matters left over from the recent past. The weekend highlights good times with friends.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Although you have your eye on something you'd like to buy, continue with a sound fiscal policy. Concentrate on investments and savings programs. This frugality will be handsomely rewarded.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Make a point of getting good value for your money. A child accuses you of being insensitive. This weekend, it's best to be more aggressive with those who are overly dominant.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) More thinking is required before making a career move. You do not make a very good champion for your special cause because you're pushing too hard. This weekend, avoid raising controversial issues with loved ones.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your spending habits are inconsistent this week, alternating between cheapness and extravagance. If you can't get what your heart is set on, you tend to become indiscriminate. Recognize this to prevent it.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You'll be relieved that a recent problem is solved to your satisfaction. Alternative plans needn't be second best. This weekend, stick to your high standards and don't be swayed by an unscrupulous type.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You could find yourself returning an item you purchased recently. Still, pleasure pursuits are accented toward the end of the week. Learn to handle guilt better by analyzing its source.

To Jean M. Grubis of Arlington, MA and Cambridge Savings Bank of Cambridge, MA and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Margaret A. Carroll of Arlington in the County of Middlesex representing that she holds as tenant in common an undivided part or share of certain land lying in Quincy in said County of Norfolk and briefly described as follows: There are three properties which are the subject of this petition.

- Unit 216 Independence Condominium, Independence Ave., Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts ("Unit 216");
- Unit 406 Captain's Cove Condominium, 100 Cove Way, Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts ("Unit 406"); and
- Unit 204 Captain's Cove Condominium, 100 Cove Way, Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts ("Unit 204").

The legal description of Unit 216 is: Unit 216 in the building located at 205 Independence Avenue, Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts of the condominium known as Independence Condominium, Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts a condominium established by the Broderick Development Corporation pursuant to M.G.L. c. 183A, by Master Deed dated August 12, 1981, recorded with Norfolk Registry of Deeds on August 12, 1981, at Book 5809, Page 189 as amended. Said Unit No. 216 contains 430 square feet, more or less, and is shown on floor plans of the Building recorded simultaneously with said Master Deed and on the copy of the portion of said plans attached to the deed recorded in Book 5970, Page 183, to which is affixed the verified statement of a registered architect in the form required by Section 9 of said Chapter 183A. The post office address of said Unit is 216 Independence Condominium, Independence Avenue, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169. Said Unit as an 82.49% interest in the common areas and facilities described in said Master Deed and in the Declaration of Trust Independence Condominium Trust dated August 12, 1981, recorded with Norfolk Registry of Deeds on August 13, as amended. Said Unit has the exclusive right to use parking space no. 78, as designated on a plan entitled "Parking Layout," dated October 20, 1981 and recorded with said Deeds. Said Unit is subject to and with the benefit of all easements, restrictions of record M.G.L. 183A, as amended, the provisions of the Master Deed, the Declaration of Trust, the by-laws and rules and regulations from time-to-time adopted thereunder.

The legal description of Unit 406 is:

Unit known as No. 406, Captain's Cove Condominium, at 100 Cove Way, Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts, a Condominium established pursuant to M.G.L. 183A, by Master Deed dated October 11, 1985, recorded with Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 6821, Page 1 as amended which Unit is shown on the floor plans on the building recorded simultaneously with said Master Deed to which is affixed the verified statement of a registered architect in the form required by Section of said chapter 183A.

Unit No. 406 has an undivided .29763% interest in the common areas and facilities of the Condominium described in said Master Deed.

Unit 406 is subject to and with the benefit of all easements, restrictions of record, M.G.L. 183A, as amended, the provisions of the Master Deed, the Declaration of Trust of Captain's Cove Condominium dated October 11, 1985, recorded in the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 6821, Page 44, and floor plans of the Master Deed, as the same may be amended from time to time, and the by-laws and rules and regulations from time-to-time adopted.

The legal description of Unit 204 is: Unit known as 204, Captain's Cove Condominium, at 100 Cove Way, Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts, a Condominium established pursuant to M.G.L. 183A, by Master Deed dated October 11, 1985, recorded with Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 6821, Page 1, as amended which Unit is shown on the floor plans of the building recorded simultaneously with said Master Deed and to which is affixed the verified statement of a registered architect in the form required by Section of said Chapter 183A. Unit No. 204 has an undivided .26293% interest in the common areas and facilities of the Condominium described in said Master Deed. Unit 204 is subject to and with the benefit of all easements, restrictions of record, M.G.L. 183A, as amended, the provisions of the Master Deed, the Declaration of Trust Captain's Cove Condominium dated October 11, 1985, recorded in the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 6821, Page 44, and floor plans of the Master Deed, as the same may be amended from time to time, and by the by-laws and rules and regulations from time-to-time adopted. Setting forth that she desires that all of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than as listed, or fair market value, Unit 216 - $26,900.00, Unit 406 - $89,000.00 and Unit 204 - $85,000.00 dollars and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make sure partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham, 649 High St., P.O. Box 269, Dedham, MA 02027-0269 before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the first day of April 1998, the return day of this citation.

Kolson estimated the equipment damage at $20,000.

Mass Electric Construction Co., a firm not affiliated with Massachusetts Electric, was installing a temporary bypass at press time to restore power by 7 p.m., according to Kolson. Permanent repairs were to be made later.

Massachusetts Electric, the Quincy Fire Department, and Purpura also played a role at the scene, he said.

Meanwhile, Quincy Emergency Management and The Salvation Army in keeping the residents of the 275 units in O'Brien Towers comfortable.

Emergency Management Deputy Director Tony Siciliano said a group of Emergency Management officials and volunteers from Quincy High School and Broad Meadows Middle School--led by Joseph Dennehy, the agency's newly-appointed shelter manager/director and a Salvation Army liaison officer--and a Salvation Army contingent led by Maj. Robert Klenk, co-commander of the Army's Quincy Temple Corps brought macaroni and cheese, sandwiches, coffee, tea and juices to the residents.

Sixty flashlights also were available to residents who needed them, Siciliano said. He noted that an emergency generator at the building was being utilized only to power corridor lights and a single elevator.

At press time, Siciliano was planning to bring blankets from Emergency Management's "master shelter" at the Quincy Center for Technical Education to O'Brien Towers--in the event of the temperature dropping substantially at the building--and The Salvation Army was preparing to bring pasta and other hot food to the residents for dinner.

Emergency Management volunteers and others also were kept busy because of minor flooding and other problems caused throughout the city by Tuesday's storm.

Siciliano noted, however, that despite offers for assistance from Massachusetts Emergency Management Director Peter LaPorte and Area II Director Thomas Rodger, he felt the city could manage on its own.

"We've got a good handle on it," he said.

THERE ARE 93 HOSPITALS IN MASSACHUSETTS.

NOT ONE HAS ACCOMPLISHED WHAT WE JUST DID.

South Shore Hospital has just become the first hospital in Massachusetts to receive maximum accreditation with commendation from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations three times in a row.

The Joint Commission is the nation's leading independent accrediting agency. It exhaustively reviews hospitals' performance--from patient care to facilities, clinical staff to management. Only twelve percent of US hospitals receive maximum accreditation with commendation. Fewer still receive it twice in a row. Hardly any, three times.

At a time when health care quality is under scrutiny, isn't it good to know that the Joint Commission has awarded South Shore Hospital's acute, outpatient, transitional, home health, and hospice care its highest possible accreditation?

Board Approves Oasis Restaurant License Transfer

After only two years, Mohammed Hassan owner of The Oasis Restaurant on 35-37 Cottage Ave., has sold the business to a couple of cousins, James A. Kelly Jr. and Richard W. Kelly.

Appearing before the Quincy License Board at Tuesday's meeting which allowed the transfer, the Kellys, formerly of South Boston plan to call the restaurant The Original Kelly's Landing, Inc.

The licenses include a common victualer, all alcoholic and entertainment license.

The Kellys said this will be the first time they have owned a restaurant in Quincy and are not affiliated with the restaurant with almost the same name located over the Fore River bridge.

Although the menu was not completed at the time of meeting, they applied for a license to add two more fryolator.

According to license board chairman Joseph Shea, the transfer will be sent for approval to the ABCC.

THIS RENDERING OF the Thomas Crane Public Library shows the final official design of the new addition joining the Coletti building at the right.

Rockwell Posters, Original Windows Discovered In Construction Preparation 'Treasures' Found At Crane Library

Officials at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center, while preparing for the construction of a $13 million addition scheduled to begin in May, have unearthed some exceptional treasures.

Library Director Ann McLaughlin said this week that three windows from the library's original Richardson building, built in 1882, were found recently under the stairs in the building's reference room.

The lettered windows, made of clear glass, are going to be worked into the plans for the library addition so they will again grace the library with their presence, she added.

"They're worth thousands, maybe more," said McLaughlin. "I'm going to try to find out exactly how much."

Also unearthed recently in the Richardson building's attic were four Norman Rockwell posters from the "Saturday Evening Post" dating back to World War II.

McLaughlin said she was thrilled to learn of the posters, which she has learned through research are worth between $2,000 and $2,500 apiece. They also will be displayed in the library when work is completed, she said.

Twenty other World War II-era posters, in addition to the Rockwell creations, also were discovered, McLaughlin said.

lows last week's announcement that extended hours are planned at the library once work on the addition is completed.

McLaughlin announced that the library—currently preparing for its existing Coletti addition to be closed March 16 for the planned construction—will open in the year 2000 with Sunday hours for the first time in almost 20 years.

Plans for the library to be open Sundays from 1 to 5 p.m. have already received the support of Mayor James Sheets—who says he will find the needed funding in Quincy's city budget to pay for the Sunday staff.

McCauley, Raymondi Clash Over The Word 'Sneaky' Councillors Spar Over Quincy High Land Purchase

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Members of the City Council sparred Monday night over whether the recent $3.5 million purchase of a site for a new Quincy High School was conducted properly.

Councillor Francis McCauley expressed disappointment that Mayor James Sheets approved the go-ahead for the purchase without consulting any councillors except Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, whose ward includes the site, and Council President Peter Kolson. The 15-acre parcel is located behind the Bradlee's store on Quincy Avenue.

McCauley said he did not know about the purchase until he read about it in the Feb. 19 issue of The Quincy Sun, and it bothered him that he was not notified.

"I thought it was kind of sneaky, to be truthful," he said.

John Keenan, executive secretary to Sheets, strongly defended the mayor.

"I respectfully disagree," he told McCauley. "I don't think there was anything sneaky about it at all."

Keenan pointed out that a presentation on the matter was made to the City Council last November and that the site in question was identified at that time. Although he was not then a member of the council, McCauley was in attendance that evening.

McCauley responded by noting that the proposed new Quincy High is only one part of a $73 million citywide school construction and renovation plan and that the schedule calls for other schools to be addressed first. Therefore, he said, there was no need to buy the land "precipitously."

Councillor Paul Harold sided with McCauley, saying his intention was "not to be site specific" when he joined other councillors in supporting the school plan.

Others, however, said the council had been told the proposed site was the only one possible for the new Quincy High before voicing support.

"My understanding was that we were going to buy the site because there was no other," said Kolson. "I assumed everyone understood."

Others who said the mayor acted properly were Raymondi, Councillor Timothy Cahill, and Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Ami-

Body Found In Bag

A body wrapped in a plastic bag was discovered Tuesday morning between the top of the embankment and the water at Black's Creek in Quincy.

The body was discovered around 10 a.m. by a man jogging in the area. At press time, Norfolk County Jeffrey Locke said the body was being taken to the state medical examiner's office in Boston to determine its sex, age, race and cause of death.

"We've got to be very careful before we make any statements," said Locke. "We might know something by 8 o'clock tonight (Tuesday)."

The site where the body was found is located about 25 feet from the shoulder of Furnace Brook Parkway in a pull-out area, he added.

Blood was found at the scene, but it was not immediately known whether it came from the body, which was wrapped in a dark plastic bag and a canvas-like substance, according to

Council Hears Plans For $35M Seniors Complex

The City Council heard a presentation Monday night on plans for the Faxon Woods Retirement Community in Quincy Point.

The project is a $35 million, 330-unit senior citizen residential complex that would be built on land between the Granite Crossing shopping center and Faxon Park. It has been proposed by Atlantic Development Corp. of Hingham and Leggat McCall Retirement Properties, a Boston property management firm.

The 10-acre complex would include separate residential facilities for independent living, assisted care and elderly people suffering from Alzheimer's disease. It would be on an extension of Falls Boulevard, beyond the Wal-Mart store and Avalon Apartments at Faxon Park.

The parcel is zoned Planned Unit Development (PUD) and adjoins a 15-acre site the city recently bought from Atlantic Development for a planned new Quincy High School. The complex would have one access, the Falls Boulevard extension, and would not interfere with traffic from the new high school.

The council could vote on the project as early as March 16. No construction date has been set.

Faxon Woods is aimed at retired middle-class homeowners and would include 150 units for independent seniors, 120 for those requiring moderate care, and 60 for Alzheimer's patients.

It would include dining rooms, a beauty parlor, billiard room, library, shuttle van and more.

The project will be privately financed. The proponents have not yet announced rental rates.

Atlantic Development President Donald MacKinnon said the development would create 100 permanent jobs, generate $400,000 in added property taxes for the city, and help ease a local senior housing shortage.

However, Ward 2 Councilor Daniel Raymond, whose ward includes the site, asked Quincy Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon to put into writing any traffic concerns he has with the project so they may be resolved before a vote is taken by the council.

Part Of Community Policing Program Two Police Officers To Be Assigned To Quincy Center

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Two police officers will be assigned permanently to the Quincy Center business area under the city's new community policing program.

Addressing the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association Tuesday, Police Chief Thomas Frane said the officers will patrol the Hancock Street area between Dimmock and School Streets. They will be there from 1 to 9 p.m. every day of the week. He said the officers will remain in the same place between 18 months to two years.

Frane said the business community is an important part of the community policing program, and commended QCBPA executive director Marlin Manning for being the "voice of the community" for events such as bicycle and foot races, first night and other city events.

He said the program will help establish a "user friendly police department."

Frane said a 17 member commission including all city department heads will also be added.

THOMAS FRANE

Frane said the changes will be in effect within a month. Letters have been sent to the 17 member. They will meet once a month with the QCBPA.

Three Permanent patrolmen each will also be assigned in the South-West Quincy and Quincy Point areas. Frane said areas such as Germantown already have foot patrolmen.

Frane said the placing of the foot patrolmen who will be there "all the time" and will then become an "integral part of the community" is an addition to the cruisers already assigned to the area.

He said the department is planning to add seven more police officers and three more cruisers.

Frane said the assignment of the foot patrolmen will give them a permanent commitment with the business community and establish a close contact with the neighborhoods.

He said they will be the same men at the same place and become a "fixture to the community." Reminiscing at how there were foot patrolmen in the past and singled out a few names that persons will always remember, he said the plan to hire foot patrolmen is really "what's new is what's old."

Returning to what used to work in the past, he said in a computerized society, police are more "isolated from the community" and that foot patrolmen would establish "more important relations between the community and the police."

Frane said the officers will also attend neighborhood meetings and will be able to "respond to calls more quickly."

Frane said for a city the size of Quincy, with close proximity to Boston, the crime rate is "remarkably low."

Dan Flynn, president of the QCBPA welcomed new members of the association and said he was presiding over his last meeting calling his presidency a "great two years."

Concourse Meeting March 12

The Citizen's Advisory Committee (CAC) for the Quincy Center Concourse will meet Thursday, March 12 at 3:15 p.m. in the second floor conference room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The public will have a final opportunity to comment on the design plans for section one, the bridge over the MBTA-commuter rail tracks and roadway connector, for the $9.1 million concourse.

As a result of CAC concerns and recommendations, certain changes have been made in the preliminary design of the bridge and roadway connector, calming of the traffic speeds along Burgin Parkway, height and construction of curbing, pedestrian safety, walkways, signage, and beautification are some of the CAC concerns.

CAC Chairman David Ezickson encourages all members to attend the meeting for a final discussion with earth tech designers and engineers regarding CAC concerns.

Bridge construction is expected to begin this summer. Project Ground-breaking is scheduled for next month.

CAC meetings are open to the public.

MDC To Repair Wollaston Seawall

State Sen. Michael Morrissey and Rep. Stephen Tobin announce that the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) will repair the Wollaston Beach Seawall between Rice Road and Fenn Street this summer.

The MDC expects to have the Maguire Group as their engineering consulting firm under contract by early this month.

"The Maguire Group will be responsible for the design work for the project," said Morrissey.

"The current seawall has been in need for repair for years and it is encouraging to see that this project is finally moving forward," added Tobin. "If we can complete the project before the next winter, further deterioration of the seawall will not occur."

The engineers will design, plan and develop the specifications to allow the project to go out and bid in the near future. Environmental reviews and reports should be completed quickly because the damage is to an existing seawall—not a new one—which would require more extensive permits.

"Although there have been few severe storms this past winter, past storms have been taking their toll on the seawall," said Morrissey. "The MDC's commitment to this important project will ensure a hazard on the beach will be eliminated and protect people who use the beach and sidewalk, and automobile on Quincy Shore Drive."

Will Apply For State Grants City Eyes $5-6M For Point Improvements

The city is preparing to apply for two state economic development grants that could result in between $5 million and $6 million in water main, street, sidewalk and traffic improvements in Quincy Point.

The project would include sidewalk and water main improvements along a number of streets including part of Southern Artery as well as Chubbuck, East Howard and South streets; improved traffic signalization at the Fore River Bridge rotary and more than a dozen other intersections; and repaving.

Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi said the project would include the most extensive public works improvements his ward has seen at one time.

Costs for the project would be $2.5 million in traffic improvements, $1.5 million for water mains and $1.3 million for roads and sidewalks.

The City Council discussed the matter briefly Monday night and is expected to vote in two weeks to authorize Mayor James Sheets to apply for state Community Development Action Grant (CDAG) and Public Works Economic Development (PWED) funds.

Raymondi said the reason the city will be able to apply for the grants is that Greek shipbuilder Sotirios Emmanouil won $55 million in federal loan guarantees in December to modernize the soon-to-be reopened Fore River shipyard.

Locke. Tire tracks also were found at the scene, he said.

Mayor James Sheets, who visited the scene with City Council President Peter Kolson, said the tire tracks indicated to authorities that the person found at the site may have been murdered.

"It looks like the body was dumped there. That's all we know," he said.

Locke said investigators would try to learn as much as possible from the tracks and other physical evidence at the scene.

Trish Bossart, a local resident, said she came upon the wrapped body while walking her dog. While she said there was "quite a bit of blood" at the scene, she said she was not frightened.

"It's quite clear that whatever happened, happened elsewhere and the body was just dumped in that particular spot," she said. "It does not appear that the crime was committed here on Furnace Brook."

Arnie Berman of West Quincy, who said he learned of the discovery by listening to his police scanner, voiced similar sentiments.

"This person could have been killed anywhere," he said. "The body was just dumped here in Quincy."

Following Raccoon Attack On Boy Gallahue Offers Precautions About Animals With Rabies

Quincy Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue is offering the following safety precautions as the result of the recent attack of a Quincy boy by a rabid raccoon:

- Vaccinate all pets, cats and dogs against rabies.

- Do not touch, pick up, or feed wild or stray animals of any kind.

- Teach children to avoid wildlife and strays.

- Avoid sick or strangely-acting animals.

- Fasten trash can lids tightly. Garbage attracts raccoons and skunks.

- Cap chimneys and seal openings into houses, etc. to prevent raccoons from entering or building dens.

- If you are bitten or scratched by an animal, you should promptly wash the wound(s) with soapy water and contact a doctor immediately.

- If your pet has been bitten or scratched by any animal, wear gloves, wash the wound with warm soapy water for at least 10 minutes, and contact your veterinarian immediately.

A 6-year-old boy was bitten by a rabid raccoon Feb. 21 while playing in the woods near his home. The attack happened at the Black's Creek end of Furnace Brook Parkway near Veterans Memorial Stadium and Merrymount Park, according to Gallahue.

The commissioner said animal control officers arrived at the boy's home, killed the raccoon and took it to a state laboratory for rabies testing. The results came back positive Feb. 26.

Gallahue said the boy immediately went to the emergency room at Quincy Hospital and began the 28-day rabies vaccination treatment. She said the treatment has a 100 percent recovery rate.

The raccoon attack is the first case in the city of human exposure to rabies since 1994, when five people were bitten by a rabid cat. Despite the time lapse, however, Gallahue said residents should not think the rabies epidemic has been eliminated.

Eight raccoons, eight skunks, three dogs and a cat have tested positive for rabies in Quincy since 1992.

The Quincy Health Department will hold a Rabies Immunization Clinic Saturday, April 25 from noon to 3 p.m. at the Quincy Animal Shelter, 56 Broad St., Quincy, at a cost of $8 per pet. State law requires that pet owners vaccinate their cats and dogs for the disease.

In addition, the department will send fliers and information packets to Quincy schools to warn children about the dangers of wild animals.

For more information, call the Health Department at 376-1270.

Eddie's Diner And Worcester Tornado

You probably have your own memories but whenever I think of Eddie's Diner, I think of the Worcester Tornado.

And, that's what you would call a real long-distance link.

I was sorry to see it carted off to New Bedford the other day and thinking it might never be back.

The 1952 version which replaced the 1940's original had been closed since a 1993 fire, left town on a flatbed trailer to be, hopefully, refurbished by volunteers from the American Diner Museum.

It may come back as a nostalgic nugget of Quincy history but not to its old familiar location at Quincy Avenue and Southern Artery. On that site will rise a new branch of South Shore Savings Bank.

Sam Kotoulas, who ran the diner in the 1970's, still hopes to find a Quincy site for it. The one he picked out on East Howard St. near the Fore River shipyard ran into strong opposition.

He's still looking. Good luck, Sam.

But what's Eddie's Diner got to do with the Worcester Tornado? You might call it the ending to a big news story.

I was a reporter with the then Quincy Ledger when that tornado tore through Worcester and the region June 9, 1953, devastating the area and taking 90 lives.

I was sent to cover the story and heard that the Quincy Police Department was sending help out there. Figuring I might have trouble getting through roadblocks, I hitched a ride in a police cruiser with Patrolmen Arthur Duffy and Dante Pettinelli.

We started off but before we got a mile we had a flat tire.

"I'll take care of that," said Pettinelli. And it seemed like only a minute before he had the spare on. And, off we sped.

As we approached Worcester, there were roadblocks but we were waved right through.

We arrived at the Great Brook Valley and Curtis Apartments veterans housing project four miles north of Worcester center that had caught the full force of the tornado's fury.

We looked and we could hardly believe.

The area, with brick apartment buildings--home to more than 500 families with hundreds of youngsters--looked like it had been bombed.

While Duffy and Pettinelli helped police the area, I gathered information for my story. And, there was a lot to gather.

The clocks in the apartments were stopped at 5:20, pinpointing the time the tornado roared through on a zig-zag like route.

In some apartments, blankets and sheets were ripped off the beds by the wind's force and dangled from shattered windows. Yet, in other apartments dishes and half-eaten suppers were still on kitchen tables undisturbed.

Roofs of some of the buildings were sheared off, copper flashing rolled into twisted balls. A kitchen sink hung from branches of a tree.

A whole row of single family homes on a slope were mowed down like match sticks, boards and beams driven across the street and piled into splinters.

All that was left of one house was the bathtub. A National Guardsman said a man and a woman were blown out of the house and carried 75 yards down the street to their deaths.

Cars and even a bus were picked up by the tornado's force, turned over and slammed down on their roofs.

One witness said the tornado, one of New England's worst disasters, made the big hurricane of 1938 look like a "summer breeze."

We spent the night there and headed back to Quincy in the early morning. We hadn't eaten all night and were hungry.

Now, about Eddie's Diner:

"Let's get some breakfast," Duffy or Pettinelli said. Cops know where the good food is. So we pulled into Eddie's Diner.

"I'll buy," I told them, grateful for being able to get to Worcester and back with them in the cruiser and figuring they might go for a blueberry muffin and a cup of coffee.

Duffy and Pettinelli, who were two good cops, also had a good sense of humor.

And, as I remember it, one of them said, "Well, if you're buying, I'll have juice, coffee, a nice big steak and a large order of eggs."

"Sounds good to me," said the other.

"What the hell," I told myself. "I might as well have the same."

But then when the check came, I didn't have enough money. Reporters back then, didn't make much. (Still don't, today's will tell you.)

I promised the waitress I would be back. Pettinelli and Duffy vouched for my honesty after they stopped laughing.

So, off to the Ledger I went and filled out an expense slip and gave it to John Herbert, the editor, or Don Wilder, the city editor. Which ever one it was, he laughed, too, but okayed the amount--I can't remember how much. The story, he said, was a three steaks story.

I went back to Eddie's and settled up.

Duffy and Pettinelli never let me forget that breakfast at Eddie's.

And I'll never forget it or the Worcester tornado.

I'd like to see Eddie's back. But I hope we never see a tornado like that Worcester one here in Quincy.

With El Nino still lurking around, you never know.

Credon To Speak At Joint Meeting March 12

School Supt. Eugene Credon will be the speaker at a joint meeting of the Parent Advisory Council and the School Council of Quincy High School.

The meeting is open to the public and will be held Thursday, March 12 from 7:15 to 9:15 p.m. in the Pride Room at Quincy High School.

Credon will talk about the construction and renovation plans for all of the schools in the city and those for the new high school in particular.

In Colonial America, Sabbath Day observance kept children from playing with toys. The one exception was Noah's arks, also called the Sunday Toy, which was then the most popular toy in Europe and America.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS OLD POSTCARD is a view of North Junior High School shortly after it was dedicated in February, 1927. The east wing was added on this, the Squantum Street side, in 1931 and then the three-year school became a six year High School. The west wing on Hancock Street was added in 1936. The school was completely updated in the 1970's and now this building will receive additional improvements through the recently announced 12 year citywide school update program. Quickly approaching its diamond jubilee this school building should easily make the 100 year mark serving the community.

Thanks Quincy Hospital For Exceptional Care

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On Nov. 20, 1997, I had a successful knee replacement operation at the Lahey Clinic, performed by Dr. William Healy. I opted to do my rehab at Quincy Hospital.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the staff of the Quincy Hospital Transitional Care Unit for their concern and treatment while I was a patient in their facility.

My gratitude to the Quincy Hospital Rehabilitation Services which has inpatient therapy after release from the Transitional Care Unit. My one-on-one therapist while I was in the TCU was Jeff Chace, and when I went to Out-Patient Therapy it was Carla Cohen—they were both outstanding with my successful recovery. On their days off, I was treated by therapist Bill Frazier while in the TCU and Tony Volpe and Rick Vartasian. All the therapists were professional, caring and exceptionally knowledgeable.

I highly recommend the TCU and the Rehab Services of Quincy Hospital to anyone in need. The warm and cordial attitude of all the personnel makes you feel comfortable while attending to your therapy.

I had the opportunity to use the Quincy Visiting Nurse Association, where I had the services of nurse Jim Maura, who was a caring, professional concerned nurse. My thanks to the Visiting Nurse Association and to Jim Maura for their services.

Being a senior citizen, I had the good fortune to use the services of the Quincy Senior Citizens Transportation Unit that was available when needed. This is a very convenient agency with polite, courteous, helpful drivers.

We are very fortunate in Quincy to have these agencies available to us when the need exists. I would not hesitate to use these agencies again or to recommend them.

Hats Off To City's 'Angels Of Mercy'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

O'Brien Towers Senior Housing in Quincy became a victim of El Nino on Tuesday, Feb. 24, when the downpour of heavy rain may have caused an overload and explosions of the power transformer to our building around 5:30 a.m.

Again, about 8 a.m., sparks and further explosions drove the firemen diving head-long out of the generator room.

Fire alarms drove many out of their apartments before they also failed when the electricity went down. Most of us residents huddled in the lower recreation hall.

A call to Tony Siciliano, director of the Quincy Emergency Management Agency, brought many blessings, Dunkin' Donuts, lunch and dinner and hot coffee, via the Salvation Army and help throughout the mayor's office, Quincy Housing Authority, etc.

Warm blankets were brought in and distributed, along with some flashlights, door-to-door apartments on all seven floors. Quincy Hospital also sent additional warm blankets.

Assurances were brought by Rev. Kimmell, chairman of the Quincy Housing Authority Board of Directors for our residents' comforts. Emergency lighting and life-support pumps were provided and on stand-by.

Do we appreciate the "good life" until we lose our comforts of electricity, cable TV, etc.?

Praise is not enough for these great and caring volunteers of the Emergency Management, Salvation Army, etc. And not to forget the crew of Mass. Electric who tolled overtime to return our power at 12:30 Wednesday morning!

Our hats are off to all of our "Angels of Mercy!"

Enjoyed Citizen Police Academy

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I would like to let you know that this was our second year with the Quincy Police Department's Citizen Police Academy.

We had four weeks of enlightenment about different things with Sgt. Daniel Minkin, the host.

We had a scam video, to show us what to watch out for. The second week was Fallon Ambulance EMTs and paramedics showing us a video about how they take care of people and displaying a van that we could get in and see for ourselves.

The third week was Engine 3, Lt. Casey. They brought in a firehouse to show us, and all the equipment they wear. Also, three firemen showed us a video about a fire.

For the fourth week, Police Chief Franc was here. He congratulated all of us and gave us all a certificate for attending. We were also visited by the dispatcher, Officer Joe Murphy; Tom Connors and the police dog, Licha; and two horses and officers from the department's Mounted Unit.

The Department of Elder Services also talked with us, and about what they can do for us.

It was the best time, and so interesting and educational.

I wrote to you last year also. Thank you so much. I hope they will come back again soon. And thank you to the Quincy Police; they are the finest.

McIntyre Steps Down As Delegate

By PAUL HAROLD

Senator and Mayor James McIntyre said he would step down as a delegate to the Democratic National Convention because he didn't want to vote for Sen. Eugene McCarthy on the first ballot. McIntyre supported President Lyndon Johnson, who failed to enter his name in the upcoming Massachusetts presidential primary.

March 5 - 11
1968
30 Years Ago

District Atty. George Burke, however, said that while Johnson was his choice, too, he wouldn't resign because he felt he had an obligation to fulfill his duty as a delegate.

Under party rules, McIntyre's seat would be filled by the Democratic State Committee.

SIX FLEE NAVAL TERRACE BLAZE

Six people, including a six-month old baby, fled a pre-dawn, two-alarm fire at Naval Terrace that completely destroyed the property. Winds blowing from the Neponset River whipped flames through the building.

Deputy Chief William Barron estimated the loss of the one-story, stucco building at $10,000.

Firefighters were hampered for a short time in fighting the blaze because of some difficulty in getting the apparatus to the location.

COUNCIL CUTS $101,337 FROM BUDGET

In their third budget meeting, the city council cut $101,337 from the mayor's budget, with the goal of $300,000 in cuts before they finished their work on the spending plan.

The largest cuts came from the welfare and veterans departments. Deputy welfare commissioner Joseph LaRaia said while the state would take over welfare on July 1, the city would remain responsible for those services the city paid for prior to the takeover.

In light of the state assumption of welfare services, the mayor called for the vacating of the city home to make way for the construction of a new office for the Registry of Motor Vehicles.

QUINCY-ISMS

Mayor McIntyre and Veterans Services Director William Villone announced "Operation Viet Easter," similar to "Operation Viet Christmas" that provided fruit cakes to all Quincy servicemen and women in Vietnam with a fruitcake.

... Councillor Clifford Marshall called upon Gov. John Volpe for his help in ending plans for the Shawmut Trail roadway.

... Charles Bernazzani was the new principal at the Beechwood Knoll School. He replaced Leo Gould who became principal at the Montclair School. ... Herbert Shaughnessy of Samoset Ave. died. He was the president of the Shaughnessy and Ahern Company, former commodore of the Merrymount Yacht Club and a candidate for city council in 1951. ...

Montclair PTA President Peter Cappola presented a plaque to outgoing principal Edna Abbiatti. ... With a bid of $1.2 million, Concrete Construction of Everett was the low bidder for the new 150-unit senior housing on Martensen St. ...

Morton Bernstein of Perry Rd. was chairman of the Quincy campaign for the Combined Jewish Philanthropies. ... Dr. Thaddeus Slomkowski and Dr. John Driscoll announced the location of their new offices on Whitney Rd. Councillor-at-large George McDonald was to be a candidate for state representative or county commissioner in the fall election.

Former mayor and state representative Amelio Della Chiesa was not eligible for re-election for state representative, having moved to Pembroke. ... House Speaker Robert Quinn was the speaker at the Holy Name Society at Blessed Sacrament Church. ... John Gallagher rental agents offered 1-2 bedroom apartments at the Executive House for $160 and up. ... Ground was broken by Bargain Center President Maxwell Van Dam for a two-level, $500,000 addition to the store. ... Councillor Clifford Marshall commended the QHS hockey team for its winning record and extended wishes for the upcoming tournament. He said Coach Bob Sylvia had "done an excellent job in the short time he's been here." ...

A daughter was born at Quincy City Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred DelVecchio of Madison Ave. ... Charles Peterson, chairman of the Salvation Army advisory board, announced that John Blake, treasurer of Colony, Inc. was the chairman of the capital campaign to raise $438,795 for a new neighborhood center. A sum of $8.40 was stolen from the parish house of the Wollaston Baptist Church on Prospect Ave.

'Tropical Garden Party' Benefit For Quincy Hospital March 14

A "Tropical Garden Party" to benefit Quincy Hospital will be held Saturday, March 14 from 6 to 11 p.m. in the Meditech atrium at Maresfield Farm, 7 Blue Hill Ave., Canton.

The fundraiser will feature hors d'oeuvres and a four-course Caribbean style dinner, entertainment by the band Noddadu, dancing, and a live auction led by auctioneer Paul Zekos. Semi-formal attire is preferred.

Items to be auctioned include a hockey stick autographed by Bobby Orr, a round of golf at Willowbend (one of Cape Cod's most exclusive golf resorts), a week-long Maine vacation, dinner in Washington or Boston with Congressman Bill Delahunt, and others.

Tickets are $100 per person. Sponsorships of tables for 10 are available for $2,500 and $1,500. The event is expected to raise over $30,000 for Quincy Hospital, a progressive healthcare organization which brings together individuals committed to excellent patient care and innovative community service.

Mayor James Sheets serves as honorary chairman and Michelle Lydon serves as chairman of a committee of 50 volunteers from the South Shore community who are lending their support to the fundraising effort.

Committee members include: Anthony Agnitti, Dr. Peter Ambrus, Charles Arienti, Dr. Peter Barrett, Toni Barry, Terry Bellotti-Welch, John Black, Renee Buisson, Rich Butler, Thomas Cataldo, Ted and Betty DeCristofaro, Loretta DeGrazia, Congressman William Delahunt, Dr. Charles DiCecca, Claudia DiCesare, Linda DiMaggio, Elaine duJardin, Paul Embry, Judy Farmer, Norma Gacicia, ENC To Present 'The Mysteries'

The Communication Arts Department of Eastern Nazarene College, 23 East Elm Ave., Wollaston, will present "The Mysteries: Creation-Nativity" Thursday through Saturday, March 12-14 at 7 p.m.

"The Mysteries" is a celebration of life and faith expressed through stories, dance and music which invites the audience to sing and clap along. Originally produced in the Medieval Mystery Plays, the production presents a series of short plays beginning with the Creation story and ending with the Nativity.

The award-winning adaptation offers a contemporary perspective of the world's greatest stories as told through the eyes of blue-collar workers, including waitresses, store clerks, mechanics and construction workers. British playwright Tony Harrison and the Royal National Theatre of Great Britain received critical acclaim for their 1985 premiere.

Featured in the ENC production of "The Mysteries" is a live band and an original score. Visual highlights include a 25-person snake, a recreation of the flood, God appearing in a forklift, and Herod, the hedonistic disco king.

The show's director is Dr. Ronda Rice Winderl and the set and lighting design are by Michael Ballard.

Tickets for the three evening shows are $7 and may be purchased by calling the Cove Box Office at 745-3715.

A school matinee performance will be held March 12 at 10 a.m. Matinee seats are $5, one teacher free with 25 reservations.

MR. and MRS. VALENTINO CAVALLO

Mr., Mrs. Valentino Cavallo Celebrate 70th Anniversary

Valentino and Edmea Cavallo recently celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary at Bay Path Rehabilitation & Nursing Center in Duxbury.

The couple met in Quincy and were married Feb. 12, 1928.

Mrs. Cavallo was born and raised in North Jay, Maine, and later moved to the Quincy area. Mr. Cavallo was born and raised on the outskirts of Turin, Italy. In 1923, when he was 17 years old, he arrived at Ellis Island and made his way to New England, and soon after met his wife.

Mr. Cavallo owned his own business in Quincy for many years, and Mrs. Cavallo stayed at home raising their only child, Doreen Giordani, a resident of Hanover. Mr. and Mrs. Cavallo have one grandson, Michael Giordani of Plympton.

Mrs. Cavallo has been a resident of the Bay Path Center since May 1996. She attends all religious services and socials, and thoroughly enjoys all musical entertainment. Her husband lives in Hanover with their daughter, and visits his wife frequently.

Lions Club To Hold Pancake Breakfast April 5

The Lions Club of Quincy will hold its annual Pancake Breakfast Sunday, April 5 from 9 a.m. to noon in the dining room at 1000 Southern Artery, Quincy.

There will be coffee, juice, pancakes and sausages.

The Lions Club is the oldest service organization in the world. In Quincy, the Lions maintain their heritage of community service by raising funds for granting donations for eye research and vision care. The breakfast is held annually by the Lions Club to enable the club to provide eye examinations and eyeglasses for needy Quincy residents.

Tickets are $3.50 at the door. Pictures with the Easter Bunny also will be available for an additional charge.

Coloring Book To Benefit Quincy High Trip To Italy

A coloring book entitled "Color Me Quincy" has been printed to help defray the cost of a trip to Italy that will be taken by a group of Quincy High School students, parents and adults.

The group will be the guests of the students, staff and parents of Liceo de Scientifico in Forli, Italy, who sent a contingent of their own to visit Quincy High and stay in the city last year.

"Color Me Quincy" features 16 historical views of the city by Quincy High students. It was printed by graphic arts students from the school.

Contributing student artists were Jonathan Cadavid, Kevin Cellucci, Bill Gavel, Paul Johnson, Marnie Kennedy, Rebecca MacKey, Henry Wan and Chris Wool. Also contributing were 1997 graduate Randy Noble and substitute teacher Jen Seamans-Johnson.

Graphic arts students who produced and designed the book were Paul Davis, Joe Foye, Adam Ricard and Dave Cinquegrano.

The book will be available in early March through PTOs, at Quincy High, and in community outlets such as Abigail's Crossing. Cost is $3.50. For more information, call 984-8885.

Lt. John Menz Retires After 33 Years With Fire Dept.

Lt. John Menz Jr. is retiring after more than 33 years with the Quincy Fire Department.

His retirement will take effect Friday.

Menz, 56, joined the department in December 1964 and was promoted to lieutenant in July 1979. For the past decade, he also has served as the department's hazardous materials officer.

"Over the last 10 years, John has done an outstanding job in developing that office, which first started in 1988," said Fire Chief Thomas Gorman. "He will be missed. Everyone at the Quincy Fire Department wishes him many years in his retirement."

A Catholic deacon, Menz serves at St. Boniface Church in Germantown and will spend more time in that capacity following his retirement, Gorman added.

"He and his wife Eileen are both very devoted (Catholics)," said the chief.

Menz could not be reached for comment.

Menz is the son of retired Quincy Deputy Fire Chief John Menz Sr. His brother, George Menz, and his nephew, Daniel Gorman, are firefighters with the department.

Nominees Requested For Massachusetts Teacher Of The Year

The Massachusetts Department of Education is seeking nominations for the 1998-99 Massachusetts Teacher of the Year.

Parents, students, community members, teachers, and administrators are invited to nominate teachers.

Teachers who are nominated for this award will receive an application packet. For the first time this year, the Teacher of the Year will receive a full year sabbatical to share her or his expertise with educators, students, community members and other interested citizens all across the Commonwealth.

A Massachusetts Teacher of the Year has been selected annually since 1960. All 66,000 public school classroom teachers in Massachusetts are eligible. The Teacher of the Year automatically qualifies as Massachusetts' candidate for the National Teacher of the Year.

Nominations are due by March 3. A brief nomination letter must include the name of the teacher, the name and address of the teacher's school, and the name and address of the person making the nomination. Letters should be sent to the Massachusetts Department of Education, c/o The Teacher of the Year Program, 350 Main St., Malden, MA 02148. Faxes may be sent to (781) 388-3396. Nominations will also be taken via electronic mail at mmacdonald@doe.mass.edu

Bruce Ayers Candidate For State Representative

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers officially has announced his candidacy for state representative.

Ayers made the announcement at a fundraiser last Thursday at Raffael's in North Quincy attended by more than 500 supporters. He will seek the First Norfolk District seat being vacated by Rep. Michael Bel-lotti to run for Norfolk County sheriff.

Following remarks by Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico and Council President Peter Kolson, Ayers told his supporters he chose to make the announcement in February because it was the 17th anniversary of the handicapped conversion business he started with his brother.

"Before any candidate asks for your vote, he should inform you about what he has done," said Ayers, who added that his experience as a small business owner has "taught me the value of hard work, fiscal responsibility and the ability to work within a budget."

Ayers said his "close work with the community in setting goals" is the main reason Ward 6 and the city have made improvements in areas such as education and public safety. He said regular neighborhood meetings and interaction with residents have allowed him to focus on many quality-of-life issues such as improving recreational programs and parks for children and ensuring that economic growth and development is undertaken with minimal impact and maximum benefit to community.

Ayers told the audience their state representative "must continue the challenge for a better future" and pledged to "fight for the hard-working taxpayer and make education a priority to protect our children's future."

Ayers vowed to focus his campaign on the people and what they have the right to expect from state government. He cited the cleanup of Wollaston Beach, lowering MWRA water and sewer rates, improving the performance of MBTA service and ensuring support from MassHighway for traffic impact as some of his priorities.

"A state representative's job is to make sure his constituency is receiving its fair share of funding and that monies are allocated to the services it deserves," L said.

Ayers said the most important thing that will help him accomplish his goals is "jobs. People need wages and benefits that are realistic. If we want the economy to continue expanding, the state should encourage realistic wages by utilizing project labor agreements in construction and helping companies like Boston Scientific to keep jobs in Massachusetts."

Boston Scientific purchased the former Jordan Marsh warehouse in North Quincy with Ayers's assistance in securing city approval of state-sponsored investment tax credit.

Central School's Future Meeting Topic March 11

The Central Forum, a group formed by parents concerned about the future of Central Middle School, will hold an informational meeting Wednesday, March 11 at 7:30 p.m. in the schools' Learning Center.

School Supt. Eugene Creodon and members of the City Council and School Committee will be in attendance. The meeting will be an open forum and officials will answer questions regarding plans being made for Central and the new Quincy High School and provided updated information.

The proposal for Central's future is to move Central into the current Quincy High School building.

All parents are encouraged to attend.

days will be determined in 1999 as the construction nears completion, McLaughlin said. The library has been closed on Sundays since 1982 as a result of Proposition 2 1/2 budget cuts.

The original library, now the reference area, was designed by world-famous architect H.H. Richardson and built in 1882. The Coletti addition, now the library's entrance, was built in 1939.

The new addition is being constructed by the award-winning Boston architectural firm Childs, Bertman and Tseckares. A bid for the project's general contractor will be awarded in April, and a groundbreaking ceremony with state and city officials will follow.

Work is expected begin in May, last about 14 months and be completed by January 2000. When it is completed, McLaughlin said, the library's entire resource collection will grow by about 50 percent—with a particularly high increase in books on tape and videotape—and there will be numerous more computers, a meeting room hooked into the city's cable television studio, and a new technologically-equipped atrium.

While the work is being done, about 80 percent of the materials that can be checked out at the main library will be located in the Crane's North Quincy branch which will be closed March 9 to 29 to allow for the volumes to be transferred. Other branches will receive the rest of the materials.

Beginning March 30, the new North Quincy hours will be: Monday and Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday from 1 to 9 p.m., and Friday and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Adams Shore and Wollaston branches will maintain their current hours during the construction project.

McLaughlin stressed, however, that only the Coletti building will close during the construction. The Richardson building will remain open throughout the project.

On Monday night, the City Council were given an update on the project by McLaughlin and architect Richard Bertman. Councillors, including Council President Peter Kolson and Councilor Paul Harold, voiced enthusiasm about the construction.

Most of the money for the project is coming from a bond issue passed by the council last year.

Amy Parsons On Dean's List At St. Michael's College

Tobin Legislation Would Amend Sex Offender Law

State Rep. Stephen Tobin of Quincy and Sen. Robert Bernstein (D-Worcester), who chair the Joint Committee on Criminal Justice, have issued a redraft of legislation that would amend the current Sex Offender Registry Law.

The legislation would bring it into compliance with due process standards while protecting vulnerable members of the Commonwealth from sexual predators. It was proposed in response to recent court decisions that hold major portions of the existing statute unconstitutional.

Amending the statute has been a legislative priority of the Criminal Justice Committee because the court decisions have effectively hindered the ability of law enforcement officials to track sex offenders and provide the public with information about dangerous predators.

The proposal strengthens the registry with respect to both classification and registration requirements. The bill would separate those serious offenders who pose a grave danger to public safety by designating them as "sexually violent predators."

Such predators are required to register for life, and to verify their whereabouts every 90 days. That provision brings Massachusetts into compliance with the federal mandate, which is linked to funding.

The bill also adds to child pornography crimes, prostitution of minors and other sexual offenses to the list of violations for which an offender must register. It expands registry violations to include failure to provide notice of a change of address and knowingly providing false information, and increases the penalties for those crimes. In addition, the bill allows citizens to request information from other cities and towns within the Commonwealth.

The bill provides for hearings at the Sex Offender Registry Board on the issues of registration and classification in accordance with the court mandate.

"This bill provides the maximum amount of information to help protect women and children in their neighborhoods," said Tobin. "The bill also assists police in administering information about sex offenders by clarifying the dissemination provisions and improving address verification. The proposal greatly improves the current system of community notification while adhering to constitutional requirements imposed by the Supreme Judicial Court."

DOVE To Receive $153,000 State Award

State Sen. Michael Morrissey and State Reps. Michael Bellotti, Ronald Mariano and Stephen Tobin announce that $5.2 million has been awarded to 18 Massachusetts projects, including DOVE Transitional Services in Quincy.

"The funding will be used to construct 745 units of affordable housing for families and individuals in need," said Morrissey. "It provides deferred mortgage loans to non-profit developers to a maximum of 30 percent of the total development cost of the housing project."

A minimum of 50 percent of the units in the Housing Innovation Funds must serve very low and low-income individuals. The awards are administered by the Department of Housing and Community Development and if funded by the 1994 Housing Bond Bill.

"DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) will receive a $153,000 House Innovation Fund Award which will be used for the acquisition and rehabilitation of two buildings to provide housing for battered women and their children," said Bellotti.

Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services will be the developer for the project. Flexibility and innovation are the two features that makes the grant different from other state housing programs. Conventional financing can not be used for many of these unique and different projects.

"Since the inception of the award program in 1987, approximately 4,000 units have been created under the Housing Innovation Fund program," said Mariano.

The flexibility of the program allows a wide variety of projects for various groups.

"Non-profit groups have been bringing creative housing concepts to reality through the Housing Innovation Funds," said Tobin.

Dr. Carol Lee Griffin Woodward Interim Head

DR. CAROL LEE GRIFFIN

Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, retired assistant superintendent of the Quincy Public Schools, has been appointed interim headmaster at The Woodward School in Quincy by the school's Board of Trustees.

Griffin will serve until a replacement for the late Robert Johnston is found or until June 30, whichever comes first.

Johnston, who served as the Woodward headmaster for 20 years, died Feb. 5 of ALS, or Lou Gehrig's disease. Griffin was assisting him with his duties at the time of his death.

In a letter to the school's staff, Griffin wrote, "The Search Committee has narrowed the field of candidates down to three; whether or not the final candidate can begin prior to June 30 remains to be seen.

During her career with the school system, Griffin helped introduce a number of new programs, including the Quincy Teen Mothers Program—now in its 20th year—and the Central Registration Process Program, which allows students whose primary language is not English to register for classes at the same place, rather than in separate school buildings.

I continue to feel that the earlier a permanent head can be appointed, the better off the school will be."

Griffin, a lifelong resident of Quincy, is a graduate of Quincy High School and Boston University where she received several degrees.

She worked several years for South Shore Mental Health before becoming the first director of pupil per-

NQHS 40th Annual Science Fair Saturday

The 40th annual North Quincy High School Science Fair will be held Saturday in the fourth floor Science Department at the school, 316 Hancock St.

About 140 students are expected to participate. The student exhibitors will have their projects judged by approximately 70 individuals from the fields of education, business and industry. Special activities will be featured throughout the day. All are welcome to attend.

Many of those who serve as judges are alumni and former fair participants who have pursued careers in science-related fields. A number of former participants also provide support for the Alumni Awards presented at the Awards Ceremony following the fair.

This year's Awards Ceremony will be held at 8 p.m. Fifteen students will be identified as fair winners and will be eligible to represent the school at the South Shore Regional Science Fair at Bridgewater State College on March 21.

accurate as any total cholesterol test given by a doctor or lab. Just prick your finger.

Place one or two drops of blood into the well. Wait two minutes and pull the tab to begin the reaction. Wait 10 to 12 minutes for results. If your cholesterol level is over 200, see your doctor.

Not all cholesterol is bad, but the harmful kind can be deadly. Harmful cholesterol, which comes from the food we eat, builds up in the body and slows the flow through the arteries, contributing to increased risk of heart attack and strokes.

There's a lot you can do to control cholesterol. Diet and exercise are important, as is keeping track of cholesterol levels.

In a recent survey, 91% of CholesTrak users responded that this objective feedback motivates them to continue a healthier lifestyle.

Young World: A Happy World For Children

By HOLLI PANAGOS

"It's always a fabulous show," said an observer watching her son's dance class through the lobby window, "and the children get so excited with all the attention!"

"They know it's coming when the teachers start measuring for their costumes," a second mother added. "My daughter just loves getting her costume!"

June may seem far away to the rest of us, but when those tape measures and catalogs come out at Young World in Quincy, it's the signal for everyone to start getting into high gear because they know the annual recital is on the way.

Now in its 36th year, Young World's dance recital has been delighting its audience with its June show. From adorable tots eagerly anticipating their colorful costumes, to young boys and girls showing off their new steps, to teens demonstrating the skills of many years of dance classes, to the Talent Units dancing expertly to modern and classic tunes, Young World's ballet, tap and jazz students display confidence and enthusiasm as they practice their skills for the upcoming production at John Hancock Hall in Boston.

The excitement is contagious. Young World's gym classes are into honing their skills, anticipating their own time in the spotlight. Their end of the year Gymnastic Education combines gymnastic skills, style and flair for an exciting, rhythmic, colorful performance that has been delighting family and friends each year. Gym tots roll, jump, twist, and crawl with various levels of success, but their antics will amuse and charm their audience. Older students and teams practice on the apparatus and floor, determined to perfect their skills in time for their own exhibition in June.

A cluster of boys run into the gym. Not a gym class. They're in the wrestling class, the only all-boy group at Young World. They are learning the finer points of Greco-Roman wrestling, and getting fit in the process. Watching the exertion required to pin an opponent to the mat, it is obvious that this is no "Saturday at the Matches." You can see the effort and determination in their faces. These boys are serious athletes working hard in a demanding discipline.

Rounding out Young World's enrollment are the children in the preschool classes. On Tuesday and Thursday, the morning is alive with the sounds of three-year-old children: singing, laughing, shouting, playing together, developing important social skills. On the remaining three mornings, there is less random noise. These children are working hard, practicing the skills they will need in kindergarten. They are cutting and pasting, singing, and working mazes, cooperating and helping each other. Academics are at the core of their curriculum, but they are having so much fun they don't even realize they are learning. They make full use of the computers in the classroom, even eating their snacks in a hurry to get the first seat at one of the PCs.

Unique to Young World is the Preschool Plus class, a small group of children who, for one reason or another, were not ready to enter kindergarten this year, but needed a more stimulating, academically stronger curriculum than the standard preschool offering. They spend an extra hour each day working on math, language arts, science, and art with individualized instruction on the computers. They are working on archeology at the moment, white dust all over the floor as they "excavate" the treasures in a block of Plaster-of-Paris.

They have become good friends as well. It is delightful to see them turning to help one another when somebody has gotten stuck on a task. Important life skills are being practiced here.

Important life skills are in evidence all around Young World. It is a good place for children.

[Holli Panagos is a preschool teacher at Young World, 221 Parkingway, Quincy Center. For more information about the programs there, call 471-3808.]

Chiropractic Update

by Mark C. Jaehnig D.C.

ARM & SHOULDER PAIN

Arm and shoulder pain can have a number of causes, but the large percentage of cases are caused by misalignment of one or more spinal bones (vertebrae), improper posture, spinal curvatures, occupational stresses, or injury to the spine. Any of these conditions may cause irritation or impingement of the nerves supplying the arms, shoulder and neck. Arm and shoulder pain does not always mean trouble where the pain is felt.

The degree of pain may vary between slight and intermittent, to excruciating. But do not be fooled by the degree of pain; sometimes a slight pain goes along with a serious condition while intense pain may be a symptom of nothing more than temporary muscle soreness caused by a weekend of unusual activity.

It should be apparent to anyone that arm and shoulder pain may indicate a serious condition. But whether the problem is serious or not, the pain can become quite debilitating. Fortunately, the doctor of chiropractic is eminently qualified to correct arm and shoulder problems. The chiropractors education and experience have been directed to such problems that involve the spine, nerves, muscles and joints of the human body.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

Your Longevity-What's Average?

(NAPS)—When it comes to life expectancy in America today, there's good news and better news.

The good news is the life-expectancy rate has been steadily climbing throughout this century, mostly due to advances in science such as medicines, vaccines, technology and procedures. Average life expectancy is now over 75 years, up from only around 54 in 1920.

The better news is that there are a number of steps you can take to increase your own chances of living to a ripe old age. These, based on American Medical Association guidelines, include:

1. If you smoke, stop. If you don't smoke, don't start.
2. If you drink alcohol, do so in moderation. Two drinks a day are enough for most people.
3. Stay within the ideal weight limits for your height and age. Ask your doctor what they are.
4. Exercise vigorously at least three times a week.
5. Eat sensibly. You need a balanced diet with plenty of fruits and vegetables, few fats and sweets.
6. Try to get a good

Life expectancy rates have risen by more than 50 percent in just the past 75 years.

night's sleep every night. How much sleep you need varies with individuals. Try to determine your optimum number of hours.

7. Try to maintain a positive outlook on life.

8. Drive defensively. Always wear seat belts.

9. Get regular check-ups.

10. In addition, you can encourage the government to continue to fund university research projects that could come up with new cures and treatments for the conditions you may develop as you age.

Just as such research led to such life expectancy extenders as the transplant technology, long-term dialysis for kidney failure, heart pacemakers, MRIs and the like, researchers are currently looking into ways to deal with Alzheimer's, cancer, heart disease and other ailments that cause so much grief and cost so much money.

Surprising to many is that universities and colleges comprise the largest single group of basic researchers. This research is funded by the Federal government. Also surprisingly, there are some in Congress who want to reduce the funding for this research.

To find out how your legislator feels about this issue, write to the U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510 and the U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Quincy 2000 Hires New Economic Development Specialist

Charnan Bray of Waltham has been hired as the Economic Development Specialist for Quincy 2000, following the departure of Downtown Development Coordinator Bruce Arons.

Arons recently accepted a position to head-up the economic development effort for the Town of Middleborough.

Bray has over 10 years of professional experience in the field of community planning and economic development. Most recently, she served as executive director of Hyde Park Main Streets, Inc., a revitalization program with similar goals and initiatives to Quincy 2000. Previously, she held economic development and planning positions in Newton and Salem, N.H.

Bray earned her Bachelor's Degree from the University of New Hampshire and a Master's Degree from Tufts University.

In speaking about the appointment, Executive Director Joseph Mannarino said, "Quincy 2000 conducted a comprehensive search to fill this new position. Charnan comes to Quincy 2000 with hands-on experience developing and managing economic development programs like ours. I was impressed with her Main Streets economic development experience and her enthusiasm to apply her knowledge and expertise to assist Quincy 2000 and the City of Quincy. Charnan's responsibilities will include many city-wide initiatives, including the continuation of the Quincy Center revitalization effort."

Bray said she's "thrilled to be a part of Quincy's revitalization program through Quincy 2000. The organization has accomplished a great deal in only five years. I'm pleased to bring my experience in downtown revitalization to Quincy."

Regarding Arons' decision to take the position in Middleborough, Mannarino said, "Bruce has done an excellent job for Quincy 2000 over the past year-and-a-half. He was instrumental in the completion of the Quincy Center Action Plan and in the design of the Directional and Way-finding Signage System for Quincy Center."

Bray will be responsible for a variety of economic development initiatives including: implementation for the Quincy Center Action Plan strategies, providing technical assistance to small businesses, developing a business retention and recruitment plan, and the promotion of Quincy 2000 programs and projects.

City Council Briefs

The City Council took the following action at its meeting Monday night:

•Voted to give Council Clerk of Committees Jeanne Reardon the additional title of office manager. Councilors said Reardon deserves the title, given the amount of work she does, and agreed to discuss a possible salary increase for her at a later date.

•Accepted a gift of $25 from Most Blessed Sacrament Church to the Quincy Emergency Management Agency.

$50,000 Project Planned Fore River Clubhouse Renovations To Begin

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Fore River Clubhouse in Quincy Point is about to undergo $50,000 in renovations that should be completed by the beginning of May.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond, who asked Mayor James Sheets to authorize federal Community Development Block Grant monies for the project last year, said work should begin within the next two weeks and be done by May 1.

"It's very exciting that we're fixing a historic landmark in Quincy Point," said Raymond.

The building has served as the main meeting place for residents of Quincy Point and the rest of Ward 2 for years. It is the home of the Ward 2 Civic Association and has been the headquarters of various senior, youth, and other programs.

The clubhouse was built in 1917 and donated to the city, along with the Fore River Field, by the Bethlehem Steel Co. shortly after World War I.

Raymond said the renovations will include new windows in the building's main "fireplace room" and new siding and paint on its exterior.

"It's pretty much an exterior renovation of the entire building," he said.

Any funds left over will be used to explore the possibility of installing central air conditioning in the clubhouse, he added.

The building is under the jurisdiction of the Quincy Park Department which will oversee the project.

Park Department Executive Director Thomas Koch said the building will benefit from the work to be done by contractor Patrick Driscoll of Quincy.

"It is in tough shape," he said. "Some of the wood is rotted and it's become kind of an eyesore in the neighborhood. We're appreciative of the mayor and Councillor Raymond for bringing in the funds to fix it up."

Salvation Army Donations Up But Still Short Of Goals

The Quincy Salvation Army Temple Corps did not meet its goals for the 1997 holiday season but still collected considerably more money through its Christmas kettle drive than the previous year.

Maj. Robert Klenk, commander of the corps, said $115,000 was raised through the kettle drive, a little short of the organization's $125,000 goal but well above the $92,000 raised in 1996-$23,000 above, to be precise.

"We didn't meet our goal, but a lot of people have come through," he said.

Unfortunately, the corps received only $30,000 in mailed contributions. That is not only short of the $34,000 goal but also $2,000 less than last year's donations.

Klenk said he is grateful to those who have contributed but the corps needs more support.

"I am pleased, but not thrilled," he said. "We did better than last year, but we're still talking about a $14,000 shortfall, and we have to make that up somewhere."

He added that he is unsure what strategy the corps will employ this year to get the numbers up. One dilemma that needs to be resolved is an annual shortage of kettle volunteers during the holidays, he said.

"Our biggest problem has been getting volunteers to stand there," said Klenk. "We used to have people just walk in and volunteer, but that really doesn't happen anymore."

Statewide, The Salvation Army collected just under $6 million over the holidays through its kettle drive, mailed donations and other contributions. The monies are used to support a variety of Army programs designed to help the less fortunate.

For more information about making a donation to or volunteering for the Quincy Temple Corps, call 472-2345.

Delahunt, Chamber To Host Business Forum

Congressman William Delahunt and the South Shore Chamber of Commerce will host a forum to unveil new plans to offer working capital for South Shore firms.

The forum will be held Friday, March 6 from 9 to 10:30 a.m. in the Chamber's offices at 36 Miller St., Quincy.

The financing will come through an entity called the Economic Stabilization Trust, based on a model which has helped other Massachusetts communities cope with commercial disruptions in the wake of military base closures. One of the Trust's objectives is to assist South Shore enterprises impacted by the closing of the South Weymouth Naval Air Station.

The March 6 forum will detail a new pledge by Trust officials to create a revolving fund for direct loans to South Shore manufacturers-and to "value-added companies" such as software firms-in need of working capital or equipment financing. The financing assistance will be targeted to companies in Quincy, Weymouth, Rockland, Abington, Hingham, and other Plymouth and Norfolk County communities impacted by the Naval Air Station closure.

The free forum is open to the public. For reservations, call the Chamber at 479-9274 or Delahunt's office at 770-3700.

Habitat Approved For $65,000 Grant

South Shore Habitat for Humanity (SSHH) has been approved for a $65,000 grant from the Federal Home Loan Bank of Boston's Affordable Housing Program.

The money will cover a portion of the $1,035,000 needed to construct a 10-home neighborhood in Quincy. SSHH was sponsored by The Hibernia Savings Bank, a member of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Boston.

SSHH, a non-profit, ecumenical Christian organization dedicated to building homes in partnership with families in need, received the competitive grant based on the Home Loan Bank's program priorities, which include that the projects must aid low-income households, have long-term affordability and maximize community stability.

The Granite Village project is the biggest challenge that South Shore Habitat for Humanity has undertaken in its 12-year history. The project, which is Habitat's first neighborhood, is to be built in three phases and will take two years to complete. The first stage of construction will begin this month and is expected to be completed in the spring. The end result of the two-year endeavor will be the transformation of an abandoned quarry in Quincy Point into a stable neighborhood where 10 needy families become homeowners.

"We are excited about this grant and will put it to use immediately as we are about to begin construction any day now," said Habitat Chief Development Officer David Bigley. "As we begin construction, we invited the active participation of all segments of the Quincy community."

SSHH is among many housing initiatives throughout New England to receive direct grants and below-market-rate loans from the Federal Home Loan Bank of Boston. The Hibernia Savings Bank will oversee and monitor the use of the grant. Roger Meade, vice president of residential mortgage lending for the bank and a member of SSHH's Board of Directors, was instrumental in Habitat being awarded the grant.

"Among many community projects the bank has sponsored, this is by far one of the most worthwhile," said Meade. "This project clearly demonstrates the value of Habitat and the commitment of the people of Quincy to provide a higher quality of life for all. The Hibernia Savings Bank is privileged to have the opportunity to support these magnanimous efforts."

In 1996, The Hibernia Savings Bank sponsored the first Federal Home Loan Bank award ever to be granted in the City of Quincy. The new award is a second grant.

Since the inception of the Affordable Housing Program in 1990, the Home Loan Bank of Boston has approved millions of dollars in grants and below-market-rate loans to find affordable housing in New England. The grants and interest-rate subsidies come from the Home Loan Bank of Boston's earnings. No taxpayer funds are involved.

The Home Loan Bank of Boston is part of the Federal Home Loan Bank System, a network of 12 regional, member-owned wholesale banks. The banks were created by Congress to promote home finance by providing financial services to banking institutions that commit a significant portion of their assets to home-mortgage loans. The bank's more than 430 members are its sole customers and shareholders.

Sales Of Multi-Family Homes Rise 7 Percent

The state's multi-family housing market continued to improve in 1997 as sales of two-, three-, and four-family homes increased 7.3 percent during the past year, rising from 5,330 units closed in 1996 to 5,719 last year, according to data compiled by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR).

The annual increase reflects a six-year trend of steady sales growth in the multi-family market in the Bay State.

"The multi-family market is experiencing a tremendous resurgence of late, and its strong demand from singles and minority first-time buyers that is driving the comeback," said MAR President Mary Crowley. "Today's low-interest rates, along with limited apartment vacancies, and the less stringent down-payment requirements associated with owner-occupied units have made two- and three-family homes a very affordable entry-level option for many first-time buyers."

After a period of slow growth in the first quarter, in which sales rose 3 percent over the same period in 1996, the market rebounded with sharp sales increases in two of the final three quarters of the year. Sales increased 14.4 percent in the second quarter and 10.2 percent in the fourth quarter versus the comparable periods a year earlier, while holding stable in the third quarter.

Regionally, multi-family sales improved in all seven market areas in 1997, with strong sales gains of 8 to 10 percent in the Central, greater Boston and Southeast regions, and measurable growth on Cape Cod and the South Shore.

In its report, the MAR also found the total dollar volume for multi-family homes increased 6.3 percent in 1997, climbing from $672,523,607 one year ago to $714,840,296 in 1997.

Additionally, regional dollar volume data suggests the average price of two- to four-family homes increased a modest 1 to 4 percent in the West and South Shore regions an even healthier 6 to 7 percent in the Central and Cape Cod and Islands regions. Statewide, the average selling price of multi-family homes remained essentially unchanged in 1997, but this figure actually points to strong sales of two- and three-family homes.

"With good economic growth and rental rates rising in many areas, we're starting to see prices rebound in the multi-family market. The recent phase-out of rent control and reduction in the capital gains tax rate should only make these properties more appealing in the year ahead," said Crowley.

Bathroom Tiles Don't Have To Look Dull

Q. The floor in my bathroom is made of dingy and unattractive square tile. What can I do to enhance its appearance?

A. Your tiles may be an unglazed ceramic floor covering, which gives the tile a dull-looking appearance. The reason the tile is unglazed is to give your feet a nonslip surface for safety purposes.

One way to enhance the look of your bathroom floor is to place a bath mat or an area rug over the tile. Just make sure the rug has a nonslip backing that provides traction between the rug and the tile floor.

Also, you can apply a nonskid spray-on coating to your favorite mat or rug. Remember, it's best to think safety first in the bathroom.

Child Abuse And Molestation

By
McGRUFF THE CRIME DOG

Let's face it. Almost all of the rules and tips I give you about increasing children's safety have to do with your two big fears for children: sexual molestation and physical harm.

Each year, an estimated 100,000 U.S. children suffer from some form of sexual abuse. The average age of the child victim is 10 years old.

Teaching "stranger rules" is smart, but not enough. In the majority of cases, the child's sexual molester is KNOWN to the child and the child's family. That's why only a minority of abuse cases are reported to the police. The abuser is often a parent, babysitter, or close family friend or relative. Children may give in to adult's sexual advances because they fear losing their love, or fear their punishment.

Therefore, they are especially vulnerable to sexual abuse by someone they know, like people who care for them regularly. Children are trusting and defenseless. Make sure you check carefully the references of baby-sitters, day-care centers, and recreation leaders.

A child may not recognize sexual abuse when it happens, or even know it's wrong, especially if the abuser is someone the child knows. Children must learn what appropriate "touching" is. Discuss it with your child. Many children instinctively know what "proper distance" should be kept between them and other persons.

Sometimes a child may be uncertain about the intentions of another person. In this situation, children should know it's OK to respond in a way that makes them feel safe and more comfortable. Children usually know that genuine and gentle affection is different from someone who tries to touch their genitals or fondle them in any way that makes them feel unsafe. They should pull away immediately if someone suggests such actions, even if they're offered a present as a bribe.

Team Dedicates Win To Late Math Teacher Presidents Kick Off Tourney With A Bang

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Despite a convincing victory over Braintree in the first round of the MIAA state tournament, the Quincy High School hockey team knows it has to improve if it wants to advance through the quarterfinals.

"That was a nice win, but we have to pick it up a notch against the better teams in the tournament," said Quincy head coach Bob Sylvia. "We can't afford to make mistakes, or we'll be on the outside looking in."

The Presidents, seeded fourth, took on No. 5 seed Brockton in the South Sectional quarterfinals Tuesday night at Boston College. Brockton (13-6-2) advanced to that round with a 7-6 home victory over No. 12 Norwood last Saturday.

A win in the quarterfinals would place Quincy (12-3-6) in the semifinals, which will be held Friday. The South Sectional final will be held Sunday at the FleetCenter in Boston. The location and game time for the semifinal, along with the game time for the final, were not available as of press time.

No. 2 Seed Needham North's Next Opponent Doyle, Raiders Earn First Tourney Win

By LIAM FITZGERALD

A young team playing for a first-year head coach, the North Quincy High School hockey team has been silencing its critics all season long.

Not many gave North Quincy a shot at playing .500 hockey, let alone qualifying for the MIAA state tournament. Not only did the Red Raiders finish third in the Old Colony League, they also qualified for the tournament as the No. 7 seed.

Then, following last Saturday's 5-2 victory over Dedham in the first round of the South Sectional, the Red Raiders (13-6-2) found themselves in the quarterfinals, where they faced Needham last night (Wednesday) at 8:15 at Boston College's Conte Forum.

The No. 2 seed, Needham (18-1-3) moved into the quarterfinals with a 10-4 thrashing of Barnstable last Saturday.

"I don't want this team to be intimidated by anybody," said North's head coach, Bob Doyle. "Yes, Needham is the second seed and they only have one loss, but we have to concentrate on what we need to do. We can't start worrying about them and what they've done or we'll get away from the task at hand."

"We need to improve a great deal, especially defensively. We're playing a strong, balanced team with three solid lines, so we have

Six Crowned City Champions In Elks National Free Throw Contest

For the 26th year, the Quincy Lodge of Elks and the Quincy Recreation Department have crowned six boys and girls as city champions in the Elks National Free Throw Contest.

Champions by age groups are: Aileen Croke and Lambros Papalambros (8/9 division); Keri Rogers and Robert Getchell (10/11 division); and Erin Croke and Stephen Reardon (12/13 division). The city champions will now advance through the district, state and regional competition until a national champion is crowned.

The champions advanced from 12 local neighborhood contests conducted by the Quincy Recreation staff as part of its regular supervised gym programs throughout the city. The local gym contest winners were eligible for the city championship. In all the contests, the participants were awarded a point for each free throw made in 25 attempts. Over 300 youngsters took part in the Quincy tournament and nationally over three million boys and girls participated.

Trophies were awarded to the top three finishers in each age group by Edward Miller of the Quincy Lodge of Elks. Miller is the chairman of the Hoop Shoot for Quincy.

Second-place trophy winners were Stephanie Tetreault and Matt Jaehrig (8/9 division); Lisa Satkevich and Kyle Costa (10/11 division); and Erin McFarland and Scott Miller (12/13 division). Third-place trophy winners were Jessica Lee and Joseph Lousararian (8/9 division); Julianna Eagles and Mark Costello (10/11 division); and Kristen Paluzzi and Robert Donovan (12/13 division).

Recreation Director Barry Welch praised the commitment made on behalf of the youth of Quincy by Miller and the members of the Elks. The cost of conducting the event is contributed by members of the Elks.

"The program has many benefits to our youth and teaches positive values while providing opportunities to meet boys and girls from all over America," said Welch.

Miller thanked the Recreation staff members for their service to the participants and in their everyday commitment to supervising the youth at play.

The Recreation leaders then presented certificates to all the winners of the local contests. Those winners are: Adam Valentino, Matthew Tilton, Mike Ferrara, Chris Baker, Michelle McArthur, Heather Benjamin, Nicole Phinney, Stephanie Wong, Jonathan O'Connor, Matt Boyle, Jake Quinlan, Ted Fawell, Justin Thorley, Tom Ross, Eddie Gallagher, Tom Miller, Colleen Dillon, Roberta Phelan, Amanda Willard, Amanda Spear, Katie Berte, Chris Ham, Anthony Kellam, Joe Keefe, Ryan McFarland, Rob Mooney, Mike Tetreault, Corey White, Deangelo Vaughan, May Ho and Jayme Matias.

Ross Scores 25 Points In Final Appearance New Bedford Dashes NQ's Tourney Dreams

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Brian Ross' outstanding high school basketball career came to an abrupt conclusion when North Quincy was eliminated from the MIAA state tournament in the first round.

Despite a 20-point effort in the second half by Ross (25 points, 10 rebounds), No. 9 seed North fell to host and No. 8 seed New Bedford, 78-62, last Thursday in the Division 1 South Sectional. (New Bedford was subsequently eliminated by Attleboro.)

"Their quickness was the biggest difference, and they were a little bigger than we thought," said North head coach Ted Stevenson, whose squad finished the season at 14-7.

"They were on fire from the field, shooting about 63 percent. The momentum swung their way early on, and everything they threw up there seemed to fall, no matter where it was shot from."

Sparked by Sam Ackah's 14 first-half points and numerous NQ turnovers, New Bedford (15-6) built a 46-27 halftime lead. For the game, New Bedford recorded 18 steals and forced a total of 27 North turnovers. Ackah finished with a team-high 18 points, leading five players in double figures.

Ross, who was limited to five first-half points as a result of a collapsing defense and early foul trouble, ignited NQ in the second half, but it wasn't enough. With just over five minutes remaining, Ross (8 of 14 from the floor, 3 of 4 from the foul line) fouled out of the game.

Former NQ Basketball Star Leads Radford Into NCAAs

Ron Bradley, a former All-Scholastic basketball standout at North Quincy High School, recently coached the Radford (Va.) University men's basketball team to its first-ever NCAA Division 1 tournament berth.

With a 63-61 victory over UNC-Asheville in the Big South Conference Championship last Saturday, Radford received an automatic bid for the 64-team tournament, which decides the national champion. The tournament begins later this month.

A 1968 graduate of North Quincy High School and a member of the school's Basketball Hall of Fame, Bradley went on to have an outstanding basketball career at Eastern Nazarene College.

During his ENC playing days, the team won several tournament championships and Bradley was named to a number of all-tournament

BOYS' BASKETBALL

"Brian picked up three fouls in the first, but we also weren't getting him the ball in the right places," said Stevenson. "That allowed New Bedford to build a big lead on their home floor, and it was too much for us to come back from."

Senior guard Jay Turner contributed 14 points for North.

Ross' 25-point effort left him 16 points shy of tying the North Quincy school scoring record held by Sarah Stanton (1,533 points). Ross finished his career with 1,517 points, the most by any North boys' player.

"Brian's the best player I've ever coached, and I've coached here for 21 years," said Stevenson. "I've followed the program since the mid-1950s when my brothers played, and I haven't seen anyone better. It was great having a player like that; that's something a coach experiences once in a career. The numbers he put up this season were unbelievable."

Among the incredible offensive statistics Ross posted as a senior were a 54-point outburst, an amazing six 40-point performances, eight 30-point efforts and six 20-point games. He led the state in scoring with a 35.1 points per game average.

"He was obviously a great scorer, but he did everything well," said Stevenson. "He averaged about 18 rebounds a game and passes as well as anyone on the team. He also handles the ball well.

"You don't replace him, you just try to fill the void. He's going to go on and have a great career at BC and make all the people from North Quincy proud."

Reflecting on the season, Stevenson commended his players for their consistent effort, determination and hard work, which resulted in a tournament berth.

"Overall, we had a great year, and they should all be proud," he said. "They worked real hard and have nothing to be ashamed about."

Along with Ross, North's head coach praised his senior group, many of whom were varsity reserves or JV players last season, but stepped up their level of play and set an example for the underclassmen to follow.

Among the first-year varsity players were Old Colony League All Star Mark Stanton, Turner and Brian Linsley. Fellow senior John Sullivan, a member of the varsity last season, didn't see much playing time until this year and made significant contributions to NQ's success.

"These seniors were a great group of kids," said Stevenson. "They've been in the program four years, worked very hard, and will be sorely missed next year. They all stepped up and complemented Brian very well. The whole group showed what hard work can do. They should be proud of themselves."

teams. Bradley also coached at ENC before moving on to Maryland, where was as an assistant under legendary coach Lefty Driesell. Bradley has been the head coach at Radford since the early 1990s.

Ed Miller, a former teammate of Bradley's at North Quincy and former North Quincy coach, said he turned on the game and wondered if that was Bradley coaching Radford.

"I saw the end of it, and said to myself, 'I think that's Brad's team,'" he said. "What a nice story, taking them to the tournament for the first time. You sometimes lose track of people, and you never really hear about that team up here. Now I know where he is, and I wish him the best of luck."

Miller, who graduated from North the year before Bradley, recalled how his former teammate made the

NQ Falls In Tourney Opener Wright, Falmouth Overpower Raiders

By LIAM FITZGERALD

The third time was not a charm for the North Quincy High School girls' basketball team, which was knocked out of the MIAA state tournament by Old Colony League nemesis Falmouth.

The Red Raiders, who suffered two setbacks to the Clippers during the regular season, dropped the tournament opener, 74-41, last Wednesday on Falmouth's home court.

North Quincy, the No. 13 seed, finished its season with an 11-10 record. Fourth-seeded Falmouth, one of the OCL's toughest teams, improved to 18-3. (The Clippers were subsequently eliminated by Newton South.)

Against North, the Clippers were led by OCL co-MVP Phenicia Wright, who compiled 20 points, 17 rebounds and eight assists. Three of Wright's teammates, including Julie Lawson (10 points), scored in double figures.

"This game was altogether different than the other two," said North head coach Ken Panaro. "Phenicia's always going to get her points, but a few other girls who didn't score in the other games did in this one. (Kim) Craft scored more than before, as did Colleen McRae (six points). That balance prevented us from cutting into their lead."

As a result of strong inside play on the defensive end from senior Kelly Shaw, the Red Raiders kept it close in the first half, trailing 36-28, at the break.

"Kelly was immense; this was definitely her greatest game," said Panaro. "She did exactly what we asked her to do: keep them off the boards. She got battered a bit doing it, because they're big and strong, but she did it anyway. She was really good that day."

Also playing well in the first half for NQ was junior point guard Kristen Bowes (eight points), who was relieved later on due to dizziness.

"Kristen had a good second half, playing under control and running a good floor game," said Panaro. "Unfortunately, she started to feel a little sick and had to come out of the game. That hurt us, because we were playing a controlling game."

"After that, we got beat for layups, stopped boxing out and they took control with a 15-0 run. We tried substituting, but that didn't work. They're a big, strong and quick team, and it's hard to beat a team like that."

Leading the Red Raiders offensively were senior co-captains Kerry Skehan (14 points) and Laurie Flynn (11 points). Senior Kelly Fernandez contributed four points and four rebounds off the bench in the first half.

Along with Skehan, Flynn, Shaw and Fernandez, other seniors playing their final game for North were co-captain Kristin Keohane and Bri Kline.

"You always miss your seniors, and our three captains were our leaders," said Panaro. "We'll miss them for their hard work and experience. Shaw was a strong rebounder for us and Fernandez came on strong down the stretch, putting the ball in the basket."

"This group was a little above average height-wise, so we're going to be a small team next year, unless someone tall comes along. We'll be a different team, that's for sure."

Looking back at the 1997-98 campaign, Panaro was pleased the Red Raiders qualified for the tournament, despite the ups and downs the team experienced.

"There were some good points and some not so good points, because it's not always a smooth ride," he said. "Overall, though, I thought we had a good season. Anytime you make the tournament, it's a good season."

The Red Raiders will hold their annual banquet April 2 at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy.

Pee Wee A's Advance To State Championship Tourney

The Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee A's will represent District 3 in the state championship tournament following a recent 3-1 victory over Wellesley in a single-game elimination battle.

With the win, the A's advanced to the Sweet 16 of the state championships, which will be held in Falmouth.

After a scoreless first period, Quincy broke the ice when Brian O'Hanley carried the puck into Wellesley's zone and fired a hard slap shot past the opposing goaltender. Wellesley answered with several rushes into Quincy's zone, but came up empty thanks to the consistent backchecking of Josh Gio-dani, Rob Mooney, Ryan Conley, Matt Grazioso, Matt Lavery and Brendan Conley.

Quincy's blueliners, Shawn Moriarty, John Chevalier, Steve Kelly, O'Hanley and Mike McGonigle played another solid game, frustrating Wellesley's forwards time and time again. Leading 1-0 after two periods, Quincy added to its lead when Brian Lewis tipped in a blast from the point by O'Hanley with 7:54 remaining in the game.

Turning in another solid performance between the pipes for Quincy was Bruce Maggio, who held Wellesley scoreless until the 6:40 mark of the third period. With less than a minute to play, Wellesley pulled its goalie in favor of a sixth attacker, but could not manage the equalizer. Instead, Quincy's Ryan Donahue forced an errant pass, which O'Hanley collected and passed to Chevalier, who found Bill McKeon, who sealed the victory with an empty-net goal.

Quincy dedicated the victory to tri-captain Miah Hasson, one of the team's strongest players, who missed the game due to an injury.

were in complete command, taking a 3-0 lead after the first period and adding three more for a 6-0 advantage through two periods. Two third-period tallies pushed the lead to 8-0 before Braintree (10-9-2) notched two late goals.

"We didn't start out well, but we were able to gather ourselves and started playing like we're capable of," said Sylvia. "We got good balanced scoring and got everybody into the game. Now they all have a taste of what tournament hockey is like."

Minutes after the game, Quincy's players were informed that longtime QHS math teacher Patricia Gorman had succumbed to breast cancer earlier in the day.

"We dedicated this win to Patricia Gorman, who had a long, distinguished career at Quincy High," said Sylvia. "The coaches found out before the game, but we waited until the game ended to tell the kids."

"About seven or eight had her as a teacher, and they were wondering why she hadn't been in school. It was an emotional moment, to say the least. She was a valiant fighter."

It took Quincy nearly half of the first period to register its first shot, but from that point on, the Presidents' offense kicked into high gear. Senior Derek McTomney (two goals) took a nice feed from senior Chris Wool (two assists) for the first goal. Sophomore Sean Lefebvre also assisted on the goal.

Less than a minute later, Quincy added to its lead when junior Joe Vallatini (two goals, assist) netted his first goal, assisted by seniors Tim Lewis and Bob Harvey (two goals, two assists). With just 55 seconds left in the period, Harvey took a pass from Vallatini and notched the third goal.

Scoring for Quincy in the middle stanza were senior Chris Haidul (senior Scott Mattson assist), Vallatini (Harvey, senior Bob Hall assists) and Mattson (Haidul assist). All three goals were scored in a three-minute span as Quincy outshot Braintree, 17-7, in the period.

The highlight of the third was the impressive stick-handling displayed by Wool, who eluded three defenders as he carried the puck into the Braintree zone. Wool then sent a perfect feed to a cutting McTomney, who beat the goaltender to the top shelf. Harvey closed out Quincy's scoring when he tapped in a bouncing puck, assisted by senior Glenn Chase.

Braintree's goals, scored by Matt Cusack and R.J. O'Neill, came against sophomore backup Ryan Kreuger. Quincy's starting goaltender, senior Chris Burns, turned away 13 shots, including three breakaways.

The Wamps' leading scorer, Dave Osis (28 goals-18 assists-46 points) was ineffective in limited action against Quincy. The Bay State League All Star was nursing a separated shoulder he suffered in the BSL All Star game the previous Saturday.

Doyle, Raiders Earn First Tourney Win

to shore up things in the defensive zone. We also have to step up our skating, start flying out there more consistently."

The whole key, according to Doyle, will be how the Red Raiders respond to Needham's offensive attack in the first period. If North can keep it close through the first 15 minutes, it will send a message to Needham that NQ has come to play, said Doyle.

"We have to play a tight, close-knit checking style in the first period," he added. "There has to be strong, physical play on our part, in addition to clogging up the neutral zone and playing sound defense. We need to be ready to go at the drop of the puck."

Doyle recalled how the Red Raiders played against Silver Lake, a talented OCL squad that rolled through the rest of the league but dropped both meetings with North.

"If we play like we did against Silver Lake, we'll frustrate them and get them out of their game," he said. "We can't give their quick skaters room to roam around and set up easy scoring chances. It worked against Silver Lake, and I hope the kids are up to the challenge."

In the triumph over Dedham, North came out a bit sluggish, which Doyle attributed to jitters, since no current NQ player had any previous tournament experience. Dedham took advantage, snapping the scoreless deadlock with a goal late in the opening period.

"We were very flat early on, very unorganized," said Doyle. "Between periods, I asked the guys if they were going to be content with making the tourney, or did they want to make some noise. They responded by dominating the second period."

In the middle stanza, NQ notched three unanswered goals (including two just 26 seconds apart) and took control of the game.

Junior Mike Sullivan (two goals, assist) knotted the score when he tipped home a blast by sophomore Bill Griffin. Before the public address announcer finished telling the crowd who scored the goal, North broke the tie when senior co-captain Bill Walker collected a loose puck out front and scored. Senior Tom Vitt notched the assist.

As the period continued, NQ continued to put the pressure on Dedham's defense. Halfway through the period, North senior co-captain John Barron netted the eventual game-winner, unleashing a slap shot over the goaltender's shoulder.

Dedham opened the third period with four straight shots, but junior goaltender David Downey (19 saves) turned them all away. NQ quickly regained the momentum when junior Paul Markarian took a pass from Sullivan and scored with 9:36 left to play. Griffin notched his second assist on the goal.

With just 2:33 remaining, Dedham cut the deficit to 4-2, but North sealed the hard-fought victory when Sullivan netted an empty-net goal with exactly one minute to play.

"I'm very happy with the win," said Doyle. "This is a young team, and to see them respond to what I said, I couldn't be more proud."

Craig Sparks Doherty & White; McInnis (4 Goals) Powers Metal

Kyle Craig's two goals and one assist sparked Doherty & White over Bruce Ayers Club, 3-0, in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Mite Division House League play.

Craig Calley notched two goals, Erik Angelhart added a goal, Scott Richardson had two assists and Mike Maxey picked up an assist and recorded the shutout in goal for D&W.

Mike LeBel collected a hat trick and Tommy Henry dished out three assists for Doran & Horrigan in a 5-4 win over Paul Harold Club.

Other goal scorers for D&H were John Kurpeski and Kevin Bossart, while Greg Cahalan and Tommy Keefe notched two assists apiece and Mike Marshall had one assist. For Harold, Ricky Penzo (goal, two assists), Doug Haskins and

MITES

Mike Griffin (goal, assist apiece), Mike Gillespie (goal) and Eric Johnson (assist) did the damage offensively.

Lydon-Russell and Jay Cashman skated to a 3-3 tie.

For L-R, Kenny Patey and Mike Gillespie collected a goal and an assist and Patrick White scored a goal. Cashman's goal scorers were Ted Finnegan, John Magliozzi and Nash Winters, with assists from Andrew Bythrow, Jeff Bailey and Joe Norris.

John McInnis netted four goals as Quincy Sheet Metal rolled to an 8-3 triumph over First Choice Home Care.

Also picking up points for QSM were John McKeon (goal, assist),

Amanda Maggio (goal), Frank Sorrento (two assists) and Joe Garland (assist). Leading the way for FCHC were Richard Shea (two goals), Casey Conley (goal), and Brendan Cronin, Michael Grant and Tom Conley (one assist apiece).

Bill Kiley scored two goals for Kiley Real Estate in a 5-2 victory over Barry's Deli.

Alex Smith, Justin Laura and Joe Ferris each netted a goal and Dan Findley, Bryan Gilligan, Zach Sloane and Joe Valpando added an assist apiece for Kiley. Scorers for Barry's were Andrew Gormley (goal, assist), Jim Fitzpatrick (goal) and Patrick Dunn (assist).

Squirt A's Top Triboro; Bow To South Boston

The Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt A's split two recent games, rolling over Triboro, 7-2, and falling to South Boston, 6-3.

In the victory over Triboro, Quincy fell behind early, 1-0, but responded with three unanswered goals: Jonathan O'Connor (unassisted), Kevin Richardson (assisted by Andrew Patten) and Mike McKeon (assisted by Richardson).

Quincy added to its lead in the second period when Justin Thorley scored with an assist from Richardson.

Later in the second, Triboro netted a goal to cut the deficit to 4-2, but would get no closer as Quincy erupted for three consecutive third-period goals to put the game away.

Paul McLean netted the first of the three goals, scoring unassisted. Richardson scored again, assisted by O'Connor, and Thorley finished off the scoring with a goal assisted by Patten. Quincy coach Richardson was particularly impressed with the play of blueliners Paul Clifford, Paul Fasoli, Patten, Paul Noonan and the goaltending of Pat Maloney.

Against South Boston, Quincy also trailed, 1-0, before tying the game on a goal by Richardson, assisted by Noonan. Southie stormed back with five unanswered goals to take a commanding 6-1 lead.

In the third period, Richardson scored an unassisted goal and completed the hat trick later in the period with an assist from Patten. The third goal cut the deficit in half, but Quincy simply ran out of time.

The fact is that a care center for most every system in your car. Whether you have a steady speed (typical of long highway drives) is operating at peak efficiency with little wear to the engine. On the other hand, it is estimated that 90 to 95 percent of an engine's mechanical wear is sustained during warm-up and the first few seconds of driving (due to inadequate lubrication). Consequently, anyone who takes numerous daily short trips in stop-and-go traffic is subjecting his or her car to more wear than the highway driver on a lengthy trip. This warrants more frequent maintenance.

Noonan Sends Foley To Victory; Spellman, Patten Net Dodge Tricks

Paul Noonan (two goals, two assists) led a balanced attack as Pat Foley Painting defeated The Quincy Sun, 7-2, in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt Division House League play.

Other scorers for Foley were Chris Tuo (two goals, assist), Matt Haskins (goal, assist), Terrence O'Connell and Kristina Manganaro (one goal apiece), Michael Arrufat (two assists), and John Clark and Pat Maloney (one assist each). For The Sun, Robby Gagliardi had a goal and an assist and Matt Quigley netted a goal.

SQUIRTS

James Spellman and Andrew Patten both notched hat tricks as Westminster Dodge doubled up Keohane's, 8-4.

Ray Marchand collected a goal and three assists, Andrew Donovan scored a goal and Greg Jenkins had an assist for WD. Keohane's was led by Mike Barter (two goals, assist), Paul Lennon (goal, assist), Ryan Barter (goal) and Mike Giordani (two assists).

Joe Sweeney's two goals helped Burgin Platter get by M. Sugarman, 5-3.

City Receives $190,000 For Beach Cleanup, Trees

The city received $190,000 in state grants Tuesday for the cleanup of Wollaston Beach and new trees to be planted in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

City and state officials made the announcement in the office of Mayor James Sheets. Among those on hand were state Secretary of Environmental Affairs Trudy Cox and Commissioner of Public Affairs Peter Webber, members of the city's State House delegation Quincy Park Department Executive Director Thomas Koch, Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton, and others.

Sheets said one $140,000 state grant will be used as a pilot project that will be utilized to try to find a way to keep bacteria from stormdrain water away from the beach.

The mayor explained that a sand filter will be used at one outfall pipe in an attempt to remove the bacteria before it reaches the beach. After the summer, if it is determined the project is a success, the filters will be installed at locations through the city, he said.

"If it works, it might be a way to keep Wollaston Beach open," said Sheets. "We won't have to close it because of high bacteria."

Sheets said the city received the grant because it has invested a lot of time and money of its own in an attempt to keep the beach clean.

Quincy also has received a $50,000 Historic Landscape Preservation Grant from the state to plant 108 trees at Mt. Wollaston Cemetery. The plantings will be done to replace old trees.

"This grant will help preserve the landscape common to historic families such as Adams and Hancock," said Sheets. "It embellishes human history with a natural beauty."

"These grants are an important tool to help restore, preserve and protect the Commonwealth's treasured historic open spaces," said Cox.

Webber added that the grant is part of "the first of a two-year program to assist communities in their effort to assist communities in their effort to revitalize their historic parks and landscapes."

$67,695 In State Money For Council On Aging

State Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Michael Bellotti, Ronald Mariano and Stephen Tobin announce the Executive Office of Elder Affairs has awarded the final Fiscal Year 1998 Council on Aging Formula Grants to the Commonwealth's 335 Councils on Aging.

The legislators said the Fiscal Year 1998 distribution amount will be greater than anticipated.

"The Legislature approved a funding request more than what was proposed by the governor's Fiscal Year 1998 budget and as a result of the Legislature's increase, the overall amount of grant allocation will result in increased awards available to the all of the Commonwealth's Councils on Aging," said Morrissey.

"The Quincy Council on Aging will receive a total of $67,695 in Fiscal Year 1998, which is $3,659 more than the Governor's proposal," said Mariano. The grant money can be used for a variety of services in the senior community, such as the operation and maintenance of Senior transportation services. The grant money can be used for the Council on Aging's administrative costs from outreach and service program.

"The flexibility of the grant of Quincy Council on Aging helps support and expand existing programs," said Tobin.

The Executive Office of Elder Affairs award formula is based on the number of seniors in a community. The Legislature changed the formula to multiply the number of persons age 60 or older by $3.70 instead of the governor's $3.50. Also, it increased the minimum award per municipality from $1,500 to $2,000.

"One of the important aspects of this program is that no community's Council on Aging will be denied support from the State," said Bellotti. "In Quincy's case, there are 18,296 persons 60 years or older multiplied by $3.70 is a total of $67,695."

The population figures are based on the 1990 census. "A difference of 20 cents per senior is substantial when considering the number of people the Quincy Council on Aging services," said Morrissey.

"The Legislature's increase in this important program reflects our commitment to help communities offer services to our senior population. We will continue to work towards ensuring the continuation of important programs and services that seniors need," said Morrissey.

Your Horoscope

by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Career matters continue to gel for you. New opportunities arise to improve status and income. Romance is most fortuitously highlighted during the weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) New career developments occur in the office and you'll be the one to make them happen. Your graciousness opens doors for you at this time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Spend some time in the company of friends and loved ones. Good fortune comes to you through family later in the week. Prepare for making a major purchase for the home by getting your budget in order.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) News comes from a distance, with a travel plan as the happy result. You have extra drive, but don't be stubborn about your way of doing things. An intriguing weekend social invitation comes your way.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You'll get an early start this week as you're especially motivated to achieve. Later in the week, though, the accent falls on shoring and pleasant outings with loved ones. You'll feel better if you allow yourself to relax more.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) It's a very productive week for you. A business deal works out as planned and you'll have a dear one at your side to enjoy a victory celebration. This weekend, avoid an unfortunate tendency to gloat.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Things fall into place at home, thanks to your efforts. Romance sets the pace for weekend activities. Your financial situation looks rosy.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21)

PARTNERSHIP ACTIVITIES ARE HIGHLIGHTED. Intuition proves an asset in business and a good head for facts and figures promises you financial gains. Try to be less rigid with loved ones this weekend.

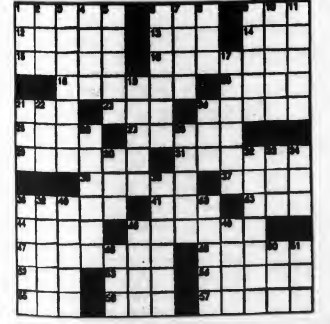

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) It should be a good week for those involved with sales, but downplay high-pressure techniques. An unexpected turn of events later in the week could affect your personal life. However, take this in stride.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You should be all fired up this week and your enthusiasm is catching to co-workers. Others are impressed with the way you handle yourself in a personal situation. Advice you give this weekend is taken seriously.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) It's a good week to rid the house of some clutter. Dealings with banks and realtors are promising at this time. Some add an inspiring touch to home decor over the weekend.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) It's a rocky road for you in love unless you make a conscious effort to be aware of another's sensitive points. Accent creativity. Your wheels are turning and ideas just bubble from you.

A funeral Mass for Harold C. "Turk" Beston, 75, of Quincy, a retired electro-mechanical design draftsman and decorated World War II veteran, was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) at St. Joseph's Church.

Mr. Beston died Sunday at South Shore Hospital in South Weymouth.

He worked at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Lincoln Lab, Raytheon and General Dynamics in Quincy, and Charles T. Main of Boston.

A lifelong Quincy resident, he was a noted athlete at Quincy High School. He was unanimously voted to the Greater Boston and South Shore All-Scholastic football teams as a center and is a member of the Quincy High School Football Hall of Fame. He went on to play semipro football for the Quincy Manets.

During World War II, he served with the Army's 5th Ranger Battalion. He participated in five major battles, including the D-Day invasion of Normandy, France on June 6, 1944.

Beston said in a 1994 Quincy Sun article commemorating the 50th anniversary of D-Day that he had no sense of the event's true historical impact at the time.

"In the overall picture, I knew it was important," he said. "But back then I really wasn't thinking about reading about it in the newspaper 50 years later."

He is survived by his wife, Marion R. (Maise) Beston; two sons, Paul Beston of Quincy and Harold Beston of Weymouth; a daughter, Cathy Malvesti of Braintree; a sister, Minnie Brouillard of Halifax; and many nieces and nephews.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

The solution to our most difficult problems often lies simply in facing things as they are - and adding two words - I accept.

The way of acceptance... How often that path is rejected by people who refuse to admit limitations, who hide behind denial and excuses, who react to trouble with resentment and bitterness. And how often, conversely, when one makes the first painful move toward repairing a damaged relationship, or even a broken life, that move involves acceptance of some reality and difficult reality that must be faced before the rebuilding can begin.

Perhaps in the long run the beginning of wisdom lies in the simple admission that things are not always the way we would like them to be; that we ourselves are not so good or so kind or so hard-working as we would like to believe. And yet... AND YET... with each sun that rises there is a new day, a new challenge, a new opportunity for doing better.

"Oh, Lord," goes one variation of the old prayer, "grant me the strength to change things that need changing, the courage to accept things that cannot be changed, and the wisdom to know the difference."

People have called it the prayer of acceptance. They are right.

Nicholas V. Nickola, 100

Owned Grocery Store, Ice Cream Shop

A funeral Mass for Nicholas V. Nickola, 100, of Quincy, was celebrated Feb. 28 at the Cathedral of St. George, South Boston.

Mr. Nickola died Feb. 25 at Hancock Park Nursing and Rehabilitation Facility.

He owned Franklin Supermarket for 33 years, retiring in 1977. He also owned Nick's Ice Cream in Quincy, located at the corner of Sachem Street and Franklin Avenue. Known simply as Nick's, it was a favorite haunt of students at Eastern Nazarene College.

A native of Albania, he was the only boy in a family with nine girls. When he was a child, his family put him aboard a ship carrying horses to America.

He went back to Albania to serve in the army, but his love of America prompted him to return. On March 20, 1961, he was naturalized as a U.S. citizen.

Before opening Nick's, he learned the fruit and produce business as a vendor to stores in Quincy and Boston.

Throughout his life, he shared his good fortune with relatives back home. When learned in the late 1980s that a hospital near his native village needed medical equipment, he donated several portable electrocardiogram machines and stress test devices.

Husband of the late Ethalia (Dine) Nickola, he is survived by a sister, Celia Nickola of Albania; and several nieces, nephews, grandnieces and grandnephews.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Lydon Funeral Home In Memorial Tree Program

Lydon Funeral Home of Quincy, as part of its affiliation with the Lofty Oaks Association, is responsible for the planting of 500 trees on public lands in Massachusetts as living memorials to honor the deceased.

The program is part of a large endeavor, in cooperation with the other conservation efforts in Massachusetts, to restore the landscape and our environment with the eternal beauty of living trees. The memorial trees are planted in the spring and fall.

After each service, close family and friends are informed that the memorial tree has been arranged for by the Lydon Funeral Home. Once a certified nurseryman has planted the tree, the designated relatives and friends are sent an official certificate of planting suitable for framing and keeping in the family's history forever.

Docket No. 96P0013-PP1

To Jean M. Grubis of Arlington, MA and Cambridge Savings Bank of Cambridge, MA and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Margaret A. Carroll of Arlington in the County of Middlesex representing that she holds as tenant in common an undivided part or share of certain land lying in Quincy in said County of Norfolk and briefly described as follows: There are three properties which are the subject of this petition.

a. Unit 216 Independence Condominium, Independence Avenue, Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts ("Unit 216");

b. Unit 406 Captain's Cove Condominium, 100 Cove Way, Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts ("Unit 406"); and

c. Unit 204 Captain's Cove Condominium, 100 Cove Way, Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts ("Unit 204").

The legal description of Unit 216 is: Unit 216 in the building located at 205 Independence Avenue, Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts of the condominium known as Independence Condominium, Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts a condominium established by the Broderick Development Corporation pursuant to M.G.L. c. 183A, by Master Deed dated August 12, 1981, recorded with Norfolk Registry of Deeds on August 12, 1981, at Book 5909, Page 189 as amended. Said Unit No. 216 contains 430 square feet, more or less, and is shown on floor plans of the Building recorded simultaneously with said Master Deed and on the copy of the portion of said plans attached to the deed recorded in Book 5970, Page 183, and to which is affixed the verified statement of a registered architect in the form required by Section 9 of said Chapter 183A. The post office address of said Unit is 216 Independence Condominium, Independence Avenue, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169. Said Unit as an .8249% interest in the common areas and facilities described in said Master Deed and in the Declaration of Trust Independence Condominium Trust dated August 12, 1981, recorded with Norfolk Registry of Deeds on August 13, as amended. Said Unit has the exclusive right to use parking space no. 78, as designated on a plan entitled "Parking Layout," dated October 20, 1981 and recorded with said Deeds. Said Unit is subject to and with the benefit of all easements, restrictions of record M.G.L. 183A, as amended, the provisions of the Master Deed, the Declaration of Trust, the by-laws and rules and regulations from time-to-time adopted thereunder.

The legal description of Unit 406 is:

Unit known as No. 406, Captain's Cove Condominium, at 100 Cove Way, Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts, a Condominium established pursuant to M.G.L. 183A, by Master Deed dated October 11, 1985, recorded with Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 6821, Page 1 as amended which Unit is shown on the floor plans on the building recorded simultaneously with said Master Deed to which is affixed the verified statement of a registered architect in the form required by Section of said chapter 183A.

Unit No. 406 has an undivided .29763% interest in the common areas and facilities of the Condominium described in said Master Deed.

Unit 406 is subject to and with the benefit of all easements, restrictions of record, M.G.L. 183A, as amended, the provisions of the Master Deed, the Declaration of Trust of Captain's Cove Condominium dated October 11, 1985, recorded in the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 6821, Page 44, and floor plans of the Master Deed, as the same may be amended from time to time, and the by-laws and rules and regulations from time-to-time adopted.

The legal description of Unit 204 is: Unit known as 204, Captain's Cove Condominium, at 100 Cove Way, Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts, a Condominium established pursuant to M.G.L. 183A, by Master Deed dated October 11, 1985, recorded with Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 6821, Page 1, as amended which Unit is shown on the floor plans of the building recorded simultaneously with said Master Deed and to which is affixed the verified statement of a registered architect in the form required by Section of said Chapter 183A. Unit No. 204 has an undivided .26293% interest in the common areas and facilities of the Condominium described in said Master Deed. Unit 204 is subject to and with the benefit of all easements, restrictions of record, M.G.L. 183A, as amended, the provisions of the Master Deed, the Declaration of Trust Captain's Cove Condominium dated October 11, 1985, recorded in the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 6821, Page 44, and floor plans of the Master Deed, as the same may be amended from time to time, and by the by-laws and rules and regulations from time-to-time adopted. Setting forth that she desires that all of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than as listed, or fair market value, Unit 216 - $26,900.00, Unit 406 - $89,000.00 and Unit 204 - $85,000.00 dollars and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make sure partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham, 649 High St., P.O. Box 269, Dedham, MA 02027-0269 before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the first day of April 1998, the return day of this citation.

A PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN

Oh most beautiful flower of Mount Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, blessed Mother of the Son of God. Immaculate Virgin assist me in this, my necessity. Oh star of the sea, help me and show me herein you are my mother. Oh holy Mary Mother of God, queen of Heaven and earth. I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart. Succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your call. Oh show me herein you are my mother. Oh Mary I place this cause in your hands. (3 times). Sweet Mother I pray for this cause in your hands (3 times). Holy Spirit, resolve my problems, light all roads so that I can attain my goal. You gave me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances of my life, you are with me. I want this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you even in spite of material things. I wish to be with you in eternal glory. (Cont'd from Page 1)

co. Cahill noted that he served on a task force that researched the matter and determined the parcel behind Bradlee's is the only feasible site for the new school.

Raymond also accused McCauley of "hypocrisy," saying McCauley allowed the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority to "sneak" into the city without informing residents and take over the Fore River shipyard in 1986 while he served as mayor.

McCauley, however, said the MWRA legally purchased the shipyard from General Dynamics and the city did not have the authority to stop that from happening, despite its wishes to the contrary.

McCauley stressed that he supports Sheets' educational efforts and that he realizes the issue is "a done deal."

"There's no question the mayor publicized the whole plan," he said. "I just thought we would deal with it in increments."

On Tuesday, Sheets said he will leave it up to the residents of Quincy to decide if they approve of his actions.

"I made a good executive decision, good for education, and good for the taxpayer because we saved money (the original asking price was $5 million)," he said. "It was the kind of decision that I was elected by the people to make."

Regarding McCauley's "sneaky" comment, Sheets said, "It's not even worthy of a response."

The $3.5 million used to pay Atlantic Development Corp. of Hingham, the previous owner of the planned Quincy High School site, was taken from a $15.5 million bond issue passed by the City Council in December. The bond will pay for the first phase of the $73 million school construction and renovation plan.

Specifically, the bond issue will cover—in addition to the land purchase—the design/architectural work for the new Quincy High, the conversion of the Point-Webster Elementary School into a middle school, and renovation work at the current Quincy High on Codding Street, which eventually will become the new Central Middle School.

The old Central will be closed when its replacement opens. The new Clifford Marshall Elementary School in Quincy Point will become the new home for Point-Webster students, while Point-Webster will be used to help relieve overcrowding at the Sterling Middle School in South Quincy.

The Marshall School will open in September and the renovated Point-Webster in 1999. The new Quincy High and other school projects will follow.

Ultimately, all of the schools in the city will be the beneficiary of some kind of structural work as a result of the $73 million plan. However, nearly half that total will be the new Quincy High, which Sheets said will cost about $34 million to build.

Because the city has been forced to pay skyrocketing costs for special education students and other necessities, maintenance funding has been limited in recent years.

Some of the buildings to be affected by the long-term project have been around for a long time. The current Quincy High was built in 1924, while the existing Central Middle School is 104 years old.

Donut Shop Sold After 50 Years

After 50 years in business, the Golden Brown Donut Shop on 36 School St. next to St. John's Church has been sold to Athanasios Kotoulas, former owner of Jonathan's and Sabatino's restaurants.

Richard McCann, former owner for 30 years (his father owned it before him) is retiring.

Just a couple of weeks ago, the Quincy License Board denied Kotoulas request to have Eddie's Diner move to East Howard Street at Fore River Shipyards. The diner since has been moved to New Bedford.

The 18 seat restaurant plans to serve breakfast and lunch and will be called Sam's Restaurant. Hours of operation will be from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. every day. Kotoulas said he may serve dinners at a later date.

Kotoulas said his lunch menu will consist of sandwiches, subs and a daily special.

The restaurant, which is being renovated will be ready to open in about three weeks Kotoulas said.

As for donuts, Kotoulas said they will no longer be made at the restaurant. He added, however, that he will still sell donuts.

Worth Thousands Of Dollars Century-Old Stained Glass Window Found In Library

One of three century-old windows discovered recently at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center, each worth thousands of dollars, is a stained glass creation by the late American artist John La Farge.

Related Story

Library officials made the discovery Tuesday after they unwrapped the window, which had been positioned between two others and wrapped in newspaper when initially found. The other two windows are made of clear glass.

The three windows, believed to be part of the library's original 1882 Richardson building, were discovered under the stairs in the building's reference room.

Mary Clark, reference librarian said the stained glass window, which features an "Alpha" symbol in its window design, apparently once was part of a tripartite window done by La Farge which also includes the "Omega" window that can be seen in the library building. The third piece of the tripartite no longer exists.

Library Director Ann McLaughlin told The Quincy Sun last week the three windows are worth "thousands, maybe more," and that she will be doing some research to determine their value.

Plans call for the three windows to be worked into the $13 million addition on which construction will begin in May. The project is expected to be completed by 1999.

Marina Bay Club Expansion Plan Gets License Board Approval

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

After much discussion about parking, the Quincy License Board Tuesday gave permission to the Ocean Club and Raw Bar at 317 Victory Rd., Marina Bay to expand their premises to 52 seats, 13 tables and four seats at the service bar, all outdoors under an awning on the boardwalk.

The permission is contingent on a meeting with the planning board, the zoning board and the installation of a new sprinkler system.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman explained that when there is an increase of square footage of any building it needs to have a separate sprinkler system.

According to manager Brian Leonard, the awning will be 50 feet long and be used to attach the existing building to the outdoor restaurant. (formerly the Chinese Restaurant).

Atty. Richard C. Pierce, representing the restaurant, showed the license board plans for the expansion and said there will be no eating inside the restaurant for the summer months.

Fred Prezioso, health inspector, sitting in for Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue said he wanted the plans brought to the health department for inspection.

Chairman Joseph Shea, who said he "shutters" everytime Spring comes because of the parking situation at Marina Bay, but added "Marina Bay is a fact of life" and has to be dealt with.

Police Chief Thomas Frane suggested a police detail to enforce the parking regulations.

Leonard said plans to reorganize the tram are being considered to take persons from their cars to the restaurant.

Fuel, Water Assistance Available Until April 30

Quincy Community Action Programs Inc. (QCAP) is accepting applications for fuel assistance and sewer and water assistance.

The deadline has been extended from March 31 to April 30. Funds are available because oil prices are lower than expected, as are the number of people applying. The strong economy is the reason behind the drop in applicants, according to officials.

Residents of Braintree, Milton, Quincy and Weymouth who need help in paying their home heating bills, may be eligible for the federally-funded fuel assistance program. Homeowners may also be eligible for sewer and water assistance, a state-funded program. Appointments are necessary for new applicants.

For fuel assistance, homeowners and renters may be eligible.

Eligibility is based upon household size and income. In determining income, QCAP uses an applicant's last four weeks of information. All types of heat are covered with the program: oil, gas, electric and cases in which heat is included in the rent. The amount of benefit provided to each household also depends upon both income level and household size.

For sewer and water assistance, the amount of benefit provided is equal to 25 percent of the annual water and sewer bill, for $200, whichever is less.

Program recipients are also eligible for a 33 percent discount on Mass. Electric bills, 20 percent discount on Boston Gas bills, 40 percent discount on Boston Edison bills, and $9.50 discount on monthly telephone bills.

For more information, call 479-8181, ext. 101.

Movement On Political Front

There's movement on the local political front. It's a pretty safe bet that the next state representative from the First Norfolk District will be Bruce Ayers or Larry Chretien.

Ayers, the Ward 6 councillor and Chretien, the former Ward 3 councillor, both Democrats, are certainly the front-runners for the seat Michael Bellotti is vacating to run for Norfolk County sheriff.

But the political clout of Chretien and Ayers isn't discouraging lesser-knowns from getting into the race.

Two have taken out nomination papers: Robert Boussy, 43, of Farrington St. and Christopher Howley, 29, of Kemper St., both as Democrats.

Boussy, a hospital shuttle bus driver, is a familiar but so far no-cigar name on the Ward 3 scene. He has run a couple of times for that ward seat—last year against Patrick McDermott and in 1993 against Chretien.

Howley, who is listed at City Hall as a hotel employee, apparently will be making his first run.

Boussy says he is definitely running for the seat and that a compound heel fracture he suffered last June forcing him to hobble through that campaign is now mended and he will be on the move this year.

The Sept. 15 primary will decide the Democratic nominee for the First Norfolk seat. And, unless a Republican shows up between now and the April 28 filing deadline, the Democratic nominee will also automatically be the new state representative.

BUT, a couple of Republicans have stepped forward to challenge for two other seats.

James Kistner of Holbrook has taken out nomination papers at City Hall for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, the seat held by Quincy Democrat Ron Mariano.

And, Michael P. Kennedy of Marlboro St., Wollaston, listed as an auditor, has papers out for the 10th Congressional seat won by Quincy Democrat William Delahunt two years ago.

MIKE BELLOTTI has picked up a solid block of support in his run for Norfolk County sheriff.

"Mike has worked to reform the civil process system...and...has the responsibility, integrity and ability to effectively lead the correctional system in Norfolk County" says an endorsement letter signed by:

Congressman William Delahunt, state Reps. Ron Mariano and Paul Haley, and Weymouth Selectmen David Chandler, Gregory Hargadon, William Ryan, Peg Goudy and Susan Kay.

They are supporting a reception for Bellotti Thursday, March 19, 7 to 10 p.m. at the Weymouth Elks Lodge, 1197 Washington St.

Tickets are $15 and can be obtained by calling 617-479-8683.

JACK CORRIGAN has opened his main campaign headquarters in his bid for Norfolk County district attorney at 1458 Hancock St., former location of Everlasting Engraving that moved to Cottage Ave.

Corrigan, a Brookline Democrat who served as assistant district attorney under William Delahunt, has named Ken Robinson of Marshfield as his campaign manager. The offer number is 472-1140.

Corrigan says he has been getting around the Quincy area and finds people "open-minded" about the district attorney race.

FORMER Police Chief Frank Mullen is "feeling great" after undergoing recent carotid artery surgery at South Shore Hospital.

"I feel great," he says. "I'm walking three miles a day and thanks to the good weather, I've been getting in some golf."

The carotid problem was discovered after he felt pain in his leg while walking.

"I was lucky I had it checked out," he says.

GRACE GIUNCHIGLIA, who served as personal secretary to Mayors Amelio Della Chiesa and James Sheets, also is "feeling great" after undergoing major surgery three times within four months.

She underwent stomach surgery at Quincy Hospital and heart surgery at New England Medical Hospital in October and follow-up surgery last month at the latter hospital.

Grace, who is now retired and taking it easy says: "I feel great. After all that surgery I call myself The Bionic Woman."

A SIGN that spring is just around the corner: Rep. Steve Tobin and his wife, Francine, will host their ninth annual "Salute to St. Patrick" tonight (Thursday), 6 p.m. to midnight at Pat Flanagan's in the Parkway. Buffet, Irish band and Irish step-dancers. Tickets are $15 per person and are available at the door.

WELL, PETER KOLSON has feasted once again with City Council sidekick Bruce Ayers picking up the tab.

It was the recent pay-off on their fourth annual Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day football game wager.

In their high school days, Kolson played for Quincy and Ayers for North. Kolson was a lot bigger. ("Still is," says Ayers.)

The wager: If Quincy wins, Ayers takes Kolson to a restaurant of his choice in Ward 6. If North wins, Kolson takes Ayers to dinner in Ward 1.

Quincy has won four games and Kolson four dinners in the last four years. This year he opted for the Wheelhouse Diner and put away a complete turkey dinner.

In addition to paying, Ayers had to wear Kolson's football jersey. It fits the smaller Ayers, well, nice and loose.

"The way he eats," says Ayers, "I might have to get a bank loan if North doesn't win the next one."

He says he's going to talk to Ken McPhee to see what he can do for him this year.

"I'm waiting for the day when Peter has to spring for dinner," says Ayers. "And watching him try to squeeze into my football jersey."

"Bruce isn't going to have to worry about the jersey," says Kolson. "He'll be wearing mine again this year. And he's really beginning to look good in blue."

Monaco has the shortest coastline of any sovereign country, that's not land locked.

Scenes From Yesterday

Quincy, Mass., Point Bridge

IN 1902, THOMAS A. WATSON, founder of the Fore River Engine Company, built the Quincy Point bridge shown on this old picture postcard. It swung sideways to open. Watson, using government money, completed the bridge just in time to allow for the passage of the USS Des Moines, the first US

Navy cruiser he built at the shipyard side of the present Art Deco bridge built in 1936. To ease traffic during the long overdue reconstruction of the present structure, the state DPW recently announced that it will build a new temporary steel bridge pretty much in the same location as this one.

Seeking Lost Shipmate

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Fifty years ago, my husband served aboard the USS Robert L. Wilson DD-847 as a Fireman First Class and was discharged in 1948.

John Gardner Wallace, age 67-69, also served aboard that ship. We believe he was also discharged in 1948. All contact has been lost with him and we were hoping you would help us, via your newspaper, in locating him. We believe he lived around the Quincy area, as he spoke of it often.

John and another buddy, James O'Conner, came to West Virginia to visit my husband in 1948 and then contact was lost with him.

For the past two years, we have been attending the Robert L. Wilson Reunion and seven of his shipmates were there. If you could see the camaraderie between these shipmates, you would understand why we are trying to locate him: because he is one of the missing links. The reunion is held the third weekend in September and it would be wonderful if he could be there.

I am enclosing a picture of John which appears to be on some sort of a valentine. I hope you can help us, and for whatever consideration you give this letter, I sincerely thank you.

John Quincy Adams Should Be Honored

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I highly commend Congressman Delahunt for recommending that former President John Quincy Adams be more recognized and honored for his achievements.

As a non-white (Asian), the revelation that Adams crossed racial lines to help blacks in need shows that he was a man of integrity and principles. He did what he believed was right.

I strongly urge Mr. Peter Kolson and other officials to begin organizing and initiating the process of honoring such a courageous, conscientious person.

Memorial Auxiliary Plaque At Hospital

Quincy residents can remember a loved one or honor a friend by putting their name on the Quincy Hospital Auxiliary plaque in the Hunting Hall of Founders at the hospital.

Name plates cost $85 each and become a permanent part of the Auxiliary plaque.

The Hunting Hall of Founders recognizes the contributions of the many individuals, businesses and organizations who have provided financial support to Quincy Hospital over the years. It is named for Dr.

Nathaniel Hunting, a member of the medical staff of Quincy Hospital from its inception in 1890, who became the first Chief of Staff when the city assumed responsibility for the hospital in 1919.

Proceeds from name plate contributions help support the Quincy Hospital Auxiliary, which raises funds for equipment and services benefiting patient care at Quincy Hospital.

To place an order for a name plate in memory of or to honor a family member or friend, call Natalie Fos-sati at 376-5509.

Medal Of Honor Winners Honored At Quincy High

By PAUL HAROLD

The city's two post-humous winners of the Congressional Medal of Honor, Frederick Murphy and William Caddy, were honored in ceremonies at Quincy High School to raise funds for the Red Cross.

Medal of Honor winners from various states traveled to Quincy to participate in the tribute.

March 12 - 18

Pvt. Murphy of Narragansett Rd., was recognized for extreme heroism. As an unarmed medical aide, he was killed while trying to help two wounded soldiers. He had suffered two wounds before the rescue attempt, and was ultimately killed by a land mine in an assault against the Siegfried Line.

Murphy was killed March 18, 1945 at age 26. He attended QHS. Before his military service, he was a buyer in the purchasing department at Bethlehem-Hingham shipyard.

Marine Caddy of Harriet Ave., was cited for conspicuous gallantry in the seizure of Iwo Jima. He threw himself on a hand grenade to save two others in the fox hole they occupied.

Caddy was a graduate of the Montclair School and NQHS. Before his enlistment he worked for White Brothers Milk Company in North Quincy.

FIRE AT ADAMS HOUSE RESTAURANT

Heavy smoke blanketed Quincy Square as a two-alarm blaze caused more than $10,000 in damage to the 80-year-old, three-story wooden building at 8 Washington St.

The vacant restaurant, occupied the first floor, with numerous businesses on the upper floors, including Granite Employment, World Travel, Reo Construction, Charles McCarthy piano studio, Guido Antonelli violin and guitar and a phot-novelty shop.

Firefighters were able to contain the blaze and prevent it from spreading next door to the Bargain Center.

Occupants of the building were alerted to the fire by passerby, Elmer Ayers, who was an auxiliary police sergeant.

MOVE TO FENCE CITY'S QUARRIES

At a meeting of the Cranch Hill Association, Robert Matson presented a proposal that would require the fencing of the 17 quarries owned by the city.

There were 24 quarries in the city, 17 owned by the city, four filled by the city and three others owned by the Duane Co.

Matson's young son, Danny, drowned in the Field and Wilde Quarry.

Mrs. Alfred Graizoso, chairman of the association, said there was support for the proposal for other improvement associations in the city including Faxon Park area and North Quincy.

Twenty-five people died in the city's quarries in the past 18 years.

QUINCY-ISMS

Beechwood Committee Plans April 1 Fundraiser

Plans for Beechwood Community Life Center's Annual Fundraiser are underway.

The annual event is planned for April 1, with proceeds dedicated to the center's expanding Inter-generational Services.

"Planning the event for April Fool's Day adds an element of philanthropic fun," according to Beechwood Executive Director Sharron Beals.

Beechwood's Development Committee, which is in charge of the event, is chaired by Don Uvanitte and Helen Irvin.

Each year, the annual "Hungry Ones" fundraiser launches Beechwood's fundraising and development efforts.

"Our expansion needs are dependent upon the successful efforts of these community leaders," said Beals.

The committee is co-chaired by Uvanitte (Beechwood's President-elect) and Irvin. Other committee members are:

Gerard Linskey, Howard Jacobs, Bob Curry, Peter Collins, Daniel Flynn, Dennis Myers, Jerry Dacey, Robert Bunstein, Brian Spillane, Doris Sinkovich, Ed O'Leary, Sharron Beals, Michael Joyce, Michael Benjamin, John O'Connor III, Thomas McFarland and Tracy Wilson.

Medically Speaking
by Michael M. Bakerman, M.D., F.A.C.C.

TAKING THE PULSE OF YOUR HEALTH

One of the most important and accurate tests of your physical health also happens to be absolutely free and as close at hand as your fingertips: Your pulse rate. If you follow an exercise program or have certain medical conditions, you may have been advised to take your pulse regularly. The most reliable way to take a pulse is to place your first two fingers (not the thumb) flat on the underside of the wrist below the thumb, or just under the jawbone on either side of the neck. Press gently but firmly until the rhythmic beat can be felt clearly. To come up with the pulse rate, count the number of beats you feel for fifteen seconds and multiply that by four. It's a good idea to know what your normal resting pulse is. For most people, a resting pulse of more than 100 should prompt an immediate call to your doctor or emergency room, especially if it is accompanied by sweating, dizziness, or chest pain. If you aren't feeling up to snuff for any significant length of time, it's best to see one's physician. Better to find out what help is available than to suffer needlessly. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, located at 700 Congress St., Quincy, we listen to your concerns. We are affiliated with Quincy and South Shore Hospitals. Please call us at 617-472-2550; office hours by appointment.

P.S. There are many possible causes of a racing or irregular pulse, some of them serious. Talk to your doctor about any abnormalities.

Three Quincy Schools Receive Cultural Grants

State Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Michael Bellotti, Ronald Mariano and Stephen Tobin announce that three Quincy schools have received Spring 1998 Event and Residency Grants.

The grant program supports short and long term residencies for artist in schools.

"The grants enables our children to participate in creative, hands-on learning situations with artists who have years of experience in school settings. These grants are critical to schools that are working to meet education reform requirements and understand the importance of arts and diversity in the curriculum," said Morrissey.

The Charles A. Bernazzani School received two grants. A grant of $1,305 and a grant of $1,380 will be used for workshops focusing on the immigrant experience. Dancer Nikki Hu and musician Guy Van Duser will be responsible for coordinating the workshops.

"The first grant will be used for fourth and fifth graders focusing on the immigrant experience through a student performance of "Freedom Bound," said Mariano.

"The latter grant will be for workshops incorporating dance, song and music to study the immigrant patterns of the United States," added Tobin.

The Broad Meadows Middle School's $250 grant will be used to invite Jerry and Nancy Bell to perform Celtic music and stories for the fifth and sixth graders.

"The Francis Parker

School received $1,687 to be used for the residency of a storyteller who will be featuring stories relating to self-esteem and workshops on writing and verbal storytelling techniques for teachers and students in Grades 2 through 5," said Bellotti. Rona Leventhal will be the resident storyteller teaching these storytelling techniques.

The legislative delegation thanks the efforts of each of the school's principals and teachers, and the Quincy Cultural Council for their hard work on being awarded this highly competitive grant. The Massachusetts Cultural Council awarded 128 Event and Residency grants across the Commonwealth for projects occurring from January through June 1998. Earlier in the school year 53 grants were awarded as part of the 1997 fall semester. The education Reform Act of 1993 includes the arts as one of the seven core subjects to be taught in Massachusetts schools.

"Schools are now working to re-establish arts classes and to integrate the arts into other areas of the curriculum," said Bellotti.

A 1996 study by the Getty Education Institute for the Arts found that children who participate in art activities perform better academically, demonstrate better cognitive and work skills, and greater self-esteem overall.

"There is nothing that can replace bringing live artists into the classroom so that students can watch, feel, participate and learn the arts in person. The grant program promotes student interest in the arts in ways that no form of multimedia can substitute for," said Morrissey.

Ayers Supports Bill To Protect Retirees

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers introduced a resolution at last week's council meeting supporting a current bill in Congress that would protect Quincy retirees and their spouses from Social Security cut-backs due to the pension offset provision and Social Security entitlement.

Ayers said there has not been an adjustment in years and considering the rate of inflation and the cost of living rising, it is not fair to seniors, retirees and families that adjustment in funding is not yet resolved.

Ayers said he introduced the resolution to highlight

Crane Library Closing Delayed Until April 11

The closing of the Coletti building at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center for the construction of a planned addition has been postponed from March 16 until April 11.

Library Director Ann McLaughlin said the delay is taking place so general contractors and subcontractors will be allowed the legally required time to submit bids for the $13 million project.

She added that the closing was postponed, in part, because contractors' interest in the project has been much greater than anticipated. More than 100 companies from across the country and Canada have requested bid specifications, she said.

Subcontractor bids, as a result, will be due March 25 instead of March 11, while general contractor bids have been moved from March 26 to April 9. State law requires a two-week interval between the two bids.

Plans now call for the Coletti building, the library's main section, to be closed beginning April 11 at 5 p.m. and reopen when the addition has been completed. Construction of the 50,000-square-foot project is scheduled to begin May 1, and officials are eyeing a Dec. 31, 1999 dedication date in conjunction with the city's millennium celebration.

The library's North Quincy branch will be closed April 9 to 13 while preparations are made to move most of the main library's materials there. The branch will offer expanded hours beginning April 27.

The Richardson building, which is the reference section at the main library, and the Adams Shore and Wollaston branches will continue their regular hours throughout the construction project.

Sunday Deadline To Submit Elks Scholarship Applications

Sunday is the deadline to submit applications for scholarships being offered by the Quincy Lodge of Elks.

Interested students from North Quincy High School and Quincy High School

Grandparents Group To Meet March 18

The Grandparents Support Group will meet Wednesday, March 18 from 10 to 11:30 a.m. in the fifth floor Conference Room at Harvard Vanguard Health Plan, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Jeanne Martin, M.S.W., Ed.D., will address the group on "The Wellness Equation for You and Your Grandchildren." The workshop will address practical strategies for good health, such as avoiding colds and flu, reducing stress and increasing one's sense of well-being.

The evening meeting will be held from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at Harvard Vanguard in Room 4C-4D.

For more information, call Mary Burke at 376-1243.

Squantum School Scholarships Available

Two scholarships of $100 each will be awarded to two graduating seniors who attended the Squantum School.

The scholarships are the Squantum School John J. Sullivan Sr. Memorial Scholarship and the Squantum School Maryrose Sullivan Memorial Scholarship. They have been established by Barbara Arnold, a teacher at the school, in memory of her father and grandmother.

Application forms are available in the guidance offices of North Quincy High, Quincy High, Center For Technical Education, Woodward School, and the Squantum School office. They must be completed and returned to the Squantum School no later than March 31. Winners will be chosen by lottery drawing.

Dedication Of New Addition At Fr. Bill's Place March 17

The Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (QISC) will hold a dedication ceremony to mark the opening of the recently-expanded Fr. Bill's Place.

The ceremony will be held at 10 a.m. on St. Patrick's Day, Tuesday, March 17 at Fr. Bill's, 38 Broad St.

Participating will be Mayor James Sheets, state Rep. Paul Haley of Weymouth, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee; Sen. Michael Morrissey, Rep. Stephen Tobin, and City Council President Peter Kolson. The public is invited.

The recent expansion was made possible through the donated labor of the South Shore Building Trades unions. Private resources contributed both funding and materials necessary for the project.

The expansion grew out of the need for additional space for women's shelter, a wet shelter for addicted and active clients, expanded case management space for counselors and clinicians, and an expanded nurse's station. It also made possible the movement of the QISC's administrative offices back to 38 Broad St. after a three-year absence.

Fr. William McCarthy, for whom Fr. Bill's is named said, "We could not serve the number of people we do without the tremendous support of labor, business and the community. However, as the number of homeless grows, I do not want to forget that the goal is to end homelessness. I hope I see the day when my name can come down from the building."

Fr. Bill's Place was originally the Registry of Motor Vehicles. It was originally converted to a shelter in 1988. Prior to the opening of Fr. Bill's Place, the QISC had sheltered the homeless in church basements and at St. John's School.

Over time, the QISC has developed resources necessary to move people beyond shelter. They include case management, housing search, nursing, outreach, community-based outpatient collaboratives with Quincy Mental Health and Bay State Community Services, and linkages to a vast array of services.

The QISC will mark the 10th anniversary of Fr. Bill's Place on April 24 at the IBEW Hall in Dorchester. The featured speaker will be Archbishop Bernard Cardinal Law, Archbishop of Boston. Dinner will follow a reception beginning at 6 p.m. For reservations, call 770-3314 or 376-2255.

SPOTLIGHT ON BUSINESS

Brand Names, Discount Prices At C.T. Outfitter

By LIAM FITZGERALD

For shoppers who are interested in brand name clothing but don't want to pay the exorbitant mall prices, there's a store in Quincy just for you.

It's C.T. Outfitter, located at 25 Independence Ave., South Quincy, across the street from CVS and adjacent to the Varsity Club.

Open since December 1996, the store is owned by Caryn Collings of Quincy, who fulfilled a longtime dream of starting her own business.

"I always wanted to open my own place," said Collings. "I did research for about a year and met quite a few people in the business. Since most people are discount shoppers and there weren't any stores in this area that carry this type of clothing, I decided to go into the discount clothing business."

Collings receives most of the clothing for her store from the No. 1 specialty store, or mall store, and in turn sells it for a lower price. Among the items for sale are jeans ($15), overalls ($20) and shirts ($10 and $12).

"Most of the clothes, which are this season's line, are around $15," said Collings. "Jeans are the best sellers, because they cost just $15 here and go for $58 at the specialty store."

"I can't mention the name of the store, but it's their overstock, irregulars and customer returns that I get. They pull the items from their stores, which then go to their distributors, who I then deal with."

"I order in bulk, so I get new shipments every week. The customers and I don't have any idea what's coming in from week to week, so you never know what you're going to find."

The remainder of her store's clothing comes from a variety of other brand name stores owned by the No. 1 specialty store.

Though she has only been open for just over a year, Collings has drawn a loyal following of customers who come to the store every week, when new shipments arrive.

"Sales have been good," she said. "I have a good amount of regulars who come by to see what's come in and usually leave with something new."

At the same time, Collings said others who stop by the store for the first time ask her if she recently opened, or think it is a consignment shop or a used clothing store—neither of which are correct.

"A lot of people don't know I'm here," she said. "That's been the biggest problem, people not being able to find it. The drawback is that the store's away from Quincy Center, where a lot of the businesses are, but I wanted parking for my customers."

"There's full parking in front and all around the building. There's also not a lot of foot traffic, so most people get in their car to come here."

What has aided Collings in attracting new customers is regulars telling their friends, families and co-workers about the store.

"That's been my best advertising to this point," she said. "An example of that is when a girl comes in and sees what we have, then tells her friends and co-workers, who may come by on their lunch break to see what we have to offer."

The store, which has a number of fitting rooms, also has a mailing list and will attempt to fulfill customer requests.

"For those on the mailing list, I'll send out coupons, which can be used anytime," she said. "Also, customers sometimes request a certain size, and if I have it, I'll hold it for them and give them a call."

Regarding the store's name, Collings said she recently changed it to C.T. Outfitter from City Trends for an important reason.

"I opened as City Trends, but about three months ago I changed it because I thought Trends was misleading," she explained. "What I sell is classic and casual clothes, not trendy clothes. It just gave the wrong meaning and I decided to fix it."

A 1992 graduate of the University of Massachusetts at Dartmouth, Collings was a software consultant before opening C.T. Outfitter.

"I enjoyed that job and learned a lot about the business world," she said, "which helped me when I decided to go into business for myself."

Before she opened the business, Collings entered the Quincy 2000 Loan Pool Program and extended her appreciation to Quincy 2000 for their assistance in the store's early stages.

"At a meeting of about 25 banks, you show them a proposal and they decide whether or not to O.K. the loan for you," she said. "Quincy 2000 helped out a lot with the beginning steps when I was just starting out."

As far as the store's staff goes, Collings is it—for now.

"Sometime down the road I plan to hire, but not at the moment," she said. "I do have family and friends help out, but for the most part, it's just me working here, which is fine."

C.T. Outfitter accepts cash, checks and major credit cards, including Visa, Discover and MasterCard.

Business hours are Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., Thursdays from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The phone number is 471-4774.

'Historic Quincy' Prints Available At Hospital

Prints of "Historic Quincy" are being offered for sale through the Quincy Hospital Health and Education Foundation.

"Historic Quincy" is an original watercolor lithograph by local artist Bill Beyer. Each lithograph is individually signed and numbered by the artist. The painting depicts an array of historic sights in Quincy, such as the USS Salem, Granite Railway, the Adams Birthplace and Mansion and many more familiar landmarks. A copy of the framed print is available to view in the Gift Shop located in the main lobby of the hospital.

Prints are available at a cost of $35 unframed, $75 framed. The framed version is available in a choice of two different frames and mats. Proceeds from the sale of prints help to enhance health care services at Quincy Hospital.

To order a print, or for more information, call Jean Parker at 376-5495.

New State Building Code Being Implemented

The Quincy Office of Inspectional Services has received notification from the Massachusetts Board of Building Regulations and Standards relative to the implementation of the "Sixth Edition" of the Massachusetts State Building Code, 780 CMR.

All construction in Quincy is regulated by the Massachusetts State Building Code, 780 CMR. All local contractors and homeowners should be aware of the change in the Building Code which will coincide with the spring construction season. Those interested should take time to obtain a copy of the new Building Code and review it for any changes which may affect upcoming projects.

Contractors should remember that the validity of their Massachusetts Construction Supervisor's License is contingent upon possession of a current copy of the Building Code. The Office of Inspectional Services has copies of the new code for sale. The office also is open weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. to answer questions about the new code.

For more information, call Walter White at 376-1456.

Massachusetts Assn. Of Realtors Institute Course In Hingham

The Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR) will sponsor Course 101 of the Realtor Institute (GRI) program Thursday, April 2 and Friday, April 3 at the South Shore Association of Realtors, 62 Derby St., Unit 6-7, Hingham.

The two-day course, which is open only to association members, consists of 15 hours of classroom instruction on several industry topics, including financing and servicing the listing. The comprehensive course curriculum is designed primarily for realtors licensed for less than five years; however, recent revisions to the course content make the program ideal for experienced real estate professionals who wish to learn more about current issues and trends as well.

The GRI 101 course is one of six modules which comprise the 90-hour Realtor Institute program. Students may register for courses in any sequence, however individuals must complete the six module program and pass each course exam within a five-year time frame in order to earn the nationally-recognized Graduate, Realtered by March 26 and $195 after that date. For course application or to register by Visa or MasterCard, call the MAR Education Department toll free at 1-800-725-6272.

QCAP First-Time Homebuyer's Workshop Series March 21, 28

Quincy Community Actions Programs, an approved MHFA first-time homebuyer counseling agency, will hold a First Time Homebuyer's Workshop Series Saturdays, March 21 and 28.

Both workshops will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at South Shore Savings Bank, 1530 Main St., Weymouth. They are being sponsored by the City of Quincy and the Department of Housing and Community Development.

Attendance at both is mandatory to qualify for mortgage options available through the Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs and other financing options.

The agenda will focus on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within one's budget, how to make and offer, and determining the best mortgage program.

Advance registration is required and space is limited. Fee is $36 per household. For more information or to register, call Debbie Kidd at 479-8181, ext. 115.

manufacturer and installer.

What many people don't realize is that today's sunrooms can be utilized for most any purpose. Three-season rooms, constructed with single pane glass, are an economical way to increase recreational space which blends with the architecture of the home requiring little or no structural alterations. Patio Enclosures, Inc. reports that 75 percent of sunrooms are built this way. Three-season rooms are not designed to be heated or air conditioned. Natural ventilation, screens and shading keep the rooms comfortable for 7-9 months a year depending upon geographic region.

Many homeowners use the three-season enclosures as a picnic spot or as a simple place to relax and enjoy the outdoors. In fact, 56 percent of sunroom owners report that relaxation is the top reason for adding a sunroom addition. Because enclosures are made of glass and screen sliding doors and windows, homeowners have flexibility to use the room as much as they wish, extending the use of an open or screened porch.

Another sunroom option is an enclosure constructed of insulated glass. These rooms can be used year round with the use of supplemental heat and cooling, not necessarily connected to the main system. The expansive sunroom glass enables the room to use passive heating from the sun and cooling from the outdoors as natural temperature control.

With a sunroom the homeowner enjoys an environment different than the rest of the home. A sunroom helps us stay in touch with the outdoors, and offers a more contemporary feel of glass and a casual lifestyle. A great way for man and nature to co-exist.

Eating Habits And Orthodontics

By DR. FRED ATTARZADEH

A careful orthodontic patient can probably eat almost any food and do no damage to his or her appliance.

However, these three types of food may cause trouble, as may others. Use common sense or, if you are in doubt, ask us about some food you enjoy eating.

•Hard Foods may do damage by bending wires, loosening cement under the bands or breaking the little brackets and tubes which are attached.

•Sticky Foods damage appliances by bending wires and pulling cement loose.

•Foods High In Sugar Content you should avoid whenever possible. If you do eat any of them, brush your teeth immediately. If not convenient to brush, then always rinse your mouth with clear water after eating very sweet foods such as cake or pie.

Don't eat: popcorn, nuts, peanut brittle, ice (not even if you're careful), lemons (pure lemon juice can hurt your tooth enamel), corn on the cob, corn chips, crisp tacos, taffy and caramels, fruit fakes/gummy bears etc., bubble gum (1,000 times, NO!), or pizza crust (the hard outer edge).

Maybe: carrot sticks (if you cut into carrot curls that are thin), apples (cut into wedges; don't bite), hard French bread (if you take small pieces and are very careful), and diet drinks.

[Dr. Fred Attarzadeh's practice is located at 1050 Hancock St., Quincy. For an appointment, call 471-4600.]

Chiropractic Exam A Good Idea After Whiplash Injury

By DR. STEVEN WINDWER

Whiplash is a term generally used to describe an injury which takes place when someone is injured in a motor vehicle accident.

The symptomatology of a whiplash varies from person to person. They can range from barely noticeable stiffness to severe trauma and even death. In most cases, the damage is to the neck's ligaments, tendons, muscles, and the vertebral alignment.

When the vertebrae become misaligned or stuck, they create pressure on the joints, the nerves can become irritated, and the muscles that attach to the vertebrae become spasmed and tense. This may also lead to headaches and numbness and tingling.

Whiplash symptoms may start as neck soreness or stiffness perhaps accompanied by a headache, immediately or within a few hours of the accident. Sometimes these symptoms may start as neck soreness or stiffness perhaps accompanied by a headache, immediately or within a few hours of the accident. Sometimes these symptoms actually do not occur for a week.

Along with these symptoms, there may be a pain or numbness, tingling, pins and needles feeling between the shoulder blade, arms and hands. Some people may experience ear ringing, dizziness or even hearing loss. Sometimes the eyes can be affected and there may be pain behind the eyeballs, blurred vision, sensitivity to light, or other visual symptoms. Occasionally, there may be nausea.

An individual who has been in an accident should first make sure there is no life-threatening emergency, no broken bones, no torn blood vessels or hemorrhages. Whiplash injuries are usually seen at the emergency room to rule out an life-threatening situations.

Once these serious situations are ruled out, a chiropractic examination is in order. After any kind of accident or trauma, especially a whiplash, when the spine becomes misaligned, this is when a chiropractic examination would be most beneficial. This is because once these vertebrae are misaligned and are creating pain and nerve irritation, then taking medications and rest will only help to a certain degree.

A whiplash injury is a dramatic example of one way to cause vertebral misalignment, the kind produced by accident or trauma or great stress that occurs suddenly. These misalignments may also be caused by other stressors and tensions that slowly build up day by day. They are called microtrauma.

Examples of microtrauma are poor posture, bad sleeping positions, weak muscles and poor diet. Even excessive dental work may cause neck and head misalignments. A chiropractic examination includes a discussion of your personal habits, which includes any injuries, falls, accidents or situations which may contribute to these misalignments.

The role of the chiropractor is to permit the body to function with a healthy spine, but if you have been involved in a whiplash-type accident, you should see your doctor of chiropractic as soon as possible to make sure that you heal it as completely as possible.

Late Goal Ousts Quincy In Sectional Final, 4-3

Dream Season Over, But Memories Remain

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Twenty years had passed since Quincy High School's hockey team last won a state tournament game.

This time around, however, the 1997-98 Presidents not only picked up one victory, they won three and nearly captured a fourth in Sunday's Division 1 South Sectional championship at the FleetCenter in Boston.

Quincy, which concluded a remarkable season with a 14-4-6 record, suffered a 4-3 setback to Needham in the final when the Rockets' Matt Heavey batted a pass out of the air and into the net with just 26.6 seconds left in regulation.

Despite replacing senior goalie Chris Burns (23 saves) with an extra skater, Quincy was unable to notch the equalizer as time ran out on a memorable season.

"This was the greatest team in the history of the school," said head coach Bob Sylvia, who wrapped up his 33rd year at the helm of the Presidents. "Right now, this is almost like our wedding day. It's more like a celebration than a wake."

"It was an outstanding game, and the best team won (Sunday). But out kids will have a lot of great memories about this tournament, and they made me a very happy coach. I couldn't be prouder of their effort."

Sylvia also extended his appreciation to assistants Ted Walsh, Mike Furey and Jeff Hynes, along with longtime manager George Peachy, for their dedication to the program and the players.

Before this year, the last Quincy team to record a tournament victory was the 1977-78 squad, which eventually lost in the semi-final round. Last season, in their first postseason appearance in nearly 20 years, the Presidents were eliminated from the tournament in the first round by Xaverian.

Quincy got on the board first with 7:40 left in the opening period when senior Bob Harvey collected the rebound of a blast by junior Joe Vallatini and slipped the puck by Rocket goalie Rich Delanders (16 saves).

After Needham's Greg

Kim was twice denied in close by Burns, the Rockets' Matt Edlin notched the equalizer with 2:12 left in the first. Edlin's shot deflected off Burns' skate and into the net.

The Presidents regained the lead temporarily when sophomore Scott Mattson scored a power play goal with 8:46 remaining in the second, sending home the rebound of senior Chris Wool's shot.

Quincy continued to put the pressure on Delanders and the Needham defense, but it was the Rockets who recorded the game's next two goals—in less than a minute. Needham's Brian Kelly was sent in on a breakaway, missed the net with a shot, then collected the puck behind the net and backhanded it by Burns to tie the game at 2-2.

The Rockets then perfectly executed a 2-on-1 break, with Greg Kim receiving the pass from Heavey and depositing the puck with four minutes to go in the middle stanza.

Late in the second,

(Cont'd on Page 18)

FOLLOWING A 4-3 setback to Needham in the Division 1 South Sectional final Sunday at the FleetCenter, head coach Bob Sylvia (second row, near middle) called this year's Quincy High hockey squad "the greatest team in the history of the school."

Q's Dream Season Over, But Memories Remain

Quincy senior Chris Haidul had a golden opportunity to tie the game with a wrist from point blank range, but Delanders' shot away as the period drew to a close.

Not about to be denied a second time, Haidul knotted the game at 3-3 with 9:17 left in regulation, knocking in a rebound of a Mattson shot. Haidul finished the tournament as one of the leading scorers, notching a goal in each of Quincy's four games along with four assists for a total of eight points.

Both squads had their chances to break the deadlock as the period continued, but both goalies were up to the task with a number of impressive saves. With a break in action with just 34.2 seconds remaining in regulation, the finalists appeared to be headed for overtime.

However, just seconds later, Heavey scored the game-winner and Needham moved on to Sunday's Division 1 state final against Winchester at the FleetCenter (5 p.m.).

Along with Haidul, Burns, Wool and Harvey, five other Quincy seniors finished their high school hockey careers on the FleetCenter ice: captains Steve Verlicco and Derek McTomney, Tim Lewis, Glenn Chase and Bob Hall.

"These kids played at Northeastern, Boston College, Boston University and the FleetCenter," said Sylvia. "Thousands of players would give anything to have the chance to sit where they did."

"Our kids came in here and sat where Wayne Gretzky and Mario Lemieux sat, and there's no bigger thrill than that for a young hockey player."

The Presidents advanced to the finals with a thrilling 4-3 semifinal triumph over top-seeded Framingham last Friday night at Boston University.

Mattson, who earlier scored to give Quincy a 3-2 lead, snapped a 3-3 tie by scoring with just 50.8 seconds remaining in the third period.

After a scoreless first period, Framingham got on the board first with 9:41 left in the second and scored again with 56.5 seconds remaining to take a 2-0 lead.

A strong team throughout the season in the third period, Quincy notched two quick goals to tie the game. Haidul scored 22 seconds into the period, then dished the puck out front to wide open sophomore Brian Nolan, who scored the tying goal just 22 seconds after Haidul's score.

The teams trading scoring opportunities until Mattson notched his first goal with 5:15 remaining. Haidul took the initial shot, which Mattson followed up and slipped the puck into the net.

Framingham's Jim Brown potted the equalizer with four minutes to play. Soon after, Mattson's second tally lifted Quincy into the finals and halted Framingham's season. Burns stopped 20 shots in goal for Quincy.

Last Tuesday, Haidul notched the game-winner with 10:14 left as Quincy held on to defeat fifth-seeded Brockton, 3-2, in the quarterfinals at Boston College.

The Boxers peppered Burns (23 saves) with 10 shots in the final period, but the senior goalie preserved Quincy's lead.

Vallatini put Quincy ahead, 1-0, halfway through the first but Brockton got the equalizer five minutes later. In the second, Wool gave the Presidents their second lead, but that also vanished when the Boxers scored later in the period.

Quincy Lions Club Run/Walk May 31 At Pageant Field

The Quincy Lions Club Run/Walk For Sight 5K Run/Walk will take place Sunday, May 31 at 1 p.m. at Pageant Field.

The Run/Walk is held to support the many charities of the Quincy Lions Club, specifically raising funds to support eye research and provide eye care to those in need.

The Run/Walk includes a 5-kilometer event for adults and a 1-kilometer walk for children beginning at Pageant Field.

Registration will be held at noon the day of the event. Pre and post race entertainment, along with post race snacks and juice, will be provided. A raffle drawing will also be held.

For the 5-kilometer event, early entry fee is $12; late entry fee is $15. For the 1-kilometer walk, entry fee is $5.

The divisions are as follows: top three men's and women's, masters men's and women's, young adult (12-18), senior men's and women's, police and firefighter and wheelchair.

The Quincy Lions are seeking sponsors at all levels for the event as well as participants in the Run/Walk. Sponsors will be identified on the Run/Walk materials and included in the Lions' marketing. Trade show set up is available for sponsors.

Recreation Department To Hold Two Women's Fitness Classes

Barry Welch, recreation director, announces that the Quincy Recreation Department will conduct two women's fitness classes at the Fore River Clubhouse.

Both programs will be held Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings at either 8:30 or 9:30 a.m. beginning Wednesday, March 18. Mary Manoli will be the instructor.

Each class includes exercise to improve and strengthen flexibility, endurance and overall fitness. Adaptations in the exercise allow each participant to work out at her own pace.

Cost of the program is $47.50 for 38 classes. Classes will conclude Friday, June 19. Registration, which begins Monday, March 16, is on a first come, first serve basis at the Recreation Department, 100 Southern Artery, weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

You Auto Know

by Tony Centorino, Kevin McGroarty and Bill Starkie

AN UP-FRONT EXPLANATION

There has been a profound shift in vehicle design in recent years from rear- to front-wheel drive. What's the difference? Rear-wheel drive has a drivetrain arrangement by which the engine power goes through the transmission to the driveshaft, then the rear wheels. With front-wheel drive, the transmission and the axle are combined into one unit (the transaxle), mounted directly to the engine. Eliminating the separate rear axle differential assembly enables automakers to reduce the weight on their cars. The compact transaxle unit is also smaller and easier to install. On the other hand, rear-wheel-drive advocates claim that their design handles better at the limit (because loss of traction does not hamper the car's ability to steer).

Raiders Bow To Needham In Sectional Quarterfinals

NQ's Positive Attitude, Hard Work Impress First-Year Head Coach

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Few first-year head coaches step in and lead a young team to the state tournament, especially not after the squad won just eight games the previous two seasons combined.

Nevertheless, that is exactly what Bob Doyle accomplished at the helm of the North Quincy High School hockey team.

Although the seventh-seeded Red Raiders were knocked out of the Division 1 South Sectional quarterfinals last Wednesday, Doyle expressed his admiration to his players for their hard work, positive attitude and perseverance.

"You couldn't ask for a better group of 24 guys," he said. "They're a real classy group who kept their composure even when things got tough. It was a joy to come to the rink and coach these kids."

Doyle also credited his coaching staff and others who lent a hand—Mark Boussy, Chip Foley, Andrew Vermette, Dennis Pateras, Larry Costello, Tom Bourque, Richard Morrissey, Richard Hutchins and Eleanor Holt—for their many contributions to the program's success.

North Quincy concluded a remarkable 1997-98 campaign with a 13-7-2 record, which included two wins over Old Colony League champion Silver Lake and a tournament victory over Braintree.

Wrapping up their Red Raider hockey careers were senior captain Mike Powers and senior assistant captains John Barron and Bill Walker.

"Those three guys led by example, and their actions spoke volumes," said Doyle. "Mike was an excellent captain; he's good-natured, kept up good grades and was always an upbeat and positive player in the locker room. I can't say enough about him. We'll miss him and all the seniors."

Also concluding their NQ hockey careers were seniors Sean Fitzgerald, Anthony Fasoli, Jeff Glynn, Brian Gates and Tom Vitt.

"We had a classy group of seniors, including guys like Gates, Glynn and Vitt, who never complained about playing time, just worked as hard as can be," said Doyle.

"The team as a whole was a good group who stuck together. It started with the senior leadership and filtered down to all the underclassmen. We have 16 players back next year and we're looking to have another successful season."

North will hold its annual banquet April 16 at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy. Former Boston Bruin player Barry Pederson will be the guest speaker.

The setback that eliminated the Red Raiders from the tournament was a 6-1 loss to second-seeded Needham, the eventual South Sectional champion, at Boston College's Conte Forum. The score was deceiving, since Needham scored four of its goals in a four-minute outburst in the second period, snapping a scoreless deadlock.

"We knew we were facing the iron of the tournament, but we felt we could stay on the same surface with them," said Doyle.

"Our tight defensive zone coverage and trapping in the neutral zone worked early."

"After the first, we were right where wanted to be, but they switched things up in the second and started taking it to us. They outshot us 17-7 in the period and were all over us. Things just started to unravel and we couldn't recover."

The Rockets' first goal came midway through the second when Dave McAlpine scored on the power play. Approximately 30 seconds later, Needham's Greg Kim rifled a shot that eluded NQ junior goalie David Downey. Kim scored two minutes later when he tapped in his own rebound.

Not quite finished, the Rockets' Eddie Mack followed up a rebound and scored with 3:17 left in the middle stanza. At that point, Needham (19-1-3) had built a comfortable 4-0 lead in a short period of time.

The Red Raiders notched their only goal early in the third, when junior Paul Markarian broke in on goalie Rich Delanders and notched an unassisted goal, his team-leading 24th of the season. Markarian wrapped up a breakthrough season with 44 points and will be one of Doyle's main weapons as a senior next winter.

Not long after Markarian got North on the board, Needham put the game away with a short-handed goal by Mark Roache (two goals, two assists). A turnover in North's zone allowed Roache to walk in uncontested and score. Roache added an unassisted power-play tally with eight minutes left for the game's final score.

"That was kind of a fluke goal we got, but it gave us a little spurt," said Doyle. "That giveaway on the power play sealed our fate."

"The guys wanted this more than anything, but it just wasn't meant to be. We lost to a better team with more talent throughout their lineup. They made the most of their opportunities."

SQUIRTS

Burgin Platner, Sugarman, Sun, Lydon-Russell, Ayers All Winners

Kevin Richardson's two goals and one assist helped Burgin Platner Insurance top Pat Foley Painting, 5-1, in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt Division House League play.

Joe Sweeney, Danny Davis and Matt Tobin also scored for BPI, which got three assists from Mark Lewis and an assist apiece from Steve Maggio, Brendan Linnane and Michael McNulty. Scoring for Foley was Kristina Manganaro, assisted by Andrew Potter and Mike Lohnes.

Six points by Ian McRae (two goals, four assists) powered M. Sugarman to an 8-2 triumph over Westminster Dodge.

Justin Thorley (hat trick), Eric Kenney (goal, two assists), Bob Newcomb (goal, assist), Cory Bythrow, Chris Garvey and Kevin Shinnick (two assists apiece), and Katelyn Nee (assist) also contributed offensively. For WD, Andrew Donovan notched a goal and an assist, Patrick Malone scored a goal and Michael Faherty, Dave Finnegan and Brian Carney each added an assist.

A balanced scoring attack proved to be the key for The Quincy Spin in an 11-4 victory over Keohane's.

Those doing the damage offensively for The Sun were Pat Mullen (two goals, assist), Brendan Clifford and Eddie Laura (one goal, two assists apiece), Jim Callahan (two goals), Ryan O'Keefe, Kevin Nee, Mike MacPherson and Dan Reggianni (one goal, one assist each), Robby Gagliard (two assists), John McClintock (goal), and Sean McCormack, Imrain Moin and Matt Quigley (one assist apiece).

For Keohane's, Jonathan O'Connor netted two goals, Brendan Mulcahy dished out two assists, Alex Shaffer and Brendan Mulcahy each scored a goal, and Mike Barter, Brian Sorenson and Ryan Barter each collected an assist.

Kenny Patey and Steve

McDonagh's two goals and two assists apiece sparked Lydon-Russell to a 7-4 triumph over Kiley Real Estate.

Other contributors for L-R were Rob DeAngelis (goal, assist), Glen Misho and Casey Conley (one goal each), and Eric Beagle, Meaghan Shea and John Kennedy (one assist apiece). For Kiley, Justin Laura registered a hat trick, Jason Laura collected three assists, Bill Kiley netted a goal and Dan Findley and Craig Farrell each had an assist.

Three players—Jamie Corbett, Brian Sullivan and Matt Bridgeman—scored two goals apiece to lead Bruce Ayers Club over Barry's Deli, 7-1.

Also chipped in for the winners were Nick Masone (goal, assist), Derek Murphy (three assists) and Patrick Totten, Ryan Murphy and Charlie McGee (one assist each). The Deli goal was scored by Brendan Foley, assisted by Patrick Dunn.

Girls Softball Registration Deadline March 15

The Quincy Girls Softball League is accepting registration for its summer 1998 season.

Deadline to register is Sunday, March 15.

All Quincy girls born between Aug. 1, 1982 and July 31, 1990 are eligible to play. A birth certificate must be shown.

For more information, call Denise Goodrich at 472-9023, Lisa Gallagher at 682-9564 or Theresa Rand and 471-8221.

The league also is seeking help in the girls 8 and 9-year-old division and in the 13 to 15-year-old division. If interested, call the numbers listed above.

PSSB To Hold 24th Annual Walk April 26

The Protestant Social Service Bureau (PSSB) will sponsor its 24th Annual Walk Sunday, April 26.

The 10-kilometer walk will raise funds for the agency's many activities. It will begin at the East Congregational Church in East Milton.

The PSSB is a private, non-profit agency in Wollaston that provides adoption and counseling services, a food pantry, a thrift shop and more to South Shore residents. The walk is the agency's single largest fund-raiser.

For more information, call 773-6203.

Gospel Business Men To Meet March 14

The South Shore Chapter of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International will hold a dinner meeting Saturday, March 14 at 6:30 p.m. at G.J. Codrington's, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center. Guest speaker will be Haroon Khan, a native of Trinidad who became a Christian in 1984 and now is an elder at the Parkway Christian Center who teaches in its Bible School.

Music will be provided by Carolyn Cullen.

Cost is $10 per person. All are welcome. For reservations, call Bill Craig at 471-1912 or Alex Canavan at 749-5982.

Parishes Here Seen Safe From Closings

which churches to close, one key ingredient is the so-called "sacramental index," a calculation submitted by each parish regarding the five-year average of its number of baptisms, number of funerals, and double its number of weddings.

"It's kind of a judgment to see how active the parish is," said Fr. Graham.

Cardinal Law has said the lowest acceptable number for a parish's sacramental index is 100. Most, if not all, of Quincy's nine parishes have numbers far above that, Fr. Graham said.

For instance, he noted, the St. Joseph's sacramental index last year was 217, more than double the minimum required by the cardinal. Fr. Graham said St. John the Baptist in Quincy Center, Sacred Heart in North Quincy and St. Ann's in Wollaston all have higher numbers, while St. Mary's in West Quincy probably ranks around the same as St. Joseph's.

As for the city's smaller parishes--St. Boniface in Germantown, Most Blessed Sacrament in Houghs Neck, Our Lady of Good Counsel in Merrymount, and Star of the Sea in Squantum--Fr. Graham said there is the possibility two or more of those eventually could be combined, but not for at least six years when current pastors expire.

"That's something that's been talked about for years," he said. "But it won't happen anytime soon."

Beechwood Receives NAEYC Accreditation

Beechwood on the Bay has been granted accreditation by the National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC).

The recognition has been achieved by about only 5 percent of early childhood programs nationwide--some 5,618 programs as of September 1997, serving 538,030 children.

NAEYC accreditation is a rigorous, voluntary process by which early childhood programs demonstrate that they meet national standards of excellence. Child care centers, preschools, kindergartens, and before- and after-school programs are eligible to seek the accreditation. Beechwood's Preschool, Kindergarten and Afterschool Programs are now accredited.

Programs seeking accreditation undergo an intensive self-study, collecting information from parents, teachers, administrators, and classroom observations. They receive an onsite visit, conducted by early childhood professionals specially trained by NAEYC, to validate their self-study results. All of the information is independently reviewed by a team of national experts who grant or defer accreditation. Accreditation lasts for three years.

"The heart of NAEYC accreditation focuses on the child's experience," said Sharron Beals, Beechwood's executive director. "The process carefully considers all aspects of program provision--including health and safety, staffing, staff qualifications, administration, and physical environment.

"But the greatest emphasis is on the children's relationships with the staff and how the program helps each child grow and learn--intellectually, physically, socially and emotionally. We are very proud of our staff and their commitment to families and children."

According to Beals, research supports the value of accreditation for children, and children's language skills and social skills especially benefit from the better quality found in NAEYC-accredited programs.

"These are critical areas for children's success in school as well as life," he said.

NAEYC accreditation began in 1985, with the first program accredited in 1986.

OBITUARIES

Richard N. Anderson, 65 Property Appraiser For Major Firms

A funeral service for Richard N. Anderson, 65, of Lecanto, Fla., formerly of Boston, was held March 6 in the Gilman Chapel at Cedar Grove Cemetery, Dorchester.

Mr. Anderson died Feb. 25 in a car accident in Beverly Hills, Fla.

An appraiser of industrial and commercial property, he had worked for Stone & Webster and a variety of major accounting firms. He traveled all over the world to appraise property. While in Florida, he worked independently.

Mr. Anderson was an Army veteran and a member of the Disabled American Veterans.

Born in Boston, he lived in the Boston area before moving to Lecanto 10 years ago. He was a 1953 graduate of Boston English High School and attended Wentworth Institute.

He is survived by a brother, John R. Anderson of Brewster; a niece and a nephew.

Funeral arrangements were by the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to the American Heart Association, 20 Speen St., Framingham, MA 01701.

Lina Strandal, 104 Longtime Market Cashier

A funeral Mass for Lina (McLeod) Strandal, 104, of Quincy, was celebrated Monday at St. John's Church.

Mrs. Strandal died March 5 at home following a brief illness.

A longtime cashier at the Supreme Market in Dorchester, she retired from the market many years ago.

She was a member of St. John's Church Ladies Sodality.

Born, raised and educated in Prince Edward Island, Canada, she came to the United States in 1914 and lived for a while in Dorchester. She lived for 75 years in Quincy, including many years in West Quincy.

Wife of the late Philip G. Strandal, she is survived by a son and a daughter, Philip G. Strandal and Barbara E. Kelley, both of Quincy; two grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. She was the last of 12 children.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to Father Bill's Place, 38 Broad St., Quincy, MA 02169 or to the Quincy Visiting Nurse Association, 10 Granite St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Ida M. Nolan, 94 Longtime Medical Secretary

A funeral Mass for Ida M. (Sinnott) Nolan, 94, of Quincy, was celebrated Tuesday at St. Ann's Church.

Mrs. Nolan died March 5 at Randolph Crossing Nursing Home in Randolph. A former medical secretary, she worked 20 years for Dr. Ralph Dolan in Dorchester before retiring in 1976.

Born in Prince Edward Island, Canada, she lived in Dorchester until moving to Quincy 21 years ago.

Wife of the late Arthur E. Tetreault and the late Fabian M. Nolan, she is survived by a daughter, the Rev. Ida M.T. Miller of Rochester, N.Y.; a niece, Ida May (Franklyn) Jay; and a step-daughter, Caroline Hawk.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Carmen Pizzi, 82 Shipyard Pipefitter 43 Years

A funeral service for Carmen Pizzi, 82, of Weymouth, formerly of Quincy, was held Monday in the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Mr. Pizzi died March 6 at the Massachusetts Respiratory Hospital in Braintree. He worked for 43 years as a pipefitter at the Fore River shipyard in Quincy for Bethlehem Steel and General Dynamics. He retired in 1981.

He was a former member of the Fore River Long Service Club. Born in Campobasso, Italy, he came to the United States as a child and attended school in Everett and Quincy. He lived in East Weymouth for 15 years and Braintree for over 20 years before moving back to Weymouth three years ago.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Donations may be made to Friends of the Massachusetts Respiratory Hospital, 2001 Washington St., Braintree, MA 02184.

Albert F. Sullivan, 97 State Registry Of Deeds Clerk

A funeral Mass for Albert F. Sullivan, 97, of Quincy, was celebrated March 5 at St. Ann's Church.

Mr. Sullivan died March 2 at Milton Hospital after a brief illness.

He was a former clerk for the State Registry of Deeds.

Born and raised in Boston, he graduated from South Boston High School. He lived in Dorchester before moving about 20 years ago to Quincy.

A Thought For The Week

Pleasantness is a gift with some people and with others a lack of pleasantness is the handicap which, if they only knew it, is keeping them from some of life's most rewarding experiences.

Big pleasures and great happiness are but the consummation of many little pleasures and deeds of kindness bound together, as a loaf of bread is many crumbs in the aggregate. Happiness is to be found among life's common things. It is not the rare gifts, the possession of the few; it is not great wealth, great learning, great genius, or great power; it is not these things that make the possessors happy. It is good health; it is friendship; it is love of home; it is the voices of children; it is sunshine; it is a passing smile; it is a kindly word; a little gift bestowed anonymously; a little thoughtfulness here and there as the days slip by. It is the blessings that are commonest, not those that are rarest; it is the gifts that God has scattered everywhere. These are the crumbs of happiness.

Pleasantness is the cheapest commodity on earth; and if people only knew it, such an attitude contains grains and nuggets of gold.

Your Horoscope

by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The week is perfect for good times, just don't spend it foolishly. A small irritation with a family member could develop into something bigger if you let it. Remember, holding grudges has resulted in trouble in the past.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You'll be happy about the week's career developments. Although financial gain is possible, make sure that money that comes in doesn't go out just as quickly. Plan a budget and be sure to stick to it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You receive an honor or recognition, but you still need to exercise diplomacy with a co-worker. Make sure a family member is made to feel special as well. You need to exercise more sensitivity and compassion.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You don't end up dealing with the problem you intended to solve at this time since something else captures your attention. Home matters could be under some stress. However, you're able to sort everything out satisfactorily.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) It's best to have an alternative in mind, just in case plans are changed. Watch a tendency to exaggerate while socializing during the weekend. This could get you into some trouble with a friend.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) If one career plan doesn't take shape, don't rush pell mell into another. Give yourself enough time to examine your ambitions in perspective. Then you can plan accordingly.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) There's a tendency to have a double standard. While you insist upon your own freedom, you don't give others room to breathe. This doesn't go unnoticed by friends and family alike.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Although you see both sides of a question, you still have to take a difficult stand with family members. Your first instinct is the correct one. However, some grinding and gnashing of teeth is bound to occur.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A major household project could get underway. However, you experience some trouble in making a very personal decision. Don't be too proud to turn to someone for advice.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Luck is with you in matters of your career. Your efforts pay off handsomely with both recognition and increased chances for success. You end the week on a very relaxed and easygoing note.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Interests of the heart are favored: Later in the week, romance and familial togetherness are accentuated. Those who are students receive good news about an educational endeavor.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Friends in high places are favorably disposed toward you. Charm and optimism reign supreme and others are magnetically drawn to you. Make those important phone calls and social visits over the weekend.

New Chinese Restaurant If Dumpster Enclosed

If a dumpster issue is settled, there will be a new Chinese restaurant next to Fruit Basket on Granite Street called "Chop Sticks."

The Quincy License Board said they would grant a common victualer license to Bang Giang Hoang pending an enclosure of the dumpster.

The site is the former Atlantic Fish Market, which has been closed for several months.

Chairman Joseph Shea said no license would be given until the landlord encloses the dumpster. He cited close proximity to the apartment complex next door and the odors that would be emitted from the restaurant.

Health Inspector Fred Prezioso, sitting in for Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue said he thought the enclosure of the dumpster could create a fire hazard in that fire trucks wouldn't be able to get in the area.

Prezioso said the health department would have to meet with the landlord to study the plans for the dumpster.

Ward 3 Councillor pat McDermott said dumpsters there in the past had attracted rodents and sometime "homeless persons", rummaging in the middle of the night disturbing the tenants in the apartment house next door

Although Hoang promised the board that the dumpster would be emptied regularly, a meeting will be held concerning the enclosure before a common victualer license is issued.

Fire Chief Gorman said he was also concerned about the odor of the oils used in frying if they are not removed at a regular basis.

Atty. Thomas Burns representing Hoang showed the board renovation plans and said it would be a "take out" restaurant. The two booths that will be installed would be for customers waiting for their orders.

PRIDE COMMITTEE of North Quincy High School recently announced the "Raider of the Month" recipients for January. One student per grade and one faculty member are chosen for an unsung hero award. Front row from left are Max Repoff, Grade 9; Samantha Pierce, Grade 10; Kristen Bowers, Grade 11 and Katie Switzer, Grade 12. Back, Steve Joyce, faculty recipient; Eileen Feeney, Pride Committee advisor; Peter Chrisom, principal and Ken McPhee, Pride Committee advisor.

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

*Granted a Motor 11 license to Hassan Shuman of Squantum Auto Repair, 771 East Squantum St. pending landscaping and a cleaning of the site with May 5 as a deadline.

*Granted a one day liquor license to Star of the Sea Church, 107 Bellevue Rd. for a parish dance March 22 from 8 p.m. to 12 midnight.

*Continued a hearing for Kertzman's of Quincy, Inc. 450 Quincy Ave. for permission to sell pine bark mulch and plants because of a zoning issue.

*Granted a one day entertainment license to Brigadood's, 520 Washington St. for March 17. The board also allowed the change of the name of the restaurant from O'Connell's to Brigadood's.

*Granted permission to Kendall Square Association doing business as Quincy Storage Depot, 1-47 Weston Ave. to open 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Sundays.

*Granted a license to Adams Service Station, 19 Independence Ave. for a Motor 11 and Repair Shop License. The owner Mike Donovan will meet with Ward 4 Councillor Mike D'Amico. He also has to procure a hazardous waste certificate and an updated gas trap, according to Fire Chief Thomas Gorman.

Gorman added that the gasoline license at the site has to be revoked since Donovan does not plan to sell gasoline.

*Granted a one day license to the Parker School PTO for a road race Sunday, May 31 at 10 a.m. Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers said the fundraiser will consist of a 5K race from Quincy Shore Drive, Squantum Street and Faxon Road back to the school.

*Continued a hearing regarding the Bean Routine, 299 Newport Ave., about violations of closing hours, overcrowding and having a 5 piece band without a license.

INVITATION FOR BIDS

INVITATION TO BID

The Department of Public Works for the City of Quincy, Massachusetts will receive sealed bids for The Hollis Avenue Drainage Improvements Project: Spring 1998 until 2:00 p.m. local time on Tuesday, April 7, 1998, in the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169, at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.

The work under this contract in general, shall consist of construction of drain and sewer lines, pump and tidegate chambers and associated appurtenances, mechanical and electrical equipment, service connections and controls and all associated works related to the construction of pump chamber.

All work shall be performed in accordance with the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Highway Department Standard Specifications for Highways and Bridges and Construction Standards, as last revised, unless specified otherwise.

All work under this contract shall be completed within 365 calendar days.

A non-refundable deposit of $75.00 in cash or check payable to the City of Quincy shall be required for each set of Contract Documents. Bidders requesting Contract Documents by mail shall also include an additional non-refundable mail fee of $15.00 in cash or check payable to the City of Quincy.

A pre-bid meeting will be held in the Department of Public Works, 55 Sea Street on Thursday, March 26 at 2:00 p.m. All prospective bidders are urged to attend.

All prospective bidders must obtain a Mass. Highway Pre-Bid Qualification Certification prior to obtaining plans and specifications.

The Contract Documents may be obtained during the business hours of 8:30 AM to 4:30 PM at the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, Engineering Division, 55 Sea St., Quincy, MA 02169 on or after March 12, 1998.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a bid security in the amount of five percent (5%) of the total value of the bid in the form described in the Instructions to Bidders. The Successful Bidder must furnish a one hundred percent (100%) Construction Performance Bond and a one hundred percent (100%) Construction Payment Bond with a surety company acceptable to the City. The bidding and award of this contract shall be in full compliance with Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 30, Section 39M, as last revised.

All Federal, State and City of Quincy regulations in relation to Minority Business Enterprise, Women's Business Enterprise, Minority Work Force, Equal Employment Opportunity, Employment of Quincy Residents and Minimum Wage Rates shall be complied with.

Goals for the project are as follows:

1. The Contractor shall maintain on this project a not less than 10 percent (10%) ratio of minority employee manhours to total manhours in each job category.

2. A minimum of ten percent (10%) Minority Business Enterprise (MBE) and five percent (5%) Women's Business Enterprise participation by state-certified MBEs and WBEs will be required and maintained on this project. The bidder shall submit complete MBE/WBE forms and SOWBWA certification letters with the bid.

3. The City of Quincy's Ordinance Chapter 12.28, City Council No. 532, requiring Contractors working on City-supported construction projects to have one Quincy Resident out of every three workers on the project must be complied with. Contractor must also comply with Apprenticeship Training Program Ordinance, Chapter 12.28, as stipulated under City Council Order No. 97-104.

4. The Contractor shall pay minimum wage rates to the workers, as per the latest schedule of rates, as mandated by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industries.

The City reserves the right to waive any informality in or to reject any or all bids when such an action is deemed in the best interests of the City. Non-responsive and/or unbalanced bids may be rejected.

New Housing Director Contract Talks Friday

QHA's director of finance and John Mather, director of the Office of Family Independence and Resident Initiatives at the Brockton Housing Authority.

Rev. Kimmell said he is convinced the right person was selected for the position.

"He brings a wealth of experience to the housing authority," he said of Casamento. "He's a consummate professional, he has tremendous intellect, and he has a great compassion for the housing residents. I can't tell you how delighted I am. I really think this is the beginning of a new day for the Quincy Housing Authority."

Rev. Kimmell added that Casamento also was the unanimous selection of four residents chosen to be part of the hiring process, although they did not actually have a vote. He thanked those residents for their participation as well as the other candidates for their interest in the position.

The QHA controls about 2,600 housing units, more than five times the number under the jurisdiction of the Saugus Housing Authority, which controls about 500. However, before becoming director of the latter—where he took over in January 1997—Casamento served as executive director of the 2,500-unit Somerville Housing Authority for five months in 1996.

Under his leadership, the authority in Somerville—which previously had experienced financial difficulties—paid off its debt, won modernization grants totaling millions of dollars, and began moving toward solving the problem of drug dealing and use among tenants, according to Casamento and published reports.

In August 1996, he was fired by Somerville Mayor Michael Capuano, who was criticized for subsequently hiring a friend with no prior experience heading such an authority.

Five Local Officials Receive Council On Aging Awards

The Quincy Council on Aging presented five local officials with Recognition Awards at its recent annual meeting at City Hall.

The five recipients were

Joe Kintings of Quincy Public Schools, Tony Siciliano of Emergency Management, Bruce Hall and Frank DeVito of the Department of Public Works and Arnie Westphal of BankBoston.

The officials were honored for their support and commitment to the senior citizens of Quincy through the Council on Aging's Department of Elder Services.

Among those in attendance were Mayor James Sheets, Council on Aging Chairman John Noonan, Council on Aging Director Brian Buckley and Council members, and the Quincy City Council.

For Outstanding Community Service Robert Derbes Honored As Sun 'Citizen Of The Year'

Robert H. "Bobby" Derbes was honored Sunday as the 1997 Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year for his volunteer work and many contributions to the community during "a life-long love affair" with his native Quincy.

The 13th annual Quincy Sun award was presented to him at a reception at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center attended by 200 including city and state officials, past recipients of the award, representatives of organizations he has served with as a volunteer or made generous contributions to and members of his family.

Derbes, who is 63, grew up in Quincy Point and now lives on Endicott St., was selected from among 42 nominees submitted by Sun readers. The final selection was made by a panel of judges that considered all 42 nominees.

Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth presented Derbes with a clock plaque inscribed:

"To Robert H. Derbes For Outstanding Community Service Who Truly Believes in Giving Back To The Community And Has Done So With Life-Long Devotion and Generosity Himself And With His Family."

He said the clock "is symbolic of all the time you have given to your community and are still giving."

Bosworth noted that Derbes and his brothers who are the Derbes Brothers contracting company of which he is treasurer and co-owner, have donated many thousands of dollars

QHA To Try Again For New Director

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Quincy Housing Authority Board of Commissioners will have to try again in its search for a new executive director.

The search resumed this week following the decision by William Casamento to reject the position.

Rev. James Kimmell, chairman of the QHA board, said at press time the commissioners would discuss what course of action to take during a meeting scheduled for yesterday (Wednesday).

The board offered the position to Casamento, the head of the Saugus Housing Authority, on March 7. He accepted the position early last week, but changed his mind last Friday when contract negotiations reached an impasse.

Kimmell said the board likely will take a second look at the 10 remaining semi-finalists for the position, including three others who were among the finalists with Casamento. He was not sure if other candidates would be considered.

Kimmell said Casamento, 56, decided to reject the position because he would not accept less than a three-year contract. The board offered one year, and subsequently two years as a compromise, he said.

"I'm disappointed," said Kimmell. "I really thought he was the right man for the job. But in our contract negotiations, we couldn't come to an agreement."

Casamento said at press time a one-year offer simply was not enough security.

"That's not possible," he said. "You can't get the job done in a year. It would take a good three years to change the image of the place because there are drastic changes needed there. And one year is not much of a commitment to a person."

"It's unfortunate. I was disappointed."

Casamento said he was unaware of any two-year offer, saying the board offered him a three-year deal with the compromise of subjecting himself to an annual review.

"That's still a one-year contract, as far as I'm concerned," he said, adding that he probably would not have accepted even a two-year contract.

Casamento also has been extended an offer to head the Framingham Housing Authority, but he is unsure whether he will accept that position or remain in Saugus.

"This whole Quincy thing threw me a little off-balance," he said. "But I will say that in Framingham, I'm confident they'd judge me by my job performance only. I don't get

New Cab Rates Passed

For the first time in eight years, the city has voted to increase its cab fares.

The City Council unanimously passed the fare increases proposed in January by Councillor Timothy Cahill at its meeting Monday night. The last such increase took effect in 1990.

The increases previously were supported by the Quincy License Board, which recommended that the council do the same.

The new rates, passed through amendment of a city ordinance, call for passengers to pay $3 in Quincy for the first mile they travel, $5 for two miles and $7 for three miles, with a use/time rate of $24 per hour. The figures are the same as those in Boston.

Previously, the Quincy rates were $2.50 for one mile, $4.25 for two and $6 for three, with a use/time hourly rate of $18.

The ordinance also states:

"When a carriage (cab) is engaged to carry a passenger less than that from the carriage to the place where the passenger enters the carriage, the passenger may be charged the fare from the carriage stand to the place where the passengers enter the carriage."

"Special flat rates for metered and unmetered hackney carriages may be arranged for mileage covered under the direction of any passengers not to exceed the rate."

"These provisions are to be posted in all licensed cabs in the city at all times. This notice is to be posted in all hackney carriages within one week of passage."

Cahill said he does not like to raise the fares, but it is necessary for the city to remain competitive with other communities.

"I'm very happy to introduce this," he said. "I think it's necessary. I want us to have the best-run, cleanest, most efficient fleet possible. It's a very fair increase."

Cahill said the matter has been discussed with Kevin Cook, the hackney officer of the Quincy Police Department as well as the city's three cab companies, and all agree the increase is acceptable.

Cahill's fellow councillors agreed.

"This makes it safer for passengers," said Council President Peter Kolson.

"I think it's reasonable," said Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin.

Councillors Clash Over Mailing Costs

By MICHAEL WHALEN
Ward councillors and at-large councillors squared off for a debate over mailings during Monday night's City Council meeting.

The council voted 8-1 to appropriate $50,000 from the city's free cash (cash reserve) account for additional city mailings, but not before a spirited 45-minute discussion that pitted the three at-large councillors against their ward colleagues.

The debate began after City Treasurer/Tax Collector Dana Childs requested the appropriation, saying the $138,000 mailing budget for Fiscal Year 1998—which began last July 1—has been used up.

Childs said the $50,000 was needed to cover the cost of mailings for all city departments—excluding the school and public works departments, which have their own postage budgets—until the end of the fiscal year. Of particular importance, he noted, is the immediate need to send out the city's fourth-quarter property tax bills.

Councillor Francis McCauley then produced a study he conducted on his own to see how much the council has spent on mailings to constituents.

McCauley's research showed that councillors mailed out 30,560 mailings in 1994, 37,146 in 1995 (a one-year increase of 21.6 percent), 73,312 in 1996 (97.4 percent more than '95), and 119,237 in 1997 (62.6 percent more than the previous year).

The number of mailings in 1997 was 290 percent more than that in 1994.

McCauley also produced a published report that said City Council members sent out 96,300 pieces of mail throughout the first 10 months of 1997, with three councillors—Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico (41,642), Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond (23,595) and Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin (10,725) accounting for more than 75 percent of the mailings sent by the nine-member council. D'Amico alone accounted for 43 percent.

"It's getting a little out of hand," said McCauley. "Nobody should have a blank check here as far as mailings go."

His fellow at-large councillors agreed.

"I do agree it's gotten out of hand," said Councillor Timothy Cahill, who acknowledged the need for ward councillors to keep their supporters informed but added, "certain councillors have abused the privilege. It's a real problem."

Cahill said the council should not open itself up to criticism that it is frivolously spending taxpayer dollars on the mailings and suggested a compromise figure to be spent on mailings be reached.

Councillor Paul Harold, the other at-large member and the only councillor to vote against the appropriation, has spoken on the issue in the past. He reiterated his position Monday night that the council is spending too much on the correspondence, some of which, he said, is "junk mail." He added that he is afraid the council's office staff spends too much time dealing with the mailings.

"The City Council is outmailing every single city department," said Harold.

Ward councillors agreed that a small percentage of their mailings may be unnecessary but said the majority are not.

"It's up to us to educate our constituents so that they can form an opinion (about neighborhood issues)—it's our job," said Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers.

D'Amico took offense to Harold's "junk mail" comment and suggestion that the office staff is being tied up by the correspondence. He said numerous Ward 4 matters require him to keep his constituents informed with mailings, 80 percent of which concern development issues and traffic concerns.

D'Amico added that he also disagrees with Harold's suggestion in the past that mailings should be part of a councillor's campaign account.

Durkin also shot back at Harold for targeting a specific mailing which, although Harold left unnamed, apparently took place in Ward 5. Durkin said between 1,100 and 1,200 pieces of mail had to be sent to inform residents in advance of a festival held at Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston.

"It was a perfectly legitimate mailing, and I would send it again," he said.

Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott conceded that "there has been some abuse" of the mailing privilege but suggested that about 90 percent of the correspondence is probably legitimate. He said he has sought "creative" ways to keep his mailing costs down and suggested all of his colleagues do the same.

The council ultimately agreed to discuss the issue again at a future date.

PSORIASIS OF THE NAIL

Psoriasis is a condition most people know as a red, scaly skin affliction. A lesser known variation is psoriasis of the nail, in which the toenail plate becomes pitted and separated from the nail bed. One sign of psoriasis of the nail is a yellowed toenail, similar in appearance to the discoloration of a fungal infection. Another sign, which can help narrow the diagnosis of psoriasis, is the presence of warts growing quite close to the nail.

If you are suffering from these or any other foot related complaints call us at (617) 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Pkwy., Suite #18, Quincy and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

In Quincy Point Council Approves Plans For Senior Complex

The City Council granted a special Planned Unit Development (PUD) permit Monday night for the Faxon Woods Retirement Community in Quincy Point.

The project is a $35 million, 330-unit senior citizen residential complex that will be built on land between the Granite Crossing shopping center and Faxon Park. It has been proposed by Atlantic Development Corp. of Hingham and Leggat McCall Retirement Properties, a Boston property management firm.

The 10-acre complex will include separate residential facilities for independent living, assisted care and elderly people suffering from Alzheimer's disease. It will be on an extension of Falls Boulevard, beyond the Wal-Mart store and Avalon Apartments at Faxon Park.

The parcel is zoned PUD and adjoins a 15-acre site the city recently bought from Atlantic Development for a planned new Quincy High School. The complex will have one access, the Falls Boulevard extension, and will not interfere with traffic from the new high school.

No construction date has been set.

Faxon Woods is aimed at retired middle-class homeowners and will include 150 units for independent seniors, 120 for those requiring moderate care, and 60 for Alzheimer's patients. It also will include dining rooms, a beauty parlor, billiard room, library, shuttle van and more.

The project will be privately financed. The proponents have not yet announced rental rates.

Atlantic Development President Donald MacKinnon, who attended Monday night's meeting, told the council two weeks ago the development will create 100 permanent jobs, generate $400,000 in added property taxes for the city, and help ease a local senior housing shortage.

Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymond, whose ward includes the site on which the senior complex will be built, said the project "is a significant part of the revitalization of the Ward 2 community."

Council President Peter Kolson agreed.

"This is a great project for Quincy," he said.

JON KINSLEY of the Quincy Fire Department was recently sworn-in to the rank of lieutenant by Assistant City Clerk Maureen Hallen. Looking on are Fire Chief Thomas Gorman and Mayor James Sheets. Kinsley has been a member of the department for 20 years and serves as its education officer, teaching fire safety in Quincy schools, senior facilities, and other locations.

Permit Sought For Quincy Stormwater Conduits

The Metropolitan District Commission is seeking permission from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to place fill in a total of 54,350 square feet of wetlands and waterways in Quincy, for the construction of the Bigelow Street Relief Conduit and the Brook Road Diversion Conduit.

The conduits would reduce flooding through diversion of stormwater from Town Brook directly to the Town River.

The application for the federal permit was filed with the Engineers in compliance with Section 10 of the Rivers and Harbors Act of 1899 which provides for federal regulation of any work in, under or over navigable waters of the United States and Section 404 of the Clean Water Act which regulates the discharge of dredged or fill material in United States waters.

To assist in evaluating the wetland fill, the Engineers are soliciting public comments. Written statements should be forwarded to their office no later than April 17.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Ted Lento at the New England District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, 696 Virginia Rd., Concord, MA 01742-2751.

Child Abduction Prevention Program At NQHS March 25

The nationally-acclaimed child abduction prevention program "Escape School" will be held Wednesday, March 25 at 4:30 p.m. in the auditorium at North Quincy High School, 316 Hancock St.

The event, which is being sponsored by the Deware Funeral Home, is free and open to the public.

Robert Stuber, former police officer and founder of Escape School, will present potentially life-saving information in an entertaining manner. Families will learn practical prevention techniques, including how to identify strangers not by what they look like, but how they act; what steps to take to keep safe; and why all of the rules change in such a dangerous situation.

Stuber travels all over the country to educate millions of children and adults with his program. He has received nationwide media coverage and has appeared on "The Oprah Winfrey Show" and "48 Hours."

Flynn In Bid For Governor's Council

Quincy businessman and popular auctioneer Dan Flynn will make a bid this year for governor's councillor.

Flynn, who owns the Daniel J. Flynn & Co. commercial and residential real estate firm and is actively involved in the community will challenge Christopher Iannella, Jr. of Boston for the Democratic nomination in the rambling Fourth District.

It will be his second run for the post and this time he feels he can win it.

Flynn made his political debut in 1992 as one of eight candidates for the seat which Quincy Atty. Peter Eleey stepped down from.

That year, Flynn finished fourth in the primary, splitting crucial Quincy votes with two other candidates running out of Quincy: Ronald Iacobucci and John Kerrigan.

And the South Shore vote was further split by three other area contenders: Paul Albert of Randolph and Paul Kingston and Michael Murphy both of Milton.

"I think Iannella is vulnerable this year," Flynn says. Especially if there is no South Shore vote splitting.
